CITY OF PARIS' TRIP

Roughest voyage the Captain Ever Experienced.

NO DAMAGE DONE TO THE SHIP.

Madame Patti the Only Woman on the Passage Who Was Not Seasick.

Stayed in Her Cabin Throughout the Entire Voyage—A Vessel in Distress Sighted, But She Required No Aid—Delayed by a Succession of Heavy Gales and Terribly High Seas.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Capt. Watkins, of the steamship City of Paris, which arrived here two days overdue, and for which the greatest anxiety had been felt, tells the following story of the voyage:

"It was the roughest trip I have experienced in years, and was by all odds the stormiest experience that the City of Paris has had. We had to buffet against a continuous succession of heavy gales and terribly high seas.

"For about 53 hours we had to slow our engines, as the seas were too furious to push the ship through at the usual pressure of steam. We were delayed about five or six hours in leaving Queenstown on account of a very heavy fog, and on Sunday evening, Dec. 27, we lost about four or five hours in communicating with the Llandaff City, of the Bristol City Line, which was flying signals of distress. It was in latitude 49 deg. 17 min., longitude 35 deg. 18 min., that we sighted the disabled vessel. The sea was very high at the time, and I could not get anywhere near her.

"Finally I stopped the City of Paris and lowered one of the boats, sending an officer to her. Her captain declined assistance, and desired only to be reported that the engines of his boat were disabled, but that he expected to get along all right. She was bound for New York from Bristol. The seas had used her pretty badly and had left her only one lifeboat. The sealed letter which the captain threw to our officer I have in my possession now and will deliver to her agents.

"Our vessel had no trouble of any sort. She behaved excellently throughout the trip. Our worst days were on Christmas and Thursday. The gale was terrific and the waves washed continuously over the decks. But no damage whatever was done to any part of the vessel. There was no fear or anxiety among the passengers at any time. Even at our worst moments, when we pitched and tossed about in a lively fashion, they took it all good humoredly. The most of them were, of course, sick. For a day or two nobody made his or her appearance at the table.

The City of Paris brought over 137 cabin passengers and 237 steerage passengers. The most prominent among the saloon people were Mme. Patti and her company. Patti was the only woman on board who was not seasick. She very rarely, however, made her appearance outside of her cabin, and had all her meals brought to her.

IN FEAR OF THEIR LIVES.

Two Witnesses Against Rockwell Do Not Want Him Released, It Is Said.

TOMS RIVER, N. J., Jan. 2.—One of the reasons why Elson K. Rockwell, the murderer, has not yet been released from the State Prison on a ticket-of-leave is said to be that so far Keeper John H. Patterson has refused to sign the parole. His signature was withheld, it was said, in deference to the earnest protest of Justice Van Syckel, before whom the case was tried.

It was also said that two of the principal witnesses in the case, ex-Sheriff Clayton Robbins and Capt. John Beatty, had asked leave to petition that Rockwell be not released, as they were fearful that the prisoner might seek revenge upon them if he should be set free.

Two Sing Sing Convicts Pardoned.

SING SING, N. Y., Jan. 2.—It was a happy New Year, indeed, for two convicts confined in the prison here. When they arose they were presented with a pardon from Gov. Hill. The men are George Weidler, aged 30, serving 20 years for manslaughter, convicted in 1883 and sentenced by Judge Moore, of Brooklyn; and William Conroy, 25 years old, serving a life sentence for murder in the second degree. He was sentenced by Judge Van Brunt, of New York, in 1885.

Outrages of Chinese Rebels.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 2.—While the main body of the rebels in Manchooria appears to be broken up, marauding bands still roam through the country committing outrages and murders. The animosity of these outlaws seems to be chiefly directed against the landowners, whose lives they take without mercy, and from this it is inferred that agrarian troubles have something to do with the outbreaks. The marauders also destroy the temples and plunder the altars, having no more respect for the native than for the Christian religion. As infantry, would be useless against the swiftly moving bands of depredators, Viceroy Li Hung Chang has sent a body of cavalry to attack them.

The Lovers Were Killed.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 2.—Edward Spohn and Mary Seigg were killed here in the afternoon by the falling of a wall. The couple were soon to be married, and while taking a stroll were passing the grounds of the Birdsell Manufacturing Company, which are surrounded by a brick wall twenty-two feet high, when without warning the great mass of brick and mortar fell on the lovers and completely buried them. Miss Seigg was instantly killed and Spohn was so badly crushed that he lived but a few moments after being removed from the debris.

SPEAKER CRISP'S CONDITION.

Not Seriously Ill, but Very Weak—The Speaker Pro Tem.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Speaker Crisp is somewhat improved. The sensational reports as to the serious condition of the Speaker are giving that gentleman's friends much annoyance. Judge Crisp has a severe attack of the grip and nothing more. He has had no pneumonia, nor has he been threatened with it.

Dr. Walsh, the attending physician, said: "Judge Crisp came out of the Speakership fight thoroughly exhausted physically. He ought to have been in bed a week before he was, but he is one of those men that will never give up unless absolutely compelled to. He is still very weak, and this is way he does not improve more rapidly. It may take him two weeks to fully regain his strength. There is nothing in the Speaker's condition to give his friends the slightest alarm."

The probability of the Speaker being unable to be in the House next Tuesday has set the gossips to guessing as who will be selected as Speaker pro tem. Under the rules of the House the Speaker can, if he so choose, designate some one to preside in his absence. But it has been customary where a long absence was expected to permit the House to select one of its members. In this instance it is probable that the Speaker will designate some one himself.

Some people have suggested that it would be the clever thing for the Speaker to ask Mr. Mills to preside in his absence. Mr. Mills couldn't very well refuse, and it might result in bringing about a better state of feeling, not only between the friends of these gentlemen, but themselves as well.

It is not likely, however, that Mr. Crisp will do any such thing. His friends contend that if Mr. Mills is not a safe man to be Speaker it would not be safe to give him that power even for a limited period.

Naturally there are a good many members who would be glad of this mark of distinction. Bland, of Missouri, and his colleague, Mr. Hatch, Mr. Springer and Mr. McMillin are all mentioned as the likely men. The general opinion seems to be, however, that Mr. McMillin will be the fortunate one.

Should Speaker Crisp be confined to his room for several weeks it will seriously interfere with the business of the House. The party would not care to undertake much important legislation in his absence. Owing to his illness the new rules will not be ready, and the House will be compelled to operate under the rules of its predecessor.

THE DUBLIN EXPLOSION.

John Devoy, of Chicago, Calls It a Tory Trick to Foster Coercion.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan 2.—Local Irishmen are cabling for particulars regarding the attempt to blow up Dublin Castle. John Devoy voices the prevailing sentiment in an interview in which he says:

"I don't believe that anybody but a Tory tried to blow it up. It looks to me like a government conspiracy. As a result a plea will be made for a continuance of coercion.

"It is mere folly to ascribe the explosion to the Fenians. They never favored such methods, and always advocated open warfare. It would be easier to get away with the Tower of London, than Dublin Castle with its multiplicity of guards."

Death of James E. Cooper.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—James E. Cooper, proprietor of the Adam Forepaugh shows, is dead in this city of inflammation of the stomach. He was born in Philadelphia November 4, 1833. He made his first start in the omnibus business. He became a circus manager in 1863, and was connected at different times with all the big circus firms of the country. In 1890 he purchased Adam Forepaugh's interests. He was a quiet, retiring man. He had much real estate about Philadelphia. He leaves a widow and three children.

PERKINS IS SENATOR

Appointed to Plumb's Seat by Gov. Humphrey.

GENERAL SATISFACTION FELT.

The Judge Has Served Eight Years in Congress and Was a Leader.

History of the Newly-Appointed Senator's Life—Ten Years on the Bench as District Judge—His Vigorous Work in Recent Campaigns—His Desire to Emulate His Predecessor.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 2.—Gov. Humphrey has ended the Senatorial struggle by appointing ex-Congressman Bishop W. Perkins United States Senator to succeed the late Preston B. Plumb. This conclusion was reached after mature and careful consideration.

In the present crisis, when Kansas, which had heretofore been the ablest represented State in the Union, was practically without a Senator, Gov. Humphrey felt that the people demanded the man who could best take up the work of Senator Plumb. He believed Judge Perkins, who served eight years in Congress as one of the leaders of the House, best fitted for the duty, and, after weighing the claims of all candidates, so elected.

Bishop W. Perkins was born at Rochester, Lorraine County, Ohio, in 1842. He received his early education in the public schools, and at Knox College, Galesburg, Ill. After leaving college he spent two years in Colorado. In July, 1862, he enlisted in Company D, Eighty-third Regiment Volunteer Infantry. He was one of the sergeants of his company until after the battle of Stone River. He was afterward detailed as adjutant, and later made captain of a company. He served four years through the war, participating in some of the hardest fought battles.

He was mustered out at Nashville, Tenn., and returned to Illinois, and entered the law office of G. C. Gray at Ottawa. He was admitted to the bar, and the same year located at Pierceton, Ind. He went to Oswego, Kan., in 1869, and was soon appointed County Attorney, declining a nomination to that office. He was elected Probate Judge in 1870, and held that office until he was appointed District Judge in 1873. He remained on the bench ten years, making a clean record.

In 1882 he was nominated as one of four candidates to Congress at large in the most bitterly contested State convention ever held in the State. He was elected in the Third Congressional District in 1884, 1886 and 1888, being defeated in 1890 by the combined vote of the Democrats and Farmers' Alliance, which had B. H. Clover as their candidate.

Judge Perkins has always been a strong Republican, and has been prominent in the various campaigns in Kansas since he first became a citizen. He is a strong man mentally, and where he is best known he has the stanchest and truest friends. In an interview Judge Perkins said he appreciated the compliment paid him very highly, and that he recognized the work that was before him.

"I shall go to Washington and enter on my duties with all my energy, and with a determination to vindicate, if possible, the action of Gov. Humphrey in appointing me. I feel the responsibility keenly, and shall do all in my power to continue the work so ably begun by Senator Plumb."

Fulford's Remarkable Shooting.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 2.—The Harrisburg Shooting Association Tournament attracted a large gathering. The chief event was the shooting of Champion E. D. Fulford, of this city. He was matched against Capt. Brewer, a man of some reputation at trap-shooting. Fulford outclassed him from the start, and made the remarkable record of killing 81 birds straight. Brewer's highest straight kill was 56. Fulford won by a score of 96 to 94. There was a great deal of interest in the contest between these men, and it is said that a large sum of money changed hands on the result. Many sportsmen from Philadelphia, New York and other cities witnessed the exhibition.

Two Lads Drowned While Skating.

UTICA, N. Y., Jan. 2.—At Ilion, twelve miles from here, during the morning, were found the bodies of two 9-year-old boys, Robert Nelson and Michael Willis. They had been skating Thursday and failed to come home. It is thought they broke through the ice, as a short distance from them was a large hole, out of which they had crawled and then frozen to death. They lived at Frankfort.

A Quiet Day for Field.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Edward M. Field spent a quiet day in Ludlow Street Jail. His physician, Dr. Cosby, called on him, but none of his friends or relatives went to see him. He ate some toast and an egg, and appeared to enjoy the simple fare.

NO WARLIKE PREPARATIONS.

Stories of Impending Hostilities the Work of Sensation Mongers.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—There are no unusual preparations on foot in the Navy Department, the War Department, the navy yards or the arsenal in this city. There has been some apparent ground for the current stories of unusual activity in the navy yards and about the plants of firms engaged in building cruisers and supplying the Government with munitions of war, but analysis in each case soon dispels the impression that these things are going on as part of the preparations for hostilities with Chili.

Just at present the Cramps, of Philadelphia, are urging the Government to pay them a large sum for work on the new cruisers, which they guarantee to finish within a few days. If not completed within a specified time the payments will be delayed 30 days or more, and for this reason work is being expedited at the ship yards, though at no unusual pace. The same thing is true regarding the Bethlehem Iron Works and Carnegie, Phipps & Co., of Pittsburg. The companies are hard at work furnishing deck-plates for the cruiser New York, which are now some days behind the contract date.

These are fair samples of the incidents which have been seized upon by sensation mongers to startle the country with stories of impending hostilities. They are of a piece with the report that Gen. Miles had been ordered to Washington to take charge of the land campaign against Chili, when, as a matter of fact, the general had arrived unofficially and accompanied by his wife to attend the wedding of his niece.

OUR NEW MONITOR.

The Miantonomoh Will Test Her Guns at Gardiner's Bay.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The monitor Miantonomoh, under command of Capt. Montgomery Sicard, has left the Brooklyn Navy Yard under orders from the Navy Department to test the ten different guns which constitute her armament.

The chief interest in the monitor's movements lies in the fact that the test about to be made is the first one in the history of the United States Navy where long rifles such as the Miantonomoh carries have been mounted and fired on board a coast defence vessel.

To many minds this test is not without danger to the gunners and others on the monitor. There is always the danger of explosion, albeit the guns have been previously tested on shore.

There are four ten-inch breech-loading guns, two each being placed in the fore and aft turrets; two three-pounder Hotchkiss revolving cannons, and two of the new Driggs-Schroeder rapid-fire guns. The last named are new inventions of American naval officers.

Capt. Sicard says that the guns will not be fully tested until Monday or Tuesday next.

When the test is completed the Miantonomoh will return to Brooklyn and Capt. Sicard will send his report to Washington.

Rev. James M. Usher's Death.

MEDFORD, Mass., Jan. 2.—Rev. James M. Usher, who is dead, was 77 years of age and a Universalist minister. He was ordained in 1839, and later owned and published the "Sabbath School Contributor, Trumpet and Christian Freeman." He was an ardent temperance and anti-slavery advocate and co-worker with William Lloyd Garrison and Wendell Phillips. He served several terms in the State Senate and House, and was a Fremont Presidential elector and principal agent from Massachusetts to the Paris Exposition, where he received a medal. He filled many county and town offices, but never ceased religious and temperance work.

Famine in Finland.

BERLIN, Jan. 2.—The peasantry of Finland, and especially those of the Northeast, are suffering for want of food, and have sent appeals to Sweden for relief. Although the crops have been short in Sweden, there is a movement in favor of helping the Finns owing to the strong attachment between the two nations, which has survived the annexation of Finland to Russia. The Russian authorities are said to be displeased at this action on the part of the Finns, as tending to revive associations which Russia has done her utmost to efface. The Swedes, on the contrary, are pleased to see Finland looking to them in the time of distress.

Almshouse Bookkeeper Absconded.

LOWELL, Mass., Jan. 2.—A warrant has been sworn out in the police court for the arrest of Charles B. Marsh, confidential clerk and bookkeeper at the State almshouse at Tewksbury, for the embezzlement of $700 from the pay of the officers of the institution. Marsh and his wife have left town and are believed to be in Chicago. Marsh is the youngest son of the late Captain Thos. J. Marsh, for many years superintendent of the almshouse, whose administration was so sensationally investigated by General Butler while Governor.

Business at Boston Custom House.

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—The amount of goods imported through the Custom House of this city for 1891 was $53,064,501. Domestic exports figure up $51,000,000, and the foreign exports to $421,147. The total amount of arrivals for the past year was 2,230, against 2,354 in 1890. In 1891 the clearances were 2,297, against 2,392 in 1890.

Massachusetts to Aid Starving Russia.

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—Governor Russell has issued an earnest appeal to the people of Massachusetts, asking them to contribute generously to the aid of the sufferers in Russia, and naming Bishop Brooks, the Rev. Edward Everett Hale, G. W. Peabody, William Lloyd Garrison and Josiah Quincy as a committee to take charge of the subscriptions.

BACK TO THE MINES

Tennessee Convicts Will Be Put to Work Again.

STANDING ARMY TO GUARD THEM

Stockades Have Been Rebuilt, Enlarged and Strongly Fortified.

Assistant Commissioner of Labor Alleman Charged with High Treason—He is Said to Have Incited the Uprising of the Miners When the Convicts Were Let Loose—To be Tried by Court Martial.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 2.—The standing army of Tennessee, composed of 103 men, three months' supplies, Gatling guns and regulation outfit, has left for the mines under command of Brigadier General Carnes and Adjutant General Norman. The battalion will be swelled by numbers until possibly 250 men are enlisted when they reach the scene of the recent troubles. Three hundred convicts were on the train and will be put to work in the mines again.

The stockades have been rebuilt and enlarged, and the miners will have serious opposition in reaching them if hostilities are renewed. Gen. Carnes and Norman are empowered to make a draft on the State for volunteers in case serious trouble is expected. The opinion over the State is that when the miners find what has been done they will arm themselves and sweep the handful of soldiers off the earth. Of the 600 convicts who were released in the uprising at Briceville, Oliver Springs and Coal Creek, over 250 are still at large. Special correspondents accompanied the troops in anticipation of trouble.

Everybody has been staggered lately by the sensational charge that Assistant Commissioner of Labor Alleman, a State official, is guilty of high treason against the State, a crime only punishable by hanging.

It is charged that just before the uprising of the miners Alleman went about among them inciting them to the movement. Alleman conferred personally with the leaders of the big mob and made speeches to them.

The matter came up before the Legislature in an informal way, and a resolution was introduced to have an investigation ordered, but influence stopped this. Alleman is to be tried by a court-martial, unless Gov. Buchanan interferes. Tennessee has become the laughing stock of her sister States on account of the weakness of Gov. Buchanan, who is trembling in his shoes now for fear the State troops will be attacked again.

AMICABLY SETTLED.

Differences of the Welsh Miners and Colliery Owners at an End.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—There is a general sense of relief among the working classes after learning that the Welsh colliers have come to an agreement with the owners, and that they will continue work at a slightly reduced rate of wages. In the towns of the coal districts of the principality there is general and public rejoicing.

But for the agreement 80,000 miners, representing several hundred thousand men, women and children, would have been thrown out of work in midwinter, and, although the miners average a pound a week in wages, it is known that, as a class, they are not forehanded.

The result is said to be due in part to political influence brought to bear on the mine owners by the Tories, who are particularly anxious at this time to avoid labor troubles as much as possible and also to avoid any issue likely to raise the question of mining royalties, which the Radicals are disposed to press upon the public.

Fear the Troops are Surrounded.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. 2.—There is much suppressed excitement and uneasiness at military department headquarters over the failure to receive any report from the seat of war on the border for the past eighteen hours. It is feared that Garza has received such a large number of reinforcements from Mexico since the revolt of Mexican troops at Mier, in which their commander, Gen. Lorenzo Garcia, is said to have been murdered, that they have the United States troops which were commanded by John G. Bourke completely surrounded.

The Girl Was the Ghost.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 2.—It has been found that Minnie Parrot is the ghost which has haunted the house of H. H. Jennings in Main street. For weeks mysterious rappings and noises were heard in the house both day and night. Minnie, who worked in the house, seemed particularly affected by the noises and frequently found in a faint. At last John Stevens, the owner of the house, hired a detective to investigate. He found that the girl made the rappings, and so skilfully as to deceive hundreds of people. She has confessed. She is a morphine fiend.

The Vatican and Chili.

ROME, Jan. 2.—The Vatican is taking steps to resume diplomatic relations with Chili, and it is stated that President Montt has received the overtures favorably. The former Papal Nuncio was expelled from Chili at a time when the Clerical party was out of power and influence. In the recent revolution the Clericals gave strong support to the Congressional cause, and it is said that they are to be gratified by the reception of a Papal Nuncio.

Grip Increasing in New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The new year opened favorably so far as the death record of the grip is concerned, there being but eleven deaths from the disease and its complications.

GOV. FLOWER'S RECEPTION.

The Occasion a Remarkable One—Staff and Other Appointments.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Governor Flower's reception was particularly noticeable from the number of political leaders from various parts of the State who paid their respects. It is estimated that over a thousand persons took occasion to shake hands with him after his inauguration.

During the evening Governor Flower and wife received the State officers and personal friends at the Executive Mansion in a most hospitable manner. Mrs. Flower was assisted by the ladies who accompanied her to the inauguration and who are her guests.

The occasion was a notable one, from the fact that it marks the opening of a new social era at the capital. Not since Mrs. Cornell ruled in the Governor's household in 1883 has a lady graced the receptions which should be the pride of the capital city.

It is announced that Senator Hill will go to Washington on Monday next, though many still believe he will remain here until after the Legislature organizes. His last official act was the signing of a commission appointing ex-Postmaster David G. Hockney, of Fort Plain, to succeed Eugene Blackford as Commissioner of Fisheries.

The full staff of the new Governor, which took part in the inauguration ceremonies, is as follows:

Adjutant-General—Gen. Josiah Porter, of New York.

Inspector-General—Gen. McGrath, of Albany.

Judge Advocate-General—A. F. Jenks of Brooklyn.

Surgeon General—Dr. J. H. Bryant, of New York.

Chief of Engineers—Prof. Palmer C. Ricketts, of Troy.

Chief of Artillery—Gen. Ferdinand P. Earle, of New York.

Quartermaster General—William M. West, of Hamilton.

Paymaster General—Frederick R. Halsey, of New York.

Commissary General of Subsistence—Lieutenant Colonel George D. Sanford, of Peekskill.

Inspector of Rifle Practice—Benjamin F. Whitlock, of Staten Island.

Aides de Camp—Jacob Ruppert, Jr., of New York; John McGee of Watkins; Thos. E. Sloan, of New York; Charles S. Rogers, of Hudson; Robert Grier Monroe and W. L. Davis, of New York.

In connection with the incoming State administration, the following appointments have been announced by Attorney-General-elect Simon W. Rosendale:

First Deputy Attorney-General—Isaac H. Maynard, of Stamford, Delaware County, (reappointed).

Second Deputy—John W. Hogan, of Watertown, (promoted from the third deputyship.)

Third Deputy—John D. McMahon, of Rome.

Assistant to the Attorney-General, stationed in New York city—Wm. J. Ladder (reappointed).

Clerks—William Ray Deland, M. H. Quirk, William H. Thomas, Walter L. Childs, John F. Handley (all reappointments).

Death of Fat Man Dietel.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 2.—John Dietel, the famous fat man who died at Cincinnati, was a native of this place. He followed the trade of butchering. He weighed over 700 pounds and suffered severely during his illness. He was married to his corpulent bride, weighing 598 pounds, on November 18 last. The deceased was the largest man about the girth on exhibition, measuring eight and one half feet, while his wife measures six and three-fourths feet. The body will be brought here for interment.

The Grip in Connecticut.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 2.—The grip is still prevalent. Old people seem to be particularly susceptible. At Middletown Robert W. Harrington, 83 years of age, died. At New Catherine Berry, an aged woman, was found dead in her bed. She had been dead three days. The neighbors missed her, but her house, No. 7 Myrtle street, was not broken into until to-day. At Norwalk Betsey B. Waterman, the mother of Kate Bishop, who poisoned her husband, died yesterday at Bridgeport of the plague, and at Winstead James Fallin, 62 years old, a local politician, passed away.

—William McRoble, who plays "Ah Lin" in Hettie Bernard Chase's production of "Uncle's Darling", is one of the best Chinamen on the American stage. His songs, dances and imitations bring down the house at every performance.

—The First Baptist people will observe the week of prayer, meetings being held every evening next week, excepting Monday and Saturday. The Bible normal class will meet as usual on Monday evening, and the meeting Friday evening will be in charge of the young people's league. Subject: "The Family and the Young".

The Good Old Custom Still Observed by the

—Hettie Bernard Chase, the petite and pretty little comediene, will appear at Music Hall to-night in her own play of "Uncle's Darling". The piece is a sensational comedy and the introduction of a team of reindeer, a troupe of Esquimaux dogs, a polar bear and many ingenious stage mechanisms gives a startling flavor of effective realism to the production. Part of the action of the play takes place in Alaska and gives opportunity for some novel arctic effects.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Elizabeth Coles.

Mrs. Elizabeth Coles, mother of Mrs. P. M. Demarest, and undoubtedly the oldest woman in Plainfield, died yesterday noon at 12:45, of pneumonia, superinduced by the grip. She was nearly ninety-one years of age; her birthday was in February. She was a woman of strong Christian character. Early in life she united with the Methodist church, and was an earnest faithful worker. She came of Holland stock, and of a long-lived family. Her father lived to be nearly 100. She was very active up to within a few days of her death. She leaves descendants as far down as great-great-grandchildren.

Wesley Servis.

Wesley Servis died at 6 o'clock last night, at his home, 100 West Front street. His age was about 54.

Mrs. A. M. Smith.

Mrs. A. M. Smith, formerly of North Plainfield, died at Flagtown Dec. 26, at the age of 73.

James E. Clarkson.

James E. Clarkson died yesterday in his eighty-second year. His wife went before him three weeks ago. Funeral services will be held at his late residence, 57 New street, Monday afternoon at 2.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. Mason W. Tyler has issued cards for receptions to be given Fridays, January 15 and 22. Colonel Tyler's West Seventh street home is a well-known place for true hospitality, and Mrs. Tyler's levees will undoubtedly be crowded with the wealth and fashion of the city.

A Wedding.

I. N. Wyckoff and Miss Annie Moore were married at the residence of the bride on New street, New Year's eve. by the Rev. Dr. Ketcham. Miss Maggie Sharp was bridesmaid and J. Wyckoff was "best man." Edward Tomlinson and Cyrus Moore were ushers. Guests were present from Long Branch, Brooklyn, New York, Newark, Westfield, Plainfield, and Peapack. The happy couple received many fine gifts.

After suffering for years with the worst form of Dyspepsia, such as bloating, dizziness, vertigo, acid stomach, etc., I came across Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. Using them as directed two months, and still continuing, find great relief. Would not be without, and cheerfully recommend to any suffering with the above symptoms. JAMES HENDERSON, Notions and Hosiery, 159 Newark avenue, Jersey City.

A GOOD MAN GONE.

Every citizen of Plainfield will learn with regret and sorrow of the death of "Uncle" John W. Laing, who for the past 50 years has been the friend of the poor or distressed in many ways. No one ever went to "Uncle John" and asked for assistance but he received it. His noble heart and generous hand will be a remembrance to many a person who he has assisted in his life. An honest man, in every sense of the word, his memory will remain green in the heart of the community in which he has so long lived and been respected and honored.

The circumstances of Mr. Laing's death were as follows. The evening previous he had appeared in good spirits, although having recently recovered from an attack of the grip, doctoring himself with simple remedies, as was his usual habit. He retired to his room in Laing's Hotel, where he has lived for so many years, about half-past nine o'clock in the evening, and not appearing at his usual hour in the morning, one of the guests of the hotel, Councilman V. L. Frazee, went to his room, where he was horrified by finding Mr. Laing lying upon the floor alongside his couch, face downwards, apparently dead. From appearances it was evident that Mr. Laing had disrobed and retired as usual and being attacked with an apoplectic fit had fallen out of his bed to the floor. His immediate relatives in this city were summoned at once, together with Dr. Probasco. The latter pronounced him dead, and requested that County Physician Wescott be summoned. That official, upon arrival shortly after, pronounced apoplexy as the cause of death. Undertaker Runyon, who has served in like capacity in the family on many previous occasions, was notified, and took charge of the remains.

John W. Laing has been proprietor of the well-known and popular Laing's Hotel for some fifty years, his father, Abraham, establishing the business many years previous to his own death. "Laing's Hotel" has been a well-known and popular name throughout this and other States, and many gray-haired men and women to-day recount with fond recollection, the many pleasant times they have enjoyed under its hospitable roof under the management of "Uncle John."

John Webster Laing was born in Piscataway township, Middlesex county, N. J., Oct. 27, 1817, and early in life was an apprentice in the harness-making business. His father was Abraham and his mother Sarah Laing. He was the last of his family, being the fourth son of a group of eight children, William, who died in California, Hugh, who died in Mexico, James, who died in Plainfield, Ann Eliza, and Althea, who died in Chester, N. J., Mary and Lucinda, who died in Plainfield in their youth. He came from Scotch descent; his ancestors coming to this country in the ship Caledonia in 1620.

There remain seven nieces and four nephews of deceased, Mrs. James H Force, Mrs. W. L. Force, Mrs. Clifford M. DeMott, Mrs. N. C. Dunn, Mrs. E. P. Sanger, Mrs. J. T. Lee, Mrs. H. C. Ohl, John and Hiram DeCamp, William and Hugh Laing.

For many years Mr. Laing has desired to dispose of his valuable property in this city on account of failing health and the loss by death of the last of his family, Mrs. Hiram H. DeCamp. His desire was to pass the remainder of his days among his nieces and nephews.

Mr. Laing has had two slight attacks of paralysis within a few years, only the immediate members of his family being cognizant of the fact.

A coincidence in the death of Mr. Laing is the fact that his father and mother died in the same building wherein he breathed his last. They died in a room on the second floor and he in one directly over it.

In politics Mr. Laing was a Whig in his younger days and an uncompromising Democrat until his death. In religious matters he strictly adhered to the Quaker faith, and followed out the "Golden Rule" in all his dealings with his fellow men. He was a bachelor. He was fond of relating his experience of riding some 1800 miles on horseback throughout the west in his younger days. His father, Abraham, in his younger days had a bakery at Madison, N. J., and John used to drive the bakery wagon throughout the neighboring country.

The funeral services will be from his his late residence, Laing's Hotel, on Tuesday, Jan. 5, at 2:30 p. m.

Silver Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. William Addis of 6 Orange place celebrated their silver wedding anniversary New Year's Eve. There was excellent music and refreshments, and everyone had a merry time. The gifts were many and valuable. A pleasant feature of the occasion was the presence of Mrs. Addis's father and mother. The former is 92 years of age, and is Elizabeth's oldest inhabitant. Other guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Garrett of Elizabeth, Mr. and Mrs. Haskard and Miss Haskard of Bayonne, Mr. and Mrs. Harding of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Frey, Mr. and Mrs. Beckman, Mr. and Mrs. Meany, Mrs. Kitchen and son, Mrs. Richard Boyce, Mrs. Rittenhouse, George J. Tobin, Mr. and Mrs. Enander, George Hughes, Clarence Mundy, George Bird, Lewis Bird, and Miss Carrie Smith, all of Plainfield.

RUNYON'S BILL TO BE PAID.

Under Mayor Gilbert's Direction the Councilmanic Trouble is All Adjusted, and the Council Adjourns sine Die.

The Plainfield common council of 1891 died with the old year, Thursday night. Councilmen Hetfield and Moffett did not attend the obsequies.

The councilmen waited around till 9:12 before beginning the funeral service. The first thing on the programme was the reading of the minutes. The nine councilmen voted unanimously not to approve the minutes.

Mayor Gilbert took the floor and made a speech.

He said that the reason he had not signed the warrant to pay the bill of $750 presented by ex-Chancellor Theodore Runyon was because it had not been properly audited and had come to him in an irregular manner. He said that the action of the council in abolishing the rules by a mere majority vote was contrary to all parliamentary and councilmanic rule, and was entirely irregular. He stated, however. that the bill was a very reasonable and moderate one for the services rendered to the city and when it came to him in a regular way he would be glad to sign the warrant.

In accordance with his suggestions, the council unanimously and without discussion passed a resolution to expunge from the minutes the questionable legislation of the previous meeting, abolishing the rules and then readopting them, and rescinded the order that a warrant for Mr. Runyon's bill be drawn. The bill was then referred back to the auditing committee, who promptly reported it correct, and a warrant was ordered drawn in the regular way.

When this business had been satisfactorily settled the expurgated minutes of the previous meeting were approved.

F. E. Miller and others petitioned for the placing of a fire-alarm box at the corner of Eighth street and Park avenue. The petition was tabled.

Councilmen Spangenberg, Smith and Ackerman, of the committee on street light investigation, presented the reports of the experts from Stevens Institute of Technology and from the Edison Laboratory who had been employed to test the various circuits. The reports were an array of technicalities, the gist of which was that the city has been getting just about two-thirds of the service it has been paying for. The matter was tabled, together with the committee's claim of $116.35, for the expenses of the investigation. The December bill for the street lighting service was tabled.

After accepting the city treasurer's new bond and receiving various committee reports, the council adjourned, at 10:17, without day.

LAST NIGHT'S DANCES.

A Ball at The Casino, and a Swell Hop at Mrs. Lowe's.

The assembly at the Casino, last night, was the second of the season, but being the New Year's first dance it was, as usual, crowded. The decorations of the ball-room were elegant and elaborate. The electric lights, covered with pink tartan, shed a soft, rosy glow upon the scene that was most exquisite in its effect.

The affair was a success. The patronesses, Mrs. Charles E. Brooks, Mrs. Robert L. Burnett, Mrs. William T. Kaufman and Mrs. J. Parker Mason, receieved. The music was by Elliott, of New York, and the supper by steward Robert Holmes and chef Alois Sellner, of the Union County Country club. Among those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Erickson, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wharton, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Roger Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Miller, the Misses Van Boskerck, Murphy, Erickson, Harte, Stewart, Murray, Cudlip, Anthony, Cooley, Taylor, Tracy, Streuli, Dumont, Yates, Huntington, Fehrmann, Walz, and Messrs. Brooks, Kaufman, Burnett, Mason, Van Buren, Murphy, Munn, Moore, McKinney, Borden, Walsh, Waring, Walz, Huntington, Yates, Raymond, Tracy, Stewert, Simmonds, Shepard and Hyde.

Mrs. William E. Lowe threw open her house on Park avenue, last evening, to the young society people of this city and the borough. Everybody was made sincerely welcome by the hostess and neither effort nor expense was spared to make the occasion unrivaled of its kind. The supper was furnished by herry, of New York. Among those present were:

The Misses Porter, Vail, Taylor, Stewart, Shepard, Smalley and Waring of this city, Miss Griffith of Troy, Miss Ely and Miss Rhodes of New York, Elliot Shepard, jr., of New York, and the Messrs Finch, Murray, Shepard, Beals, West, Van Boskerck, Waring, Lowell, Dumont and Bartindale.

CHEERS FOR FATHER STAFFORD.

The Boys' Club Have a Great Time at Their New-Year's Reception.

SELDOM has the hall of the Boys' club presented so lively a scene as it did at the New-Year's reception yesterday afternoon. About two hundred of the members were present, and for boys who were in perfect health they were generally a well-behaved company.

For an hour they ate about the tables, playing games, reading and otherwise amusing themselves. When Mr. Miner, the superintendent, sounded the bell to secure their attention to the programme that had been prepared, the hum of voices speedily ceased, and all showed an intelligent interest in what followed.

There was first a short address by Mr. Miner, in which he spoke of the success of the club during the year, which, he said, had now a membership of nearly five hundred. He was followed by Miss Bradley, a guest and relative of Mrs D. W. Pond, who gave a recitation, and by Mr. Mellick, who presented a short dialect selection.

The special address of the afternoon was then given by the Rev. Mr. Stafford, assistant rector of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, who made good use of the occasion to emphasize some very practical lessons that the club is intended to teach. When called upon, at the close of his remarks, to give Father Stafford three cheers, the boys did so with a will.

The boys were ready at this point to enjoy the amusing exhibition that the so-called "Smith family" made of itself. The seven heads shown in this part pantomime and part musical performance belonged to boys of the club, and they evidently succeeded in amusing their companions.

At the conclusion of the exercises in the hall a prize was awarded to the member who had been present the oftenest at the rooms during the year, which was secured by John Ronan; another was given to the one showing the most knowledge of the contents of the library books, and was taken by George Apgar; and a third was given for the greatest improvement in behavior, which went to B. D. Bergen and William Marsh.

The club was then dismissed, and as each boy reached the landing at the foot of the stairs he was presented with a generous gift of cake and candy. The way those two hundred boys "went for" those supplies can better be told by the officers of the club who stemmed the tide as it poured down the stairway.

The managers of the club present were W. D. Wadsworth, president, Mrs. D. W. Pond, Mrs. W. L. Patton, W. H. Murray, M. D., H. B. Wells, Dexter O. Tiffany, G. Wharton Edwards, and Mr. Mellick, and they were untiring in their efforts to make the occasion one to be remembered by the boys of the club.

Y. M. C. A.

The New Year was welcomed in hearty fashion by the Young Men's Christian association which insists upon observing the once popular custom of receiving all its friends upon that day. The rooms were prettily decorated, and for about six hours were filled with several hundred visitors who were cordially greeted by the members of the reception committee who had charge of the arrangements.

Ernest Marx kindly entertained the assembly with an exhibition of the phonograph, affording great amusement to all. Mr. and Miss Mechlin played a large number of selections upon the harp and saxophone. They quite recently been heard in Plainfield at one of the Sunday afternoon meetings of the Y. M. C. A., and they again yesterday delighted all who heard them. Prof. Andrew G. Carpenter discoursed sweet music on the violin at intervals during the afternoon and evening. An informal programme consisting of vocal solos, college songs, recitation and social intercourse made up the evening's entertainment.

The always efficient "Ladies Nine" had supervision of the refreshments which were served in the hall where tastefully ornamented tables were bountifully filled with a delicious collation, generously offered to all guests. The association has established a very excellent custom by its New Year receptions, and no young man in the city need feel he has no place to go for his evenings' recreation so long as the Y. M. C. A. extends its warm welcome and sympathetic interest to every one who enters its doors.

Base-ball News.

The managers of Somerville's base-ball team have released Roberts who played first base last season. Their release of Harkins has already been announced exclusiv in these columns.

Joe Flaherty will undoubtedly play on the Westfield team next season or some other team in the Central League. He will not play with the Crescents, however, as THE PRESS has already stated.

Leidy wrote to Somerville asking for his release. The managers there refused it. They said they would hold him "To spite Manager Keller." That's all nonsense. The latter has signed in Murphy a better left fielder than Leidy ever dreamed of being.

The Elizabeth team that will play in the Central league against Plainfield, Westfield, and Somerville, next season, is so far as follows:

At Williams, Frank Bowes, T. Murray, H. Francis, E. Rafferty, J. Demlein, T. Liddy, C. J. Berry, J. Dillon, T. Egan and Aug. Moran.

—The prettiest and merriest of soubrette artists, Miss Hettie Bernard Chase, has purchased some new and catchy songs that will be heard for the first time in this city with the production of "Uncle's Darling" to-night.

A CHANCE FOR A HOSPITAL BENEFIT.

Here's a Plainfielder with a Scheme for Animated Whist, by Local Society People —An Interesting Recreation, for Charitable Objects.

NEARLY everyone in Plainfield is a lover of whist, and all will be deep'y interested in this description of an animated form of the game, and in the accompanying suggestion. The writer is a well-known Plainfielder. He says:

A game of whist played with a pack of cards, each of which is endowed with life and motion, is on first thought somewhat striking; yet we have all heard of (and some have seen) the beautiful and stately "Living Game of Chess," which, when properly performed, becomes such a charming realization of the "motif" of that greatest of all games.

Animated Whist has been performed but twice in this country—once in Philadelphia, and again at North Adams, Mass; and I, having within a very brief period of time, advanced from the state of a casual and curious spectator to that of an enthusiastic admirer of this manner of playing the game of whist, may be pardoned for thus setting forth in detail the performance as witnessed. For those who have had the pleasure of seeing either of these performances this description will probably have but slight interest. It is given for the benefit of those who have not, and in the hope that it may be produced by the ladies of Plainfield, and if it meet (as probably it will) with the reception given at North Adams, the profits will add no small sum to the treasury of some of the charitable associations of this city, which are sadly in need of such aid—the Muhlenberg Hospital or Children's Home—besides affording those who take part a great deal of pleasure.

In color, life, movement, and the variety of figures which may be introduced, whist as a social entertainment possesses much greater possibilities than chess. The characters to be represented are fifty-two in number; that is, each of the cards in a full whist pack; and the characters become more piquant the more closely they resemble the conventional illustrations of the cards. Hearts and Diamonds should be allotted to blondes, Clubs and Spades to brunettes; and this idea should be carried throughout, if possible. The costumes of the court cards may be as rich and striking as the fancy of the wearer dictates, following as closely as possible the conventional illustrations of the cards. Among the lower cards there should be a certain degree of uniformity, white evening dress being "de rigueur".

The aces should be represented by ladies of graceful mien and stately carriage;—their dresses of white silk or satin, if possible, although this is not absolutely necessary—and trimmed with the color of the proper suit. Each should bear upon the front or in some conspicuous place the figure of the ace represented. Upon other portions of the costume this effect of the ace may be carried out according to the individual taste of the character, so far as to make the card easily recognizable.

The face cards should be arrayed in costumes resembling as closely as possible the King, Queen and Knave as we see them usually represented. The Kings should be chosen for their ability to portray kingly bearing and character. I refer to the ideal King. The Queens should be queenly and majestic in dress and appearance; there would be no difficulty in finding queens in our city; nor Knaves, who should be personated by gentlemen of some histrionic ability to furnish the comedy element compatible with their character.

The lower cards from the ten to the two are represented by young ladies and gentlemen; the ten, eight, six, four and two by gentlemen; nine, seven, five and three by ladies. This arrangement allows a lady to each gentleman, except the Knaves, who really do not deserve any and have certain duties of their own to perform. The ladies as before mentioned should be in white evening dress, and each should bear the proper insignia of her rank as a card. This idea of the value of the card may be represented as individual taste inspires; several pretty devices may be introduced; faces with the correct number of spots of the proper suit; five five-spots of spades arranged as an antique comb; a chatelaine composed of cards; a belt formed of cards of the proper denomination; in fact, the designs made use of to carry out the character can be so numerous and bewildering as to defy one far better versed than I in portraying women's dress, to describe.

The gentlemen representing the lower cards should all be in evening dress, each with a white silk sash passing over the left shoulder and knotted under the right, upon the front and back of which is represented the proper card. Although in the North Adams case all were in conventional black, it occurred to me that were the Diamonds and Hearts in evening dress of some scarlet cloth, the brilliancy of the scene would be greatly enhanced.

These, with the players, two ladies and two gentlemen in evening dress, are the dramatis personæ. An orchestra of course is indispensable. The floor space required should be at least fifty feet square—more if possible; some little rehearsing and drilling will be required previous to the performance of the game. The scene opens with the four players meeting and selecting partners for the game. This may be done briefly or can be made the basis of a very pretty figure, the pack in the meantime being massed and arranged in suits behind curtains. At the conclusion of the first figure the curtains are drawn aside and the pack of cards appears.

The shuffling of the Cards—The first figure executed by the pack is a grand march or drill in which the idea to be conveyed is the shuffling of the cards; the drill resembles somewhat a company drill, with the Knaves acting as lieutenants in command. Back and forth, breaking into fours and twos, changing partners, interlacing, forming and re-forming, executing evolutions wherein the services of a drill-master are indispensable, and finally passing into single files which move in opposite directions but parallel, this shuffling is truly a movement "of woven paces and of waving hands," and admits of the most charming effects.

Cutting the Trump—The second figure represents the cutting of trumps. The cards, having been thoroughly shuffled, are gathered together in the center "en masse". One of the players then passes through the center of the pack, which divides, retiring to either side on his approach, and leaving one of the cards standing alone. The player approaches this card, and, following closely the figure of the "visite" of the lancers, introduces her to the rest of the players and the "pack" as the trump, returning her to the pack which then reforms and after a short preliminary drill forms in columns of fours to one side.

The Dealing—The cards are now dealt to each player by the dealer approaching each card in succession and leading him or her by a short waltz to the players in proper rotation, each of whom receives the card in a manner more or less profound according to the status of the card. All of the cards being dealt, stand in a group behind their respective player and constitute his hand.

The Game—The game now begins by the first player playing a card, which he does by making a few turns of a waltz and bringing the card to the centre, where he leaves her with a bow. Each of the players follows in the same manner in turn, arranging so that the four cards which constitute the trick are represented by two ladies and two gentlemen. The cards may be played and received by the rest of the trick with more or less empressment, according to their value, and herein considerable by-play may be introduced. As soon as the last card of the trick is played, the music changes, and the four cards execute a figure from the quadrille, lancers or german (the figure should be different for each trick), and at its conclusion the player taking the trick comes forward and conducts them to his side, where they stand four abreast, and the next trick is played, and the others in the same manner.

All the cards having been played, the players themselves approach the center and execute a figure in which the endeavor is to portray the congratulations of the defeated to the successful partners. The aces and face cards form a circle around the players, and the lower cards another circle surrounding these; the circles move in opposite directions, red light is shown on the scene, the music changes to a waltz in which all join, and the "first hand round" is played.

When the game is to be given as an exhibition it is well to have the game arranged beforehand so that each card may be played in its proper place and turn, the final evolutions of the "shuffling being so arranged that when the cards are massed for dealing and are dealt in rotation each player will receive the hand previously designed that he shall hold. Care should also be taken in arranging the game that two ladies and two gentlemen are played in each trick.

An Attack on Dr. Lewis.

[From The Somerville Messenger.]

A couple of weeks ago THE MESSENGER noticed a book, in course of preparation (by the Rev. Dr. Lewis of Plainfield), soon to be published, the main purpose of which, it was said, was to show that the Christian Sunday was a substitute for the Jewish Sabbath, and which was due to the pagan influence on Christianity. We also expressed an opinion that the author would fall in the main purpose of his forthcoming book. The Plainfield Courier published our entire article, to which Dr. Lewis replied, somewhat insultingly to us and not altogether creditably to one in his profession, who ought to be a pattern to others in all things, especially in meekness and gentleness, and not easily provoked.

The Doctor was evidently provoked (though we said nothing that ought to have provoked him) into saying that we emphasized our ignorance when we asserted that "Sabbatarians would force men back to the bondage of Moses", etc. Ignorance! Then Martin Luther must have emphasized his ignorance, also, when he said, "If a preacher wishes to force you back to Moses, ask him whether Moses brought you out of Egypt." If we must make our choice, we prefer to be ignorant with Luther rather than wise with Dr. Lewis. What is it but forcing Christians back to Moses to go back to the Sabbath of the Fourth Commandment?

"Writers," says Dr. Lewis, "who dispose of great questions with a wave of the hand, and assume to state the history of centuries in two or three paragraphs, do not furnish material for an exhaustive review." This is all very true, as a general statement, but the insinuation it contains, that it belongs to us or fits us, is unjust misrepresentation. We undertook, of our own knowledge to settle nothing in point. We do prefer, however, to accept the settlement of doctrines made by historical Christianity rather than the conclusions of Dr. Lewis and his handful of side-tracked Seventh-Day Baptists, and that's what Dr. Lewis calls "disposing of great questions with a wave of the hand, and assuming to state the history of centuries," etc.—which is unfair and inaccurate.

Historical Christianity in its growth and development, not the writer, has settled long ago the question of Sabbath or Sunday observance for the Christian church, and we simply stand by that settlement as being presumptively right and in accord with our belief and that of millions of the most-learned and pious men since the Christian era.

We feel quite sure Dr. Lewis cannot persuade historical Christianity to go back to Moses. No, no! Everything is against it; volumes would not suffice to tell it all.

The Jewish Sabbath is fading out more and more in the knowledge of men, and in time it will be wholly forgotten.

We don't intend to get into any controversy with Dr. Lewis concerning his own individual belief, nor with the Seventh-day Baptists in general; nor to try to prove to them that the observance of the seventh day is not essential. We don't see how it can hurt if it doesn't do any good—and it is a good thing for every one to be fully persuaded in his own mind.

The reasons Dr. Lewis gives why he and others are Seventh-day Baptists would hardly satisfy a full-grown man. One reason is that the first Seventh-day Baptist was named John. John's baptism, however, was not Christian baptism. Robert Hall, a noted Baptist, and others show that John's baptism was only a preparatory rite, and not a Christian ordinance. He came with water, preaching the baptism of repentance, the forerunner of Christ, to point Him out to the people; and his mission to end with the Jewish dispensation.

The second reason is that "Christ entered His public ministry through baptism". Of course. Our Saviour lived under the old dispensation and was a strict observer of the institutions of Moses, and all that was done before His death belonged properly to that dispensation, and was to be in force till its end, and He thereby set an example of obedience to the Father's will. Another reason is that "He lived and died a Sabbath-keeper". Certainly—and for the same reason as the last. The dispensation in which He lived required it, and it was a duty in obedience to which He complied. What is there in one or all of these facts of any significance with reference to the duty of the observance of the seventh-day by Christians? And suppose Christians go back to the Fourth Commandment. What do you get? Simply a holiday; simply a day of rest; a day of festivity and rejoicing, more like our Thanksgiving Day than our Sunday. The Christian Sabbath (Sunday) rests upon something broader, deeper and profounder than any word written upon stone reaching across a gap of 3,000 years. Christianity doesn't need rules and regulations, new moons and Sabbaths, to preserve it, because it is life—Divine life in the soul—which develops itself spontaneously.

An Old Hotel Resident's Verdict.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—A sojourn of several months at The Albion, satisfies me that the citizens of Plainfield—whose interest it really is—have very little idea of the excellence of the hotel they have in their midst; or how almost daily its indefatigable host proves to the transient visitor to their city his ability to cater in the best metropolitan form to their wants.

When I say the New Year bill of fare at The Albion was served with the style, and prodigal abundance of our most celebrated hostelries, I do not overstate the facts. Nor is it in its cuisine alone that The Albion excels most suburban hotels. It is thoroughly neat, clean and comfortable in all its appointments, and richly deserves the commendations bestowed upon it by its patrons.

As a resident for twenty-five years past in several of New York's most popular hotels, I feel that I speak "by the card".

A TRIAL.

Cupid as judge—Youth at bar.
CUPID—The charge, I understand, is this—
You stole, in your youthful haste, a kiss;
But I am lenient with youth.
Confess—
YOUTH— I—yes—that is the truth.
CUPID— And then? Be brave and tell me all.
YOUTH—No lamp was lighted in the hall—
And, standing in the darkness, there,
I heard a step upon the stair.
I had no time for second thought,
So forthwith in my arms I caught
The outlined form, which I believed
To be the damsel who received
My every thought—I kissed her brow—
The recollection pains me now;
For by some turn of horrid chance
I kissed the eldest of her aunts—
A maid of forty-four—
CUPID— Hard fate!
Go on—why do you hesitate?
YOUTH—And ere I found time to explain—
That kiss was wanted back again.
But have you seen her? O ye saints!
She's wrinkled—ugly—and she paints!
She asked too much—
CUPID— But you must not Keep what you so wrongly got.
You must return it.
YOUTH— Mercy!
Cease—
CUPID— Return it to her by her niece.
—Flavel Scott Mines, in Life.

[Original.]

Recently while traveling my attention was directed to a lady and two children occupying a seat in front of me. The lady was neatly dressed and looked so bright and happy and so lovingly amused her pretty children that I discarded a rather dull book and gave myself wholly up to watching my neighbors.

After a time something in her face struck me as being strangely familiar, but where I had seen it, and under what circumstances, I had not the slightest idea.

Backward over the years went my thoughts, knocking at every dusty chamber of my brain, yet of no avail. Suddenly an attitude unconsciously assumed by the younger of the children, a girl, furnished the key that unlocked a long disused chamber, and I remembered distinctly. I had seen her before, but under such different circumstances that it was a wonder that I ever recalled the greatly changed face.

A fair face with streaming eyes was vividly impressed on my mind by what was nearly a tragedy, and to think that this happy, smiling face was the same, seemed incredible, yet so it was.

Although my interest in her, twenty years ago, was very great, I could not be so heartless as to break the spell and rudely plunge her into that past, which was now so clearly forgotten. Happily, she was so engrossed with the children that I was unnoticed. Silently I watched her and thought that seldom had it been my lot to see such a happy woman. When the brakeman called the town of L—— she gathered up her belongings, but before she could leave the car a stalwart fellow rushed in and, with an embrace that seemed to include all three, was so outspoken in his joy at seeing her, as he helped them to the depot platform, that every looker-on smiled.

It is strange how memory can bridge chasms, and although many years had passed since I had seen that woman, yet it seemed as yesterday. I was then police reporter on a metropolitan paper, and as this brought me in contact with crime and misfortune of all kinds, it was a dull routine, seldom varied by romance.

One morning a woman was brought insensible to the police station. She was well dressed and quite young. She had some money, but for some reason had tried to drown herself. It was a simple story that the colored man who rescued her told. He had seen her get off from an incoming train as it stopped at the depot and, almost reeling, start toward the river. Suspecting evil he followed her and arrived in time to rescue her from a suicide's death.

To a reporter the story was disappointingly devoid of sensation, and the articles found in her possession clearly identified her, but told no story.

The girl was a good-looking Swede, and that there was a story she could tell if she would made her an object of interest to all the police reporters of the city papers.

Someway we all took a fancy to this unfortunate girl, and frequently visited her at the hospital, where she was slowly recovering strength. When reason was recovered she could not speak to us, but to an interpreter she flatly refused to make any explanations. Despite her protests we knew there was a story behind the attempted suicide and resolutely set about to ingratiate ourselves into her good graces, that the story might be told.

Aside from the intense competition for a "scoop," we all were irresistibly drawn to this sad young girl, who could only look at us with mournful blue eyes and could not speak a word of our language. The tell-tale eyes told plainly of the effort to conceal, but what it was we were unable to imagine.

Two days before she was to resume her journey, I was promised her story. She was to write it and give it to me on the evening of her departure.

At the appointed time I was at the hospital door, only to be handed the promised letter and to be told that she had gone on the morning train. I was deeply disappointed, for I had grown to like this incomprehensible girl.

The only scoop that I got out of it was the announcement of her departure, for I did not tell the boys anything about it, nor did I tell them of the existence of the letter.

When the day's work was ended I hesitated long before opening this letter, in spite of my past eagerness regarding it. It seemed to me as if a pretty little fancy-built romance would fly away, as my aircastles had a way of doing. The letter was written in her own hand and inclosed was a translation. As I read I was glad the other boys knew nothing of it, and I determined then and there that they never should. The letter was as follows:

"My Friends, the Reporters: To show you that I appreciate your great kindness to me while an inmate of the hospital, I will try to tell you of the unhappy event which you have been puzzling over for weeks.

"Strange and unreasonable as it may seem to you, I am glad that I attempted to drown myself, and oh! so glad that the merciful God allowed me to be rescued before I died. This may seem wild to you, but I mean what I say.

"It was five years ago that Olof Swenson began making love to me. I was a child of thirteen years then, and he a boy of nineteen. We loved each other ardently for two years. Then my mother conceived a violent dislike for Olof, and as my father was completely under her control he soon forbade Olof to come to the house.

"Our love was too deep to be thwarted, and while I was at school Olof found frequent opportunities of visiting me. We would have married then, only we were too poor.

"One night my lover came to me and said: 'Ellen, if I were lost at sea, would you be faithful to me?'

"I saw that he was downcast and heavy hearted and had something on his mind.

"I said: 'Why, Olof, what do you mean?'

"'I mean,' he said, and tears filled his eyes, 'that—I am going to America.'

"'Oh, Olof,' I cried, and wept bitter tears.

"Then he told me of his plans and how, when he became rich, he would send for me. We both promised to be so true to each other, and we became almost happy in thinking of the good times in store for us in far away America.

"I bore up bravely, for I knew how hard it would be for poor Olof away off so far from friends and working so hard for me.

"His letters came as regularly as working men's letters usually come. After awhile his writing seemed uncertain, as though his hand was weak, and I could hardly read his letters. Then I knew that he was sick but would not tell me.

"I felt that I must go to my lover. The ocean is wide, but a trustful heart can span it and fly like a freed sparrow to its mate. I sold some of my clothes and borrowed some money from my brother. Then, when I was all ready, I told my parents. They were angry and sorely perplexed, but I was bound to go and they could not keep me.

"On the morning of my departure my brother brought me a letter written in a strange hand. It told me that Olof was dead and in the letter was a lock of hair I had given him when he left. A friend of Olof's had written the letter. It said that my lover's dying request had been to send the hair to me and tell me that he loved me to the last.

"Grief is hard to bear, but I bore mine as bravely as I could, and in a month I started to America to go to my lover's grave, and then go on to live with a brother in Utah.

"In your country directions are easy, and I arrived safely in the town where he died. On the evening of my arrival I bought a bouquet of flowers and started to the cemetery to find his grave. Near a house I stopped to rest. I saw a man approaching and heard him whistling an old Swedish air I knew so well. My blood tingled and my heart leaped for joy. It was a dear old tune that Olof was fond of before he was laid in the churchyard. The man entered the house as I drew near. I passed the window. It was Olof himself. He was making love to another girl. His arm was around her and he was looking into her eyes as he used to look at me.

"Thus had the dead come to life again and I had been deceived. I ran away and came here. How, I do not know. A terrible something pursued me. It seemed the phantom of him I had loved so truly. I could not forget, and, in desperation, I tried to drown myself to get away from my thoughts. As I have lain here, I have forgotten. I am as one who has recovered from a long illness, weak but painless. That is why I am glad that I tried to drown myself, for the cold water of the river has washed away the memory of him I loved, and henceforth I do not think of Olof as he is, but as he was when first I saw him. Now you know all there is to tell. I am now going to my brother, who will be very glad to welcome me. Good-by. Ellen Hegman."

GRAVES CONFESSES

The Doctor Partly Admits His Guilt.

COLONEL BALLOU IMPLICATED.

Before the Verdict of Guilty Was Announced the Latter Had Fled.

Graves Told His Keepers on the Way to Jail That Ballou Was Responsible for the Conviction, and Was Equally Guilty With Him in Causing the Death of Mrs. Barnaby—Said That He Followed the Instructions of the Colonel in His Testimony—Dramatic Scene in the Court Room When the Verdict Was Rendered —The Doctor Threatens to Commit Suicide.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 4.—Dr. Graves has made a partial confession of his guilt, implicating Col. Ballou in the death of Mrs. Barnaby, and the Colonel has fled.

Before the verdict of the jury was made known Saturday night, the Providence lawyer made his preparations to escape. He left the court room after listening to the greater portion of District-Attorney Stevens' closing argument. He went directly to the Vallejo, the private hotel where he was stopping, and hurriedly packed his belongings. He called Manager Evans, of the hotel, to his apartments, and told him that he desired to settle his bills.

The latter expressed his surprise that the lawyer would leave so unexpectedly when the fate of his client had not yet been determined. Col. Ballou enjoined secrecy upon him, telling him that his business engagements would not permit of his remaining longer. He left the hotel without stopping for supper. His wife went with him. They lunched at an obscure restaurant in this city and went to the Union Depot.

Col. Ballou bought tickets and took the 8:30 Rock Island train for the East. He made arrangements to have the verdict telegraphed to him on the train. One hour after his secret departure the startling verdict, condemning Dr. Graves to death was found. Before the lawyer's departure he was accused of being an accomplice of Dr. Graves. It is supposed that this, coupled with a premonition of what the verdict would be, frightened him.

The scene in court when the verdict was given was dramatic in the extreme. At half past 8 o'clock the deputy sheriff was summoned to the jury room. The spectators realized that the hour had come and there was great excitement. In five minutes more the jury filed slowly in.

John P. Lower carried a roll of papers in his hand indicating that he had been chosen foreman.

"Gentlemen, have you arrived at a verdict," asked Judge Rising.

"We have, your Honor," responded the foreman, passing the roll of paper to the judge who passed it to the clerk.

The spectators held their breath as he read slowly and distinctly the verdict

A deep flush passed over the face of Dr. Graves, followed by a deathly pallor. He looked at the ceiling with apparent nervousness.

When the clerk pronounced the words "murder in the first degree," the audience started to cheer, but a bailiff rapped for order and intercepted the demonstration.

The sweat dropped from the brow of the accused and he rose from his chair.

"Will you poll the jury?" asked the court of Judge Furman, counsel for the defense.

"No," he exclaimed abruptly. The jury was then excused and there was a rush of sympathizers to the condemned man.

Judge Furman placed his hands over his head and wept. In all his experience this was the first conviction any client of his had ever suffered. The defeat seemed to crush him.

Dr. Graves did not weep, but his excitement was most overwhelming. The court ordered two deputy sheriffs to conduct the condemned man to a murderer's cell in the county jail.

When the irons were taken out to be locked on Dr. Graves' wrists he shuddered and begged for a few minutes more. It was granted but for ten minutes only. Then dejected, he was taken to jail.

On the way to jail after his fate had been pronounced by the jury, Dr. Graves made damaging statements about Col. Ballou.

"If Ballou had not come out here, never would have been convicted," he said. "I wanted to testify that I sent a bottle of pure whiskey to Mrs. Barnaby. Ballou would not let me. He is guilty as I am. I followed his instructions and it is not right that he should go free and I to the gallows."

Mrs. Graves has received many despatches of condolence but none were from Col. Ballou. He has not been heard of since his departure.

Speaking of Col. Ballou's flight John Conrad, prosecuting witness for the State said this morning: "Although Col. Ballou has fled, it is as easy to bring him back as it was for him to disappear from Denver. I will follow him to the uttermost parts of the world."

The grand jury will meet this afternoon after a long recess, when Col. Ballou's flight will be considered. It is expected that he will be indicted in the next few days.

Dr. Graves is in the condemned cell of the jail here and a death watch is placed over him. Suicide is feared, as he frequently threatened to take his life yesterday. He was a pitiable object this morning, seen sitting in dishabille on the side of his rude iron cot. He had not even combed his hair.

"Oh, my God, this is terrible," he exclaimed, "I am an innocent man."

Then he begged that his wife be not interviewed.

"Her troubles are already great enough," he said. There was a wild gleam in his eye that suggested desperation to the observer. He refused to talk about Col. Ballou at all.

Mrs. Graves and his mother have not seen the condemned man since he has been locked up. The wife is heartbroken and spent yesterday in bed. Judge Furman, one of the lawyers of the accused, was the only visitor Dr. Graves had yesterday.

The condition of Graves' wife and mother is precarious.

WITHOUT FOOD FOR 640 DAYS.

The Allentown Faster is Now Blind, Bed-Ridden and Paralytic.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—Mrs. Adam Wuchter of Whitehall, seven miles from here, whose strange experience as an involuntary faster created such widespread interest during the summer and fall of 1890, is still alive, apparently having subsisted 640 days without swallowing a morsel of solid food.

She is now blind, bed-ridden, paralytic and wasted to a shadow. Since April 4, 1890, she has been unable to swallow anything, except occasionally a few drops of water, and a few months ago succeeded in swallowing a little beef tea and orange juice.

Boyd Said to Have Won.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—While no official information can be secured in regard to the report that the United States Supreme Court had by a vote of six to three decided the contest between Boyd and Thayer for the Governorship of Nebraska in favor of the former, it can be positively stated that the court will render such a decision. It can also be stated, in consequence, that there is serious troub e ahead for the person or persons who gave out the decision before it was formally rendered by the court. Chief Justice Fuller has instituted an investigation which is still in progress with a view to ferreting out the guilty parties.

Idaho Senatorial Contest.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The Senate committee on elections will take up the Idaho Senatorial contest either on the 7th or 11th of this month, the dates to which Mr. Clagett, who is contesting Senator Dubois seat, asked a postponement. Senator Dubois was elected as a third Senator from Idaho to succeed Judge McConnell, and Mr. Clagett claims that this election was illegal. He has prepared a brief setting forth his statement of the case and Senator Dubois has also prepared a pamphlet in which his side of the controversy is elaborately argued.

Corbett and Mitchell May Yet Meet.

NEW YORK Jan. 4.—The pugilistic fraternity have not given up all hope that the Corbett-Mitchell glove contest will ever take place. Superintendent Murray's warning that he will not permit the contest to come off they do not accept as decisive. Representatives of both pugilists sought a legal opinion their articles of agreement from Civil Justice Peter Mitchell, who says that Superintendent Murray has misinterpreted the law and that in his opinion, there is no law to prevent the contest from taking place.

JAY GOULD'S CRANK

"A. B. 33," Who Threatens Dynamite, a Crafty Lunatic.

HE IS LOOKING FOR REVENGE.

His Demand for $10,000 Probably Animated by Financial Losses.

Detectives Searching High and Low for This Latest Would-be Exterminator of Millionaires—He Knows Jay's Past Life Perfectly—Alarm of the Gould Family—Helen Gould's Crazy Admirer Arraigned.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The story yesterday of how a man, who signed himself "A. B. 33," had written a letter to Jay Gould threatening to blow the millionaire up with dynamite unless Mr. Gould sent "several thousand dollars" to an address in Canada, has been amplified upon further investigation, and reveals the writer as a dangerous crank, and an intelligent and revengeful one at that.

Inspector Byrnes realizes that in this lunatic he has a cunning, desperate fellow to deal with, and he is bending every energy to put him out of the way of exploding the hat full of dynamite he declares he will throw under Jay Gould's carriage the next time he takes a ride.

The letter was received by Mr. Gould a week ago yesterday and threw the family into a state of alarm. It was immediately turned over to the police for action. The writer knew Jay Gould's life well. All the financier's strategic movements in Wall street for the last twenty years were familiar to him. His letter demanded $10,000, and was voluminous.

It recited Mr. Gould's connection with the Erie railroad troubles in 1871, the memorable Black Friday of 1873 and other disastrous panics.

The writing looked like that of a foreigner. Its final announcement that the writer had followed every movement of the Gould family for a week, giving in corroboration details of their comings and goings from the house, office and other places, thoroughly alarmed Mr. Gould's sons, Edwin and George J. Gould, who were more distressed by it than their father. It was evident that the crank was closely following the millionaire and his family with his last load of dynamite, and he might carry out his threat any moment the opportunity presented.

"A. B. 33's" letter directed Mr. Gould to send the $10,000 to an address in Canada. The writer had no intention of receiving the money there. He was too shrewd for that, but left instructions to have his mail sent to another address, and there left an order to have it forwarded to a third address, probably in this city, where he could receive it without much risk of arrest, having hidden his whereabouts from the place where the money was to be sent. He can safely be regarded as the most dangerous enemy of a millionaire that has appeared since Henry W. Norcross, note broker, of Boston, sacrificed his life in the attempt to compel Russell Sage to give up $1,250,000.

Central office detectives are watching the Gould residence from the Windsor Hotel, and the police of the East Fifty-ninth street station are also on the alert for cranks in the neighborhood.

Mr. Edwin Gould appeared in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday morning as complainant against Prinz Von Michaels, who was arrested on Jay Gould's steps on Saturday forenoon as he was about to ring the bell to offer his hand and heart to Miss Helen Gould, the millionaire's daughter. Mr. Gould was accompanied to court by Detective Sergeant McCloskey, who is one of the Byrnes detectives regarding the safety of the Goulds.

Justice Ryan asked Von Michaels if he knew Russell Sage, and the crank replied: "Yes, I know him. I traveled through the West for him awhile ago, giving tips on the stock market."

Von Michaels was committed to Bellevue Hospital for examination as to his sanity.

Death of E. McCall Cushman.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., Jan. 4.—E. McCall Cushman, for many years agent of the Hartford Soldiers Aid Association at Washington, is dead in this city. He was 73 years old. He was closely associated with Generals Grant and Howard and other prominent men. Upon the death of G. R. Heap, some years ago, he was appointed the business agent and legal adviser of the late Eunice Richmond Heap, who willed her property, some $30,000, to him. This will was contested by her heirs, which gave rise to the famous Heap will case.

Repudiate Dr. Teed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 4.—President Henrici, of the Economite Society, publicly repudiates the self proclaimed Messiah, Dr. Cyrus W. Teed, of Chicago, who has been trying to introduce his doctrines into the society, and says the latter can never enter the Economite Society. The Economites look upon Dr. Teed as an adventurer, and will have none of his "koreshean" doctrines.

LEGISLATURE OF NEW YORK.

The Caucuses to Be Held To-Night—Probable Nominations.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Such general quietude as prevails here was never before noticed one day prior to a legislative session. It is true that Gen. Husted has opened legislative headquarters and so has Dr. Bush, but there seems to be no opposition to their individual candidacies. The arrival of members of the Legislature is very slow.

Senator Cantor has not opened any quarters for president pro tem. and says he does not think he will. He will be the president pro tem. of the Senate and without any opposition. For the Republicans Senators Erwin and Saxton are the candidates for leaders with the chances in favor of the former.

For Clerk of the Senate Walter H. Brown has the call for the Democrats. The Republicans will give their complimentary nominations to John Kenyon for Clerk, and George Thornton for Stenographer.

In the Assembly Dr. Robert P. Bush will be Speaker, and the leadership lies between George H. Bush and Galen R. Hitt. Gen. Husted will lead the minority, and the Clerk will be Charles B. De Freest, of last year's force. Irving F. Cragin, of Buffalo, will be journal Clerk, and the balance of the force will stay like last year.

All of the caucuses will be held to-night at 8 o'clock.

Senator Edwards said this morning: "I have concluded that as an Independent Republican it would not do for me to assimilate with either party. I shall not go into either caucus to-night but shall go the Senate to-morrow night and vote as I see fit. I am not tied down on any question, particularly party questions."

GAS MEN MAD.

They Want to Compete With Electric Lights at the Fair.

HARTFORD, Jan. 4.—The gas men of the country are not feeling very kindly disposed towards the managers of the World's Fair, and in an effort to patch up the differences, Congressman Lewis Sperry of the Hartford district went to New York this morning to consult with ex-Governor Thomas M. Waller of Connecticut, who is one of the Vice-Presidents of the World's Fair.

The grievance of the gas men arises from the fact that the Fair managers have made elaborate arrangements for electrical displays, and a magnificent building for this purpose is to be erected for this purpose, while the gas men are left out in the cold. So the American Association of Gas Engineers has left it to John P. Harbison, of Hartford, to see if the Fair managers cannot be induced to give gas an equal chance with electric light. Mr. Harbison, who is president of the Hartford City Gas Light Company, is also chairman of the Committee on Gas Lighting of the association, as well as past president of the association. He has enlisted the services of Congressman Sperry, who hopes to induce Gov. Waller to champion the interest of the gas men.

AFFAIRS OF CONGRESS.

Speaker Crisp Will be Unable to Preside To-morrow—Rules, Bills, Etc.

WASHINGTON, Jan 4.—It is not likely that any important business will be transacted in the Senate when it meets to-morrow, and it has no regular programme mapped out for the week. The order of business will be largely dependent upon the expedition shown by the various committees in making reports. Most of the committees have not yet held a meeting since their reorganization just before the holidays.

In the House Benton McMillin will be selected as Speaker pro tem. The rules of the 50th Congress will then be adopted and will remain in force until the Committee on Rules is ready to report, which may be two years hence. To-morrow and Wednesday will very probably be devoted to the reception of bills, and it is not likely that any other business of importance will be transacted during the week.

Speaker Crisp is slowly recovering from his severe attack of the grip, and his condition this morning shows some improvement; but he is still weak, so weak that it is certain he will not be able to preside over the House when it assembles to-morrow.

Gen. Grant's Remains.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Senator Manderson will make an effort during this week in the Senate Committee on Military Affairs to call up Senator Plumb's resolution for the removal of General Grant's remains from New York to Arlington Cemetery. Mr. Manderson believes that Arlington is the proper place for the great soldier to rest, and that there will be little opposition to the projected removal.

Quay Thinks Blaine Will Accept.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 4.—Senator Quay spent part of yesterday in Pittsburg on his way to Washington. The Senator does not take much stock in the reports of General Alger's candidacy for the Presidential nomination. "I don't believe General Alger will be a candidate," was his assertion. There are only two names spoken of in connection with the coming nomination—Harrison and Blaine. If the convention were held to-morrow I think President Harrison would be nominated if Blaine were not a candidate; if Blaine's name were presented he would be nominated by acclamation; but there is no telling what may occur between now and June. I am confident, though, that Blaine will accept the nomination if it is given him."

Retiring Fire Insurance Companies.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 4.—Owing to the lack of profit, the City of London Fire Insurance Company has decided to withdraw its business in the United States. All risks at present held by the company in this country will be carried to maturity. The Meriden, Conn. Fire Insurance Company has retired from business. It has reinsured its risks in the Royal.

A CRISIS IMPENDING

Differences in the Reports of the Chili Outrage.

REVIEW OF THE PROCURATOR.

He Finds That the American Sailors Were the Aggressors in the Fight.

An Issue That Can Only Be Settled By the Investigation of an Impartial Tribunal—Senor Romero, the Mexican Minister, Has Not Been Asked to Act as Arbitrator—President Harrison Will Soon Speak to Congress on the Subject.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Chilian affairs are likely to be brought to a crisis within the next two or three days. The report of the Procurator Fiscal has been concluded and is to be cabled to Minister Montt to-day and will be laid by him before Secretary Blaine. There is a distinct issue as to facts between the results of the trial by the Chilian authorities and the presentation of the case made by President Harrison in his message, which was based on the report made by a board of officers of the cruiser Baltimore. President Harrison says in his message:

"These attacks were unprovoked, and our men were conducting themselves in a peaceable and orderly manner. Some of the police of the city took part in the assault and used their weapons with fatal effect."

There appears to be no disposition on the part of the Chilian judge to probe too deeply into the part taken by the Chilian police, for the evidence of a witness before Judge of Crimes Foster that he saw three policemen hold the American sailor who was killed receives no further attention from the reviewing judge. Summing it up he finds that the American sailors were the aggressors, and that the Chilians were merely on the defensive.

It is clearly impossible to reconcile the two views. There is an absolute conflict of fact on every position. It is clearly for the purpose of fortifying the American position, as laid down in the President's message, that Judge Advocate General Remy is now on his way to San Francisco to take the depositions of sailors on the Baltimore as soon as she arrives. While Americans will prefer to believe that President Harrison's statement is the correct one, yet, on the other hand, diplomats here agree that equal honesty and sincerity must be conceded to the Chilian Government, and that we cannot claim, a priori, that the Chilian Procurator has deliberately falsified the facts to vindicate his government from an otherwise untenable position.

With two honest statements so widely at variance there appears to be but one course—an investigation of the subject by some entirely impartial tribunal. A statement that Minister Romero has already been requested by Minister Montt to act as arbitrator proves to have been as premature as the statement that the German Minister at Valparaiso had offered the good offices of Germany as mediator between Chili and the United States.

PROCURATOR FISCAL'S REPORT.

He Cannot Tell Who is Responsible for the Baltimore Outrage.

VALPARAISO, Chili, Jan. 4.—The Procurator Fiscal has concluded his review of the Baltimore case.

He finds that Rodriguez, Gomez and Azumada, the three rioters who were held by Judge of Crimes Foster, are guilty of stabbing and otherwise wounding the American sailors, but he says that the evidence is not strong enough to show that the wounds inflicted by the four prisoners caused the deaths of Boatswain's Mate Charles Riggin and Coal Heaver Turnbull. He finds the Baltimore sailor Davidson guilty of assault upon a Chilian sailor.

Rodriguez acknowledged stabbing Riggin because the latter assaulted one of the sailors of the Chilian torpedo boat Almirante Cochrane. Seeing the Chilian seaman ill treated Rodriguez stuck his knife into Riggan's back.

Gomez admitted stabbing Turnbull in the back three times, and said he did so in defending some friends of his whom Turnbull had knocked down.

Azumada denied having had anything to do with the assault, but was shown by other witnesses to have participated in it.

Cortez, another of the prisoners, also alleged that he took no part in the affair. A revolver was found on him, but he said he carries it to defend himself.

It now only remains for Judge of Crimes Foster to pass sentence on the three convicted prisoners. Relative to Cortez's implication the Prosecutor Fiscal says that more data are required.

The Fiscal comes to the conclusion that it is impossible to determine who fired the shot which killed Riggin. It will be remembered that one of the witnesses, according to Judge Foster's report, testified that he saw three policemen holding Riggin at the time the fatal shot was fired.

Minister Pedro Montt has been notified that the Chilian Government is willing and anxious to accept arbitrators mutually agreeable to both countries, in the Baltimore affair, if that course shall be proposed by the United States.

The entire report of the Fiscal will be cabled to-day for the information of the United States Government.

It is probable that an extended amnesty will be proclaimed shortly.

Warlike Activity at San Diego.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4.—A dispatch from San Diego says the cruiser San Francisco is transferring large quantities of ammunition and other supplies to the cruiser Charleston. The Charleston has received orders to be ready for sea at a moment's notice. San Francisco will be made the basis of supplies and operation in event of trouble with Chili, and the entire pacific squadron will make this port its headquarters. It is authoritatively stated that Gen. McCook is preparing to receive several companies of artillery which have been ordered transferred to this point.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Jan. 4.—The unveiling of the Houghtaling memorial window in the First Dutch Church of this city and the formal presentation of the same to the congregation last evening was one of the most notable religious events that has ever taken place here. The window, which is the gift of David A. Houghtaling, a prosperous merchant of New York city, is intended to commemorate the lives of his parents, who were lineal descendants of those members of the Houghtaling family who came to this country from Holland and settled in Kingston in 1691, joining the old Dutch Church soon after their arrival. The window is one of the finest pieces of work of its kind in the country. It was made by the Tiffany Glass Company, of New York, and cost its donor upwards of $10,000.

A BIG FIRE AT WESTFIELD.

TWO BUSINESS BLOCKS DESTROYED, AND A FAMILY NARROWLY ESCAPE BURNING IN THEIR BEDS.

Both Newspapers of the Town Burned Out—The Post-office Block in Danger—A Hotter Blaze Than the Local Department Could Handle, and Elizabeth and Plainfield Appealed to for Assistance.

THE neighboring town of Westfield was visited last night by fire which destroyed thousands of dollars in property and came near sacrificing human life.

The fire started in the printing office of Cash & Collins, publishers of the Leader, at the corner of Prospect and Broad streets, in the store formerly occupied by Geo L. VanEmburgh of this city.

The blaze was first noticed at 1:15. In an incredibly short time it was spreading through the adjoining buildings all along the two thoroughfares.

Before such a fierce fire the local volunteer department was almost helpless, but the bucket brigade and the chemical engine company set bravely to work, and battled heroically against the tremendous odds. Inch by inch they stubbornly opposed the advance of the flames, but the fire continued to gain headway in spite of their exertions.

A call for help was therefore sent to Elizabeth and Plainfield. Chief engineer T. O. Doane of this city received his message at 3:05, and at 3:20 Gazelle engine, No. 1, was ready to start for the scene of disaster. Just as the start was to be made a second dispatch came saying that the fire was under control, and that assistance was not needed, and the horses were unhitched and returned to their stalls.

Later a third and imperative message came. It said: "Fire has broken out afresh. Come as quick as you can."

At that time Rolla engine, No. 2, of Elizabeth, was on the cars at Elizabeth, waiting for orders. The orders came immediately, and Rolla engine was started on its way to the burning town.

It was then about 3:45, and chief Doane sent out the special call of five blows on the gong, indicating "Fire out of town—east of Somerset street—No. 1 engine and Alert hose companies respond."

Chief Doane and number of firemen drove rapidly to Westfield in a wagon, the engine and hose carriage following closely. When they reached Westfield, which was in just half an hour, Rolla engine from Elizabeth had just been unloaded and was throwing quite a stream. She drew water from a small brook which had been dammed up, and which runs directly back of the burned property.

Chief Doane was met by the Westfield chief, who thanked him for responding to the summons but said that his services would not be needed, and the Plainfield firemen returned home.

The two rows of buildings facing Broad street and Prospect street, respectively, were completely destroyed, with all their contents. Collins & Cash lost everything, as did also James Moffett the carpenter, Charles Heckle the cobbler, J. B. Potter the cigar dealer, Bennett the stationer, and Schoonover & Scudder the butchers. Temperance Hall, Royal Arcanum Hall, and the office of the Westfield Standard, also were destroyed, as was the meeting room of the Westfield brass band.

The fire was stopped on Broad street at the frame building owned by John Darsh, and occupied in part as a Chinese laundry. The tenants had all their property moved out, but the building got nothing but a severe scorching, thanks to the hard work of the firemen.

On Prospect street the fire was stopped at the tin shop of Mahlon H. Ferris, in a large frame building owned by James T. Pierson, the side wall of which was partly burned. Had this building burned, the fire must have swept on through the next block, facing the Central railway station.

The long row of brick buildings known as Love's block, and directly opposite the buildings burned on Broad street, narrowly escaped destruction. The wooden cornices were afire several times, and every pane of glass in the block, from Shove's pharmacy to Eckel's bakery, was broken by the intense heat. In this block are the post-office and free reading room.

The loss of the fire cannot be estimated with any degree of exactness. All of the burned buildings were of wood, and if they are replaced with substantial brick structures, as is probable, the fire will have been a blessing in disguise.

The buildings burned like tinder. Hardly anything from them was saved. The case of F. Henness, a tinner and plumber who lived in apartments adjoining Arcanum Hall, was especially unfortunate. He and his family lost absolutely everything they had in the world, including furniture, clothing, and $25 in savings.

Mr. Henness barely had time to save his own life and the lives of his loved ones. He was awakened by the crackling of glass in the windows, and found that the building was all afire. He and his wife rushed through the flames with their little ones in their arms, and were singed and almost overcome by the intense heat. There was no insurance whatever on their property.

The J. B. Potter building was new, and worth probably $5,000. The Moffett carpenter shop was worth about $2,000. Royal Arcanum Hall was valued at $7,000. The type, machinery and stock in the Standard office was worth three times what it was insured for, which was $2,300. A new $3,000 cylinder press and folding machine had just been put in. The only property saved from the office were the safe and newspaper files. Headquarters have been opened in the free reading room, and editor Pearsall has gone to New York to get out an extra edition for this afternoon. He will erect a temporary office on a vacant lot on Broad street and resume business as soon as possible.

Robert French, the upholsterer, was fortunate enough to move into his new building Saturday. His former store was burned, but all of his stock had been removed from it.

To-day the site of the burned buildings is a waste of smoking ruins and glowing coal heaps. Everything was burned up clean.

GONE WITH THE RAILROAD'S CASH.

John Flechstein Robs His Employer, the Evona Station Agent, of Jersey Central and Union News Company Funds.

On New Year's eve, when most young men were planning resolves for reform in minor vices, John Fiechstein, a youth of 18 years, employed at the Evona station of the Central railroad, was engaged in other business. When the New Year dawned John had departed from this locality, and with him he took unknown amounts of money stolen from the Union News company and the Central railroad.

Flechstein never knew his parents. His first realization of the world and its hardships came to him in the home of the Sisters of Charity in Newark. He remained there until he was old and strong enough to be bound out to farmer Blaine of Greenbrook. Later he went to work for Mr. Holman of Dunellen. Fourteen months ago, the late Mrs. Harford, who was until her death the Central railroad's ticket agent at Evona, hired Flechstein to assist her in her duties, and for several months past he had been continued in the service of Mrs. Meader, the present agent.

The latter did everything for the fellow that could he done to make him comfortable. He was given a home with her, was clothed and fed well, and in addition was paid a small salary. In various ways he had an opportunity of earning considerable money, and for a boy with but little education was doing exceedingly well. He seemed thoroughly honest and upright, and was a regular attendant at church with Mrs. Meader and her niece.

Indeed, so well-liked was he that on Christmas day the commuters made up a purse of over ten dollars for him. Numerous presents were given to him, not the least of which were Mrs. Meader's gifts. Prosperity seems to have been too much for him.

On New Year's eve he bade everyone in the station good-night and went to his room. His bed was undisturbed the following morning when someone went to call him. A hasty examination of his books and the cash drawers of the railroad and Union News company showed discrepancies. Leaves had been torn from the books, so it is impossible to estimate the loss. It probably will reach $100. Flechstein also borrowed money from various persons about the station before he went.

It is said that he was seen about 9 o'clock New Year's day in the Plainfield station, but since that time nothing has been heard from him. Detectives are looking for him throughout the State.

Two Injured in a Runaway Accident Near This City.

Seven members of the England family of Irvington, started out on New Year's day in a wagon to call upon relatives in distant parts of Essex county. The team ran away, and now Michael England lies at his home in Irvington with his right arm broken in two places and his ear almost cut off. Mrs. C. W. England lies at Aaron Denman's house, near Millburn, with a back comb driven into her head and internal injuries which may be mortal.

Mrs. Thomas England of Missouri, stayed in the wagon and was carried two miles by the runaway team. The others all escaped by jumping. The horses stopped from exhaustion near the residence of one of the nephews of the Englands, and he took his aunt in and cared for her without knowing who she was until he drove back with the horses to the scene of the accident. The trouble resulted from a water break on the steep hill between Short Hills and Millburn. The jolt threw Michael and Charles England from the driver's seat. Charles escaped, while Michael fell under the wheels.

To Celebrate the Event.

About one year ago a class for men was organized in the First Baptist Sunday-school. It started with four young men in attendance. These went to work, and soon succeeded in getting others to join them. Little by little the class grew, until it resulted in an addition to the church being built to accommodate them. The work has steadily gone on, and yesterday the fifty mark was passed, fifty-three being present out of a membership of sixty-five.

Nearly all the different trades in Plainfield are represented in the class, the butcher and grocery stores in particular, while from one hardware store the firm and all the clerks are members.

It has been decided to celebrate the half-hundred mark being reached, and a reception to the class and their friends will be given in the near future.

Notes of the Boys' Club.

The average attendance at the rooms last week was 60 each evening, the largest being 85 and the smallest 35. The average attendance for the month of December was 61 per evening. The total membership to date is 448.

The affair on New Year's Day was a great success, and all enjoyed it exceedingly.

Boys, don't forget to save your money and bring it to the club on either Tuesday or Friday evenings.

SUNK IN A COLLISION.

The Childwell Goes Down and Fifteen Men Perish—Reported Inhumanity.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The steamer Noordland, of the Red Star line, from Antwerp for New York, collided yesterday with the ship Childwell, which was arriving from Chili, loaded with saltpetre. The collision took place off the Belgian coast. The Childwell was crushed by the collision, and sank soon after.

Fifteen of the crew of the Childwell were drowned in the collision. The survivors who were rescued by the British steamer Ipswich, of the Great Eastern line, claim that the Noordland, after crushing the bark, made no effort to help the crew, but hurried away from the spot, as if afraid of sinking, leaving the crew of the wrecked vessel to save themselves as best they could.

Several went down with the bark, and others clung to the wreckage, some of the latter dropping into the sea through weakness before assistance arrived.

After suffering for years with the worst form of Dyspepsia, such as bloating, dizziness, vertigo, acid stomach, etc; I came across Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. TOLD BY THE VISITOR.

The Methodists' Pastor Tells Them He Would be Pleased to Remain—Other News of General Interest in the Rev. Mr. Mitchell's Paper.

[From The Visitor.]

D. E. Davis and Ezra Loomis were elected stewards at the last quarterly conference.

Mrs. E. L. Hyde, 67 Madison avenue, has been elected treasurer of the Home Missionary society contingent fund.

Dr. VanMeter writes that the new buildings now being erected at Woman's college, Baltimore, will greatly increase the capacity of the college, and no applicant will then be turned away.

A large congregation was delighted with the excellent sermon preached by our beloved presiding elder, Dr. A. L. Brice, Sunday morning, Dec. 20.

The church music on Christmas Sunday under the direction of our faithful and efficient choir-master, D. E. Davis, was greatly enjoyed by the large congregation.

Albert Crane has been confined to his bed for three months. He is a great sufferer.

The quarterly conference unanimously requested the presiding elder to notify the Bishop that the pastor's return to this charge for his fourth year was desired. The pastor will be pleased to return.

Dr. Hurlbut is safe home from Europe, and every man, woman, and child in Plainfield is glad. There always seems to be more cheer and sunshine when the good Doctor is about.

About twelve dollars will pay for a very fine pulpit Bible and hymn-book for the North Plainfield chapel. Who wants to provide those two requisites for the chapel? The name of the donor will be printed on the cover of the books.

While all connected with the Cantata did well their parts and are worthy of praise, all who took part and all who looked on, unite in the praises of A. A. Taft, who looked so carefully to all the details and made the affair so eminently successful.

The teachers and officers of the school presented superintendent Jackson and his assistant, George R. Cornwell, with beautifully bound books as tokens of their love and appreciation.

James McGee was elected by our quarterly conference as delegate to the lay electoral conference which meets in March at Morristown. Dr. Carroll was elected alternate. Mr. McGee expects to nominate Dr. Carroll for lay delegate to the general conference, and if the lay conference be wise it will elect this able and representative layman to that honorable and responsible position. Dr. Carroll is surely the most widely and favorably known of any layman in the Newark conference. The next general conference will need just such a "progressive conservative" as our friend and brother.

Mrs. Lucy Hooley has been quite ill this Winter. She is now convalescent.

Mrs. P. M. French, so active in every good word and work, has been again confined to her home with illness.

Mrs. D. E. Davis is visiting her sister, Mrs. S. T. Mitchel, in Philadelphia.

Miss Amelia Thompson, the elder sister of Mrs. Sarah Day, 90 Mercer avenue, has been quite ill, but is now recovering.

Miss Clara Burt is entertaining at her home on West Seventh street, during the holidays, one of her professors at Wellesly college.

The last social given by the young ladies' mission circle was at the residence of Mrs. John Chandler. A most delightful evening was spent.

Amos Cunningham has gone to Bound Brook to accept a fine position there in the machine shop.

Superintendent Walter McGee is greatly pleased with the progress the Monroe Avenue Sunday-school is making.

Mrs. Bromwell is spending the holidays with her sister, Mrs. Jackson, of Crescent avenue.

Ezra Loomis was an efficient and faithful assistant to Mr. Taft in the Christmas decorations.

On conference Sabbath, April 3, Bishop Vincent will occupy the pulpit of our church morning and evening.

Mrs. Edward Winter is recovering from an illness of several weeks' duration.

Miss Elizabeth Waters is visiting friends here during the holidays. She is much pleased with her school work in Irvington-on-the-Hudson.

Dec. 16, 1891, the pastor united in marriage A. B. Brokaw, of Green Valley, Ill., to Miss Lucinda Adams, of 86 East Second street. Mr. Brokaw is a well-to-do farmer and an active Methodist.

At the residence of Noah Terry, Netherwood, on Christmas eve, the pastor united in marriage Miss Lottie Terry to Edward H. Guest, of White House.

Mrs. Hurlbut is enjoying a visit from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chase, of Massachusetts.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Y. Hull have left this week to make their home in Brooklyn.

Dr. Larrabee and wife have been sick at the same time with the grip. The doctor has been greatly missed by his large Sunday-school class.

John Valiant is enjoying a visit from his brother and family, who reside in Baltimore.

Dr. Hurlbut will preach for us Sunday morning, Jan. 10.

The Ladies' Aid society did nobly at the Christmas bazar, and so did all the people. The ladies hoped to realize $450, the amount they had agreed to raise for the North Plainfield chapel. But the object of the bazar met with such universal approbation that the people contributed, purchased, and gave, until the net receipts have reached about $640; nearly $200 more than they had agreed to raise for the chapel. The ladies, in consultation with the pastor and advisory board, concluded that while they had only agreed to raise $450 for the chapel, the $640 was raised with that object in view, and that it would really be a misappropriation of money to use the extra amount in any other way than for the chapel. So the full amount, $640, goes to the chapel and will be spent in purchasing the chairs, furniture and carpet for the pulpit, and an organ.

THE REV. ARTHUR C. DILL'S CASE.

He Says He is Innocent, and That His Trial Behind Closed Doors is Against His Wishes.

The Rev. A. C. Dill, whose alleged immoral conduct when pastor of the Stirling Presbyterian church involved him in such serious difficulties with the young men of his congregation, was officially notified Monday of the charges made against him. This was done at a meeting of the Presbytery held in the Central Presbyterian church at Summit, as told in THE PRESS the next day.

The committee appointed to formulate the charges submitted its report, which was accepted, and then the charges were read to the Rev. Mr. Dill. He will have two weeks in which to prepare his defence. On Monday next the Presbytery will meet again at Morristown and begin the trial. It was decided that all the proceedings should be carried on behind closed doors.

The Rev. Mr. Dill was greatly agitated when he left the meeting. To a reporter he said:

"It was against my wishes that the Presbytery decided to conduct the trial behind closed doors. I am innocent of every one of the charges, and I am perfectly willing that the whole world should be present at every stage of the proceedings. No, I did not express my wish before the Presbytery, but everybody is at liberty to know how I feel in the matter."

Under the circumstances Mr. Dill said he felt constrained to say nothing as to the nature of the charges or his answer to them.

Not Technical but Full of Anecdote and Illustration.

From the title of Mr. Fraser's lecture, "Two Hundred Years of Book Illustrating in America," it might be inferred that the matter treated would be largely technical, but such is not the case. The lecture abounds in anecdotes of now famous men, while much that will interest the historian is related in an inimitable manner. Mr. Fraser is an ardent bibliophile, and has given many years of study to the subject of the lecture which is to be immortalized in book form by the well known Grolier club of New York, for which purpose it was prepared. Many charming and long forgotten title pages and portaits will be shown to the Plainfield people by means of the stereopticon, including one unique plate of the first lithograph produced in America. The lecture, as already announced in these columns, is for the benefit of the Children's Home, and will be given at the Casino on the ninth.

Takes Foremost Rank in One Particular.

[From The New York Journalist.]

It is to be hoped for the good of the profession that the Elizabeth Herald will turn over a new leaf New Year's day and resolve never again to copy without giving credit. Among the newspapers of the State it takes foremost rank as a journalistic pirate. Not a day passes that the Herald does not publish columns of matter lifted bodily from its contemporaries, with never a word of credit. It appropriates unblushingly the best things of all its exchanges, and steals shamelessly the exclusives of the other State papers. Such disgraceful conduct is not only unprofessional and unworthy of an honest paper, but it is unjust to the better and brainier papers whose cream is thus filched, and to the bright and brainy writers whose individual work the Herald seeks to palm off as its own.

The Attendance at the Public Library.

The number of visitors to the library building on New Year's Day was 60. This is an increase of 24 over the number on the same day of the previous year. The total number of visitors for the year ending Dec. 31, 1891, was 27,559. There being 312 days on which the library was open, the daily average was a little over 88. The largest number present in one day was 150; the smallest, 36.

Skin Diseases.

What spectacle is more disgusting than that of a man or woman with a skin disease which shows itself in pimples or blotches on hands, arms, face and neck? It is simply impure blood. See what BRANDRETH'S PILLS did for a chronic case:

George Chapman, Pinconing, Mich., says: "For four years I was in the Mounted Infantry in the U. S. Army, residing during that time principally in Texas. Almost all of that time I had a chronic skin disease, characterized by an eruption over the entire surface of my legs and thighs, arms and chest. The doctors termed it eczema. I had given up all hopes of ever being cured, when BRANDRETH'S PILLS were recommended to me. I concluded to try them, and I have thanked God daily since then that I did so. I used them for about three months, and by that time, was completely cured, and have never had any trouble since."

GETTING HIS DESERTS.

The Phillipsburg "Telegram's" Editor Beaten on Saturday and Mobbed on Sunday.

Dispatches from Trenton to THE PRESS tell that Editor M. D. L. Shrope of the "Phillipsburg" Telegram is beginning to get his deserts by installments. The paper is well-known in this city among a certain class of scandal mongers, gossip lovers, and the vulgar minded. Over 300 copies are sold here every Saturday afternoon and evening. It contains a column or so, each week, of dirty personal items concerning the worthless inhabitants of the city, with an occasional libelous or blackmailing article about some respectable citizen.

On Saturday last Shrope was badly beaten at Trenton by Peter Wilkes, a wealthy iron manufacturer. The attack was made in a public restaurant. The dispatch says: "Shrope was almost killed, and he is now in the care of a physician. A warrant has been issued for Wilkes, but no constable will serve it. There is a great rejoicing in Trenton tonight over the assault."

This morning another dispatch from Trenton, dated yesterday, says:

Editor Schrope of the Phillipsburg Telegram, who was severely assaulted yesterday afternoon by Peter Wilkes of this city, one of the victims of his personal column, had another exciting experience just before midnight, when he put in an appearance in front of one of the leading hotels. A crowd quickly gathered and "guyed" him. He took refuge in a cab and ordered the driver to proceed up Warren street. The mob followed and finally surrounded the cab and hooted threateningly when Schrope attempted to alight. He thereupon drew a brace of revolvers, it is said, which kept the crowd at bay while he got back into the carriage and was driven rapidly away. Public feeling is very strong against him, and, although he has had Wilkes held for trial no indictment is anticipated.

The B. & O. Southwestern Limited.

A few weeks ago the B. & O. R. R. placed in service on its Southwestern limited express train running through this city to Cincinnati and St. Louis an entirely new equipment, built expressly for this train by the famous Pullman company. The new cars embrace all the features that have rendered the Royal Blue Line trains so universally popular, and include the safety vestibule, steam heat, Pintsch gas light, the anti-telescoping device, and convenient toilet accessories for men and women.

The Royal Blue Line train leaving Plainfield at 9:48 and Philadelphia at 11:35 a. m. makes direct connection with the Southwestern limited at Baltimore, where coach passengers change cars. The sleeping cars run through from New York and Philadelphia to Cincinnati and St. Louis without change, arriving at Cincinnati the next morning at 7:45, and at St. Louis the next evening at 6:25.

DRIVEN INTO THE BUSH.

American Troops Have an Easy Time With Garza's Men.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 4.—The work of the United States troops in routing the Garza revolutionists on the border has so far been very successful, and General David Stanley says he believes that he can keep the Mexican offenders in subjection with the present military force. Another engagement took place Saturday near Ringgold, the following account of which has been received at military headquarters:

"Second Lieutenat George T. Langhorn of the Third Cavalry and his detachment of thirty troopers, with the Sheriff of Duval county and a posse of United States deputy marshals, have just arrived here with one prisoner. The prisoner is Col. Pablo Munaz, who is one of the leaders in the Garza movement. Lieutenant Langhorn reports that Saturday they struck a camp of revolutionists three miles from the Los Cuenates ranch, and five miles from here. The revolutionists discovered the United States troops and escaped into a dense chaparral. It is not known that any of them were wounded, although many shots were fired after them, as they dashed into the brush. The capture of Col. Munaz was made. The horses and equipments of several revolutionists were captured, as were also two gross of ammunition, badges, and many important papers."

The dispatch is signed by Capt. W. T. Wheeler of the Third Cavalry, who is the temporary Commander of Fort Ringgold during the absence of Capt. John G. Bourke, who is engaged in scouting operations. Col. Pablo Munaz, who was taken prisoner, is a prominent citizen of northern Mexico. He will be tried in the Federal Court her on the charge of violating the neutrality lawe of this country. He is said to be quite wealthy.

I HAVE been troubled with chronic catarrh for years. Ely's Cream Balm is the only remedy among the many that I have used that affords me relief.—E. W. Willard, druggist, Joliett, Ill.

I HAVE been troubled with catarrh for 10 years and have tried a number of remedies, but found no relief until I purchased a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. I consider it the most reliable preparation for catarrh and cold in the head.—Geo. E. Grandall, P. M., Quonochaontaug, R. I.

Foster on the Ohio Senatorship

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Secretary Foster, speaking about the Ohio Speakership caucus nominaton and the Senatorship contest, says: "I look upon the outcome of the caucus on the Speakership nomination as practically disposing of the Senatorial contest. Mr. Sherman will be the nominee of his party and will be returned to the Senate, as I have always believed he would and should be. I presume Mr. Laylin received the votes of the Foraker men, but not hearing any of the details, I cannot say. The struggle has, however, practically ended."

High Water in Maine.

LIVERMORE FALLS, Me., Jan. 4.—Owing to recent rains, the Androscoggin River is higher than it has been for 30 years. Several booms have broken and many logs are escaping.

A friend induced me to try Salvation Oil for my rheumatic foot. I used it, and the rheumatism is entirely gone. John H. Anderson, Baltimore, Md.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR.

Russell Sage and His Rise to Power in Wall Street.

Something About the Speculator Who Came Near Being Blown to Pieces by a Crazy Seeker After a Million and More.

The name of Russell Sage is as inseparably connected with Wall street as that of Jay Gould, with whom he has long been associated in speculative operations and other financial transactions. Mr. Sage is known as the "Father of Puts and Calls." There was a time when his transactions in these "privileges" amounted to millions of dollars a year, but during the past two or three years they have been comparatively small. Mr. Sage has confined himself mainly to loaning money. He is said to have more ready money than any person in the street. He can meet a demand at any time for any sum from $1,000,000 to $10,000,000. His total fortune is about $50,000,000. No fortune in the world is more secure than Mr. Sage's, although it is largely invested in corporate securities. In the first place, he owns the securities outright. If he held them on margin or had been compelled to borrow money with which to purchase them, a heavy fall in the market might wipe out a good share of his possessions. As it is, if there is a decline in prices he is in position to wait for a recovery.

Mr. Sage's desk is one of the curiosities of Wall street. The desk itself is an exceedingly plain affair. It has a flat top with drawers beneath on either side. The top of the desk, except a small place left for writing, is piled three inches high with papers. To look at it one would think it chaos itself. Yet there is not a more orderly desk anywhere. If a document or a letter is wanted, Mr. Sage can put his finger on it instantly, no matter in which pile or in what part of the pile it may be. The drawers are in the same state, but Mr. Sage knows in which one and in which part of it is the paper he desires. A peculiarity of Mr. Sage is that he keeps most of his letters in the envelopes in which they are received.

His memory for figures and facts, even to the minutest detail, is wonderful. He keeps close track of the quotations in the stock market, and is one of the best prophets in the street on the future course of speculation. If he were not a good prophet the issuing of privileges would be unprofitable business, as they cover future prices altogether.

Mr. Sage has a hobby, like almost everybody else, and it is for horses. He owns some of the finest roadsters in New York, and every afternoon, when the weather is not too inclement, he may be seen spinning up through the park behind a pair of roadsters that show their heels to pretty nearly every other turnout on the road. Mr. Sage's ways are almost Puritanical. He is a strict churchman and adheres to the old-fashioned custom of having supper at night instead of dinner, as most other Crœsuses do. This meal he calls "high tea."

Mr. Sage was born in Oneida county August 4, 1816. He received a public school education and then engaged in mercantile pursuits at Troy. In 1841 he was elected alderman and was reelected to this office until 1848, also serving for seven years as treasurer for Rensselaer county. He was then elected to congress as a whig and served, with reelection, from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857. Mr. Sage was the first to advocate on the floor of congress the purchase of Mount Vernon by the government. Subsequently he located in New York and engaged in the business of selling privileges in Wall street. At the same time he became interested in railroads and secured stock in western lines, notably the Milwaukee & St. Paul, of which he was president and vice president for twelve years. By disposing of these investments as the smaller roads became absorbed by trunk lines he became wealthy. In late years he has been closely associated with Gould in the management of the Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific, the Missouri Pacific, the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and the St. Louis & San Francisco railroads, the American Cable Company, the Western Union Telegraph Company and the Manhattan consolidated system of railroads in New York city, in all of which corporations he is a director. Mr. Sage was for many years closely connected with the affairs of the Union Pacific road, of which he was a director. He has been a director in the Importers' and Traders' national bank for the past twenty years; also a director in the Merchants' Trust Company and the Fifth Avenue bank.

Southern Localism.

"I have a swap for you," said a smiling southern woman to a northern acquaintance, and then to the latter's puzzled understanding the meaning of the localism was unfolded. To give one a swap is to retail something complimentary received from a third person. The term is so used, apparently, because one retailing pretty speeches expects a like return; so a swap is really an exchange of compliments obtained at third hand. Another equivalent is a "tell," and the woman who learns that a friend has a tell for her expects a compliment.

TWO BIRD GYMNASTS

How a Couple of Barn Swallows Punished a Cat.

Big newspaper space is daily taken up with accurate throwing and catching and hitting of balls, the aim of the human eye, the speed of the human foot, the accuracy and dexterity of the human hand, and the young people who play baseball and tennis enjoy this reading matter.

But a short time ago, says a writer in the St. Louis Republic, I saw two creatures only a year old outdo in aim and accuracy any human being I ever knew.

They were a pair of barn swallows. A very gentle little house-cat was in the habit of taking her daily nap in the hay-loft, directly under the nest among the rafters. All went well until the mother bird began to sit on her eggs. Then, presumably, the cat lifted her eyes to contemplate the pretty sight, for about four o'clock of the first day the bird stayed on the nest the cat came rushing out of the barn, the two swallows after her. Giving her in turn a vicious peck, they rose in air, swooped down and pecked her squarely on the back, one after the other, though she was running in all directions.

Twenty-three times I watched them rise in the air so high as to be out of sight, then come sailing down, one behind the other, and each time giving the poor cat a peck apiece on the back, although she was speeding hither and thither bewildered, seeking to hide under carts, under trees, here and there; they never missed her once, though they never slowed their swift flight to do it, never paused for the peck, but swiftly gave it as they skimmed down over her, rising on the same point of curve, to descend again presently.

For about two weeks they were seen to fly out and repeat this punishment whenever the cat appeared on the green near the barn.

THE BOY SOVEREIGN.

The Youthful Emperor of Annam and How He Spends His Time.

There are two young people in Europe whose birth has placed them on the thrones of their respective nations. Queen Wilhelmina, of Holland, and the baby king of Spain.

In the far east they have another royal cousin, whose portrait we give below; he is the emperor of Annam, and is under the protection of the French government.

years." Two umbrella bearers with their black boxes and robes of yellow silk keep guard over the royal family.

Than Thai is the son of Duc-Duc, who was deposed and murdered in prison on account of his French sympathies; he is twelve years old and his brother, Liem, is about ten. His predecessor, Ham Nghi, is now in Algiers.

The young sovereign is a quiet, serious boy and is very fond of study. His guardians believe in the good old maxim of "early to bed and early to rise." As he goes to bed with the sun, and is up at six every morning, he amuses himself with Parisian toys which were sent to him by the French government—among other things an entire train of cars, which go by steam. Like all the other natives of Annam, his highness is an inveterate smoker of cigarettes.

The Czar's Army.

The Russian standing army consists of 410,952 infantry, 84,926 cavalry, 67,976 artillery, 19,325 engineers and 35,180 ordinance, a total of 619,178 enlisted men and 28,000 officers. The Cossack strength in peace, besides the Cossacks in the above total, is 19,448; there are 72,634 officers and men of the reserve and 105,000 officers and men of the local and auxiliary forces, a total, that is, of about 814,000 officers and men. The war footing is 2,220,798 combatants, officers and men.

Romance and Reality.

Romantic Miss—Do you love me well enough to do battle for me?

Ardent Suitor—Ay, against a thousand.

"Well, Mr. Bigfish is paying me a good deal of attention. Would you fight him for me?"

"Yes, I would."

"Could you defeat him?"

"N-o, he'd probably thrash the life out of me."

"Mercy! Well, never mind. I'll take you without any fighting; and, oh, do please remember, my darling, promise me on your honor, that if ever you see Mr. Bigfish coming, you'll run."—Good News.

He Was A Sheep.

A Sunday-school teacher endeavored to make his pupils understand the parable about that good shepherd. He said:

"Now, little children, suppose you were all little sheep, what would I be?"

He expected them to say that he would be the good shepherd, but much to his disgust one of them replied:

"If we were little sheep you would be a big sheep," whereupon the teacher looked very sheepish, indeed.—Texas Siftings.

Misunderstood.

Mr. Grass-Seed (in city bookstore)—I want ter get a book ter take hum, mister.

Clerk—Yes, sir; shall it be something light?

Mr. Grass-Seed—Not too heavy, mister, 'caus' I've got some more fixings ter carry hum, an' I ain't as strong as I uster was.—Texas Siftings.

A Compromise.

Mr. Trotter—May I teach you to play the banjo, Miss Budd?

Miss Budd (coyly)—I know how, thank you; but the same purpose is answered in guitar playing.

Mr. Trotter—But I don't play that.

Miss Budd—Well, then, you may hold my hand anyway.—N. Y. Herald.

Contagious in Their Case.

Mr. Noopop—Doctor, is insomnia contagious?

Dr. Paresis—Certainly not, sir. What made you ask that?

Mr. Noopop—Because I notice that when baby is troubled with insomnia, my wife and I invariably catch it, too.—Life.

He Took the Hint.

The jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty." Judge Duffy said admonishingly to the prisoner:

"After this you ought to keep away from bad company."

"Yes, your honor, you will not see me here again in a hurry."—Texas Siftings.

"I spurn you with contempt," exclaimed the proud, imperious girl in haughty tones.

The spurnee was a base-born clerk in her father's ninety-nine-cent store.

His head fell upon his breast at her cruel words.

But for an instant only.

Then he hoisted it aloft once more, defiantly.

"All right," he said, coldly. "That's better than being spurned with your father's boot."

He had tried both.—Detroit Free Press.

PITY FOR GRAVES

Public Sentiment Turning in His Favor.

CHARGES AGAINST THE JURY.

It is Alleged That Their Verdict Must Have Been Influenced.

Protests Against the Methods Employed By the Deputy Sheriffs to Gain Confession from Dr. Graves--Their Statement to Be Investigated By the Grand Jury--Col. Ballou on His Way to Providence.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 5.—Dr. Graves was interviewed this morning in his cell. He made some remarks about the departure of Col. Ballou that seemed pertinent in the face of the unexpected disappearance of the lawyer. He said Col. Ballou left the court room at 5 o'clock, and he did not see him again until he went to supper. There Col. Ballou came to him and said he desired to speak to him. He said he was going.

"I was surprised," said Dr. Graves. "I was still his client, yet he said he was going."

"Did he give you any reason for his departure?"

"He did. He said he feared that he would be arrested on some criminal charge, and therefore left. He said he did not want to be put to the trouble of an arrest and subsequent defence, so he departed."

Mrs. Graves is somewhat improved. She is still under the care of the doctor however. Her callers yesterday were numerous and mostly ladies. They came to sympathize. Only the most intimate friends of the grief stricken wife were admitted. The mother has about recovered from the shock the announcement of the verdict gave her. District-Attorney Stevens has issued orders that no more visitors be admitted to the cell of Dr. Graves.

The sworn statements of Deputies Wilson and Means regarding Dr. Graves' alleged confession, which implicates Col. Ballou, have been placed before the grand jury by the district-attorney. A telegram was received by John Conrad from a detective in Chicago, saying that Col. Ballou left for Providence at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Public sentiment appears to be turning strongly in favor of Dr. Graves, and sensational developments are promised by the defence within the next few days. It is understood that charges are being prepared against the jury on the ground that their verdict must have been influenced.

The "Times" last evening in a leader which reflects public opinion, protests against the methods adopted by the deputy sheriffs in their efforts to gain confessions from the well-nigh crazed man and his hysterical wife. It adds that it is likely that the actions of the deputy sheriffs before, during and since the trial will be thoroughly and officially investigated.

Within five days Dr. Graves must appear before the bar of the District Court and be sentenced to death and he must suffer the extreme penalty within thirty days unless granted a supersede by the Supreme Court, but it is not likely that that body will reverse the decision.

Judge Furman says he will carry the case to the Supreme Court.

Arrested for Embezzlement.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 5.—George S. McConnell, a well known citizen and real estate agent of the 17th ward, was yesterday committed to jail in default of bail, charged with embezzlement. The plaintiff is the well known physician, R. M. Sands. The amount of money that McConnell has appropriated to his own use is not yet known. It is also stated that McConnell has confessed to being a defaulter to a building and loan association, of which he was treasurer, to the amount of $8,000.

Religious Argument, Then Murder.

ASHLAND, Pa., Jan. 5.—John Sadusky, a prominent young Polander of this place, who was attacked Sunday night by two men who kicked and stabbed him, died yesterday, but before expiring made a statement in which he charged Michael Chumoski and John Stevens with the crime. Both men have fled the town. The affair grew out of a religious argument. Officers are looking for the murderers.

Part of a Town Sinking.

HAZLETOWN, Pa., Jan. 5.—About one square of the surface, two blocks from the center of this city, is gradually sinking. Two families moved out of houses yesterday. A. Pardee, who operates the mines and old miners say there is no danger that the surface can sink more than a few inches. There is considerable excitement among the occupants of the houses over the sinking surface.

Nine Days Overdue.

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—A dispatch from Halifax, N. S., states that the overdue troopship Tyne, which left this city for Plymouth on Dec. 14, has not yet been heard from. She is now nine days overdue. Besides her crew of 150 men, the Tyne carried 400 men, the crews of the war vessels Champion and Pheasant.

Decided in Waller's Favor.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

OHIO GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Presentation of Gov. Campbell's Message, a Remarkably Brief Document.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 5.—Both branches of the General Assembly were called to order at 10 o'clock and the organization outlined in the Republican caucus of Saturday effected without incident. The Senate did not seat either Iden or Gaumer, the contesting claimants for the seat of the Muskingum district, but appointed a committee to investigate the matter.

The Governor's message, which is the shortest on record, was received and read. It is as follows:

"TO THE 70TH GENERAL ASSEMBLY: The Constitution commands the Governor to communicate annually his views to the General Assembly. As this function will doubtless be well and fully discharged upon one week from to-day, by the incoming Governor, the present incumbent confines himself to a renewal of the suggestions and recommendations made by him to the 69th General Assembly. Especial attention is called to the benevolent penal reformatory and educational institutions of the State, and to the satisfactory exhibits made by the various public bodies in their recent annual reports.

JAMES CAMPBELL, Governor.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

A Would-be Train Wrecker Apprehended --Narrow Escape for Passengers.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 5.—The passengers on the train leaving Windsor Beach on the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg road at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, had a narrow escape. The train consisted of the engine, baggage car and two passenger coaches crowded with people.

Near Rattlesnake Point the road makes a sharp curve and here the engineer saw a man a short distance ahead leave the track and run up the hill. The brakes were instantly applied and the engine came to a standstill only ten feet from a three-inch plank fastened between the rails with the evident intent of ditching the train.

The engineer and fireman gave chase and captured the man. When the passengers learned what had happened there were excited cries of "Hang him!" "Lynch him!" and "Kill him!" at once.

The prisoner was not injured, however, and was brought to Rochester and handed over to the police. He gives his name as John Abel and claims to live in the city.

GARZA'S CASH.

He is Said to Obtain His Money from the Mexican Clerical Party.

LAREDO, Tex., Jan. 5.—Startling developments in regard to the Garza revolution are coming to light. The papers in the saddle bags of Pablo Munoz, one of the captured revolutionists, throws a great deal of light on the situation. It proves conclusively that what was foreshadowed four days ago is true, and that is that the Clerical party is furnishing the money with which the campaign is being conducted.

In all the forays made by Garza he has not stolen or plundered the smallest article. On the other hand, he has paid cash at top prices for what he has needed.

Where all his money was coming from has been puzzling the American and Mexican authorities. It is now ascertained that Montes de Oca, Bishop of Monterey, is the financial agent of the clerical party in supplying Garza with funds.

Garza Penned In.

LAREDO, Tex., Jan. 5.—It is stated here that the Mexican revolutionist, Garza, is surrounded in the chaparal in the extreme northwestern corner of Zapata County by United States troops and rangers, and that it is almost impossible for him to escape either to the northward or in the direction of Mexico.

Brasil and the Vatican.

ROME, Jan. 5.—It is rumored that the relations between the Vatican and the Brazilian government are so strained that a rupture is imminent. The Pope, it is said, has intimated that he will excommunicate President Peixotto, his Cabinet, and the members of the Brazilian Congress, unless measures are taken to renew the former relations between Church and State in Brazil. The Vatican has received numerous complaints from the Brazilian clergy of the disastrous effect upon church interests of the policy of separation adopted by the Republic.

His Religious Change Confirmed.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 5.—Rev. Dr. T. S. Childs, who for many years was a prominent minister in the Presbyterian Church, has been admitted to the order of priesthood in the Protestant Episcopal Church. When Dr. Childs abandoned the Presbyterian faith after years of service in the ministry and joined the Episcopal Church two years ago there was a great sensation in ecclesiastical circles. He is the author of several religious works of high standing, the best known of which is "The Heritage of Peace."

The Grip in New Hampshire.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 5.—There are over 2,000 cases of grip in this city and vicinity and the disease is spreading. No case of grip has yet been reported among the convicts in the State prison.

BUSH FOR SPEAKER

Nominated by the New York Democrats at Albany.

MEETING OF THE LEGISLATURE

Dr. Edwards Expected to Help Organize the Senate.

Cantor Named for President Pro Tempore of the Senate--Assemblyman Husted Will Lead the Minority--Other Nominations by the Caucuses--Gov. Flower's Message --Work of the Legislators To-day.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 5.—The Democrats of the Assembly met in caucus in the Assembly Chamber at 7:45 o'clock last evening. Mr. Timothy D. Sullivan of New York called the caucus to order and nominated Mr. Galen R. Hitt of Albany for chairman.

The roll was called and nearly all the Democrats answered to their names. Mr. George H. Bush of Ulster placed in nomination Mr. Robert P. Bush of Chemung as Speaker.

Mr. Sulzer of New York seconded the nomination as did also Messrs. Connelly and Cooney.

Mr. Riley nominated Mr. Charles R. De Freest for Clerk of the Assembly.

Mr. Gorman placed in nomination for Sergeant-at-Arms, Mr. Michael E. Redmond of Cohoes.

Edwin A. Moore, of Richmond, was nominated for doorkeeper, Mr. Pattin, of Oneida, for assistant doorkeeper, Kenneth L. Nievens, of Sullivan, for second assistant doorkeeper, and Thomas Hassett for stenographer.

The caucus of the Democratic Senators was held last evening in the Lieutenant-Governor's private room. It was called to order by Senator Brown.

Jacob A. Cantor was nominated for President pro tem. He was unanimously elected.

The following nominations were then made: Clerk, Charles B. Dunning, of Orange; Sergeant-at-Arms, A. Tallmadge, Otsego; Stenographer, James Murray; Albany; Postmaster, John Leach, Cattaraugus; Postoffice Messenger, James Carroll, Albany.

A resolution was introduced and carried without a dissenting vote requesting the Senate to immediately appoint a committee to investigate and consider the contested election cases in the Senate.

The Republican Assembly caucus was held in the Assembly parlor and was very brief. Mr. Stranahan, of Oswego, put in nomination for Speaker James W. Husted. Charles A. Chickering was nominated for clerk, and Mr. Mandeville for sergeant-at-arms.

There was no caucus of Republican Senators last night, but one will be held just before the Legislature is called to order to-day.

The Legislature meets at noon, and each branch will be called together by its clerk. In the Senate Republican Clerk Kenyon will call the body to order, and Secretary of State Rice will swear in the members. Lieutenant-Governor Sheehan will take the chair, and the annual message of the Governor will be received, after the usual announcement that the committees have made their reports of readiness for business. The message will be about 12,000 words in length.

After the reading of the message the Committee on Contested Seats will be appointed and the notices of contest will be given.

In the Assembly the House will be called to order by Clerk De Freest, and the oath of office will be administered to the members by Deputy Secretary of State Benedict. After that the Speaker will be elected in accordance with the action of the caucuses, and then the usual committees to notify the Senate and the Governor will be appointed. Following that will come the reading of the Governor's message. Then will come the appointment of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, as was done on the first day of the session last year.

Notices of contests will be made as follows: Bernard, Democrat, for the seat of Curran, Republican, in the Second District of Monroe; Cameron, Democrat, for the seat of Conkling, Republican, in Warren; McKenna, Democrat, for the seat of Weeks, Republican, in the Second District of Queens; Russell, Democrat, for the seat of Wheeler, Republican, in the First District of Dutchess.

After this the Assemblymen will draw their seats. Both Houses will then adjourn until next Monday night, in order to give the usual time for making up the committees.

Wheeler-Russell Assembly Contest.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jan 5.—At the examination of witnesses yesterday afternoon before Judge Guernsey, in the contest of James Russell against Obed Wheeler for Assemblyman, the evidence produced by the contestants was designed to show that a man named Somers voted in First District of Dover while he was a resident of the Second District; that two men, named Preston Hufcut and Irving Kennedy, were not allowed to vote because their names were not on the registry list, as it was held that they did not live in the district. Evidence was also produced to show that the law had been violated in regard to the 150-foot limit during the day. An adjournment was then taken to Saturday morning.

How Senator Edwards Stands.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Senator Edwards called upon Gov. Flower yesterday to pay his respects. He reiterated his intention to take his seat in the Senate, but said that he would ally himself with neither party.

Davitt Sues for Libel.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Michael Davitt has sued the Parnellite organ called "The Dublin Independent" for libel, in charging him with fraud in connection with the management of the Irish Industrial Company. A dispatch from Dublin says that Mr. Davitt will stand as a candidate for the representatation of Wexford in Parliament. It is doubtful whether the Parnellites will consider it worth their while to put up any one to oppose him, as in that case it is generally admitted that they are sure to be beaten.

Chinese Minister Entertained.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 5.—The Chinese Minister to the United States was the guest yesterday of President Marlin of the Marlin Repeating Arms Company. He was entertained at dinner by Mr. Marlin and later visited the company's factory. It is said that the Minister has placed a large order for rifles with the company.

WHERE WAS SLAVIN?

He Fails to Meet Sullivan's Backer as Agreed, and Forfeit Money is Returned.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Nobody to represent Frank P. Slavin, the Australian pugilist, appeared at the "Herald" office at noon, as had been agreed, but Charley Johnston, of Brooklyn, and Arthur T. Lumley were there on behalf of John L. Sullivan.

After giving half an hour's grace, Mr T. A. Steimer, the sporting editor of the "Herald," returned the $2,500 forfeit to Johnston, and all prospect of a match fell through.

Johnston expressed great disgust at the failure of Slavin to send some kind of word.

"Slavin and Mitchell are not on the level," said the Brooklyn sport; "and I'll have nothing more to do with them. If they think they can get any more advertising out of John L. Sullivan they are much mistaken."

Cotton Mills Returns.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 5.—The returns of the cotton mills for the past past year, are, on the whole, far from good. They show a decrease in annual dividends of $479,920, as compared with those of 1890. The average dividend was 5 73-100 per cent. Only two corporations paid so much as 12 per cent., and 12 actually lost money. The present slightly improved condition promises continuance. Many new mills for the manufacture of fancy goods will probably be founded, owing to the generally favorable returns of those now existing, and, on the whole, trade prospects are very encouraging.

Gibbons Issues a Challenge.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Austin Gibbons, the light weight pugilist, of Paterson, N. J., last night issued a challenge to fight Jack McAuliffe or Billy Myer, of Streator, Ill. He said he preferred to fight Myer first, and that the Olympic Club, of New Orleans, had offered a $5,000 purse. He claims that as he defeated Andy Bowen on Dec. 29, and as Bowen defeated Myer twice, Myer has no ground to refuse to meet him. He offers to post $500 to guarantee appearance at the call of time.

Must Accept a Smaller Amount.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Jan. 4.—In the suit of George Herstine against the Lehigh Valley Railroad an order was entered yesterday, directing that the plaintiff accept $13,000, in lieu of the excessive damages awarded him, or the defendant be awarded a new trial. Herstine, several years ago, sustained injuries on a Lehigh passenger train, and upon bringing suit was awarded $19,800 by a jury.

Second Game a Draw.

HAVANA, Jan. 5.—The second game in the great chess match between M. Steinitz and M. Tschigorin, at the Centro Austriano, was played yesterday. Steinitz, who had the move played a "Ruy Lopez." After thirty-two moves the game was given up as a draw. The third game of the match will be played to-day. The score is now: Tschigorin, 1; Steinitz, 0; drawn, 1.

One plate weighs 40,000 pounds.

IS HE COLOR BLIND

Engineer Donohue Alleged to Be So Afflicted.

HERRICK'S PECULIAR DEFENSE.

Attempt to be Made to Shift Responsibility for the Hastings Disaster.

Witnesses Who Will Swear that a Red Latern Was Left on the Station Platform, and that Torpedoes Had Been Placed on the Track--Central Officials Say Donohue's Eyes Had Been Examined Only a Short Time Ago.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Albert E. Herrick, the trainman who is charged with being responsible for the terrible disaster on the Central Railroad near Hastings on Christmas Eve, will set up a peculiar defense when he is brought to trial before a Westchester county jury.

Yesterday Lawyer Walsh made known Herrick's defense. He will claim that Engineer Donohue of the St. Louis express is color blind. Lawyer Walsh said: "I have six witnesses who will swear that they heard the torpedoes, which Herrick claims he placed upon the track as signals, explode. I can also prove that Herrick left his red lantern on the platform with the light turned toward the South, and this alone ought to have proved sufficient to stop the St. Louis express.

"I can also prove that a red lantern, swung by a brakeman named Cramer, on the Niagara Falls special, was taken for a white lantern by the engineer of the St. Louis express. That looks as if Donohue, the engineer of the St. Louis express, was color blind, does it not? I shall also produce other witnesses to prove that Engineer Donohue cannot distinguish the difference between a red and a white light at night."

President Depew said yesterday: "We are waiting for the Railroad Commissioners to decide the questions raised in my communication, addressed to them on the 2d inst., regarding the introduction of the block system as far as Buffalo. Then the railroad company will push the putting in of the block system as rapidly as possible."

Central Railroad officials say positively that Engineer Donahue of the St. Louis express is not color blind. Superintendent of Motive Power and Rolling Stock Buchanan says that Donahue's sight was tested no longer ago than last July, and he distinguished colors correctly without hesitation.

The same system of testing the sight is employed on nearly all the roads hereabouts. A quantity of worsted containing all the colors of the rainbow and a few others besides is spread on a table. The man to submit to the test comes in alone before the examiner and picks out strands of each color and names them as he picks them out. A single mistake means the loss of his place. These tests are made about once a year.

Suit Against the Keystone Bank.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—Edward W. Magill, assignee of John Bardsley, yesterday filed suit in Common Pleas court No. 4 against the Keystone National Bank to recover $100,000. Mr. Magill says that on Nov. 25, 1890, the bank received from John Bardsley as a loan for the use of the bank, 100 bonds of the Baltimore Traction company, valued at $1,000 each, the bank promising at the same time, in consideration of the loan, to either return the bonds or give face value for the same, and that on Nov. 25, G. W. Marsh gave Bardsley a receipt for the bonds. Mr. Magill says, however, that the bank sold the bonds and appropriated the proceeds to their own use, and have neglected and refused to return the bonds or the money equivalent to Bardsley or Magill as assignee.

To be Armed With Lee Repeaters.

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—The Massachusetts Naval Batallion, of which Commander Soley, U. S. N., is in charge, is to be equipped with the new Lee repeating rifle, a weapon similar in model to the new arm now making for the English Government. The rifle is on the bolt system, and is of great power and range. It can be used as a single shooter, or, by simply inserting on a slot near the trigger a detachable magazine holding five cartridges, it can at once be turned into a repeater. The United States Government has entered into a contract with a well known firm of gunsmiths in this city to furnish the Lee rifles to the Massachusetts Naval Militia.

Speaker Crisp Cannot Preside.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Speaker Crisp's condition of health while not sufficiently alarming to cause apprehension, is such as prelude the possibility of his presiding over the House to-day. The programme which it was supposed had been determined upon for the Speaker to designate Mr. McMillin as Speaker for the day, is found impracticable for the reason that there are no rules yet adopted which permit of this action. Consequently, as at the opening of the session, the duty of calling the House to order will devolve on the Clerk, and the House will then be left to select its Speaker pro tem. It is probable that Mr. McMillin will be elected to this position.

BACK DOWN BY CHILI.

Rumor That Minister Montt Has Been Instructed to Make an Apology.

VALPARAISO, Chili, Jan. 5.—It is stated here that the Chilian government has cabled orders to Minister Pedro Montt at Washington to make a sincere apology to the United States for the unfortunate and deplorable attack upon the Baltimore sailors on October 16 last. The apology, it is said, is unqualified in its character.

Other matters which have been in dispute between Chili and the United States are to be speedily considered by the new administration.

NO FEAR OF A WAR.

A Chilian-American's Views on the Present Trouble.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—J. Parker Reed, at present in this city, has been living from time to time since 1876 in Chili. In an interview he said there was no fear of a war with Chili.

"My wife and four children," said he, "are in the city of Valparaiso, and I feel just as safe about them as though they were here in Chicago. My wife and son keep me posted on the feeling entertained by the Chilians toward this country, and I feel sure that it has not changed of late. Chili is a young, bright, proud and energetic nation. Naturally enough, her people love the United States as nearly akin to themselves in progress and enterprise.

"But it was a mistake to send Egan to Chili," continued Mr. Read. "There the leading men are of English birth and parentage, and naturally look with disfavor on Egan. As the representative of the United States he is treated with due respect, but we cannot expect more.

"As to the Baltimore incident, the Chilian courts are investigating the affair and we may be sure that if an apology is due us we will get it without asking. Naturally the people are our friends and look to the United States with pride as the highest exponent of Western civilization."

Settling the Chilian Trouble.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The "Times," commenting on the Baltimore sailors' affair, says: "Whatever satisfaction Chili may be prepared to make to the families of the victims of the Valparaiso affray and to the honor of the United States, she can hardly be asked, with decency, to go behind the finding of her own tribunals upon evidence taken by courts of another country."

A REPRIEVE ASKED FOR.

Murderer Trezza, Who is Said to be an Italian Citizen, May be Respited.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 5.—Secretary Blaine has received a telegram from Gov. Flower containing the information that the request of Niccola Trezza, the Italian under sentence of death by electricity in New York would be granted, and that nothing would be done in the matter until further advices from the State Department.

The telegram was in response to one sent by Mr. Blaine asking for a reprieve pending an investigation into the case. Trezza is said to be an Italian citizen, and the reprieve was asked by the Italian Government through Marquis Imeriali, its representative here.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Murderers McElvaine and Trezza were brought before Judge Bartlett in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, in Brooklyn yesterday for resentence, their appeal having been decided against them. They will be electrocuted during the week beginning Feb. 8. They were taken back to Sing Sing.

Ohio Senatorial Caucus.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 5.—At last the date of the Senatorial caucus has been set and at 8 o'clock to-morrow night in the Hall of the House of Representatives the battle will be fought without gloves. Senator Ohl of the Senate Caucus Committee and Mr. Dougherty of the House, with President Harris of the Senate and Speaker Laylin, met and agreed upon this date. The contest remains about the same as since the Legislative caucus, or if there may be any favor Sherman has gained it.

Prominent Politician Dead.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Wm. B. Ruggles, a prominent Democratic politician, died at 11 o'clock last night in this city, very suddenly, although he has been ailing for some time. Mr. Ruggles came from Otsego County, and was a member of Assembly in 1877. In 1882 he was made Superintendent of Public Instruction in the State, and later on was Deputy Attorney-General. He was also Deputy Superintendent of Insurance under W. H. Maxwell.

Boston Merchants' Dinner.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Owing to the ill-health of Mrs. Blaine, the Secretary will not attend the Boston Merchants' dinner on Thursday night. A letter to be read by W. E. Curtis, Chief of the State Department, Bureau of the American Republics, will take the place of Mr. Blaine's proposed speech. Representative Burrows of Michigan and Senor Montt, Chilian Minister, will both speak.

The Grip in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Nearly every member of the police force is grappling with the grip. It is the biggest list of sick policemen ever reported to the department. None of the men are dangerously ill, but it seems that as fast as one reports for duty there is another one to take his place on the sick list.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Catherine Compton, widow of the late L. L. Compton, and mother of C. K. Compton, the confectioner, died last night at the age of 69.

Funeral Obsequies.

The remains of the late John W. Laing were consigned to their last resting-place beside his kindred in Evergreen cemetery, on Plainfield avenue, this afternoon. The services were held from his late residence, Laing's Hotel, and were conducted by the Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, who highly eulogized the deceased for his many acts of charity and for his honesty and integrity in all his dealings through life. There was present a large concourse of relatives and friends—for John W. Laing had many, many friends, who will respect his memory in the time to come.

The pall-bearers were some of his old friends and associates.—Wallace Vail, A. Darby, J. E. Martine, William McDowell Coriell, and Joseph S. Cutter.

The body was encased in a plain black-cloth casket, with silver handles, and clothed in a plain suit of garments such as he had always worn, including a high collar of the old style.

The only floral pieces were a large pillow of beautiful flowers, with the words "Uncle John" in the centre, and a sheaf of wheat with sickle. Mr. Laing had always desired that his funeral should be plain in every particular.

The death of the next to last of his family, his sister, Althea DeCamp, occurred two years ago Jan. 5, the anniversary of his burial.

Won by the Plainfield Counselors.

In the case of Louisa Corsa vs. Elizabeth Corsa, Judge VanSyckel in the supreme court to-day rendered a decision in favor of Louisa Corsa for $1,092 16 and costs. Messrs. Jackson & Codington appeared for the plaintiff, Louisa Corsa, and Messrs. Shafer & Durand of Rahway for the defendant, Elizabeth Corsa. The case was one for damages, because in a deed from the father of the defendant to the plaintiff there was a covenant that the premises were free and clear of encumbrances; yet there was a judgment against the premises under which the premises were afterwards sold under execution. Judge VanSyckel held that the plaintiff was entitled to recover the full consideration paid—$1 000 and interest.

Sudden Death of a High School Pupil.

One week ago yesterday Miss Maggie Sperling, a student in Miss Davis's class at the Plainfield High school, left for her home at Blackwell's Mills, for the holidays. She was a most estimable young woman, and had warmly endeared herself to all her classmates who will be deeply grieved to learn of their loss. She was in her sixteenth year. The funeral services will be held at her late residence, Blackwell's Mills, to-morrow morning at 11.

A LIVELY COUNCIL, THIS.

IT STARTS IN WITH A FLOURISH TO UNDO "BIG SIX" LEGISLATION.

After Electing S. A. Ginna President and F. W. Runyon City Clerk, It Proceeds to Restore the Hour of Closing Saloons from 12 to 11 p. m., to Repeal the Low Water-works and Sewerage Franchises, to Open Peace Street, and to Adjust Street Railway and Other Important Matters.

J. B. Coward, city clerk of last year's common council, called the council of 1892 to order, at 8:06 last evening. As had been predicted in these columns, Stephen A. Ginna was elected president, and Frank Willetts Runyon was made city clerk. The councilmen occupied seats and arranged their desks as follows:

Ginna
Marsh — Case
Erickson — Frazee
Ackermah — Gallup
Johnston — Weber
See — Bird

When the meeting had been called to order, the first business announced was the selection of a president. Mr. Marsh nominated Mr. Ginna. Mr. Frazee nominated Mr. Gallup. Messrs. See and Case were appointed tellers. Mr. Ginna received 7 votes, and Mr. Gallup 1. Two ballots were blank.

PRESIDENT GINNA INSISTS ON PROMPTNESS.

Messrs. Marsh and Gallup were appointed to escort the new president to the chair. Mr. Gallup and Mr. Ginna shook hands pleasantly, and Mr. Marsh "introduced" Mr. Ginna, who made a brief speech thanking his fellow-councilmen for the confidence they had reposed in him. He pledged himself to preside to the best of his ability, and trusted to their generosity to overlook and help him rectify any mistakes he might make. He said that the councilmanic pathway would probably be not so smooth as might be hoped for, but he was sure that all public questions would be disposed of in a manner entirely satisfactory to the city. He requested that the councilmen convene at each meeting on time and dispose of all business with as much promptness as possible.

For city clerk Mr. Marsh nominated F. W. Runyon. Mr. Frazee nominated Aaron W. Rand, and made a neat speech in support of his candidate, whom he said would if elected fill the office honorably and capably. He laid stress on the fact that Mr. Rand was a Fourth ward business man. Mr. Gallup nominated J. B. Coward, last year's clerk. Messrs. See and Johnston were appointed tellers. The vote was announced as follows: F. W. Runyon, 8; A. W. Rand, 1; J. B. Coward, 1. Mr. Runyon was present through the meeting, but Mr. Coward acted as clerk to its close.

THE RULES TO BE MADE BY-LAWS.

Mr. Marsh said that it was customary for common councils to have rules of order, and made a sly dig at recent legislation by saying that sometimes meetings were conducted without rules. He presented the rules of the previous councils, with the list of committees altered and amended, and they were unanimously adopted as the rules of order for the council of 1892.

Mr. Marsh then gave notice that at the next meeting of the council he would present the rules for adoption as by-laws, so as to avoid any technical difficulties during the year.

For janitor of the council chamber Mr. Johnston nominated William V. Mundy. Mr. Frazee nominated Charles A. Westerfield. Messrs. Weber and Bird were appointed tellers. There were 7 votes for Mr. Mundy, and 2 for Mr. Westerfield.

OFFICIAL PAPERS AND STANDING COMMITTEES.

On motion of Mr. See, THE PRESS, the Times and the News were made the official city papers for the year, Mr. Gallup alone voted no.

President Ginna announced his standing committees as follows:

Alms—Bird, Frazee, Johnston.
Auditing—Gallup, Weber, Frazee.
Fire and Building—Erickson, Bird, Marsh.
Finance—Ackerman, Marsh, Gallup.
Laws and Ordinances—See, Johnston, Ackerman.
Licenses—Weber, Case, Erickson.
Police and Lights—Marsh, Erickson, Weber.
Printing and Stationery—Frazee, Gallup, See.
Streets—Johnston, Ackerman, Case.
Water and Sewerage—Case, See, Bird.

Cards containing the list of committees and copies of the roll call were ordered printed for use of the council.

Petitions were received for fire-alarm boxes—one at the corner of Eighth street and Park avenue, and one at the corner of Madison avenue and Third street or in front of the electric light works. They were referred to the committee on fire and buildings.

TO REMEDY BAD DRAINAGE.

An urgent petition was received from residents of Liberty street in the neighborhood of the Central railroad, asking immediate remedy of the notoriously defective drainage of that street. The petitioners complained that the lack of drainage was detrimental to health, and that business prosperity was hindered and interfered with by the inundations caused by every rain, which filled the cellars and flooded the roadway and sidewalks. Mr. Frazee made a speech indorsing the appeal of the people. He held that the matter ought to be one of the first things to receive attention at the hands of the council. The street was impassable—he said—after a rainstorm, and the evil ought to be remedied as soon as possible. The petition was referred to the committee on streets.

WANT LIGHTS TO DISPERSE HIGHWAYMEN.

H. M. DuFlon and others petitioned for electric street lights on Randolph road east from Park avenue to Woodland avenue. They represented that the lights were imperatively needed for the protection of life and limb, and said that people had been waylaid and shot at because the thoroughfare was so dark and lonely—all this in the city limits. The petition was referred to the committee on police and lights.

ADOPTING THE MAYOR'S RECOMMENDATIONS.

The annual message of Mayor Gilbert, which is published in full in other columns, was received and filed, and on motion of Mr. Marsh the part referring to the securing of fire-hydrants was referred to the committee on fire and buildings, they to report at the next meeting.

OH, FOR A STREET RAILWAY!

The part referring to street work and street railroad was referred to the committee on streets. Mr. Marsh said that the people wanted a street railroad and wanted it quickly. There had been a franchise granted,—he said—but if it was permitted to drag its way through the courts it would be a long time before anything definite was reached. He thought that some arrangement might be made to settle the pending litigation—either by a change of route, or by abandoning the trolley system for a first-class horse car line. But some kind of a street railway was urgently needed, to develop and improve property. He moved that the committee on streets be instructed to confer with the corporation counsel and the parties in litigation and see if some arrangement could not be made right speedily for the removal of obstacles, the committee to report at the earliest possible moment. All voted aye.

TO CORRECT ALMS-HOUSE EVILS.

That part of the message concerning the alms-house was referred to the committee on alms, that part concerning police to the police committee, and that part referring to sewers to the committee on water and sewers.

On motion of Mr. Ackerman—whose desire was to offset the resolution of last year by which the street committee was given full power to order street improvements—it was unanimously resolved that all work done on the streets should be under the control and direction of the council, working through the committee.

TO CLOSE BAR ROOMS AT 11.

Mr. Ackerman introduced an ordinance to close bar rooms at 11 p. m., instead of 12 midnight. It was passed on first and second readings and ordered engrossed and advertised preparatory to third reading and final passage. Mr. Frazee alone voted no.

By resolution of Mr. Ackerman the work of continuing the macadamizing of Madison avenue was ordered to proceed.

For the use of the street committee during January $500 was appropriated.

AT LAST THE PEACE STREET PROJECT.

Mr. See introduced the long-deferred ordinance to widen Peace street. He said that a legal technicality had prevented its passage before. It was adopted on first and second readings and ordered engrossed and advertised preparatory to third reading and final passage. The clerk was instructed to advertise that all persons interested in the Peace street project would be heard at the regular February meeting.

On motion of Mr See the legal services of ex-Chancellor Theodore Runyon were dispensed with, and the clerk was instructed to notify him to that effect.

TO REPEAL THE LOW ORDINANCES.

Mr. See moved that the corporation counsel be instructed to prepare ordinances to repeal the sewer and water-works ordinances granting franchises to J. M. Low and others. The motion was carried. The only opposition was from Mr. Gallup.

Mr. See moved that the corporation counsel be instructed not to interpose any defence to the two certiorari suits in the supreme court against the city, concerning water and sewerage. Mr. Marsh said that the two contracts were outrageous, and could not possibly be sustained by the courts; but at present he was hardly prepared to vote for Mr. See's motion, which he moved be tabled for one week. The motion to table was unanimously carried.

A note for $3,000 falling due next week was ordered extended for 30 days.

At 9:20 the council adjourned for one week.

A Bright Rabbit.

The New York Evening Post gives us the following interesting development in the natural history line:

"A rabbit was recently caught in a coal mine near Frostburg, Md., two miles from its mouth."

Inferior Goods.

The only safe way for purchasers is to insist on having the genuine article, and not allow themselves to be swindled by having plasters said to be "just as good," or "containing superior ingredients," imposed upon them. These are only tricks to sell inferior goods that no more compare with ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS than copper does with gold. One trial of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS will convince the most skeptical of their merits.

The eminent Henry A. Mott, Jr., Ph.D., F. C. S., late Government Chemist, certifies:

"My investigation of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER show it to contain valuable and essential ingredients not found in any other plaster, and I find it superior to and more efficient than any other plaster."

Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

BAD WRECK ON THE JERSEY CENTRAL.

Fifty Cars Smashed Into Kindling Wood—An Engineer Terribly Scalded, and a Fireman Seriously Hurt—Fearful Destruction by a Huge Freight Locomotive.

[From a PRESS reporter on the spot.]

CRANFORD, N. J., Jan. 5.—An accident of extraordinary destructiveness occurred on the Central Railroad of New Jersey near here this morning. Through the alleged carelessness of the engineer of the big Reading engine No. 419, fifty coal cars were totally demolished, an engine was rendered worthless, and two men were hurt, one of whom may die.

It was long before daylight when a heavily loaded train of coal cars drawn by engine No. 419 passed the Westfield station. Thence to below Cranford there is a sharp down grade, and with a full head of steam on the long train rushed eastward. Just before Cranford station was reached, the red caboose of a stationary train loomed up in the darkness ahead. The engineer of 419 quickly reversed his engine and opened wide his sand-boxes. The steep down grade, and the velocity that the train had attained, made a quick stoppage impossible, and long before the rear cars felt the slackening speed the huge engine plunged into the rear of the train ahead, and before its onward course was stopped it had cut its way almost clear through to the forward engine. When further progress was stopped the powerful piece of machinery careened to one side and leaped over two tracks to the fast express line.

The engineer was a brave man, even if investigation should prove him to be a careless one. He stuck to his post as the engine beneath him plunged onward through flying splinters of wood and iron. When his engine finally came to a standstill it was completely dismantled. The cab was torn away, nothing remaining but a small platform where the engineer and fireman stood. Fire from the furnace communicated with splinters of wood, and soon the wreck surrounding the engine was consumed. Every piece of wood on the engine was burned to ashes.

Escaping steam drove the engineer and fireman from their posts, but not before both were terribly hurt. The engineer's name is unknown. He is a German, and lives at Philadelphia. He was taken to Elizabeth, where it was found necessary to amputate the fingers of one hand. He is terribly scalded and may die. The fireman's hurts are less serious, but one of his legs was badly crushed.

In all there are probably fifty coal cars lying totally demolished along the tracks. Where No. 419 crashed into the caboose there lie over forty cars mixed up in a seeming inextricable mass, while some distance away are a dozen or so more that reared up and were crushed like eggshells by the shock of sudden stopping.

For seven or eight hours almost all traffic over the line was suspended, but at noon to-day three wrecking crews had cleared away much of the debris, and trains were being run on two tracks. The other two were still blocked at 3 p. m.

Railroad men are very reticent, and decline to lay the blame on any one employe, but one was induced to say that there were lights displayed on the rear of the forward train, and that every precaution had been taken by the train-hands to prevent being run into. Another railroad man said: "It served that engineer right"—but when asked for a reason for his exclamation he said nothing. It is supposed that the sharp grade and a full head of steam led the engineer to run at an excessive speed—one that allowed him to over-reach the forward train inadvertently.

Southern Prosperity.

That the South is growing rapidly is shown by the fact that 1,740 new manufacturing enterprises were located within her borders during the past six months. These have been attracted to this section by reason of the cheap raw materials and fuel, of which the South can boast a greater supply than is found elsewhere in the Union. That portion of West Virginia, Maryland and Virginia lying along the line of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad has its full share of natural advantages, and full information concerning locations for manufacturing, farming, or any particular line of business, will be furnished on application to M. V. Richards, land and immigration agent, B. & O. R. R. Co., Baltimore.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely; it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety, and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Ct.

Wants Punishment to Fit His Crime.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—Charles Wall, who is awaiting death by the rope at Tunkhonnock, Pa., for the murder of his wife, wrote to his victim's father last week requesting that he be buried beside his wife. His request was refused. He has just written another letter to a friend asking him to see or write Governor Pattison and tell him that he, Wall, did not think that death by the rope was a severe enough penalty for his crime, and that he should change his sentence to death by fire at the stake.

A VERY STRONG DOCUMENT.

IN HIS ANNUAL MESSAGE TO THE COUNCIL, MAYOR GILBERT HITS OUT FROM THE SHOULDER.

He Aims Effective Blows at Existing Evils, Recommends the Establishment of an Adequate Fire Hydrant Service, the Pruning of the Fire Department, the Introduction of a Healthful System of Sewers, the Construction of a Street Railway, Reform in the Matter of Cutting Away Streets and Destroying Shade Trees, the Enlargement of the Police Force So as to Give the Suburbs Needful Protection, the Abolishment of Poor-House Evils, the Extermination of Illegal Liquor Selling, the Forfeiture of Offenders' Licenses, and the Correction of Other Abuses.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., January 4, 1892.

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield.

GENTLEMEN:—Another year has passed, and the administration of the affairs of the city has fallen into new hands. It may not, therefore, be considered amiss in me to direct your attention to certain matters, the importance of which, to the growth and welfare of the city, will be readily understood; and to make in relation thereto such suggestions as the experience of the past year would seem to justify. Each passing year adds to the importance of the councilmanic office, and increases the responsibility of those who are willing to assume its burdens. As the continuous growth of the city awakens a desire for improvements, considered necessary to meet the wants of a rapidly increasing population, the effort to provide what is needed in this direction, and at the same time protect the city against the dangers incident to this period of transition, calls not only for integrity and business capacity on the part of public officials, but for a spirit of self-sacrifice as well. I congratulate the people of Plainfield that the council of 1892 possesses to so great a degree these essential characteristics.

Recent experience has demonstrated the value of an abundant water supply for fire purposes; and in order that the city may at the earliest possible moment have ample protection against fire, I recommend that the proposition of the Plainfield Water Supply company to locate hydrants and to furnish water for the same at $15 per hydrant be accepted, and that a contract for one year with a privilege of nine more at the same price be entered into for as many hydrants as in the opinion of your honorable body are needed. When this is done and the hydrants are ready for service, it would seem that the expense of maintaining the fire department should be materially reduced; and I suggest that the matter of a re-organization of the department be referred to a committee to consider and report what changes the introduction of water for fire purposes will render necessary, in order to put the department on its most economical and efficient basis.

The time has undoubtedly arrived when the question of providing the city with a sewerage system should be taken up and considered. In the thickly settled portion of the city the need of sewers is felt to a much greater extent than elsewhere; and, while it is possible that action in this matter may be deferred for a short time without serious injury to the health of the city, it nevertheless must be admitted that it would be a great convenience to our people and a gain to the reputation of the city if sewerage could be introduced at the present time. The question is a very important one, and should be treated with all the care and deliberation that its importance demands. In order that we may have the benefit of the most advanced information on the subject, we should call to our aid some expert of recognized standing, and make ourselves thoroughly familiar with those phases of the problem which interest us most. Let us find out if it is possible for us to secure an outlet to tidewater; if not, what other system will best meet our requirements. Let us prepare ourselves to act intelligently in the premises, and to this end I would suggest the selection of a committee of citizens to co-operate with a committee from your honorable body in an intelligent effort to determine—

First, Whether sewerage should be introduced at the present time.

Second, What system will be best suited to our needs.

Third, The cost of, and how to obtain the same.

Plainfield continues to grow and extend her borders, and the need of a street railway is as badly felt as ever. It seems but reasonable that some action should be taken to meet this want. A good street railway service would be a great convenience to a large number of our people; it would build up the suburbs, and increase the valuation of property, and in this way add to the prosperity of our people. I sincerely hope that it may be possible for you to reach a satisfactory solution of this problem during the present year.

A great deal of work has been done on the streets during the past year, some of which has provoked considerable adverse criticism; and, while I should not like to say that the policy pursued in cutting to the legal grade the several streets that have been improved was wrong, it does seem as if much of the extreme cutting was uncalled for. While our surface drainage may be defective in many places, no very serious trouble has been experienced in disposing of surface water, and the question naturally arises whether it is really necessary to continue cutting our streets to a grade that was established twenty years ago, simply because that grade happens to be the established grade.

The cost of the work to the city is considerable, and to many of the property owners interested it is a real hardship, in addition to which it necessitates a wholesale destruction of trees. Looking at the question from the standpoint of one who has no desire to discourage necessary improvements, my judgment is that extreme changes of grade should be avoided unless absolutely necessary to remedy defective drainage. The impracticability of putting all our streets on the legally established grade has been fully demonstrated by experience, and I would suggest the propriety of making such a revision of our grade maps as is necessary to make them conform to present requirements.

Our police force is hardly large enough to furnish adequate protection to property, in the different sections of the city. Happily, our people are, in the main, an orderly, law abiding people and a large force is not required to maintain order; but the growth of the city in population and property will require, from time to time, a gradual increase of the force in order that no part of the city may be without protection. In certain sections of the city private watchmen are employed and paid by a few individuals, which should not be necessary. Ample police protection is essential to the well-being of every community, and constitutes a most legitimate charge upon the public treasury; there is no propriety in requiring a large section of the city to furnish its own protection and thus put the cost upon a few individuals. The private watchman should give place to regular police, and the force should be made large enough to give efficient service.

The extra charge put upon the city by these necessary expenditures should be provided for, if possible, without increasing the tax rate. The amount required to support the city government will naturally increase with the growth of the city; but under an economical administration of public affairs with a constantly increasing taxable valuation, the tax rate ought not increase. The appropriation for public streets, it seems to me, can and should be reduced at least twenty per cent. below the appropriation of last year.

Another subject of pressing importance is the care of the city poor. It is now and always will be our duty to make suitable provision for those who are so unfortunate as to belong to the pauper class; at the same time it is very necessary that care should be exercised, lest in the distribution of the poor fund pauperism may be encouraged. Our present methods are lax, and not calculated to produce the best results; the whole business is managed too much as if it were nobody's business, or like duties of an unpleasant nature, by giving it just enough attention to keep the machinery in motion regardless of results. At the present time we are providing for a portion of the city poor in a building on Fourth street, known as the poor-house, while others are scattered here and there throughout the city, the public paying rent or board for them. The poor-house and its surroundings are not at all calculated to develop cleanliness and good morals among those who are compelled to live there. It is unclean, and I should say unhealthful; indeed, it cannot very well be otherwise in the absence of an intelligent and interested supervision. My own judgment is that the city should provide a poor-house suitable for the accommodation of those who may be compelled to resort to it; that its surroundings should be clean and healthful; and that, so far as possible, all of those for whom the city is paying rent or board for them. The poor-house should be compelled to locate thereon. It should be under the care of a competent superintendent, whose duty it should be to investigate the condition of all applicants for relief, and to see that order and morality are maintained at the poor-house. Under correct methods, with the valuable aid furnished by the Relief association, we should be able to develop a much more satisfactory service without increasing materially the present yearly expenditure after the first outlay.

An honest effort has been made during the year to detect and prevent the unlawful sale of liquor on Sundays. Certain of the saloons have persistently and continuously violated the Sunday ordinance, notwithstanding their agreement to respect and obey the ordinances of the city, entered into when their licenses were granted.

Two of the most persistent offenders were recently convicted and fined $100 each. The record can be obtained of the city judge, and it is for you to determine whether or not men who forfeit all claim to consideration by an open violation of law are entitled to a renewal of their license.

My own judgment is that the dignity of the law, as well as justice to the saloon-keepers who obey the law, requires that an example should be made of all such offenders. In this connection I would also recommend the repeal of the ordinance by which the hour for keeping open the saloons was changed from 11 to 12 o'clock. There was no valid reason for the passage of this ordinance, and its repeal will contribute to the orderly condition of the city and lighten the labors of the police after 11 o'clock at night.

I would also suggest that the corporation counsel be instructed to prepare an ordinance to repeal the two ordinances by the provisions of which permission was granted to J. M. Low and others to form companies for the purpose of introducing water and sewerage into the city. It seems to me that the verdict of the people, as recently expressed at the polls, was sufficiently emphatic to justify such action.

The matters herein referred to I feel are important, and I trust that my suggestions may meet with your approval and receive early consideration. Respectfully submitted,

A. GILBERT,
Mayor.

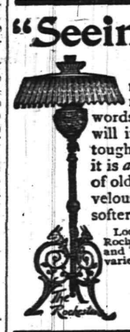
"Seeing is Believing."



And a good lamp must be simple; when it is not simple it is not good. Simple, Beautiful, Good—these words mean much, but to see "The Rochester" will impress the truth more forcibly. All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. Like Aladdin's of old, it is indeed a "wonderful lamp," for its marvelous light is purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light and more cheerful than either.

Look for this stamp—THE ROCHESTER. If the lamp dealer hasn't the genuine Rochester, and the style you want, send to us for our new illustrated catalogue, and we will send you a lamp safely by express—your choice of over 2,000 varieties from the Largest Lamp Store in the World.

MEN WHO ROSE TO FAME.

Celebrated People Whom John Swinton Knew as Poor Boys.

Sketches of Secretary Tracy, Ward the Sculptor, Villard the Capitalist, Howells the Novelist and Many Other Notables.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

Upward or downward, hither or thither, yesterday or to-morrow, gayety or gravity; and thus it is that life has gone or will go. It is interesting to one who has known New York for many years to spend an hour in taking account of the people of his acquaintance here who have risen or fallen in the world during these years.

Among my acquaintances here about twenty years ago was an undistinguished lawyer about thirty years old, a fellow-worker of mine in a business which afforded a slight income beyond that derived from his legal practice. Few of those who knew him at that time could have forecast his career from then till now, his advancement in his profession and to the bench, and the other changes that took place in his life, until he attained his present distinction in this public service. I refer to the efficient secretary of the navy, Benjamin F. Tracy.

Well do I remember the time when, through a mutual friend, I formed the acquaintance of a young, free-spirited, aspiring and tawny-haired sculptor who had come to New York from his native town of Urbana, in Ohio. He had opened a studio, and it was a fine one; he was ready for orders, and they were not long in coming to him; it was evident from his work and words that he had the artistic genius, broad and clear, and time has justified the evidence. He had yet to win the fame which now belongs to him and which is not confined to his native land. In the Central park there are two of his masterpieces, "The Indian Hunter" and "Shakespeare." In other parts of the city and of Brooklyn are his "Washington," "Greeley," "Beecher" and other works, while yet other noble statues from his studio are to be seen in Boston, Washington, Gettysburg, Hartford, Newport and elsewhere. The aspiring sculptor of 1861, J. Q. S. Ward, has become the masterful sculptor of 1891.

In the years of the war, I made the acquaintance of a young German in New York, who had been doing some newspaper reporting, who, if I remember rightly, sent some letters from the army of the Potomac to the New York Times, of which I was then the managing editor. He afterwards did similar work, during several years, for other papers, and went abroad as correspondent, staying in Europe till he was over thirty years old. It is safe to say that nobody then saw in him the makings of the man who, after 1870, began those gigantic operations as a railroad promoter, constructor and financier with which his name has been associated. I refer to Henry Villard. He has had vicissitudes of fortune during the past twenty years, and I know not wheth-he is up or down at this time; but he is still in the prime of life, and may yet do something worthy of his mind.

It was soon after the close of the war that Mr. Ward, the sculptor, brought into my office here a young man of a literary turn who had been brought up as a type-setter in Ohio, and who had more recently held a consular office in Europe by appointment of Abraham Lincoln. He was about twenty-seven or eight years old. He was modest, gentle and winsome in his ways; his figure was slender and graceful; he had an ample head, fine features, lambent eyes, a boy's complexion, an attractive expression and a subdued tone of voice. His talk was of Venice, where he had been American consul and about which he had written a book, and of New York, where he was desirous of finding a career accordant with his tastes. I refer to William Dean Howells, who, since that time, has assuredly won for himself a place worthy of his genius, high up among the shining authors of his country. Look at the long roll of the titles of the books he has given us within the past twenty years, and which have spread his fame through many lands and languages.

Augustin Daly I knew in years when he may have been paid as much as $8 or $10 a week for the hard work by which he earned a living. His triumphant career since that time as a dramatic author, the author of the most popular plays of the period, and as a theatrical manager in New York and other American cities, and in London and other European cities, needs no record here. It is to be hoped that the new play which Tennyson has just put into his hands will turn out to be meritorious.

Once on a time, when in Washington, I met a young Ohioan, Whitelaw Reid, who was sending news from there to a Cincinnati paper. He has since then become a notable personage, a millionaire, the owner of the New York Tribune and American minister to France.

I recall an austere taciturn man, Alexander L. Holley, who wrote pieces on engineering subjects for the New York Times during the war. He rose to eminence in his profession, and a monument bearing his bust and name has recently been raised to his memory by the American societies of mining, civil and mechanical engineers. We had no thought when he was thirty that he would ever be honored thus.

I know a man, yet in his prime, who was a clerk on a small salary in this city, ten years ago, and who is now the owner of a very big manufacturing establishment. I knew a flamboyant speculator a score of years ago, who was then a multi-millionaire, was the chief proprietor of a steamship line, and built a good sized town, which he owned, but who is now under the cloud of impecuniosity, with no prospect of betterment in life. A poet of my acquaintance, who was hard-up last year, recently inherited a fortune which has quenched his poetic fire, perhaps never to be rekindled. Six years ago I kept a boy-of-all-work, who strove to get along, and now at the age of twenty-two is the owner and editor of a rural paper in this state. I recall Jay Gould at the time he began to operate in gold in Wall street in a small way with small capital, and now he is spoken of as the modern Crœsus. A negro boy, a North Carolina slave, who had been captured by one of our naval officers during the war, was brought to me in New York by his captor; he is now a government functionary with a fat account in bank. I knew a needy graybeard here, who, not being able to get along, went abroad, married a wealthy widow, and last year I beheld him living in a palace in an Italian city.

Not long ago I was surprised to learn that one of my schoolmates, who was jeered at as the blockhead of the class, is now a judge in one of our four highest state courts, and is spoken of as a great jurist. He looked glum in the seminary; he looks full of gravity on the bench. He then spoke drawlingly, which was considered a sign of his stupidity; he now speaks still more drawlingly, but it is regarded as an evidence of his dignity. He lives in high style here in his uptown mansion, and is a social as well as a judicial luminary. When I heard of him a while ago, for the first time in many years, it was not easy to realize that he had been the dolt of other days, and when I met him it was hard to address him by his title of "judge."

Now, then, looking at the record of the other side, recalling the names of some of the many bright youngsters and breezy freshmen of thirty years ago who have turned out to be good-for-nothing or worse than that, as they went along in life—lackaday, the less said of them the better.

Other changes take place, and that rapidly enough in the shows of life. The stripling of 1870 is the middle-aged sire of to-day; he who was then in his prime has now become venerable, and the stalwart who counted his fifty years at that time is now jogging along toward octogenarianism.

Such sketches as are here given can be given by almost everybody who is familiar with the life of any city in the United States—sketches that may involve experience and incidents fitted to dumfound the ordinary imagination, showing how unaccountable are the changes wrought by time and circumstances; how men and things move upward, downward, in zigzag lines, across lots or in circles, and how we may stand straight amid scenes of gravity or gayety, in the light or in the shade.

JOHN SWINTON.

A BOARDING-SCHOOL STRIKE.

Freddy Wilkins—I ain't goin' ter sleep with that Egbert Peters any more.

The Principal—You mustn't talk like that. Does he crowd you?

Freddy Wilkins—No; but he kinder cuts.—Judge.

Narrow Escape.

"An' sure," said Patrick to his friend Dennis, "I was near indade the day to bein' made a prisint of a most byootiful harse, wid the coat of a duck, the grace of a dancing-master, and the spade of an antilawpe."

"Arrh!" said Dennis. "The loikes o' you bein' near made a prisint of a harse!"

"Sure, an' that I was, Dennis, dear. 'Twas by a grain that I missed him. It was in a chaise he was, and dhruv by a foine gintleman of me acqua'ntance. He stopped ferninst the house of me impl'yer the day.

"'It's a fine harse ye hev thayre,' says I.

"'I belave ye'er roight,' says he.

"'Wud ye give him to me?' says I.

"'Naw!' says he.

"An' begorra, if he'd said 'Yis,' I'd 'a' had him!"—Youth's Companion.

Save Health and Money.

Mrs. Cobblestone—My dear, the doctor says my health will improve by change of air.

Mr. C.—What kind of a change?

"He says I must live at a higher altitude."

"There's sense in that, and we can save a heap of money besides."

"Save money?"

"Of course. Here we're paying ninety dollars a month for this third floor flat when we can get the sixteenth floor for thirty."—N. Y. Weekly.

A Dubious Situation.

Rev. Joseph Gravely (giving his views on the evils of card-playing during a pastoral call)—As I was saying, I am in doubt—

Parrot (interrupting eagerly)—When you are in doubt, play trumps!

(And no member of that family has been able to account for the parrot's utterance to the satisfaction of the pastor).—Kate Field's Washington.

A Reasonable Request.

Voice from Doorway—Mary! what are you doing out there?

Mary—I'm looking at the moon.

Voice from Doorway—Well, tell the moon to go home, and you come into the house. It's half-past eleven.—Life.

WILD MOB'S FURY

A Sailor of the Baltimore Tells of the Massacre.

CHILIAN SOLDIERS LENT AID.

Riggin, the Boatswain's Mate, was Bayonetted in the Back.

The Police Charged the Mob, but Took Care to Wound Only Americans—The Assault Seems to Have Been Premeditated—Captain Schley Says that the Stories as Cabled Were True—The Baltimore to Go to Mare Island for Repairs.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—Capt. Schley, commander of the U. S. warship Baltimore, which is back from Chili, states that the reports telegraphed to this country regarding the attack on a number of his men in the harbor of Valparaiso were substantially correct, and that there was little if anything to add to them. He stated that one very significant feature of the assault on the Baltimore's men was that every one of them was stabbed in the back and that soldiers, police and sailors took part in the affair. None of the Baltimore's men were armed.

The Captain said that a half dozen of his men, if they had been provided with weapons, could have stood off the three thousand Chilians, as they were a lot of cowards. Further than this Capt. Schley refused to talk. The future movements of the Baltimore are at present unknown. She is very foul and will probably go to Mare Island to be cleaned.

One of the sailors told this story of the massacre at Valparaiso:

"There were a lot of us ashore that day, the 16th of October, enjoying leave, and not one of us was molested during the day. There were thirty-four of the boys still on shore when it grew dark.

"Some of them were told that the Chilians were going to jump them and they had better get aboard the vessel. Those that were told this went to work to dig up the rest of the boys and get them off shore. Before half of them got wind of it, though, the row began. It started in one place where there were three or four hands, but it spread like wildfire, and wherever a sailor with the American uniform was seen he was pelted with stones and clubbed and bayoneted.

"The boys fought as best they could, but what could they do against such fearful odds? There were about thirty of us against fully three thousand. If it had not been for the American consul, I suppose they would have been killed. As soon as he heard of the row he asked the Intendente to arrest all of the Baltimore's men who were on land.

"He did this to save the men from the mob, but the police were as bad as the mob. They charged on the crowd with bayonets, but when anybody was hurt it was one of our boys, you can bet. They finally gathered all the boys up and took them to the lockup.

"Riggin was stabbed to death with a bayonet through the back, and Turnbull was cut in a dozen places and had a bullet through his neck. The first we heard of the trouble was when Jerry Anderson was hauled up on deck with five stabs in his back. One of the bayonets pierced his right lung. That kind of thing don't look much like a row, does it?

"It was just an expression of Chilian feeling toward Americans. When one of boys would be knocked down the crowd would rush on him, kick him and stone him, but as soon as two or three of the other boys made a rush to rescue him the crowd went back like sheep."

A petty officer in an interview said: "We had been advised that the Chilians had no use for Americans before going ashore that morning. Capt. Schley had received assurance from the authorities that we would not be molested. When we landed, however, several sailors belonging to a British man-of-war in the harbor warned us to be very careful, for they had heard the Chilians making threats all morning against the Americans.

"The mob was an angry one, and whenever they sighted one of us fellows they howled like madmen and immediately gave chase, flourishing their knives and bayonets. You see, the mob was composed of men who had just returned from the war, and most of them were in uniform, so that we could not tell them from the police.

Walter A. Wood Dying.

TROY, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Ex-Congressman Walter A. Wood is lying at the point of death at his home in Hoosick Falls. La grippe first attacked him, then pneumonia set in. Mr. Wood is 76 years old. He has always been active in politics and represented this district in the Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh Congress. Mr. Wood, was engaged in the manufacturing of plows, mowers, reapers and binders, for which he invented many valuable improvements. His goods were sold in Great Britain and Europe.

Colored Catholic Congress.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—The third Congress of Colored Catholics of the United States is in session in this city. The congress is composed of prominent colored men from all parts of this country and from Hayti and Cuba. The sessions will continue three days. The object of the congress is to obtain information as to the number of colored Catholics; to devise ways and means for the industrial as well as the moral education of colored youth.

Tore Up His Money, then Died.

TROY, N. Y., Jan. 6.—The body of L. N. T. Paulin, of Nashua, N. H., was found on a farm at Hoosick Falls yesterday. A revolver clenched in his hand and a pistol wound in the head told the story. A strange part of the suicide was the amount of torn currency found scattered about the body. Over six hundred dollars were found, all torn in bits. There was also found a draft for $7,500, and three others for $1,000 each. It is believed the deceased was demented.

CONGRESS RECONVENED

McMillin Made Speaker Pro Tempore—Presidential Nominations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The House effected a temporary organization yesterday by the election of Mr. McMillin as Speaker pro tempore until Speaker Crisp shall be able to resume his duties. This organization will probably continue for two weeks, and the business of the House will be proceeded with.

There has been considerable anxiety for the Speaker, the fact that he is not permitted to see any one being interpreted as an indication of severe illness. Dr. Walsh said that the Speaker was quite ill with the grip for some time before he took to his bed. His desire to complete the committees kept him at work to the detriment of his health.

This aggravated the attack and he has had the grip in a very severe form. He has escaped the complications that often accompany the disease, which has taken its usual course. He is now greatly improved, though still quite weak and is getting better steadily. The doctor says, however, that it would not be safe for him to expose himself to the weather for two weeks.

The journal of the last session was read and approved.

Messrs. Wilson of Illinois and Buchanan of Virginia were then introduced and sworn in by the Speaker pro tem.

The clerk was instructed to notify the Senate of the election of Mr. McMillan as Speaker pro tem.

Mr. Catchings of the Committee on Rules reported from that Committee an order for the day's business, providing for the introduction and reference of bills, under the rules of the fiftieth Congress, so far as they are applicable.

The resumption of the business of the session after the close of the holiday recess was marked by a pretty full attendance of Senators, particularly on the Republican side of the chamber. Vice-President Morton occupied the chair.

Among the bills presented and referred were the following:

By Mr. Dolph—Making appropriations for the purchase of sites for fortifications.

By Mr. Davis—Arranging the pay and emoluments of the Commander of the Army of the United States.

To amend the pension act of June, 1890.

By Mr. Peffer—To establish a bureau of irrigation and to prescribe the duties thereof.

To increase the circulating medium by issuing Treasury notes based on gold and silver coin and bullion, and to amend the coinage laws accordingly.

To amend the Interstate Commerce act and to prohibit options, trusts and combinations.

By Mr. Dawes—For the adjustment of accounts of mechanics and workmen under the Eight-Hours' act.

The commission by the Governor of Kansas of B. W. Perkins as Senator, to succeed the late Senator Plumb, was presented, and Mr. Perkins (accompanied by Mr. Peffer) proceeded to the clerk's desk, took the oath of office and subsequently occupied a seat in the chamber on the extreme left of the Vice-President.

The Resident sent to the Senate the following nominations:

E. G. Rathbone, of Ohio, to be Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General.

To be Interstate Commerce Commissioners—James W. McDill, of Iowa, vice Thomas M. Cooley, resigned; William M. Lindsley, of Kentucky, vice Walter L. Pragg, deceased; William R. Morrison, of Illinois, a re-appointment.

William B. Hess, of Indiana, to be Consul-General of the United States at Constantinople.

William D. McCoy, of Indiana, to be Minister Resident and Consul-General of the United States to Liberia.

Daniel A. Ray, of Illinois, to be Principal Clerk of Surveys in the General Land Office.

Chandler's Railroad Pass Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Senator Chandler's successful fight against the Boston & Maine Railroad for issuing passes in violation of the Interstate Commerce law was the probable reason for the introduction of a bill by him yesterday to re-enforce the provisions of the Interstate Commerce law. The bill provides that giving free transportation, except as allowed by the act, shall be deemed unjust discrimination, and shall be punished as provided by the act. Railroads are compelled to keep a record of passes issued, and the record is to be at the disposal of stockholders of the road, the railroad commissioners of the State and the Interstate Commerce Commissioners.

Says Mills Will Decline to Serve.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The statement is made by a Democratic Congressman that Representative Mills of Texas will decline to serve as Chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, when he returns to the capital. Mr. Mills recently went on a hunting expedition and, it is alleged, left a note requesting Mr. Wise of Virginia to act as head of the committee, and stating that he does not care to assume its duties.

Mississippi Legislature.

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 6.—The Mississippi Legislature was convened yesterday. There was a lively contest over the Speakership and H. M. Street, of Lauderdale, was chosen by a majority of two over ex-Senator Madison. The new Speaker is a prominent insurance man and is anti-Alliance.

QUICKLY ORGANIZED

New York's Legislature Meets and Adjourns.

GOVERNOR FLOWER'S MESSAGE.

A Voluminous Document Touching on a Variety of Subjects.

Senator Walker Seated, Although Dr. Edwards, Who Helped the Democrats Organize the Senate, Opposed Him—Caucus Plans Carried Out—Both Houses Adjourned Until Next Tuesday to Give Time for Appointment of Committees.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 6.—The State Legislature has met and adjourned until next Tuesday evening, in order to give the usual time to make up the committees.

After the Senate had been called to order yesterday by Lieut.-Gov. Sheehan, Senator Cantor offered the resolution naming Charles T. Dunning, of Orange, for clerk, the Republicans substituting John E. Kenyon. Mr. Dunning was declared elected, the vote standing 17 Democrats and 13 Republicans, Senator Edwards voting with the Democrats.

The other officers were elected in the same manner and by the same vote. They were:

Sergeant-at-Arms, A. E. Tallmadge, of Otsego; stenographer, James Murray, of Albany; postmaster, John E. Leach, of Cattaraugus; postoffice messenger, James Carroll, of Albany.

Senator Brown offered the resolution nominating Senator Cantor for President pro tem. and Senator Coggeshall moved to substitute the name of George Z. Erwin.

The substitute was lost by a vote of 17 to 13, and Senator Cantor was elected by a vote of 33 to 3, the Republicans voting with him except Senator Erwin, Edwards and Hunter.

Senator Cantor then offered the resolution calling for the seating of the Democratic member from the twenty-seventh district, Mr. Walker, and asked for the previous motion. Mr. Erwin asked leave to present Mr. Sherwood's case.

The President ruled him out of order and refused to hear him.

Senator O'Connor asked for a moment to speak and was rapped out of order, but not before he had said "Members seated in the Senate seem to have no voice in the proceedings."

Senator Edwards voted against the seating of Mr. Walker, but Senator Walker was seated by a vote of 16 to 14.

After hearing the reading of the Governor's message and drawing for seats the Senate adjourned till next Tuesday evening at 8:30.

When the Assembly proceeded to take a vote for the position of Speaker Robert P. Bush, of Chemung, received the viva voce vote of 65 members, and James W. Husted of 55 members. Robert P. Bush was declared Speaker.

The organization was then completed by the election of the officers decided upon in the Democratic caucus, and they were sworn in.

The contests were referred to the committee on contested seats when appointed.

The Assemblymen then heard the message, and after drawing for seats, adjourned till next Tuesday night.

GOV. FLOWER'S MESSAGE.

A Number of Recommendations by the New Executive.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Gov. Flower's first annual message was transmitted to both houses of the Legislature immediately upon the organization of the Senate and Assembly. The paramount duty before the Legislature, in the Governor's belief, is to provide for an enumeration of the inhabitants of the State, preparatory to a re-apportionment of Senate and Assembly districts. The Governor says:

If there was needed heretofore any direct proof of the injustice of the present legislative apportionment, it is now furnished by the returns of the Federal census of 1890. Detective as that enumeration was it shows an increase of population in the State since 1875 of nearly twenty-seven per cent. Yet the same apportionment now exists as was established in 1879.

So untenable is such a position that one is forced to the conclusion that the refusal to provide for rightful representation has been based upon the unworthy motive of seeking to retain partisan advantage. The political complexion of the present Legislature, however, removes the possibility of such a motive as an obstacle, and, I hope, insures the prompt passage of an enumeration bill, preparatory to a reapportionment of Senate and Assembly districts.

Continuing, the Governor gives figures which show that the State debt is practically wiped out.

Attention is then called to the necessity of strict economy in public expense and a table is presented showing the permanent commissions and bureaus which have been established since 1879, together with their cost of maintenance.

Regarding education and the State figures are presented which indicate that although the State has done much to strengthen and improve the common schools since 1851 nearly 25 per cent fewer children attend the schools now than forty years ago. The average sum for each pupil attending the schools in 1851 was $2.26, while in 1890 it was $19.22, the increase being 750 per cent.

The assumption by the State of the duty of university extension the Governor considers not only unwise in principle but will probably involve the State in unreasonable obligations and a constantly increasing object of public expense.

The repeal of that portion of the electrocution law which forbids newspaper publication of an account of the details of the execution is recommended.

Speedy provision for State representatives at the World's Fair in Chicago is urged. The appropriation should be liberal, the Governor says, but not extravagant.

A Peculiar Case.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Gov. Flower gave a hearing yesterday on the application of the Governor of Texas for the extradition of J. B. Dular, the cigarette man wanted in Texas on the charge of felony. The charge stipulates that he is guilty of conspiracy in trying to regulate the production, manufacture and price of tobacco and cigarettes in the State of Texas. He was indicted by the grand jury of that State. Gov. Flower adjourned the hearing until Saturday at 10 a. m. The case is very peculiar from the fact that according to the laws of New York State the defendant has committed no crime.

BULKELEY WINS.

The Supreme Court Confirms His Position as Governor.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 6.—The demurrer of Gov. Bulkeley has been unanimously sustained by the Supreme Court.

Judge Carpenter agrees in the conclusion but dissents from the opinion.

This decision leaves the Republicans in control of the executive department of the State Government.

At the election of 1890 neither political party obtained a majority of all votes cast for Governor, though the Republican candidate received a plurality, and the election was, in accordance with the Constitution of Connecticut, thrown into the Legislature.

A deadlock then made an election impossible, and Morgan G. Bulkeley, the Republican, Governor whose term expired, announced his intention to hold the office until his successor should be elected.

Gov. Hill subsequently refused to honor requisition papers signed by Mr. Bulkeley upon the ground that he was no longer Governor.

OHIO'S SENATORIAL FIGHT.

A Bill to Redistrict the State in Republican Interests.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 6.—The State Senate has seated Iden, the contesting Republican, in place of Gaumer, Democrat, and there will therefore be ninety-three votes in the Republican Senatorial caucus tonight. The number of votes necessary to nominate, however, still remains forty-seven. Senator Sherman seems to be gaining strength every hour, but the Foraker men show no less confidence.

Since yesterday Senators Lampson and Rawlins, and Representatives Dunn, McCoy and Lutz have already announced their intention of voting for Sherman. All of these, except Senator Lampson, have been classed as Foraker men.

The first bill introduced in the General Assembly after its organization was for redistricting the State for representation in Congress, so that the Republicans will have seventeen Congressmen and the Democrats four.

Two Cigarette Victims.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 6.—Another fatal case of over indulgence in cigarettes occurred here yesterday. The unfortunate individual this time is Hezekiah Parsons, a well-known resident of the town of Parsons. The immediate cause of death was paralysis, superinduced by the excessive use of cigarettes. Mr. Parsons was 36 years of age and a son of Calvin Parsons, one of the pioneer settlers in the Wyoming Valley. He was prominent in local politics, being a member of the Republican Committee.

RONDOUT, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Daniel Desmond, a 16-year-old boy, is dead as the result, it is said, of excessive cigarette smoking. For two years he was a slave to the habit.

Fire in a Newspaper Office.

RUTLAND, Vt., Jan. 6.—A fire in the morning in the "Herald" building caused a loss of $10,000. The fire originated in the boiler room, but the flames crept up through the elevator shaft to the composing room, which was almost entirely burned out. The people in the building at the time the flames were discovered barely had time to escape. A woman operator in the local station of the telephone office, which was in the front of the building, was rescued in an unconscious condition, having been overcome by smoke. Judge Colburn was in the building when the fire occurred, and was taken out by the firemen, overcome by the smoke.

Massachusetts Deaths.

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—Joseph W. Clark, a broker well-known in New York, St. Louis and Philadelphia, died suddenly yesterday. He was 81 years of age and had been retired from business for years. He was one of the original members of the Boston Stock Exchange, and is also largely interested in Lake Superior Mining companies.

John E. Thayer, who during his life time served in the United States Army for over twenty-eight years, died yesterday at Lynn, Mass., at the age of 58. He was a member of the volunteer expedition that went with Dr. Kane to the Artic regions in search for Sir John Franklin.

Beheaded By the Engine.

GIRARDVILLE, Pa., Jan. 6.—Young Jos. Kessling, while returning home during the night with his father, attempted to cross the tracks of the Reading road before an approaching train. The poor lad slipped, fell on the tracks, and was beheaded by the engine.

COUNTY SEAT WAR

Judge Botkin of Kansas Fears for His Life.

PLOT TO KILL HIM FOILED.

Sheriff Dunn and Six Deputies Meet the Enemy and Disaster.

The Sheriff Killed and Several of His Men Wounded—Troops Sent to the Scene of the Feud By Governor Humphries—The Mob Awaiting to Kill the Judge as Soon as He Appears.

ARKALON, Kas., Jan. 6.—A bloody county seat war has broken out in this neighborhood and three State officers have already lost their lives while armed forces are now endeavoring to capture and murder a district judge. A bitter feud has been up in Stevens county ever since the killing of Sam Wood by James Brennan on June 23, 1891.

This feud culminated yesterday in an ambush being laid by desperate men for the purpose of killing Judge Theodsius Botkin, but the timely warning gave the Judge opportunity to escape. Sheriff Dunn, with six deputies started out to find the ambushed men and ran into the ambushers and were fired upon. The sheriff was instantly killed and Sheriff-elect Ray Guyman and Deputy Sid Nixon were badly wounded. Judge Botkin was to hold court at Springfield yesterday.

Seward county before its organization was part of Stevens county. There is a county seat war on between Springfield and Arkalon. A mob composed of the old Stevens county faction were determined that Botkin should not hold court at Springfield. The sheriff and posse were on their way to escort the Judge to his court. When near the Judge's house a Mrs. Larabie ran to Judge Botkin's house and told him of his danger. He fled to Arkalon with his family and has taken refuge in a house while his friends are holding the mob at bay. Friends of the Judge are calling on all able bodied law-abiding citizens throughout the county to rally to his support.

Since July, 1888, there has been turmoil in Stevens county. The county seat contest between Woodsdale and Hugoton culminated then in the massacre of Sheriff Cross and his deputies by Sam Robinson and his gang of twenty-seven men from Hugoton. There was an abatement of the killing then until June 23, last, when James Brennan of Richfield, Morton county, shot and killed Sam Wood of Woodsdale, the acknowledged leader of the Woodsdale faction. This killing occurred in front of the little church in Hugoton, Judge Theodisus Botkin having converted the church into a court room, where the June term of the Stevens county District Court was being held.

Brennan was arrested, and after two attempts to give him a trial on the charge of murder, he was taken back to the jail at Hutchison to await the third and last attempt to secure a jury this month. Since Wood's death hostilities have ceased in Hugoton, and now, apparently, have been transferred over the boundary line into Seward County, which has been peaceful heretofore, though it has always been acknowledged that Springfield, the county seat of Seward, has been in sympathy with Woodsdale and Arkalon, the prospective county seat in sympathy with Hugoton. This feeling, of favoritism which unquestionably exists has evidently risen to that point where it became uncontrollable, and the Springfield people have gone in to help out the Woodsdale faction.

The direct cause of the projected attack on Judge Botkin is the fact that ever since the feud began his sympathies have been with Hugoton, though his home is at Springfield, in Seward County, forty miles away. James Brennan, who killed Sam Wood, was his counsellor and friend, and traveled about with him on his judicial journeys through the counties comprising the district.

At the first attempt to try Brennan in September last at Hugoton, Judge Botkin refused to preside, for the reason, he said, that Brennan had been his friend. So no trial was had nor any attempt made to secure a jury until November 4, when Judge Wall, of Wichias, made the effort.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 6.—Gov. Humphreys has sent a company of soldiers to the scene of trouble in Stevens County under command of Adjutant General Roberts. They will reach the scene to-day.

British Government and Home Rule.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The Government is beginning to show the white feather on the question of introducing its much advertised bill giving Home Rule to Ireland. Whether Mr. Balfour has come to the conclusion that the contract he has undertaken is a larger one than he can conveniently carry out, or whether some sudden and unforseen obstacle has made its appearance, is not known, but a very apparent desire to hedge is obvious in the announcement just made that the proposed Local Government bill will be at at once withdrawn if the Irish members show the slightest tendency to resort to obstructive tactics when it is introduced.

The Appropriation Almost Certain.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—There is but little doubt now that Congress will appropriate $100,000 to defray the expenses of shipping supplies to the Starving Russians, and the question of the proper medium through which to distribute these supplies is also, it would seem, practically settled by general concurrence in the decision in Iowa and in other communities to make the Red Cross Society the one accredited agency. The Russian government, also, sanctions the distribution of food supplies through the American Red Cross Society.

Welch Collieries Idle.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The majority of the Welsh collieries are idle. Both employers and employees decline to yield in the dispute existing between them.

FENIANS ARE BLAMED.

Official Report Regarding the Explosion at Dublin Castle.

DUBLIN, Jan. 6.—Major Cundill, inspector of explosives, has given his official opinion that the explosion at Dublin Castle, which partly wrecked the Finance Office, was caused by a nitro-glycerine bomb of the same manufacture as that described in the formula given by the Fenian advocates of a dynamite policy against England, and said to be manufactured in an establishment for that purpose in New York.

Upon the basis of this report the government will immediately proceed with an official private inquiry into the facts, at which the evidence will be taken under oath. The statement of Major Cundill has caused a sensation.

Stover Says He's Sick Now.

The case of J. A. Demarest against R. M. Stover of this city, was not tried in Elizabeth courts this morning as expected. The plaintiff with his witnesses was on hand, and his counsel, Craig A. Marsh was ready for the trial. The defendant secured a postponement again by means of a physician's certificate to the effect that he (Stover) was so ill in bed that he would not live if he left it.

This certificate was signed by Dr. C. M. Field, of this city, who is very sick himself and unable to go out. But the court let the case go over until to-morrow.

The entertainment of the Sunday-school of the First Church of Christ, last night, was a decided success. A large audience greeted the friends of the Sunday-school, in Vancerbeek's Hall. OPENING OF THE JANUARY TERM.

Grand Jurors Sworn, and The Blasler Murder Trial Set Down for January 13.

The opening of the January term of court took place at 10:30 yesterday morning, at Elizabeth, with Judges VanSyckel, Wiley and Hyer on the bench. The court room was filled to its utmost capacity, while within the rail was congregated legal talent from all parts of the county.

The grand jury to serve for the present term filed in the room and were duly sworn as follows:

Elizabeth—Peter Bonnett, foreman, Lawrence O'Donnell, Adam Sauer, John Barry, William G. Ballantine, Gustave Brueggerman, William G. Heise, William M. Oliver, Peter J. Demarest, Meline W. Halsey, Thomas H. Smith, William McKinley.

Plainfield—Joseph G. Miller, Solomon F. Dunn.

Rahway—William Richards, Uel Freeman.

Union—Noah W. Parcell.
Westfield—Augustus K. Gale.
Fanwood—Joseph A. Patterson.
Cranford—Henry L. Freeman.
Summit—Edward J. Muldowney.
Linden—Milton C. Lowden.
Springfield—Albert A. Sickly.
New Providence—Simon P. Debbie.

Noah W. Parcell of Union being over eighty years of age, was excused from serving as a juror.

Judge VanSyckel informed the jury that he understood that but one case of any great magnitude would be brought forward for its consideration, that being a case of homicide, referring to the murder of Frank Lombardo, of which crime Peter and Annie Cervi stand charged. The grand jury was instructed to give the case full investigation. After which they retired.

Prosecutor Marsh informed the court that it became his sad duty to announce the death of another member of the Union County Bar association, Garrett Berry of Rahway.

Mr. Marsh referred to the deceased as a man of exceptionally high qualities, an ornament to the bar, and beloved by all who knew him. In closing his remarks he said that Mr. Berry's death reminded the association even more forcibly than the loss of the other five members recently departed, "that in the midst of life we are in death". Mr. Marsh then moved that a committee of three be appointed to draw up suitable resolutions relative to the death of Mr. Berry.

Judge VanSyckel in replying said that he heartily accorded with the remarks of Mr. Marsh and appointed as a committee on resolutions Prosecutor F. C. Marsh, Judge Alward and Thomas Shaffer of Rahway.

On motion of Prosecutor Marsh the case of Herman Blasler, charged with the murder of Thomas Wilson, which had been set down for Tuesday next, was postponed until Wednesday.

In the case of James Barry against the Central Railroad company, in which Barry brought suit for $20,000 damages for injuries sustained, and against which the company entered a demurrer, alleging that it was not responsible for the injuries received by Barry, he being a fellow servant of the others employed, the court gave as its opinion that the demurrer was well taken and sustained it, holding that the company could not be held responsible.

Mr. Connolly, as counsel for Barry, says that he will carry the case to a higher court.

ANOTHER CRASH ON THE CENTRAL.

A Broken Axle Causes a Bad Wreck at Greenbrook.

Another bad wreck of freight and coal cars occurred at Greenbrook, on the Jersey Central railroad, two miles beyond Dunellen, last night. The axle of a car broke while the train was going at a high rate of speed, and twenty or more cars were piled up in a heap, burying all four tracks beneath a mass of wreckage. The tangle was a very bad one, and for several hours traffic was effectually blockaded. Trains were stalled all along the line in both directions. The accident occurred at about 10 o'clock, and the wreck was not cleared away until five o'clock this morning. No one was seriously injured, although two brakemen narrowly escaped being crushed among the shattered timbers. The snow-storm interfered considerably with the work of the wrecking crews.

The correspondent of the New York World thus describes the Congressman of this district:

"Jacob A. Geissenhainer, the member from the Third District, is good looking, wealthy, generous and bald headed. He is a lawyer by profession and a Congressman by a large majority. He is one of the strongest party men in the House, and is regarded as one of the old reliable when roll is called. His absence from his seat would cause surprise all over the chamber. He never shirks, but when there is music he faces it. On rare occasions he makes a little music himself. His voice is clear, smooth, and pleasant to the ear, and his ideas are stated distinctly and with force. He is a tariff reformer of a large size, and as he has been a careful student of the subject since he has been in Congress he has pretty well mastered it. Mr. Geissenhainer lives very pleasantly at Freehold when he is at home, and so even is his temper that he lives comfortably in this city when Congress is in session."

School Flag Days in Plainfield.

[From The Bound Brook Chronicle.]

A few years ago a movement was started, by the New York Press, we believe, to have the American flag displayed daily on all public buildings, especially school houses. The idea was a good one and rapidly spread throughout the country. School after school had its "flag raising" celebration, and to-day the school which owns no flag would be difficult to find.

"New brooms sweep clean", and when the flags were new they could be seen displayed every clear school day, but gradually their constant use was abandoned and now the flags spend many more days inside the school houses than they do floating on the breezes.

To give a meaning to the flag-flying, so that each day the banner is unfurled it has an especial interest to the pupils as well as others who see it, the Plainfield schools have lately set an example which might well be followed by other schools throughout the land. To the history class of the Plainfield High school was assigned the pleasant task of selecting quite a large number of "flag days", days upon which all of the school flags in the city will be displayed. The dates selected are the national holidays, birthday anniversaries of poets, statesmen and other notable persons, anniversaries of battles, and other important events.

It will at once be seen that under some such programme for displaying the flag, the school children will be given valuable lessons in history and the flying of our national colors will not be a meaningless act.

[From The Elizabeth Journal.]

When the "flag over the public school house" mania struck this State it was the fear of some that it wouldn't last very long. Signs of a change are already manifest. The Rahway Advocate, for example, finds that the American breezes flap the American flag with so much vigor that the American bunting can't stand the strain. It first gives way at the edges, becomes tattered and torn, and is soon used up. It is found to be expensive to renew these flags, and the plan is suggested that the flags be raised only on historical days. The Plainfield schools have adopted this plan and have fixed on twenty-five dates, including such as the opening day for the year, important battles of the revolution, births and deaths of great men, election days, etc. It is well to have a flag in each school, and it is well to hoist it on proper occasions, but it is not necessary to turn each school house into a garrison.

Convenient Markets, Good Soil, Pure Water and Excellent Climate

Are advantages to be considered when looking up a home, business location, farm, etc. West Virginia, Maryland and the Shenandoah valley, Virginia, affords these with many more advantages. No section of the United States offers superior opportunities, and persons seeking a new home should examine these states before deciding upon a location elsewhere. Improved farm lands adapted to stock raising, dairying, grain, grass, and fruit growing can be obtained at low prices and upon easy terms. Thriving towns invite the merchant, mechanic and business men. Abundance of coal, timber, ore, water power, etc. Free sites for manufacturers.

Persons desiring further information will be answered promptly and free of charge by M. V. Richards, land and immigration agent, B. & O. R. R., Baltimore, Md.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely; it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety, and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Ct.

Thirteen Thousand Tons in One Day.

The London Gaslight and Coke company asserts that it has beaten the record in its line during Christmas week when fog and frost reigned for six awful days and nights. On Thursday alone the company's customers consumed 128,000,000 cubic feet of gas. Thirteen thousand tons of coal were burnt by the company on that day.

Some favor a tariff for revenue only, some a tariff with incidental protection, and some a tariff for protection, per se; but a large majority favor the free use of Salvation Oil for cuts and bruises.

Says a Settlement Has Been Reached.

LONDON, Jan. 6.— Sir George Smyth Baden-Powell, Conservative M. P., speaking at Liverpool last night, said that England and the United States had agreed upon a basis of settlement of the Behring Sea difficulty, and hoped that the matter would be brought to a satisfactory conclusion. He also hoped, before the World's Fair, to see a fast line of steamers in operation between England and Canada, that would have a good share of the travel the Fair would promote between the Old World and the New.

Mrs. Mary Stuart's Will.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The will of the late Mary Stuart, filed for probate yesterday gives Rev. Dr. John Hall of this city $30,000 and his wife Emily Hall $10,000; Rev. James McCosh and his wife Isabella of Princeton, $10,000 each; University of the City of New York, $75,000; American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, $25,000. There are three codicils to the will. The second codicil gives, among other bequests, $50,000 to the College of New Jersey at Princeton.

Fine Weather in Maine.

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 6.—The Kennebec river is high and free of ice. The continued open weather is unprecedented. There is no snow, no frost in the ground, and several of the larger lakes are clear of ice. Even the fruit trees are pushing forth their buds. The steamer Nahanada is still making her trips through Black river between Boothbay and Bath. Never before has she been able to run on this route so late in the season.

Quarreling in Court Now.

DUBLIN, Jan. 6.—The two Irish factions have changed the scene of their quarrels to the courts pending the lull between elections. Davitt's libel suit against the Parnellite Dublin "Independent" has been followed by another libel suit, which the anti-Parnellite "National Press" has instituted against the "Independent" for allegations which the "National Press" considers damaging.

Jockey Garrison Reinstated.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The Board of Control met in this city yesterday and appointed James Rowe official starter in the place of Starter Caldwell. Edward, or "Snapper" Garrison, the jockey, was reinstated. He was suspended about a year ago for placing bets on the events that took place at race tracks during his engagement as a jockey.

Bulgaria to Harbor Chadouine.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The statement that the Bulgarian Government has politely declined to rescind the decree expelling the French journalist Chadouine from Bulgaria is confirmed. The "Standard's" Paris correspondent says: "It is officially denied that M. Ribot, the French Foreign Minister, has sent a note imputing bad faith to Bulgaria. There is reason to believe that the matter will be arranged amicably."

Carnegie's Armor Plate Mill Shut Down.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 6.—The armor plate mill of Carnegie, Phipps & Co., at Homestead, has been shut down owing to the difficulty with the men. On New Year's night fourteen employes of the plate mill left some of their work unfinished, and yesterday these men were discharged. The shut down of the armor plate mill involves 100 men. The shut down retards work on Government armor plate.

THE BEST IN THE CITY.

What's to be Seen That's Really Good, at the New York Theaters.

Willie DeMott, a young and dashing bareback rider, will be one of the additional features of the arenic performance of C. B. Jefferson, Klaw & Erlanger's "Country Circus" at the Academy for this week.

The most popular place with the ladies of Plainfield for matinee parties, is the Lyceum theater. There "Lady Bountiful" and the admirable acting of the company still continue to delight large audiences and no date has yet been set for its successor. Manager Frohman says that due notice will be given of the presentation of Robert Buchanan's new play. The Thursday matinees of "Lady Bountiful" commence again this week.

Of "La Cigale", at the Garden theater, the same fact remains to be said, and that is that the handsome playhouse is crowded with delighted audiences at every performance. T. H. French might easily retain the Lillian Russell opera company until next summer with profit, but engagements made for Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and other large cities must positively bring the opera season to a close on February 15.

"The Junior Partner" has made a great record at Herrmann's theater. The business has taken a big upward boom at a season of the year when most managers are decrying the disastrous effects of outside holiday attractions. The reason for it is that the play has been vastly improved since the opening nights. The comedy points have been embellished, the comic situations and complications have been straightened, and much bright new dialogue has been written in the first act. The success of "The Junior Partner" has induced Manager Frohman to extend his contract for the theater, which terminated on January 1, during the month of January.

"The Lion Tamer" has started in on a merry run at the Broadway theater to the measure of popular success. The sales of the New Year's and Saturday matinees exceeded any similar sales in the history of the house. Wilson theater parties are in order from Plainfield. Francis Wilson and the members of his company have greatly improved in their work in the new piece, although to the outsider it seemed nearly perfect the first night. The comedian has now made his part of the lion tamer into a very clever and humorous creation. Marie Jansen, as the circus rider, causes one to wonder why she ever assumes youth's characters, unless it be to more thoroughly satisfy the people when she dons skirts, by the contrast.

The long run of "The Tyrolean" at the Casino is drawing to a close and its final performance will be given shortly after the one hundreth night, which falls on January 11. Few of the Casino operas have, on the whole, prospered better than the present attraction, and its success, won on honest lines, without the aid of localisms or acrobatic evolutions, is all the more praiseworthy. Marie Tempest's art has gone far to heighten the performances, and the famous "Nightingale Song" will live long after the opera has been forgotten. The next attraction, "Nanon", is a happy selection with which to begin the revival season. It was originally produced in the Casino on June 29, 1885, and enjoyed a run of 150 nights. This was the beginning of the long run school in that house, and it also marked the advent of an era of good luck that has clung to the Casino ever since. Marie Tempest will appear in the title role in "Nanon."

The enthusiastic way in which Edward Harrigan's new play, "The last of the Hogans", has been received makes it plain that another triumph has been scored by the clever author-actor, and Manager Hanley can contemplate another long run for the new play at Harrigan's theater. The realistic way in which scene after scene of local life is depicted and the clever way in which each individual character is portrayed show a careful and painstaking study of human nature. The versatility of Mr. Harrigan's acting is clearly shown in the clever way in which he interprets the character of Judge McKeever, a rollicking New York Irishman. The salient wit and dry humor of the jolly Judge is made apparent in almost every line he utters, and the hearty applause which follows each bright saying shows how clear cut and to the point his witticisms are. The six new songs by Dave Braham are gems in their way and will no doubt become as popular as any songs he has ever composed.

The ninth week of the substantial success which "A Trip to Chinatown" has enjoyed at the Madison Square theater began Monday night. The manner in which this amusing comedy has held public attention is one of the notable features of the season and it looks very much now as if the play will hold its own far into the warm months of the year. The principal roles are played in a very amusing manner, and Mr. Hoyt's particularly satirical fun shines out through the lines and situations in every scene. Mr. Conor's impersonation of Welland Strong is one that will endure for a considerable time in public favor and that will rank him very high among the best comedians of our day.

There will be a gala time at Tony Pastor's theater this week at every performance. Tony Pastor will delight his audiences, and Maggie Cline will aid him. Lydia Yeamans, who has made a hit, will continue her successful career. Other entertainers will be the contortion and acrobatic stars, the Julians; the great pantomime clown, George D. Melville; the beautiful musical artiste, Theo; the English musical team, Bickley and Barron; Flynn and Walker in their specialty; the remarkable hand balancing acrobat, H. Foden; Mamie Goodrich, challenge skipping rope dancer, assisted by Harry McBride; the headbalancers, the Morello Brothers, and Mlle. Morello with her troop of educated spaniels.

How to Stamp Out Hydrophobia in New Jersey.

[From The New York Evening Sun.]

The sad and violent death of little Eddie Ball of Newark, N. J., from hydrophobia, brings seriously before the public the question of stamping out this disease in New Jersey. More than a year ago THE EVENING SUN pointed out the prevalence which rabies had attained in the eastern part of New Jersey through the ravages of a rabid dog some six years ago. All other cases have been shown to be lineally descended from this one, and as a result not only have many dogs perished, but also cattle, horses and other domestic animals.

According to Dr. Pringle, who attended, of course without avail, little Eddie Ball, forty-two human beings have died from hydrophobia in New Jersey within the past twelve months. This number would be almost incredible if the numerous reports of rabid dogs scattering whole villages in the greater parts of New Jersey did not recur to mind. There must be hundreds of dogs, cats, horses, sheep and cows at the present moment in New Jersey with the latent seeds of hydrophobia in them. It is not to-day or in this particular case that this discovery is made, but scientists for months past have been pointing out that nothing less could follow from the plague of rabid dogs which infected New Jersey.

It is quite possible to stamp out hydrophobia. The disease has never been allowed to enter Australia, where a strict quarantine is kept on all imported dogs. The Scandinavian Peninsula has nearly stamped out rabies by vigorous measures. Just at present Germany is most active in protecting her borders from the introduction of any more dogs suffering from the disease. Unless the State Board of Health in New Jersey takes some energetic measures to stamp out the disease the New York State Board of Health will be justified in refusing admittance to all dogs which have been domiciled in New Jersey. The Westminster Kennel club ought also to take an active part in the suppression of this dreadful and uniformly fatal disease.

A Rare Combination of Talent.

The January Wide Awake comes with a store of good things for young and old that are as entertaining as they are varied. It brings to its readers stories by Molly Elliot Seawell, G. Adams, Captain C. A. Curtis, Maria McIntosh Cox and the two bright story tellers who write under the nom de plumes of "Dorothy Holcomb" and "Abd el Ardavan," the Arab. It has sketches by Amanda B. Harris, Lieut.-Col. Thorndike, Harriet Maxwell-Converse, Zitella Cocke, Otis T. Mason and Sallie Joy White. It has poems by Celia Thaxter, Anna J. McKeag, Clara Doty Bates and others. It has pictures by L. J. Bridgman, George Foster Barnes, Virginia Gerson, Childe Hassam, Hy Sandham, Irving R. Wiles, Clifton Johnson, Charles Mente and E. H. Garrett. Such a combination of talent in story-tellers, verse-makers and artists should produce most absorbing as well as most interesting reading matter, and one needs but to glance over Wide Awake's attractive January pages to find the promise fully carried out. Wide Awake is published at 20 cents per number, $2.40 per year. All booksellers keep it, or it may be obtained from the publishers, D. Lothrop company, Boston.

A Lesson of the Fire.

[From The Elizabeth Journal.]

It was only a few weeks ago that Westfield celebrated with much enthusiasm the success of one of its fire companies in a voting contest. Gov. Abbett was present, with other local and State celebrities, and the speeches that were made showed that the Westfield people took much pride in their fire department. But this was before the big fire broke out on Monday morning. That showed them just what their department could do, and, alas, it showed too that in great emergencies their fire companies were not equal to the task. The men and the apparatus were taxed to their utmost and did all that could reasonably be expected, but the conflagration was too big for them. When Westfield recovers from the loss, better buildings will be put up and a better fire department will probably be provided. It will be no discredit to the old department, but it will be more in proportion to the needs of this growing town.

Praise From Pennsylvania.

(From The Philadelphia Press.)

It is possible that New Jersey will be the pioneer State in scientific road building. It has already an admirable law on the subject and one county—Union—has set an example not only to the rest of New Jersey, but the rest of the United States, of what can be done in making a county attractive, and in increasing its wealth and population simply by giving it good roads.

When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.

A YANKEE NOTION.

Put Fifteen Cents in the Slot and Have Your Bundles Delivered.

The gentleman of mythology who sowed the dragon's teeth from which sprang hordes of armed men is, according to Harper's Weekly, not in the race with the more modern gentleman who first sowed the seeds of "drop a nickel in the slot" machines. The variations that have been played on this instrument have been multitudinous, and the era of mechanical servants seems to have been fairly begun. As yet the machines have been more or less conveniences, but they are conveniences that in this age shortly become necessities. The latest variation of this scheme is a "lay a parcel on the shelf and have it delivered" apparatus. It is an illustration of mechanical simplicity, and may become a necessity, especially to "shoppers." It is nothing but a parcel express run on mechanical principles.

A YANKEE NOTION.

As shown in the illustration, this new invention is simply an oblong box of polished steel set on end and rounded at the top. In front is a small platform bearing the words: "Step on this;" and when the order is obeyed the top slides open and a steel shelf comes up and completely hides the contents of the box below. On this shelf the package is laid, and, a stamp costing fifteen cents being affixed, the sender of the package retires from the platform and the box closes.

If there is an address on the parcel, the sender may count upon its collection within an hour, and ultimate delivery. With each stamp purchased a coupon is attached, which is regarded as a receipt. A number of wagons make hourly collections, and a dial on the front of the machine indicates when the parcel will be started on its way. Another stock idea of the humorist is thus done away with, for the poor henpecked husband can no longer be pictured as lugging an armful of miscellaneous bundles. He can pay fifteen cents at the Battery, and have the cargo delivered at his residence on the banks of the picturesque Harlem. Within the breast of man exists an anti-bundle sentiment that will be fostered by this new machine. The indulgent father at Christmas time will economize to the extent of fifteen cents per gift, and firmly decline to exhibit himself as a peripatetic Santa Claus in any public vehicle. By mechanical aid man will rise from the life of petty annoyances, and establish himself as a creature of luxury by the expenditure of a few paltry cents. It may make life more expensive; but what is the use of money without comfort? It is only the inventor who becomes rich.

AN INTERESTING FAMILY.

The Prince and Princess of Wales and Their Children.

The prince of Wales has turned the half century corner, and it is only when we remember him as the father of married daughters, and as a grandfather, that we realize that he is not a gay youth whom time has touched lightly. The princess, too, in spite of her increasing deafness shows little visible signs of the flight of time. Prince George resembles his father in personal appearance while Prince Albert Victor partakes more of his mental and moral peculiarities. The former has been seriously ill for weeks with typhoid fever, but is now recovering.

Princess Maud is the youngest of the trio of royal maidens of the Wales household, and has lately quite scandalized staid British society by her escapades. She is said to be a favorite of her father, who encourages her to "have a good time," but her royal grandmother is said to have expressed her displeasure more than once at the example afforded by the Princess Maud.

The duchess of Fife is a beautiful woman and is as much beloved as is the princess of Wales. She goes little into society, and in her happy domestic life, her manly husband and her pretty babe is fully satisfied to have resigned a possible throne for herself and her children.

The Princess Victoria was recently married to Aribert of Anhalt and is the most beautiful of the prince's daughters.

Prince George and the duchess of Fife are the favorites of the English people, who admire the calm good sense and the democratic spirit which they have so frequently exhibited.

That Is Rather Heavy.

CHRISTMAS ECHOES.

Frills Put On by the World of Womankind.

For What We Gave and Received and Escaped Let Us Be Duly Thankful—A Beautiful Diplomat—Gowns a la Grecque and a l'Empire.

Gift-making is over, and all the world duly thankful, a large part of it that the holiday bother is well ended, here and there an individual for what has not been received. This is notably the case with a young woman much addicted to artistic yearning and full of a fine feeling for color. Though the best circles here receive her with open arms, it is wholly because of her personal charm, backed with substantial expectations. Her family is good though not distinguished, and only comfortably endowed with this world's goods. Her father claims a cross of Knickerbocker blood. Her mother comes of thrifty trader folk, clean and honest, but wholly unasthetic. There is a childless rich aunt—the mother's sister; widow of a retired grocer, for whose garmenting gorgeous is a poor, pale word. Fair, fat and fifty she revels in big hats all over sky blue feathers, in velvet gowns of green and scarlet aflaunt with white lace, in brocades that would do admirably as wall tapestries, in tea gowns calculated to make a self-respecting rainbow go out of business, in bracelets and lockets and chatelaines distinctly audible as far as eye can reach. In fact the good lady lives to be clothed. Style is her fetish.

Notwithstanding she shows the family thrift otherwise. The beauty, as her namesake and prospective heiress, has a reasonable claim upon her generosity. It is one, though, that the young woman most willingly waives. All her life—particularly at Christmas times—she has been endowed with things that her aunt bought, wore and laid aside the season before—and woe to the recipient if she dares to leave them unworn. Since she came out, two winters back, they have been the nightmare of her existence. Between tears and laughter she told me of her struggles with one particularly flamboyant gown, a grass green silk all betagged and befrilled with vulgarly deep pink, and aglitter with crystal passamenterie into the bargain. It was as rich and costly as it was ugly, and, to the donor's mind, exactly the thing the girl needed to wear at a swell dinner party with dancing after it two weeks in prospect. The victim of it thought otherwise. The invitation was the first that had come to her from the really swagger set. If she did not do credit to it it would be also the last. To go in that impossible gown was to foredoom herself to social failure. What could she be but a dumb fright under the oppression of that rainbow horror? Yet not to wear it might cost her eventually a solid quarter million. It was a case of her face or her fortune—and she did not care to sacrifice either. There was nothing for it but diplomacy. Taking her corsage in both hands, she stripped off every vestige of the pink, and with it ornamented a loose white cashmere houserobe, where the effect was not half bad. This she sent to her aunt as a birthday gift, intimating that only the elder lady's magnificent complexion could bear such rich colors. Then the green remnant was veiled and swathed in clouds of pink and white tulle, layer upon layer, with crystal drops here and there and trails of water grass and lilies on the corsage and about the waist. Thus gowned, with an emerald pendant on her bare white throat, green slippers, green stockings, a white and green fan, the young woman was voted an undine with a soul, and her social success assured. But it was a narrow escape—a harrowing experience—one too that she feared was to be indefinitely repeated. There were three brocades in her aunt's wardrobe that it seemed certain the Christmas just past would precipitate on her devoted head. A line in a fashion letter saved her. It read: "Old brocades are more stylish than new, now that that texture is again in fashion." By consequence at the eleventh hour the aunt bought for her niece a bonbonniere as big as your two hands, all over gilt and flowers, and sent for her modiste to see what were the possibilities of the gowns she could not bring herself to part with.

For evening gowns, especially in soft clinging stuffs, the Greek gown, or its modification, the empire, is more and more used as the winter advances. Miss Violet Defrie, the young English elocutionist, who is as good to look at as to listen to, very much affects both styles. But she wears long sleeves—close setting, but very much wrinkled. Indeed, as before written, long sleeves are quite a feature of the most swagger evening gowns.

Contrariwise, she who has perfect arms makes the most of them. Witness the picture in the empire frock, whose original appeared in it at one of the swellest functions Murray hill has seen this winter. The material was cream-pink China crepe, very deeply crinkled and embroidered in gold all over the skirt. At foot there was a border almost solidly covered with the gold, from which long, graceful sprays ran up almost to the wide pink satin sash that was fastened directly under the bust and fell in gold, fringed, and almost to the bottom of the deep train. Wide old-rose points, yellow with age, fell away from the dimpled neck that was innocent of jewels, as were the perfect, gloveless arms and hands. Indeed, her only ornament was a big pale pink enamel orchid blossom with a diamond heart and crusted with diamond dew, worn at one side of the waved Empire coiffure. She wore also pink shoes, high-heeled, gold-wrought, with double straps crossing sandalwise over the instep; pale pink stockings clocked with gold; and carried a huge fan of white ostrich feathers, striped with pink and mounted upon exquisitely carved ivory sticks. Her handkerchief was of lace matching the fall. Altogether it is very little wonder that the wearer was set down—

> "The comet of a shiny night,
> The beauty of a ball."

Because this beauty went beautifully unjeweled, do not therefore set it down that simplicity is the fashion. Never before, perhaps, were gems and gold so well wrought, so well worn, as at present. Diamonds—always so favorite—are now set in platinum, and so thickly placed that you catch naught but their clear splendor. New shapes are so varied that it is idle to catalogue them; the pictures give a fair idea of some of the newest and most choice. A notable tiara has five swallows in flight; in another a bird chases a bee through a branch of May-blossoms. Brooches are larger than for years past. I saw one that was a mass of irregular pearls set around a largish diamond, the whole quite as big as the palm of your hand. A leaf-shaped diamond, one to be worn also as a pendant, was bigger still, and had along with it long earrings such as our grandmothers wore. Cameos, too, are revived. But nothing is quite so much in favor as the enamel flowers that grow yearly more perfect. I saw yesterday a spray of mignonette nestling amid the costly lace below a Vanderbilt throat, and not till I caught the gleam of diamonds on what ought to have been the leaves did I realize that it grew in a workshop not a garden. It was at an afternoon tea, and the lady wore a marvelous gown of the softest camel's hair in one of the art green shades. It had a velvet yoke outlined by full plaited frill that was edged with jeweled galon, and somehow disappeared under one arm. The same galon trimmed the skirt above a band of the velvet some four inches deep. About her neck was one of the new lace falls that drop straight down from a deep band and the pseudo flowers nestled a bit to one side.

To hark back to jewelry, I saw a striking bracelet the other day that commended itself to all who care to be unique. Perhaps fifty strands of the finest yellow gold chain, such as our great-grandmothers wore so plentifully with their watches, were slightly twisted about the arm and clasped on top with a deep red stone as big as a robin's egg, with diamonds the size of peas set all around it.

New York's Weak Point.

Mr. Gotham—We intend that New York shall be fitly represented at the Chicago exhibition. We shall put up some grand structure in which to place our exhibits, though exactly what form it will take has not been decided.

Mr. Lakeside (of Chicago)—Whether you give us a Vanderbilt palace, a suburban villa, a twenty-story flat or a monster warehouse, we shall be thankful; but for mercy sake don't—don't attempt to build a monument.—N. Y. Weekly.

To Lead Either Way.

Two boys were observed leading home a cow. One boy had hold of a rope tied around her horns, while the other had hold of her tail. A gentleman asked him why he kept hold of the cow's tail.

"Well," said the boy, "when she walks along all right John leads her by the rope, and when she walks backwards I lead her by the tail."—Boston Courier.

Mercantile Item.

"Now, then," said a New York merchant to one of his traveling salesmen, who was packing for his journey, "let us see that you sell more goods on this trip than you did before. Our firm is more generally known now."

"In that case," said the drummer, looking dubiously up from his sample cases, "I am a little afraid it will be uphill work."—Texas Siftings.

Contracted a Prejudice.

"No, Mrs. Van Twilken will never cross the water," said a lady to her caller.

"Why not?"

"Well, you see her husband rescued her from drowning. That was what led to their acquaintance, and she has had a violent prejudice against the ocean ever since."—Washington Star.

Theatrical Note.

McReady—How long a run did you have in Schenectady?

Keane—Oh, just from the hotel to the station.—Judge.

OUT OF WHOLE CLOTH

Dr. Graves' "Confession" Concocted by the Deputies.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT TURNING.

Mrs. Graves Has Gone Insane, with No Hopes of Recovery.

No Attempt Will be Made to Indict Col. Ballou—He is in Providence, and in an Interview Refutes Every Charge Made Against Him—Says He was Surprised at the Verdict.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 7.—The story of the deputy marshals to the effect that Dr. Graves had made a partial confession Saturday on his way to the jail, implicating Colonel Ballou, was effectually squelched yesterday when John Z. Adams, one of the stockholders of the Denver & Lakewood Railroad, and a prominent merchant, made a sworn statement that he followed Dr. Graves from the court house to the county jail Saturday night out of curiosity, and that he heard the deputies plying the prisoner with questions, but in every instance the accused protested his innocence, and that the alleged confession was made out of the whole cloth. In view of this the district attorney has deemed it inadvisable to ask for the indictment of Lawyer Ballou.

Public sentiment is now largely with the accused. The motion for a new trial in his case will be filed to-day and argued later in the week.

Dr. Pfeiffer, Mrs. Graves' physician, states that his patient has gone insane and he has no hopes for her recovery.

COL. BALLOU TALKS.

He Pooh-hoohs Graves' Alleged Confession and Denies Several Charges.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 7.—Col. Ballou sent for the newspaper men yesterday to call at his office, and on their responding made a statement to them.

The colonel asserted his disbelief that Dr. Graves' made any confession implicating him, denying that he left Denver last Saturday secretly or in a very hurried manner, declaring that his associate counsel knew of his intending departure, and expressing his surprise at the verdict. He would say nothing about the possible action of the grand jury against himself.

In regard to the verdict in the Graves case, Colonel Ballou said: "My colleagues and myself all expected an acquittal, and were surprised at the result."

Colonel Ballou was sworn in as alderman from Ward 9 yesterday. Numerous congratulations from friends were received by him.

DOES NOT WANT WAR.

Salisbury Unwilling to Fight, But Will Not Yield Any British Rights.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 7.—Sir George Baden-Powell, a member of the British Bering Sea Commission, who, at Lord Salisbury's request, will start for Washington on Saturday next, says that Lord Salisbury told him that he (Lord Salisbury) wishes to avoid war with the United States, but at the same time he wishes to be strong and to show that he is not going to yield a jot of the British rights.

Sir George says he thinks Lord Salisbury has finally brought an awkward dispute, which might have resulted in war, to arbitration, and it is his conviction that England will win in the arbitration. The British commissioners, he declared, have made important investigations, but the friendliness they have established with the Americans and Russians will yet bear fruit.

All right-thinking men in England and America, Sir George added, will be delighted to find a serious bone of contention removed.

Cruelty to Railroad Laborers.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 7.—A wanderer from the Adirondacks has arrived here with his ears frozen. He had a long and somewhat perilous tramp. He tells a startling story of cruelty and oppression inflicted on men employed to work on the construction of the Adirondack & St. Lawrence Railroad through the forest. He says that when he and several other men started to leave their camp after being refused pay for their work, the bosses aimed revolvers at them and threatened to shoot the first man who left. He finally escaped at night. His name is William Hufftil, and his home is in Elyria, O.

Pennsylvania's Finances.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 7.—The annual report of the Auditor-General of Pennsylvania shows receipts for the year ended November 30, 1891, of $15,007,161.74, an increase of over $4,300,000 over the previous year. This result was mainly due to the Bardsley disclosures, which caused a prompt turning over of moneys due the State. The payment for the past year were $10,473,952.64, while for the previous year they aggregated over $2,000,000.

Another Drawn Game.

HAVANA, Jan. 7.—The third game in the chess match between Tschigorin and Steinitz was played on Tuesday. Tschigorin, having the move, again offered an Evans gambit. The game lasted thirty-two moves and then resulted in a draw, the players being in even position. This leaves Tschigorin still in the lead by a score of one to nothing, two games having proved draws. The fourth game of the match will be played to-day.

The Question of Carrying Grain to Russia —Silver Debate in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The House spent the entire session yesterday in discussing the Senate joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to charter vessels to carry to Russia the grain and products contributed by the people of the Northwest to the starving residents of that country and appropriating $100,000 therefor. After striking out the appropriation, the House indefinitely postponed the joint resolution by a vote of 93 to 87, and then adjourned until to-day, when the call of States for the introduction of bills will be resumed, beginning at Oregon.

Senator Morrill's speech in reply to Mr. Stewart of Nevada, precipitated a silver debate in the Senate which was left unfinished, but was enlivened by Mr. Teller's breezy attack on the silver passages of the President's message and the manner in which Mr. Stewart's own record on the Sherman bill was quoted against himself.

The venerable Senator from Vermont occupied an hour and three-quarters in reading his remarks, and though his voice failed him towards the close, he received the respectful attention of the Senate. The Nicaraugua Canal investigating resolution introduced by Mr. Morgan and laid over at his request, will probably bring up an animated discussion to-day.

In a twenty minutes executive session the Senate confirmed about seventy-five nominations and went through the form of adjourning out of respect to a deceased member of the House from the new State of South Dakota, who had died before being able to take his seat in Congress.

Speaker Crisp's Condition.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Speaker Crisp this morning was reported by his physician to be somewhat better than he was yesterday. He slept well and rested more quietly last night than for the last several days. His physician and family who all along feared pneumonia, feel more encouraged and speak more confidently of his speedy convalescence than at any time during the past week.

A SHORTAGE FOUND.

James H. Blauvelt & Co. and Cashier Cole All Involved.

NYACK, N. Y., Jan. 7.—The experts engaged some time ago to make an examination of the books of James H. Blauvelt & Co., from whose establishment Cashier Edward H. Cole started on his strange wanderings a little over three weeks ago, have made their report. The report says that the books show a number of shortages, all for small amounts, and concludes as follows:

"The condition of the books is such that the party having them in charge had so arranged them and kept them in arrears as to justify the inference that it was done with intent and not through lack of knowledge or because of overwork."

The report also intimates that both members of the firm are involved with Cole in the deficiency, which aggregates $2,000.

R. H. M. Dickinson, the junior member of the firm, says the statement is false and incorrect.

Judge Cole, father of Cashier Cole, said that if the experts made statements damaging to his son, libel suits and spicy disclosures were sure to follow.

Henry Irving's Son Shot.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Henry Irving's second son, Lawrence, either intentionally or accidentally, shot himself yesterday afternoon at his lodgings in Belfast. It is alleged that he was despondent. The news of his son having shot himself did not reach Henry Irving until the play had commenced at the Lyceum last evening. The actor retained his composure remarkably, but this was partly attributed to the fact that the announcement of the shooting was accompanied by a reassuring telegram from the doctors in attendance on the young man, to the effect that they hoped for his recovery.

Religious Crank Mullin Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7.—James Mullin, the religious maniac who attempted to swallow a rosary and cross on Monday, asserting that it would "make him live forever," died yesterday in the Hahnemann Hospital. He was 38 years old. Tuesday he became violent. The rosary and cross had been removed from his esophagus, and he routed the doctors and attendants. He had only one leg, but it took three stalwart policemen to overpower him. He was placed in a straight jacket.

Tidings of Mrs. Osborne.

Noah Porter Very Ill.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 7.—Ex-President Noah Porter of Yale is critically ill with the grip at his residence in this city. Owing to his advanced age and feebleness, a fatal termination of the case is greatly feared.

SHERMAN IS VICTOR

Renominated for Senator by Ohio Republicans.

ONLY ONE BALLOT TO DECIDE.

The Vote Stood: Sherman 53, Foraker 38, Foster 1, McKinley 1.

The Nomination Made Unanimous—Major McKinley Sent a Telegram Forbidding the Use of His Name—Foraker's Men Wanted a Secret Ballot—Speeches by the Candidates After the Result Was Announced.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 7.—As expected the Foraker and Sherman men first locked horns in the Senatorial caucus last night on the question of how the ballots should be taken—secret or viva voce. Fully an hour was spent in debate on this question. The vote stood 47 in favor of the viva voce vote to 44 for secret ballot. It was thus evident that some Sherman men wanted a secret ballot, and some excitement followed the vote.

Senator Nichols presented the name of Senator John Sherman in an eloquent speech, dwelling upon his record as a financier. Representative Griffin presented the name of ex-Governor Foraker, expatiating upon his soldier record. Numerous seconding speeches to both these nominations were made. Representative Welsh, in what must have been his maiden speech, presented Major William McKinley's name, but it was soon afterwards withdrawn by a telegram from Major McKinley. This did not det Welsh, however, from voting for his candidate.

Representative Dicks presented the name of Charles Foster. As the ballot proceeded, there was no demonstration except that when Porter, of Cleveland, a doubtful man, voted for Foraker, the Foraker men shouted, and when Pudney, of Cleveland, another doubtful man, voted for Sherman, the Sherman men whooped.

The first ballot resulted: Sherman 53, Foraker 38, Foster 1, McKinley 1; necessary to a choice, 47.

After the vote was announced, both Sherman and Foraker were brought to the hall. Senator Sherman spoke first, and after thanking the members of the caucus, complimented Mr. Foraker upon his fight, saying it was the hardest fight he had ever entered, and he hoped he would never have him for an opponent again.

Ex-Governor Foraker spoke in a good natured way, saying he did not foresee when he entered the fight that when a man begins to fight John Sherman he has to fight the whole United States.

Attempted Train Wrecking in a Tunnel.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Jan. 7.—The Philadelphia & Reading railroad fast express came near being wrecked in the Perkasie tunnel yesterday. The train was running at a high rate of speed and immediately after entering the tunnel the locomotive came in collision with obstructions which tore away the cylinder, steps, etc., on one side of the locomotive. The train was made up with Pullman coaches and express cars, also Lehigh Coal and Navigation company pay car. Trainmen think it was another attempt at wrecking with intention of robbery. This is the second attempt within a week.

Corpse Attached By an Undertaker.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 7.—The Messiah Baptist Church was crowded at noon yesterday, the hour announced for the funeral of William Francis, a colored man who died in New York Monday, but the corpse did not arrive as expected. The clergyman's explanation of the failure of the body to arrive created much indignation among the relatives and friends of the deceased. It was to the effect that the body of Francis had been attached by a New York undertaker, who claimed $64 for services, and the remains could not therefore be taken from the local undertaker's [illegible]

A REVENUE CUTTER SUNK.

The Albert Gallatin Goes Down on a Massachusetts Bay Rock.

MANCHESTER, Mass., Jan. 7.—The old United States revenue cutter Albert Gallatin was wrecked yesterday on Boo-Hoo ledge, a dangerous rock about a mile from the shore off Manchester-by-the-Sea, and is now sunk in several fathoms of water.

Only one life was lost, but the officers and men had an hour's hard battle before they reached the land. The Gallatin was blown out of her course by the terrible gale that swept across Massachusetts Bay and in the blinding snowstorm it was impossible to get any bearings.

The vessel left Kittery early in the morning for Provincetown. At 10 o'clock the storm broke. Capt. Eric Gabrielson saw that the steamer was drifting toward the shore with the heavy tide and kept up a speed of eleven knots an hour until through a rift in the snow an island was made out ahead. The pilot said it was Kettle Island off Magnolias. The Captain replied: "If that is Kettle Island an east course will take us to Eastern Point."

Again the weather shut in thicker than before. The course was changed, the cutter backing. She stood on her course again and within five minutes struck on a sunken rock which proved to be a part of Boo-Hoo ledge, and soon after broke in two.

The men promptly took their stations in the boats. Jacob Jacobson, the ill-fated carpenter, had just got into his boat when the cutter was raised by a tremendous wave and dropped with terrible force upon the ledge. The stack chains snapped and the great funnel went over upon the carpenter and his boat. It is believed that Jacobson was instantly killed.

It required the exercise of good judgment and seamanship to reach the shore even after the boats were cast off.

CHILI COOLING OFF.

It is Said Certain Paragraphs in Matta's Letter Have Been Withdrawn.

VALPARAISO, Jan. 7.—It is understood here that the Government's message to Minister Montt at Washington contained a withdrawal of the offensive paragraphs in Senor Matta's letter to President Harrison. The dispatch also includes an analysis of the Valparaiso Fiscal's report on the evidence taken by Judge Foster in the Baltimore inquiry. This report shows glaring mistakes in summing up the testimony, but its final argument, that Gomez, Ahumada and Roderiquez should be punished for stabbing and otherwise wounding seamen of the Baltimore, will, without doubt, be carried out.

It is expected that sentence will be passed after the festivities to-day and to-morrow in celebration of the inauguration of the Congressionalists' revolt against Balmaceda.

The celebration is to be a very extensive affair. All the Chilian ships in the harbor are to be illuminated, as will also all the houses in Valparaiso.

The police detectives who have for some time been situated in the vicinity of the American legation at Santiago, have been called off.

The cruiser President Errazuris has returned from her trial trip. She averaged 16 knots an hour on a two hours' run. It is said that he full power is 20 knots.

Wants Chili to Pay $50,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 7.—Patrick Shields, the fireman of the steamer Keweenaws, who was so badly injured by Chilians while at Valparaiso, has entered a claim for $50,000 against the Chilian government. The papers in the case have been forwarded to Secretary Blaine. After the assault Shields was induced to sign a compromise for $5,000 damages at the request of Chilians and an American officer.

Anarchists Seeking Freedom.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 7.—Attorney General Hunt has left for Washington to argue on behalf of the State of Illinois before the United States Supreme Court the appeals of Anarchists Fielden and Schwab. He takes the ground that the amendment of the record demanded is inconsequential and its refusal did not injure the plaintiffs. He will also hold that neither the rights of the petitioners, or the court's jurisdiction is affected by the fact that Schwab is a subject of the Emperor of Germany.

Brainard-Staub Suit Ended.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 7.—Austin Brainard, Gov. Bulkeley's secretary, has received a letter from the comptroller saying that that official had decided to allow his claim for the salary attached to the office of executive secretary, which claim he refused to recognize last March. This action of the comptroller is attributed to the decision of the Supreme Court establishing Gov. Bulkeley's title. It ends the Brainard-Staub suit.

A Young Farmer Murdered.

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., Jan. 7.—John Hile, a wealthy young farmer of Elysburg, was found yesterday morning in a lonely piece of woods near that village with his skull crushed in. His horse and carriage stood near by. At first it was believed that his death was due to an accident, but latter the opinion became general that he had been murdered. The authorities are investigating the matter.

Spurgeon's Recovery Probable.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Advices from Mentone say that the Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon, the well known pastor of the Tabernacle, who has been seriously ill for a long time past, was able on Dec. 31 and Jan. 1, for the first time in six months, to address his friends at the hotel where he is staying. It is added, however, that the effort greatly wearied Mr. Spurgeon.

Failed for Half a Million.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Lowenthal, Livingstone & Co., one of the largest grain and commission firms on this coast, filed a petition of insolvency yesterday. Their liabilities are placed at nearly half a million, assets $160,000. Speculation in charters of wheat carrying vessels is given as the cause of their embarrassment.

BLAINE TAKEN ILL

Stricken Down While at Work in His Office.

WILD RUMORS OF APOPLEXY.

It is Now Believed That the Attack Was Merely One of Indigestion.

The Secretary is Reported Much Better This Morning—Tariff Programme of the Ways and Means Committee—Proceedings of Congress Yesterday—The Sensational Stories from Fort Niagara Denied—Other Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Great excitement was caused in the Department of State yesterday at noon by the report that Secretary Blaine had been taken suddenly ill while at work in his office.

The report proved to be true, but every precaution was taken to prevent the fact becoming public.

Surgeon-General Browne, of the Navy, whose office is in the same building, was summoned and was promptly in attendance. Another physician from the War Department was also on hand in a few minutes.

Under their joint efforts Mr. Blaine was made to feel comparatively comfortable. His daughter, Miss Mattie, was informed of his condition, and was soon at his side.

The alarm was great at first, but subsided when the Secretary was reported as resting easily and as being entirely out of danger. The Secretary was removed to his home in a carriage much improved.

Later information concerning Secretary Blaine's sudden illness establishes the fact that it was caused wholly by an attack of indigestion, the result of some imprudence at breakfast and that as soon as his stomach was relieved by a light emetic of salt and water he suffered no further pain, but simply the after effects of nausea. The only prescription made for him subsequently was a simple lime water mixture to restore the tone of the stomach.

His daughter was sent for before the nature of his indisposition was known.

George Alfred Townsend says that Thompson the druggists states that Mr. Blaine surely had a knockdown stroke like apoplexy.

Mr. Blaine is reported this morning as having entirely recovered from his sudden attack.

THE TARIFF PROGRAMME.

Plans of the Ways and Means Committee —Separate Items to be Dealt With.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Mr. Springer expects to get all the members of the Ways and Means Committee together soon for the purpose of organizing and getting ready for the session's work.

The policy of dealing with the tariff by separate items appears to be pretty generally accepted, and the committee will probably get to work on that line.

It is the purpose of Mr. Springer and the other members of the committee to get at the work at once.

A bill providing for free wool and for the repeal of the compensatory duties on woolen manufactures will probably be the first reported from the committee, and the indications are that there will be but little difficulty in passing it through the House.

To get such a bill through the Senate is, of course, another question, but it is believed that it will greatly embarrass certain Republican Senators representing States in which woollen manufacturers abound if the party exigencies compel their voting against the free raw material which these manufacturers want.

Fort Niagara Charges Denied.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—F. B. Seely, immigrant inspector at Suspension Bridge, N. Y., in a letter received at the Treasury Department, contradicts emphatically the published reports about United States soldiers at Fort Niagara being engaged in the wholesale smuggling of Chinese from Canada into the United States, and in some instances robbing the smuggled celestials after bringing them over the river from Canada. Inspector Seeley denies in general and in detail the published reports coming from Lockport, N. Y., about this business, and says, on the contrary, instead of smuggling Chinese into the United States by the soldiers at Fort Niagara having grown to great proportions, the officers of the command there have arrested nearly every person coming into the United States unlawfully in that vicinity.

Congressman Bynum on Current Rumors.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Representative Bynum of Indiana said last night that there was no truth in the report that he was so disgusted with Speaker Crisp's committee appointments that he proposed to retire from Congress and be a candidate for Governor of Indiana. He said that while he was disappointed at Mr. Mills' defeat, he certainly had no cause to complain of his own committee assignment. As to his Gubernatorial aspirations, Mr. Bynum said: "I have been earnestly solicited by many friends to run for Governor, but I have not as yet fully determined whether I shall be a candidate or not. If I do become a candidate it will be because I prefer that position to the one I now hold.

A Phenomenal Year for Grain.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The estimates by States and Territories of area, product and value of the principal cereals of the United States for 1891 made by the statistician of the Department of Agriculture, show that the total for corn has only been exceeded once. The wheat product is the largest ever grown in any country, and the yield per acre in the United States is the largest ever reported by the Department of Agriculture. The total for oats was slightly exceeded during the year 1890.

To Test the New Powder.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The Ordnance Bureau has decided that a test of the 12-inch rifle with the new powder be made at Sandy Hook proving grounds, New York harbor, Jan. 12. General Flagler, chief of the Ordnance Bureau, expressed great satisfaction with the new powder recently made by the Dupont Cowpany. If the results on Jan. 12, are satisfactory the powder will be ordered in large quantities.

Novel Point of Law Decided.

BOSTON, Jan. 7.—A novel point of law is decided by the full bench of the Supreme Court for the first time in the case of Patrick Higgins, administrator of James Higgins vs. the Central New England & Western railroad company. The defendant does not operate a railroad in this State and the deceased was injured in Connecticut and his cause of action was derived under a Connecticut statute. The court holds that an action can be maintained in this State and overrules the demurrer of the defendant.

Committed to a Reformatory.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Jan. 7.—The grand jury yesterday owing to defendant's youth, ignored the bill against Willie Kutzler, 10 years old, charged with involuntary manslaughter in kicking a young girl named Emma Hill to death. In lieu thereof they recommended that the boy be committed to a reformatory.

Died After Four Years' Suffering.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Jan. 7.—Ex-Sheriff Barton, who was so unmercifully pounded, by four prisoners, three of whom escaped from jail here on the night of Aug. 4, 1886, died yesterday from his injuries. All these years he suffered intense pain about the head from blows which he received at that time, and often prayed for death to release him from his agony.

High Water Causes Suspension of Work.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Jan. 7.—Over 4,000 miners, slate pickers and laborers employed at the Pennsylvania, Green Ridge, Spring and Ferndale collieries, between this place and Mt. Carmel, are idle on account of high water. It has been raining at intervals for the past two weeks, causing mine flooding greater than for a number of years.

Fatal Railroad Collision.

ROME, N. Y., Jan. 7.—An engine and a freight and accommodation train on the New York, Ontario and Western Railroad collided about 4 A. M., at Smyrna, in Chenango county. They were going in opposite directions. Engineers Sheehan and Young were killed. Another man was missing.

YELLOW FEVER AND RIOT.

Sorry State of Affairs at the Port of Santos, Brazil.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The United States and Brazil Mail steamship Seguranca is detained at Quarantine for cleansing and fumigation. She has just arrived from Brazilian ports, and brings a terrible story of wholesale deaths from yellow fever and bullets at Santos, Brazil.

An epidemic of yellow fever, with a terrible mortality, has been raging at Santos for some time. On December 29, one of the crew of the Seguranca, August Clements, 28 years old, a native of Germany, died, it is said of alcoholism, and was buried at sea.

The Siguranca brings first information of a bloody engagement between the government soldiers and the people of Santos, in which a number of lives were lost.

On Dec. 17, the government sent a military governor to Santos to replace the former governor of that place. The people were opposed to this action and looked upon it as an act of tyranny and oppression. Public meetings were held in the squares and the action of the government was denounced. It was decided to oppose what they considered a species of dictatorship, and the citizens began to organize themselves into armed bands.

The fiery spirit of the Spaniards became boiling, and arms and ammunition were distributed among the people. Some of the bands selected leaders, who were to direct their movements.

On December 17 the military governor made his appearance, surrounded by troops. When he appeared in the streets the revolutionary feeling of the people broke loose, and the storm was soon raging.

The soldiers endeavored to disperse the gathering of citizens and were pelted with stones and sticks. The soldiers were then ordered to fire on the people. They did so, and a dozen of the citizens fell dead and a number were wounded. The revolutionists gave way, but quickly gathered again and made an obstinate resistance.

The troops charged upon the people and drove them from street to street. Many fell pierced with bayonets and bullets.

Preferences of New York's Legislators.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—A morning paper gives a table showing the result of a canvass of the members of the State Legislature showing their preferences for presidential nominees of both the Democratic and Republican parties. The result is: Out of eighty-three Democrats Hill is the favorite with fifty-three, Mr. Cleveland having four, twenty-six being noncommittal. Forty of the seventy-five Republicans want Blaine and six speak out for Harrison, seventeen being noncommital, but one member favored Flower, and the same number cast their lot with Chauncey M. Depew.

Miss Vail of Orange is the guest of Miss Coriell of Church street.

Miss Lizzie DeCamp of Chester, Pa., is visiting Miss Lilian Force of Duer street.

W. E. MacClymont, organist of the First Baptist church, will give an organ recital and musical Jan. 19.

The friends of Miss B. V. D. Benton will be pleased to hear that she is gaining strength. She has gone to spend the winter near the Adirondacks, not Denver, Colorado, as was first reported.

The talented young artist and portrait painter, Miss Mary Frances VanArsdale of Crescent avenue, is expected home from the South in a few weeks. She has been in failing health since last March, when she suffered a severe attack of the grip followed by heart trouble and nervous prostration.

William H. Waldron, formerly of this city, where he still has relatives, died at his residence in Clinton last night. He was forty-two years of age. His death was the result of a cold he contracted at the recent disastrous fire at Clinton. Funeral services will be held at his late residence, Sunday, Jan. 10, at 1 p. m., and from the Clinton Presbyterian church at 1:30.

The wedding of Miss Saidee Wills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick N. Wills, to Marion S. Ackerman of West Seventh street, is to take place at Grace church this evening. In consequence of the recent unexpected death of Miss Wills' grandfather, the Rev. John Wills, of Barnstable, Mass., the reception after the wedding will be restricted to relatives.

—A project is progressing to organize a Crescent League bicycle club.

—Gospel services will be held at the First Baptist church mission at 7:45 to-night.

—A very enjoyable dance was given at the Fanwood club-house last night. A number of Plainfielders attended. Andrew Carpenter of this city furnished the music.

Editor Pearsall Goes to San Francisco.

The Eastern delegates to the convention of the International League of Press Clubs, which will open in San Francisco Jan. 14, left the Grand Central Depot in New York yesterday in a train made up of six Wagner vestibule palace cars. The train is expected to reach San Francisco on Jan. 13.

The party is made up of the following: Major T. P. McElrath, William Berri, Thomas H. Evans, William Wilde, George F. Lyon, Charles W. Price, William R. Worrall and J. F. Charlouis and their wives; S. C. Austin, John Frederick, C. H. George, A. E. Pearsall of the Westfield Standard, E. B. Phelps, Marshall P. Wilder, Mrs. J. C. Yager, Miss E. P. Otis, Miss M. Watson and Mrs. Milton C. Roach of New York; William V. and the Misses Alexander, T. E. Anderson, E. J. Carpenter, W. E. Grout, J. S. Keeler, W. B. Smart, J. C. Morse, Mrs. L. T. Upham, Mrs. S. J. White and Miss M. Parida of Boston; T. F. Treed and wife and Irving Watson of Providence, R. I.; Moses P. Handy and wife and T. H. Martin of Philadelphia; John B. Dalrymple and wife of Reading, Pa.; J. S. Stillman and L. B. Meekim of Baltimore; T. J. and Miss Keenan, W. H. Davis, G. H. Welshaus, Miss Welshaus and L. B. Bancroft of Pittsburg; Miss Kate Field of Washington, D. C. The trip will cover about 8,000 miles. Milton C. Roach, general Eastern passenger agent of the New York Central railroad, and John C. Yager, Eastern passenger agent of the Wagner Palace Car company accompany the party.

A Great Convenience to Belated Passengers at Central Stations.

The Jersey Central railroad company has put up at the smaller stations along the line, such as Fanwood, Netherwood, Grant avenue, and Evona, signals that are a great convenience to the traveling public. Attached to the top of an upright pole are hinged arms, bearing signal lamps. At the base of the pole are levers, and signs indicating which lever to pull for "up" trains and which for "down". Anyone wishing to board a train which stops only on signal, after the station is closed for the night and all the railroad men have gone home, has only to pull down the proper lever when the train approaches, and hold it down till the train stops, when, on releasing the lever, the signal arm flies back into position.

Wants Pay for His Hotel Plans.

The lawsuit of Blanchard Fosgate against Joseph T. Vail, now pending in the Union county courts, is to recover a claim on contract which Fosgate claims to have against Vail. It seems that Fosgate owed a small bill to Vail, and that Vail agreed to take the bill out in trade. By and by Fosgate presented a bill for $700, being for work done on plans for a big hotel which Vail had suggested building on the mountain-top back of Bound Brook. Vail considered the claim an absurd one, and would n't pay it. Hence the suit.

The members of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum acknowledge with thanks the donation of a beautiful carpet and parlor furniture from their lady friends, and they also thank the ladies and gentlemen who contributed to the success of the recent lecture on "The Passion Play".

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely; it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety, and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Ct.

A Large Industry for Dunellen.

It is reported that Dunellen is to have a large factory. At all events, a manufacturing company has purchased a large strip of ground below the round-house, on the north side of the railroad, and has surveyed the ground out to build a large building.

Several citizens who ought to know claim that this factory will be a branch of Clark's thread works of Newark, and that it will employ about 200 hands. This will make Dunellen houses in great demand.

The Dunellen PRESS man knows of more than one box of cigars bet that this factory would be in operation by July 1—so it looks like business this time.

Badly Bitten by a Dog.

Randolph Clawson of New Market met with a very serious accident a few days ago. He had been playing with a dog owned by him, and upon turning to go away the dog grasped him by the hand biting him severely, then letting go, grasped him again by the wrist, and shook him terribly, breaking Mr. Clawson's wrist. The wounds were dressed by Dr. W. J. Nelson, but it will be some time before Mr. Clawson will be able to use his hand.

—Owing to the recent illness, Joe English will not be present at the installation services at Reform Hall, this evening. The Rev. Dr. Honeyman, and probably the Rev. Dr. Lewis, will be present. An interesting programme has been prepared, and an enjoyable time is anticipated. Everybody will be welcome.

Beware of imitations, dilutions, and substitutes of Dr. Pierce's genuine medicines, offered at what pretend to be "cut prices." For the genuine, there's one price, and only one price—but, they're guaranteed. They're the cheapest medicines you can buy at any price, for if they fail to benefit or cure, you have your money back. You pay only for the good you get.

To prevent fraud and imposition by unprincipled dealers, these genuine guaranteed remedies are now sold only through druggists authorized as agents, and always at those long-established prices:

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery (for the Liver, Blood and Lungs), $1.00. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription (for woman's weaknesses and ailments), $1.00. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets (for the liver, stomach and bowels), 25 cents.

Refuse all medicines purporting to be Dr. Pierce's offered at any other prices. Suspicion naturally and rightfully attaches to them.

PLAINFIELD'S SHARE IN COAST DEFENCES

Big Guns Made for the Government by the Huge Lathes of the Pond Tool Works.

Gen. Flagler, who in January last succeeded General Benet as Chief of Ordnance, United States Army, gives in a recently published report an interesting account of the operations of the department during the past year. The activity which is everywhere attested is conspicuously shown in the progress of the Watervliet gun factory, which is so far completed, and equipped with big gun lathes and other tools from the Pond Machine Tool Works of this city, that the principal need is now to make due provision for the steel forgings required to keep it in operation. The first lot of twelve eight-inch guns will be completed in February, when the forgings of that size will be exhausted. Meanwhile work is progressing upon thirty-eight ten and twelve-inch guns from forgings under delivery. A further supply of thirty-three sets of eight, ten and twelve-inch forgings have been contracted for. But the output of the factory will require that money must be granted to make contracts for additional forgings within the calendar year 1892, in order to prevent a deficiency. General Flagler makes an earnest appeal for funds to increase the facilities for manufacture of gun carriages at the Watertown Arsenal.

The lethargy which for so many years after the war governed the action of Congress in the matter of coast defence resulted in leaving the country at the end of more than twenty years in an almost helpless condition. The Navy Bureau of Ordnance undertook the construction of a six-inch built-up steel gun in 1880 and of two others in 1882, the metal being simply annealed. A great advance was made by the Army Ordnance Department, when in a circular letter issued to steel-makers in April, 1883, it called for oil-tempered steel. The results of this circular were remarkably successful, and led to the production of oil-tempered and annealed steel in this country such as is used in all the guns now being made, and is of a quality not elsewhere excelled.

The period from 1883 to 1888 was employed by the Army Ordnance Department to the best possible advantage, under the existing circumstances, in the manufacture of steel field guns in quantity and in the manufacture of type guns of large calibre, and in acquiring a knowledge of the best methods to pursue in the manufacture of the steel forgings and guns. Scientific experiments of a thoroughly practical nature were conducted in the use of forged steel in built-up gun construction with results of great value to all, and a public confidence was created in this method of manufacture, which could not, perhaps, have been acquired more thoroughly in any other way. No other country, it is believed, can lay claim to more complete investigation in this direction, or a more satisfactory demonstration of the extent to which theory could be relied upon to govern practice in gun construction.

Finally, in 1888, an opportunity was given to go ahead with the manufacture of heavy guns. The army gun factory then produced the first eight-inch gun made wholly of forgings of home manufacture, and also the first twelve-inch steel gun prepared for service in this country. The two services, army and navy, are working independently.

The policy and plans for coast defence, as now pursued, are based generally upon the report of the Board on Fortification and other Defences, made in 1886. That board submitted estimates for land and harbor defences of the principal lake and seacoast ports, twenty-seven in number, the land armament to consist chiefly of 44 sixteen-inch, 203 twelve-inch, 222 ten-inch and 102 eight-inch steel breech-loading guns, or an aggregate of 571 heavy guns and 700 twelve-inch breech-loading rifled mortars. A policy of moderate annual appropriations was inaugurated two years later in place of that recommended by the board, to appropriate $21,500,000 for the first year, and $9,000,000 every thereafter until the completion of the work.

The present policy has the apparent merit of providing just as much money annually as the bare necessities of the work demand. It has so far satisfied these demands as regards the making of guns, but appropriations of increased amounts will be needed to maintain the output of guns and carriages, etc., and to provide the forts and emplacements to receive them.

Up to the present time 198 of the seacoast guns and seventy-five of the heavy rifled mortars have been provided for. One-half of all these guns and practically all of the mortars are made by private establishments, while the army gun factory at Watervliet arsenal, New York, which will be one of the finest and best equipped shops for finishing and assembling guns in the world, is nearing completion, and is already in condition to machine and finish the forgings as fast as they can be procured for its use.

That private industry should have a large share in this work is natural. This is evidenced by the number of firms having important contracts with the Army Ordnance Department for completed guns, forgings, gun-carriages, projectiles, powders and heavy machinery for the army gun factory, namely: The California Powder Works, DuPont Powder Works, Bethlehem Iron Company, Midvale Steel Works, South Boston Iron Works, Builders' Iron Foundry, West Point Foundry, Thomson & Houston Electric Welding Company, Morgan Engineering Works, Pond Machine Tool Company of Plainfield, Niles Tool Works, and the Southwark Machine Company.

The necessity of having well-equipped Government factories is not, however, less mandatory.

There is at present no plant of any kind adapted to the manufacture of heavy guns on the Pacific coast. The question whether the Government shall establish there a factory for the manufacture of the very considerable number of heavy guns and mortars required for the defences of the coast has been carefully studied by a board of army officers appointed by the President pursuant to the act of August 18, 1890. The board finds that about 500 heavy guns and mortars may be required for the defences of the Pacific coast and Puget Sound, and the report states: "The board unanimously and as strongly as possible recommends the erection on the Pacific coast of a gun factory of a capacity such as to enable the gun for the coast to be ready at least as soon as those for the Atlantic and Gulf coasts."

Home Art Study Made Easy.

If any one with artistic aspirations fails of success it will certainly not be from lack of a helpful practical art magazine to make the road to art a pleasant and profitable one. It is not easy to conceive of anything more that could be done by any periodical to help both student and teacher than is done now by The Art Amateur. In any single number of this superb publication (at the cost of 35 cents) more practical, serviceable information in text and design can be found than in any instruction book costing several dollars. Having originated the valuable feature of giving each month colored plates showing the progressive stages of painting a picture both in oil and water-color (the four plates this month comprise a landscape and a beautiful female portrait study both in progressive stages, and also a capital picture of a horse by Helena Maguire), it offers the additional attraction of full-size drawing studies printed separately and on heavy paper (in outline and shaded), both from the cast and from nature, with such simple practical directions for using them as can be easily followed by any intelligent person. School-teachers who wish to introduce drawing into their classes will especially find this feature of great value. All this is done by The Art Amateur without curtailing its ably conducted departments of painting in oil, water-color pastels and mineral colors, wood-carving, brass hammering, poker work (or pyrography), art needlework, etc., etc., while the department of "The House" is full of the ever-practical hints for decorating and furnishing one's home. Price 35 cents monthly. Montague Marks, Publisher, 23 Union Square, New York.

Signs of the Times.

The Central railroad having shot the seedy and superfluous "Excess Tickets" signs which ornamented their rolling-stock of yore, and realizing that the public must be amused in some way, however useless, has hung up in the cars the following pretty and touching mottoes, displayed in cunning little rustic frames:

NOTICE.

PASSENGERS ARE REQUESTED TO KEEP THEIR SEATS WHILE THE TRAIN IS IN MOTION, AND MUST NOT GO ON THE PLATFORM UNTIL THE TRAIN STOPS.

NOTICE.

Passengers must not put their Heads or Arms out of the Windows.

PERSONAL INJURY OR LOSS OF LIFE may result from neglect of this notice.

No one could ask for further proof of the fact that the Central road is making big dividends, and that while it does not wish to restrict passengers in the matter of hanging their feet out of the car windows it wisely draws the line at heads and arms, and repudiates any responsibility for the fate of the reckless man who leaves his seat and taps the water-cooler while the train is not at a standstill.

A Big Newspaper.

The largest newspaper ever published in this country was the Illuminated Quadruple Constellation, New York, July 4, 1859, a monster paper filled to overflowing with useful and entertaining reading for everybody. It was a 28,000 edition and was sold at fifty cents a copy. The size of this mastodon sheet was 70x1,000 inches, or almost forty-nine square feet, eight pages, thirteen columns to the page, or a total of 104 columns, each forty-eight inches in length. It was illustrated with good portraits of President James Buchanan, Edward Everett, Henry Ward Beecher, N. P. Banks, Edward H. Chapin, Horace Greeley, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Alexander VonHumboldt, James Gordon Bennett and several others. The paper contained thirty-six different poems entire, among them "Braddock's Defeat, or the Battle of Monongahela", a poem of sixty-four eight-line verses occupying one column and a fourth, or exactly five feet of space. Among other articles of especial note published in that leviathan sheet was the celebrated "Moon Hoax", taken from a copy of the New York Sun, published in 1835. The paper cost the publisher, George Roberts, $60 a ream, and each ream weighed 300 pounds. It required the work of forty persons ten hours per day for eight weeks to set up and publish this gigantic edition.

Uncertainty may attend business ventures and enterprises, but it never attends the prompt administration of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Price 25 cents.

"My sore ran in the night, and my soul refused to be comforted." "Poor fellow! of course it did. Pity, he couldn't get Salvation Oil. Only 25 cents.

A GREAT LAW OFFICE.

How the Attorney General Performs His Many Duties.

He Is the Lawyer for the Government—Needed Reforms in the Department of Justice—His Peculiar Methods of Work.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

The department of justice is a formidable name for a building suggesting architectural features of the most majestic and awful description. And there are handsome and imposing public buildings in abundance in Washington, but the building consecrated to the department of justice depends for its impressiveness rather upon its name and the dignity and importance of its functions, than upon anything contributed by the builder and decorator.

It is a red stone structure of fair dimensions, that looks as if it might have been intended for a warehouse or mercantile establishment; but, as an afterthought, the flag of the United States had been hoisted upon it, and Justice had taken up her headquarters there. You enter by way of a sort of wooden shed or lean-to at one end, are lifted by the elevator to the first floor, and see over a doorway the legend: "The Attorney General."

Entering, you find yourself in a narrow ante-room, with chairs along the wall, in one of which an attendant, to whom you have stated your errand, asks you to be seated a moment.

As I sat there, a middle-aged man, of middle height, clad in a rather rusty suit of dark cloth, passed through the room, and disappeared by an inner door. Judging from his general appearance, he might have been one of the minor clerks of the department. But when, after a few moments, I followed to the apartment beyond, there sat the middle-aged man at the large table in the middle of the room, and, as he turned his face toward me, I saw that he was the attorney general himself.

His countenance, indeed, was far from being as commonplace as his aspect otherwise. He is of somewhat spare, but sinewy habit, with broad and prominent cheek bones and a pair of remarkably clear and penetrating eyes. His hair and short beard are greyish, his nose a long, finely cut aquiline, his upper lip short, his chin prominent. His forehead is broad and imposing and developed at the corners. His look is sagacious, honest, resolute and devoid of self-consciousness. His mind, I should suppose, is retentive in memory, orderly in ideas, full of knowledge, judicious and bold. He is swift of apprehension, circumspect but firm in decision, and all his faculties are lightened and broadened by a quiet sense of humor. I fancy I could have known him anywhere for a lawyer, and for a great lawyer. Were he to sit on the English bench, clad in a wig and robes of state, he would look a lord chief justice.

Republican simplicity takes away everything picturesque; but it cannot take away the features and the mind of a man competent to perform high duties. The room in which Attorney General Miller sits is hung round with the portraits of many former attorneys general; but none of the painted visages seemed to me to represent a man better suited to the arduous and important office than is the present incumbent.

"Were I to be appointed attorney general to-morrow," said I, by way of defining the situation, "what routine of work should I have to perform?"

"Well," said Mr. Miller, in a full-bodied baritone of deliberate and leisurely enunciation, "to put it in a word, the attorney general is the lawyer for the government. He is called upon to deliver opinions on all matters involving legal discrimination, that come before the president, or before the secretaries, provided, in the case of secretaries, that they can show the matter in question to be one which it falls within their scope to have determined. Every sort of legal question is referred to this office from the sources named. The state department contributes many; then there is much from the treasury—fiscal questions: the interior department, which includes the patent office, gives a great number; opinions have to be delivered regarding the Indians and the land laws."

"But must you, individually, pass upon all these questions?" I asked, beginning slowly to feel that I would probably decline the office of attorney general, should it be tendered to me.

"There are three assistants here who write opinions," Mr. Miller replied, looking across at the portrait over the mantlepiece, and playing with a pair of eyeglasses mounted in black enamel. "The solicitor general acts when I am absent: and there is a secretary in the supreme court. It is not absolutely incumbent upon the attorney general to argue cases. Mr. Garland, I believe, argued none. I shall have but eight or ten this term. Of course, I am responsible for what is done in my office."

"Against whom are your arguments delivered?" I inquired.

"Well," said Mr. Miller, with a slight smile, "I am in the opposite category to that of the newly-landed Irishman, who, you remember was agin' the government, be it what it might. I am for the government in everything."

I remarked that, great as the amount of work must be, the sense of responsibility must be even more wearing.

"Well, yes, one does feel that; but one gets used to it, too. We learn to think of the work itself more than of the contingencies. A good many questions come here, connected with the government reservations; and we must deal with violations of the customs and revenue laws, which have been presented in the courts and appealed; such cases must be argued here."

"Is there anything else?"

"Yes; an important function of the department is the supervision of all the district attorneys and marshals throughout the United States, as to matters of government policy and as to expenditures. Then we have to pass on the titles of lands acquired by the government. There have been, of late years, more great constitutional questions decided in the attorney-general's office than for a long time previously; such, for example, as that in which Justice Field was concerned some time ago."

"And are records of all these judgments kept by the department?"

"Oh, yes," said Mr. Miller. He partly turned in his seat and indicated a bookcase full of large, leather-bound volumes. "There they are. And since I have been here there have been decisions enough handed down to fill at least a volume."

"Is it true that you exercise a supervision over all prisoners in federal courts?"

"Yes, on an average there are about 16,000 of such prisoners, as distinguished from those who are confined in state prisons. We employ examiners to investigate the proceedings of all officials concerned in the trial and sentencing of federal prisoners, except, of course, the judges, who are not subject to our supervision. Most of the federal prisoners are such as have been sentenced to long terms. Three-fifths of the whole number of them are confined in three prisons—in Columbus, in Detroit and another. These are considered to be model prisons. If any abuses arise we see that they are corrected."

"And I suppose you are applied to also in the matter of pardons?"

"Yes, we have as many as ten or twelve applications for pardons come to us every week. It is one of the most painful functions we have to discharge. There is the conflict between the natural desire to be merciful, and the demands of duty. The applications are first referred by the pardon clerk to the court of the district attorney, then a brief is made out and submitted to me, and again submitted by me to President Harrison. He looks it over before affixing his signature. I have the appointment, by the way, of all district attorneys. And in all matters in which attorneys are employed in cases at a distance, I have to fix the fees. There is, of course, a regular fee bill; but in addition to that, there are incidental and fortuitous matters for which extra fees can be charged, and all these have to be carefully investigated, and any tendency to overcharge checked. This makes a constant struggle for expenses. It is irksome business, and the system is a bad one. I have suggested that it be reformed. As it is now there is naturally an effort on the part of attorneys to make all they can. The case is similar in journalism between space-writers and salaried writers. The former are tempted to send in as much material as possible; the latter are only interested to do well the work they have to do."

"Is there any particular class of crimes," I inquired, "which is more likely than another to come before you?"

"No; not specially as to the nature of the crime; but, for instance, we have had more to do with the crimes committed in the territories, and especially in the Indian territory, which was a great hot-bed for crime. Now that Oklahoma has been settled, however, the courts there attend to the offenses against law. The fact is, this is a great big law office—that's what it is—and administrative, too."

"And how much time a day do you give to the transaction of all this business, Mr. Miller?" asked I; though my personal ambition toward the attorney generalship had been fully and finally cured some while before.

"Well, I get down here never later than half-past eight, and I don't get away again before five," was the reply. "Yes, those are longer hours than the clerks have to keep, but it's the same as any law business, except that you haven't the same option as to what you'll undertake that you have in private practice."

"You are an Indiana man, are you not?" I inquired.

"I was born in New York, but I moved out to Indiana and practiced law there," he said. "Mr. Harrison and I came into business relations then. Since 1876 I have seen Mr. Harrison about every day."

"Did it ever occur to you, in those days, that you might be sitting here?"

"I never had the slightest anticipation of such a thing. In fact, I may say that, until within three months of my coming here, the idea of holding a public office had never presented itself to my mind."

And certainly only a high motive could have induced him to accept the office when it was tendered to him. From the pecuniary point of view, a lawyer of Mr. Miller's attainments could certainly make more in private practice than his salary as attorney general would amount to; while the character of the man entirely precludes the idea that money will come to him through any irregular channel. In the hands of such men as these the affairs of the country are safe. They are men of great abilities, and their reputation is too dear to them to allow of their exerting those abilities otherwise than to the interest and for the best interests of the government. The volumes which Mr. Miller contributes to the library of the attorney general are not likely to be the least valuable of that valuable collection.

JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

Point for Wheelmen.

Wheelman—I believe I'll give up bicycling. I am as careful as can be, but every now and then some accident happens. This is the second time I have been arrested and fined for running into people.

Business Man—I'll tell you how to manage. Just you get a job as bill collector. Everybody'll dodge you then.—N. Y. Weekly.

Will Wind Him Around Some Way.

Mrs. Chinn—So you are going to marry Mr. James? Why, he is a regular reptile. Of course he is rich, but I don't see how you will ever get along with him.

Mrs. Trapier (by her third)—Oh, I will manage him somehow. I used to be a snake charmer before my marriage.—Brooklyn Citizen.

Too Much So.

Lucy—Clara Katchem has certainly the most engaging manners of any girl I know.

Harry (ruefully)—You're right, sis. I've just learned that I'm the fifth man she engaged herself to last summer.—Pittsburgh Bulletin.

The Difference Explained.

"I can't understand why you haven't as amiable a temper as James," said the proprietor to an office boy, referring to another.

"James never has to answer the telephone," replied the abused young man. —Detroit Free Press.

Another Case.

Frances—Is it that tiresome Mr. Cobalt, with his everlasting gabble on art!

Laura (hotly)—I think he amounts to a good deal! He is quite wedded to his art.

Frances—A case where marriage seems to be a failure.—Life.

A New Industry.

Prof. Wetthedust (a few years hence) —Good morning, Mr. Tiller. Anything in my line to-day? I have brought my balloons and explosives along.

Mr. Tiller (American farmer)—Well, I dunno. What's the price of rain now? —N. Y. Weekly.

An Artful Maid.

Mother—Why, Rosalie, I thought you were going driving with Mr. de Riche. What are you wearing black for?

Rosalie—You know the poor fellow is in mourning for his wife, and I want to show my sympathy.—Judge.

Unable to Prove It.

"You are a grasping man," said Sumway to a creditor.

"I don't know how you know that," replied the latter. "You never gave me a chance to grasp the money that you owe me."—Detroit Free Press.

Very Mean.

"Gould is awfully mean with his autograph," said Bobbie. "I sent him a blank check and asked him to write his name at the bottom of it, and do you know he wouldn't do it."—Brooklyn Life.

Look Out for the Farmer.

Tough—I tried the bunco game on a Kansas farmer yesterday.

Another Tough—How did you come out?

Tough—He got my dollar and a half. —Judge.

LYNCHED THE GIRLS

Extermination of the Notorious Sims Family.

THEY FOUGHT LIKE TIGERS.

Overpowered by the Posse, Strung Up and Riddled with Bullets.

The Greatest Excitement Prevailing in Choctaw County—History of Old Bob Sims and His Peculiar Doctrines—His Daughters Well Educated and Assisted in the Publication of the Simsites' Newspaper.

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 8.—Excepting an only daughter, the Sims family, who have kept Choctaw County, this State, in constant trouble for the past few years, by securing converts to their new and peculiar religion, is now extinct.

The most intense excitement was caused here yesterday by the news that Laura and Beatrice, two of the three daughters of Bob Sims, who was lynched on Christmas day, were yesterday seized by a posse who were in quest of Bob's brother Neal, wanted for murder, and strung up to an oak tree. The women tried to interfere in Neal's behalf and fought desperately.

The Simsites were on their way from Womack Hill to Leak, Miss., the rendezvous to which they were driven by the military for the second time early in December. They consisted of quite a strong party led by Neal Sims, Bob's brother, and all, including the women, were armed to the teeth.

The posse overtook them at a lonely point of the road, amid some trees, and near the State boundary, for which the fugitives were making with all speed. An endeavor was first made to arrest Neal, but he showed fight. By strategy then the posse caught him alive, strung him up to an oak tree, and sent a dozen bullets into his body.

Bob's two daughters interferred in their uncle's behalf, but the posse was in no mood to show mercy, and it was the work of a few minutes to treat them likewise.

Ever since the McMillin murder a posse has been hunting down the Sims boys and their followers. It is said that three more men who were engaged in the outlawry of the gang will be put to death as soon as caught.

The daughters of Sims were remarkable young women. Their father owned a small farm in Choctaw County, operated a moonshine distillery, assisted by his sons and daughters, and on Sundays preached to his neighbors the peculiar doctrines of his so-called religion, the main feature being the complete repudiation of all allegiance to human law and an interpretation of divine law to suit himself and followers. He insisted that every man should be governed by his own sense of right and wrong without regard to law, holding that every man had perfect right to do as he pleased.

Sims' ignorant neighbors readily agreed with this code of morals. After the Simsites had defied the Government and rewards had been offered for them, the two girls went to Montgomery and called on Gov. Jones at the Executive Mansion to make terms for their father. They made a favorable impression on the Governor, and he promised to investigate the matter and see that Bob Sims received justice.

When the attack on the house of John McMillin was made in Christmas week and his family murdered by the Simsites, the daughters of the outlaw leader were in the party dressed in men's clothing and each carrying a heavy rifle. They were in the thick of the fight, and are said to have fired many of the shots that exterminated the McMillin family.

To Repeal the Secrecy Clause.

ALBANY, Jan. 8.—Representative Stein has introduced an act repealing the secrecy clause in the electrocution law. The amendment provides that the prison warden must give three days' notice to those that must be present at any execution. The witnesses must not be other than a justice of the Supreme Court, the district-attorney and the sheriff of the county in which conviction was had, two reputable physicians, not to exceed two clergymen, seven assistants or deputy sheriffs and twelve reputable citizens of full age, of whom at least six shall be representative s of newspapers published in the State of New York, to be selected by said agent and warden." The act is to take effect immediately upon passage.

Connecticut Senate Adjourned.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 8. — The Senate met at noon. A resolution presented by Mr. Clark, Republican, directing the acceptance by the State of the direct tax money refunded by the Government, called out the declaration by the Democratic Senators that they would do no business until the House recognized the Democratic candidates for State offices. Adjourned until next Wednesday.

Death of Gen. John Irving Gregg.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Gen. John Irving Gregg, a distinguished soldier of the war with Mexico and the late war, died at his residence in this city yesterday in his 66th year. Gen. Gregg had resided here since he retired from service. He was born in Bellefonte, Pa., in 1826 and served in the Second Pennsylvania Volunteers in the Mexican War, rising to the rank of Captain.

Blizzard in Western New York.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 8.—The snow storm which started early yesterday developed into a full fledged blizzard by noon, the worst since the memorable storm of 1882. There was about two feet of snow on the ground at midnight. Street cars on all lines in the city are practically at a stand still, and traffic on the New York Central and Lackawana lines is greatly retarded.

Hill in the Senate—Proceedings of the House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The very brief session of the Senate yesterday was diversified only by Gov. Hill's reception on the floor and his entrance upon his Senatorial duties.

So soon as the journal had been read Mr. Hiscock taking his stand in the centre aisle, at the entrance of the chamber said:

"Mr. President, David B. Hill, a Senator from the State of New York is present. I suggest that the oath of office be administered to him."

Escorted by Mr. Hiscock Mr. Hill advanced to the desk and was sworn in.

After Vice-President had administered the oath that made Mr. Hill a Senator of the United States he shook hands with the new member and Senator Hill went back to his seat.

He was surrounded by a group of fellow-Senators and members of the House and for a short time held quite a reception.

There were so many members of the House anxious to grasp the new Senator's hand that Representative Catchings of Mississippi was called to form them in line.

Senators generally were desirous of getting down to committee work, and after adopting with pleasant unanimity Mr. Morgan's Nicaraua Canal resolution, adjourned until Wednesday.

There were probably two hundred additional bills added to the House calendar, the call of States for that purpose having been completed prior to adjournment. None of them were of a startling or unusual nature; they principally related to financial and economic matters. Mr. Enloe proposed the repeal of the entire McKinley bill, and numerous additions to the free list were proposed. A number of free silver coinage bills and bills to establish an income tax were introduced.

Mr. Blunt moved to reconsider the vote by which the Senate joint resolution appropriating $100,000 to enable the Secretary of the Navy to charter ships to carry the contributions of American citizens to the suffering residents of Russia, was indefinitely postponed Wednesday. It went over for consideration at a future time. A resolution was introduced directing the Secretary to detail enough naval vessels to carry those contributions to destinations. On motion, adjourned.

MOURN THEIR DOLLARS.

English Investors Lose on an American Mining Deal.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—The Bankruptcy Court has ordered a strict inquiry to be made into the formation and the whole history of the United States Gold Placers Company, which recently failed in a manner most disastrous to numerous persons that had invested in its securities.

The company was formed in 1886, for the object, as stated in the prospectus, of acquiring the Cottonwood Placers, comprising 800 acres of auriferous gravel on the banks of the River San Miguel, in Colorado.

The prospectus gave out every reason to expect yearly profits of £148,000 on a capital investment of £150,000, divided among 650 holders.

It is now alleged that the scheme was from its inception a shameful swindle.

Cashier Cole's Statement.

NYACK, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Cashier Edward H. Cole yesterday made his first statement since his return from his strange wandering. "The accounts were in bad shape and in arrears. They got so in 1887-8, when for want of sufficient help in the office they could not be properly attended to. I asked for more help that I might have time to keep the accounts in order, but General Blauvelt said they were all right. I have not since been able to post the books to date. There have been no intentional omissions or mistakes. Under the partnership agreement in 1888, General Blauvelt was personally responsible for my salary. I have never received any sum beyond my salary."

A Schooner on the Rocks.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Jan. 8.—The 100-ton schooner Jacob Duryea, Capt. Young, laden with lumber, from Norfolk, Va., bound for Atlantic City, went ashore at Cape May Point, yesterday. The captain and crew were taken ashore in the breeches buoy by the life saving crew. There was quite a high sea at the time and the passage to the shore was attended with considerable risk. The schooner is now on the rocks. It is possible she may be saved. Her cargo of lumber makes her buoyant.

Garza is Hemmed In.

SAN ANTONIO, Jan 8.—According to an official in the Government office here, the capture of Garza, the Mexican revolutionist, is only a qestion of a few hours. He says the revolutionist has been discovered in his hiding place, a short distance from San Diego, and that a big force of men is now on the way to capture him.

Says He is Charlie Ross.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 8.—A young man requested sleeping quarters in the station house here last night, claims to have discovered himself to be the long-lost Charlie Ross. He is on his way to Philadelphia.

BLAINE IS IMPROVED

He Will Be Able to Be Out in a Day or Two.

THE SECRETARY IS UNNERVED.

Speaker Crisp Reported Better, But Doubt Expressed as to His Condition.

Ex-Governor Hill Sworn in as Senator—Yesterday's Doings in the House—Adjournment Till Next Week — Retaliatory Proclamation to Be Issued March 15—Other News from the Capital.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The apprehensions that the friends of Secretary Blaine have over his sudden attack have been somewhat allayed by the information given to those who called at his residence that the Secretary had been resting quietly all night and is very much improved. Mrs. Blaine receives nearly all callers and answers cheerfully questions concerning her husband's illness. From her account of the Secretary's illness, it is only temporary in its character, and her conversation leads hearers to believe that he will be up and about within a day or two.

The distinguished patient had little medical attendance yesterday. His physician, Dr. Hyatt, paid a visit and concluded that the Secretary needed rest more than medicine. From reliable sources it is learned that the alleged serious nature of the attack seems to be more imaginary than real. Mr. Blaine's long illness during last spring and summer has made him dread a recurrence of confinement, and this fear has unnerved him to such an extent that he looks on his present indisposition in a much more alarming light than his real condition warrants. The aim of his physician and his family at present is to disabuse his mind of the thought that his illness will result seriously, and beneficial effects are looked for from the rest which he has had.

RETALIATORY PROCLAMATION.

It Will be Issued March 15—Secretary Blaine's Notice.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 —The President's retaliatory proclamation under the reciprocity section of the tariff act will be issued on March 15. The Attorney General has given an opinion that the duties must attach and be collected on and after the date of the proclamation, and that a future day cannot be named by the President.

Secretary Blaine yssterday sent notes to the diplomatic representatives of Austria-Hungary, Colombia, Hayti, Nicaragua, Honduras, Spain, (Phillipine Islands) and Venezuela informing them that on March 15 next the President would issue his proclamation, unless in the mean time some satisfactory reciprocity arrangement should be made with the countries named, suspending the provisions of the tariff law relating to the free introduction into the United States of sugars, molasses, coffee, tea, and hides exported from such countries, and that on and after that date the duties fixed in section 3 of the tariff would be imposed.

The notice to Spain only applies to the Phillipine Islands. Negotiations with France and some other countries have recached such a stage as, in the opinion of the President, to warrant the Secretary of State in withholding notice to them of a proclamation affecting their products.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

That is What Speaker Crisp is Suffering From—Reported Better.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—It is impossible to get at the exact truth about the illness of Speaker Crisp. His physician states that he is rapidly improving and is all right, but he stated this two weeks ago, and denied the accuracy of the dispatch stating that the Speaker would not preside in the House.

The physician states that the Speaker has been suffering from a mere attack of the prevailing grip. It is rumored, however, that nervous exhaustion is the real name of the ailment, and that he is in such a weak state that his friends are seriously alarmed. Two or three times he has been threatened, and his son does not besitate to state that his father passed a very bad night.

Indeed, on Tuesday his lungs threatened to fill up, and the coughing spell brought on by the attempt to clear the passage left the patient utterly exhausted.

Mr. Crisp has now been in bed for two weeks, and the doctor says he must remain in the house for at least two weeks more.

It is perfectly clear that it is not so much the grip as the shock to the nervous and physical system following the long Speakership fight and the subsequent work in arranging the committees that has laid the Speaker low, and he will require a long time and careful nursing to recover his health and strength. It was stated this morning that Mr. Crisp is better than he was, but is still weak.

Senator Sherman on the Situation.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 8.—Senator Sherman passed thorugh Pittsburg last night on his way to Washington. In an interview the Senator said Blaine could have the nomination for President at the coming Republican Convention if he wanted it, but on account of his health it was a question whether he should accept it. Harrison should be the next choice as he gave the people a good, sound Republican administration. In regard to the Democratic nominee he thought Carlisle should be the Democratic candidate for President. Palmer of Illinois, he said, was most too old a man. He said his re-election to the Senate was at no time in doubt. He said Foraker had treated him very kindly.

Congress Will be Asked for $5,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Representative Durburrow, of Illinois, chairman of the World's Fair Committee of the House, returned to Washington from Chicago yesterday, and he makes the announcement that Congress will not be asked to loan $5,000,000 for the Exposition, but to appropriate that amount. Mr. Durburrow said that the $10,000,000 contributed was sufficient for the original plans of the Exposition, but these plans had been broadened in scope by the National Commission, and he thought it only fair that the additional expense should be borne by the Government.

GOV. RUSSELL INAUGURATED.

Some Legislative Reforms Suggested By His Message.

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—No business was done by the Legislature yesterday owing to the Gubernatorial inaugural ceremonies, which were of the simplest description.

Governor Russell urged the Legislature to reform its system of doing business. The present methods, in his opinion, are loose and unbusinesslike. He wanted a systematic revision of the appointive offices, the mode of appointment, the terms and the power of removal, making the administrative officers responsible to the people, and giving the Governor freeer power of appointing, disciplining and removing officials, making the Governor chief magistrate in fact as well as in name.

No measures of other than State matters were touched on. An act requiring the publication of candidates' expenses was recommended, with acts to cripple the lobby, to extend the powers of cities' self government, to uniform municipal law' to prohibit railways giving passes to legislators or other officials, to restrict the work of children and women and to provide for teaching manual labor in the public schools. He recommended an increase in the $75,000 for the World's Fair.

Colored Catholic Congress.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—At yesterday's session of the Colored Catholic Congress the committee report endorsing the founding of a national organization of colored Catholic societies with the view, among other objects, of the establishment of a fund for the building of churches and furnishing educational facilities among the race, was adopted and the name selected for the organization was St. Peters Claver's Benevolent Building and Loan Association. A letter of greeting from Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul, was read in which the Archbishop expressed his conviction that no distinction should be made as to color of pupils in parish schools.

Embezzlers Rearrested.

YORK, Pa., Jan. 7.—Michael Schall and James Danner, of the insolvent bank of Schall & Danner, were rearrested here yesterday on the oath of John B. Welsh, charged with the embezzlement and larceny of monies and securities to the value of about $2,000. This firm failed last March for $25,000. Their apparent assets were $3,700. Criminal suits ware instituted against them at the time, but the indictments were imperfect and were quashed in court last week. The arrests were made on new indictments. The defendants were placed under $2,500 bonds for a hearing on Monday.

Attack of Miners Expected Soon.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 8.—It is expected that the miners and rioters at Briceville will attack the troops, or rather guards, very soon. State officials declare that such a movement on the part of the miners will prove disastrous, and that the guards will be supported. Private advices to leading laboring men here show a spirit of anarchy existing, and the laboring element almost unanimously indorse the course of the miners.

Joaquin Miller's Son Sentenced.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—Harry Miller, son of Joaquin Miller, the poet, was sentenced yesterday to two years in San Quentin for stage robbery. He pleaded guilty, and the judge made his sentence as light as possible because of his youth and extenuating circumstances. After serving his term in San Quentin, young Miller will have to spend one year in the Oregon penitentiary, from which he escaped just before the robbery.

Gored to Death By a Bull.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 8. — Henry Gibbons, a well-known farmer living near this city, was gored to death yesterday by a vicious bull which he attempted to take from its stable. Gibbons was horribly mutilated by the horns of the infuriated animal, and his death was almost instantaneous.

Dvorak to Come to New York.

THE KANSAS FIGHT

Running Battle Between Desperadoes and Militia.

FOUR OUTLAWS SHOT DOWN.

News of a Desperate Battle is Momentarily Expected.

The Avengers of Sheriff Dunn Are Determined to Wipe Out Every One of His Murderers—More Threats Against Judge Botkin—Trouble Feared in Several Other Counties.

ARKALON, Kan., Jan. 8.—A courier just in from the south line of the State reports a running conflict between the fleeing desperadoes and an armed posse of pursuers. According to his report there are two wagons loaded with a lot of men participating in the canyon battle. They have been encamped in a gulch south of Springfield, where they were discovered. They saw their pursuers at the same moment, and then commenced the life and death race.

For ten miles the two parties were not within firing distance, but the pursuing party came within a quarter of a mile of the desperadoes about dark and a running fight was kept up for four miles on a level plain. Four men were seen to fall back in their wagons during one fusilade, but it is not known whether they were killed or wounded.

The pursuing party, finding their tired horses would not carry them further, made a detour of some half a mile to a ranch where they procured fresh horses, and the race was resumed. The courier started back from this point. He says the pursuing party, numbering fourteen men, would follow the desperadoes into No Man's land if necessary and bring them back dead or alive.

Another courier is hourly expected and with him news of a battle in which one or the other will be annihilated. It is learned the party killing Dunn, which numbered about fifty men, was made up of details from the counties of Seward, Stevens, Grant, Morton and Haskell. Threats have been made in each of these five counties that in case Judge Botkin attempts to open court in either he will be killed. The scenes in this county are feared in each of the other counties.

Botkin has wired the Governor again to send 100 stands of arms. He also wants the troops kept here for three weeks and the county placed under martial law.

Gen. Roberts has telegraphed to the Governor for instructions on this point.

Several more arrests have been made.

Word has been received here that an attempt will be made to rescue the prisoners, upon receipt of which Judge Botkins ordered that they be shot before they were surrendered.

Company P started for Springfield in wagons yesterday to aid Deputy Sheriff Larrabee if necessary in serving thirty warrants for arrests. Company E remained here to guard the prisoners and to be ready to repel any attack which may be made on Arkalon.

Boston Merchants' Association Dinner.

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—The annual dinner of the Boston Merchants' Association was held at the Hotel Vendme last night. Secretary Blaine's representative, ex-Congressman Burrough's of Michigan, was the guest of the evening, and delivered an address on "Reciprocity." Other prominent guests were Senor Don Matias Romero, the Mexican Minister; Senor Don Nicavor Bolel Paraza, the Venezuelan Minister; Senor N. Bolet Monagas of Venezuela, Hon. William E. Curtis of the Bureau of American Republics, Washington, and ex-Postmaster-General Thomas L. James of New York.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 8.—Six boilers in two batteries at the Braddock Wire Works, Rankin Station, exploded last night, instantly killing Peter Zimmerman, the engineer; seriously injuring James Carpenter, the fireman, and slightly hurting about a dozen other employes. The works were partially wrecked. The cause of the explosion is not known. Zimmerman was 28 years old and unmarried.

St. John the First Choice.

EXCITEMENT IN LONDON.

Reported Occupation of an African Town by British Causes a Scare.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—The Stock Exchange yesterday was in a state of wild excitement owing to a very warlike rumor. This report, as spread, was to the effect that the British war vessels at Tangier had landed a force of blue jackets and marines at that place.

It was added that the French admiral there had given the British admiral notice that France gave England twenty-four hours in which to re-embark her landing party, and if it was not done at the expiration of that time the French fleet would attack the British warships.

Inquiries made at the Admiralty and at the foreign office failed to obtain a confirmation or a denial of the news, but the report spread with marvelous rapidity, and soon was the crazy topic of London.

The report, though discredited on all sides, caused a most dangerous feeling in the stock market.

Advices from West Africa this morning state that the British warship Races landed a body of marines to make a night attack upon a town in Gambia named Marige, held by a chief who for some time has been annoying the settlements by frequent raids. The marines effected a complete surprise. They destroyed the town, but the chief managed to escape. In the attack one marine was wounded. The town attacked was within territory claimed by Great Britain.

Stover Still Pleads Sickness.

The case of J. A. Demarest vs Rowland M. Stover came up before the circuit court at Elizabeth this morning. Stover's counsel presented two certificates from Dr. Chauncey M. Field, stating that Stover was sick and unable to attend trial. Counselor Craig A. Marsh for Mr. Demarest said that it looked as though Stover was going to be "sick" every time a date for trial was set, and asked that his deposition be taken at his home. After argument, the court decided to place the case on the bottom of the list for trial at the present term.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over 5 years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely; it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the used one above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Ct.

HYMENEAL.

Ackerman—Wills.

HAPPIER event Plainfield has never seen, than the very charming wedding which took place in Grace Protestant Episcopal church, last evening, when Miss Saidee Myers Wills became the bride of Marion Smith Ackerman. The ceremony was performed under a large floral bell, at the front of the church, by the Rev. Dr E. M. Rodman, in the presence of a throng of people representing the wealth, beauty and culture of Plainfield.

The church altar was tastefully decorated with a profusion of ascension lilies and other rare white blossoms, deftly intermingled with the graceful smilax. The bridal party entered to the wedding march played on the grand church organ by Mrs. William A. Freeman, and the processional "Rejoice, Ye Pure in Heart", sung by the surpliced boy choir of the church, who, singing as they marched, had previously taken their places in the church. When the wedding party had reached the chancel steps and the bride and groom had plighted their troth, the choir sang beautifully the "Gloria". Then the bride and groom, attended by the best man and the maid of honor, and preceded by the page, ascended the chancel steps to the rail, and there knelt, on a richly embroidered satin and velvet cushion, placed by the page, to receive the blessing. The choir sang as a recession the anthem "Deign This Union to Approve".

A very pretty feature of the wedding march was the alternation of the bridesmaids and ushers, in pairs. First were two bridesmaids, then two ushers, then again two bridesmaids, and so on; then the maid of honor and the page, then the rest of the bridal party. The bridesmaids were six of Plainfield's own sweet maidens—Miss Marion Dumont, Miss Gertrude Walz, Miss Annie Cooke, Miss Margaret Tracy, Miss Katheryn Yates, and Miss Margaret Yates. Their costumes were of yellow silk, and they carried bunches of rare ascension roses, tied with yellow ribbons.

The maid of honor, Miss Fannie Cox, looked handsome in a costume of white crepe de chine, and the bride was radiant and altogether lovely in a gown of white satin, richly embroidered with pearls. Master Roy Cox made a charming page, clad in black velvet and point-lace.

The bride was given away by her father, Frederick N. Wills. The best man was Ernest R. Ackerman, councilman, brother of the groom. The ushers were Evarts Tracy, Duncan Morgan, and Edward Van Buren, all of Plainfield; John Grierson and Townsend Morgan, of New York; and Charles Dumont, of Brooklyn.

The wedding was altogether one of the prettiest social happenings of the current season. After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents on LaGrande avenue. As the two families are among the most prominent in Plainfield the reception would have been a most fashionable event, but the recent sudden death of the bride's grandfather, the Rev. John Wills, of Barnstable, Mass., necessitated the attendance being restricted to relatives.

The bride's father is one of the best known insurance officials of New York city. The groom is the son of the late J. Hervey Ackerman, who was one of New York's leading lawyers, and who in his lifetime served both as councilman and as city judge in Plainfield. The groom's uncle, Warren Ackerman, of Scotch Plains, is one of the wealthiest men in New Jersey, and owns the largest cement works of the country.

Any who are interested in Bible study cannot but be profited by hearing Mr. Walker's lectures. The admission will be free, but a collection will be taken at the lecture's close.

Two Women Thrown Out by a Runaway Horse.

A horse driven by Mrs. James C. Manning of Albert street ran away on Park avenue this morning, collided with Holmes's express wagon, upset the sleigh to which it was attached, and threw out both Mrs. Manning and a young woman who was driving with her. The women were unhurt. The express wagon had a spring broken.

ADJUSTING AN OLD CHURCH DEBT.

Pastor Dilts Tells His People This Wrong Must Be Righted Or He Will Have to Resign.

At a meeting held in the Park Avenue Baptist church last night, the pastor, the Rev. Asa Reed Dilts, pointed out to the congregation a wrong of which he strongly urged the righting. In fact, Mr. Dilts was so urgent in his pastoral advice that he announced that unless the church set an example of Christian uprightness in a long-disputed matter, he would of necessity be compelled to hand in his resignation as pastor.

When the Park Avenue church was built, alterations made in the original plans necessitated the expenditure of about $12,000 more than had at first been intended the church should cost. By what has been termed "sharp practice" the payment of about $800 of this money was avoided. The builders, Messrs. William D. Stewart and Charles Stimpson, are said to have signed a receipt in full for payment made by the church officers when the church was completed, so that it now is claimed that they have no legal right to any further payment.

It has been said that the church though not legally responsible for the $800 should show a desire to give full measure and running over for all that it received. The Rev. Mr. Dilts has believed for some time that the money should be paid, or at least that some adjustment should be made, in a Christian spirit, of the claim. It was but a demonstration of honest and Christian dealing, he held, for the church to recognize the alleged debt. The question was not a legal one, but entirely a moral one.

It is but fair to the builders to say that they have not pressed their claims.

At last night's meeting the Rev. Mr. Dilts earnestly asked the church to act with him in righting a wrong. He urged that the spiritual welfare of the church demanded that no stain of any kind should exist against it. For a healthful spiritual growth the church itself must set an example to be emulated with profit by the members of the congregation.

There were no dissensions at this meeting—no unpleasant controversies. The words of good advice delivered by the pastor were received with respectful and kindly feelings by his people. At the close of his remarks the church voted to bring the disputed matter up for consideration before a business meeting of the church to be held within a few days. That the matters will be adjusted in an honorable way no one can doubt who knows of the close affection that binds together the pastor and people of this church.

The question under settlement is not one that in any way affects the church finances. Those are in better condition than ever before, and the church is flourishing finely. The matter has to do more with the spiritual welfare of the church, and pastor Dilts has had it on his mind some time to ask for adjustment of the affair, which had been lying dormant, but will now be settled without discord and with credit to the church.

PRESIDENT SPENCER RE-INSTALLED.

Interesting Annual Meeting of the Reform Club—Good Advice by Dr. Lewis.

The installation services at Reform Hall last evening were well attended. The Rev. Dr. Honeyman conducted the devotional exercises. Music was given by the choir, consisting of Mr. Vanderbeek and Mr. and Mrs. King. After the usual routine business, the newly elected officers were duly installed. On being conducted to the platform, president Spencer said: "Brother members of the Reform club, I thank you for this mark of esteem you have shown, by re-electing me to the presidency of this club. I feel that I am no more entitled to this position than a great many others who have proved faithful to their pledges. I take a deep interest in this club, not only for what it has done for me, but for what it has done for so many others, and what it is capable of doing for others who are to-day in the position we were eight years ago. In regard to the pledge"—he continued—"I have not relied upon my own strength. There has not a day passed since I signed the pledge that I have not thanked God that He aided me in signing it—and prayed Him to assist me in keeping it; and with His aid and an earnest effort on my part, I have been able to stand firmly. I believe that God will help those who try to help themselves."

The first vice-president, John S. King, was next conducted to the platform, and in appropriate remarks thanked the club for the honor conferred on him. He was followed by the second vice-president, T. B. Crossley, in his usual logical and humorous style which was well received by the audience. Treasurer J. D. Spicer was next introduced. After tendering sincere thanks for the honor conferred, he followed with some excellent advice to the club and its patrons. Recording secretary W. B. Ayers on being conducted to the platform accepted his position with well-timed remarks. Financial secretary J. W. A. Bauersachs was the next official presented, and his remarks were very creditable to him. First marshal, Capt. Wm. C. Smith was then presented, and in fitting words related some of his experiences subsequent to and before he signed the pledge, drawing comparisons which were very significant, in reflecting the sunlight of a sober life on the shadow of the past.

The Rev. Dr. Lewis, who had kindly consented to be present if possible, was then introduced, and in his fluent manner made exceedingly appropriate suggestions to the club, dwelling upon the practicability of individual work, and recommending a rescue committee to look after those who had violated their pledges and other work in that line—all of which will receive consideration at the hands of the club.

The president appointed the following:

Chaplain—The Rev. W. E. Honeyman.

Executive committee—A. Vanderbeek, Judge W. R. Codington, Jacob Voehl, E. P. Williams, Capt. Wm. C. Smith.

Finance committee—Judge Nathan Harper, S. F. Hoffman, J. D. Whiting.

These were unanimously confirmed by the club. The services were closed by singing by the choir and the benediction by the chaplain.

FATAL SHOOTING MATCH.

Forrest Hyatt Loses His Life at the Hands of a Friend.

John H. McVey, of 11 North avenue, attended the funeral, Wednesday, of a relative who was accidentally killed in a shooting match at Milburn's hotel, Pattenberg, New Year's day.

At the match many sportsmen were present and took part in the friendly contest. All went well until about 3 p. m., when a most deplorable accident occurred. Theo. Stamets was standing with his rifle in his hand when Forrest Hyatt, the 15-year-old son of the pastor of the Bethlehem Baptist church, who was also present at the match, playfully took hold of the weapon, when in some unaccountable manner the gun was discharged, the bullet striking young Hyatt below the left eye and coming out of his head near the temple. The eyeball was forced from the socket and hung down over his cheek. As he was picked up he said "Let me lie." He did not speak after this, and was carried into the hotel, and Drs. Little, Boileau and Knight were summoned, but the young boy rapidly sank and died at 8 p. m.

County physician Ewing took charge of the case and gave permission for the removal of the body to the home of the Rev. Mr. Hyatt, who is first cousin of Mr. McVey. After the accident the hotel bar was closed and the shooting match stopped.

Young Hyatt was home on his holiday vacation, he having been engaged in Philadelphia learning dentistry. He was a very bright boy, and had many friends, and this sudden and terrible end of a young life has cast a deep shadow on the community. The father of the boy was absent from home at the time of the sad occurrence, and the shock to him and the family was most terrible.

The funeral took place in the Bethlehem Baptist church Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the body was taken to Hightstown for burial yesterday.

OBITUARY.

B. C. Hollingsworth.

The death occurred at Scotch Plains, Wednesday, of B. C. Hollingsworth, brother of Loftus Hollingsworth of the fur-manufacturing firm of Harper, Hollingsworth & Darby. He was 45 years of age.

Funeral services will be held Saturday morning, at 9, at the residence of Loftus Hollingsworth. Interment will be at Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

James E. Hedges.

James E. Hedges died last night at his home, No. 171 Stiles street, Elizabeth, from pneumonia. He was born near Basking Ridge, northwest of this city, in 1825, and began life as a poor boy in New York city. He became a partner in the shoe establishment of Miller, Powers & Hedges in Murray street. The firm's name was afterwards changed to Powers & Hedges.

He was a stockholder in the Elizabeth First National bank and founded the Elizabethport Glue works. He was a member of the advisory committee of the Elizabeth orphan asylum. In politics he was a stalwart Republican and some years ago was his party's candidate for Mayor of Elizabeth, and once ran for county clerk against the late James Vosseller of this city.

He Wanted It Lively.

He was an old bachelor looking for board.

"Is it pretty lively here?" he asked, as the landlady was showing him about.

"I should just say it was. Now, if you take this room, there's a man and his wife on the right. They're always quarreling, and you can hear every word that is said."

"That must be interesting."

"And on the left there's a young man that is learning to play the cornet. He practices half the time. And the family across the hall have a melodeon. I have a piano myself and a girl upstairs is learning the violin. I think you will find it lively here."

But he said if there wasn't a xylophone and a calliope in the house he wouldn't take the room. He was afraid he would be lonesome.—Detroit Free Press.

He Showed Her.

They had been sitting in silence for some time; the clock was slowly dragging its hands to the points that would mark 11. She had yawned, fidgeted, and so forth, several times, but he did not seem to catch on, as the seminary girls have it. At length she said:

"Do you know any slang phrases, George?"

"Well, yes, I believe so," he said, rather surprised at the question.

"What is meant by 'getting a move on you'?"

George looked at her fixedly for a moment. Then he said he would give her an imitation of the slang, and she was alone.—N. Y. Press.

A RARE DRAMATIC TREAT.

Full Details of the Entertainment to be Given at the Casino by the Park Club.

As has previously been announced in these columns, a dramatic performance of rare interest will be given under the auspices of the Park club of North Plainfield, Thursday evening, Jan. 21, in the Casino. The club has been fortunate in securing the services of the leading amateur actors in New York, who will co-operate with local players in a joint performance which should prove most enjoyable. Three pieces will be given, the first being a delicate little play, entitled "A Game of Cards", which will be acted by members of New York's principal amateur organization, the well-known Amateur Comedy club. Those who will appear in this charming little piece have already given it more than a score of times—Messrs. Evert Jansen Wendell, Harry S. Blake, Grenville James and Miss Alice G. Cleather. Messrs. Wendell and Blake are leaders of amateur theatricals in New York, the latter being well known in Plainfield in connection with the "Esmeralda" performances.

In friendly competition for the favor of the audience, a cast composed of members of the Footlight club, of New York, will next present a farcical comedy in one act, "My Lord in Livery", a piece in which they too, have had the advantage of frequent appearances, and in which they have had a pronounced success. Miss Mildred Eytinge, the leading member of the cast in the Footlight club's contribution to the programme, is a beautiful young woman, who has been remarkably successful in her efforts on the amateur stage. She will be well supported by J. R. Blake, brother of Harry S. Blake, and by other leading members of the club.

The closing dramatic feature will be the famous English farce, bustling with uproarious jollity and action, "The Belle of the Kitchen". In this the part of the coquettish "belle of the kitchen", Penelope, will be taken by Mrs. William L. Saunders. A. Eustace Fordon, Harry Sargent and William L. Saunders will impersonate the male characters in this laughable piece, in which they originally appeared in December, 1881, as members of the Criterion club, of New York. The part of Mrs. Croaker, a typical London landlady, will be taken on this occasion by Miss Maude Agnes Bowers, whose talents are well known in Plainfield and whose popularity is widespread.

Evert Jansen Wendell, who is famous as an entertainer in this line, will give comic ditties between the plays. Mr. Wendell's picture was recently given a prominent place in Scribner's Magazine, representing him singing before a New York audience.

The complete programme of the evening will be as follows:

A comedietta, in one act, from the French, entitled:

"A GAME OF CARDS."

Chevalier de Rochferrier, an impoverished nobleman............Evert Jansen Wendell
Anatole, his son, a student of medicine, Grenville James
M. Mercier, a retired drygoods merchant, Harry S. Blake
Rosa, his daughter, betrothed to Anatole, Miss Alice G. Cleather

A comedy-sketch, in one act, as arranged by Miss Rosina Vokes:

"MY LORD IN LIVERY."

Lord Thirlmere, of H. M. S. "Phlegethon", Joseph G. Lamb
Spigott, the butler, whose nerves are shaky, James S. Cushman, jr
Hopkins, the new footman, John Reginald Blake
Robert, the page, a youthful hero in the face of danger.....................John A. Wilson
Sybil, daughter of Sir George Amberley, Miss Mildred Eytinge
Laura, Rose } her friends... { Mrs. L. L. Jackson, Miss Blanche Gregory

Interlude-Comic Ditties-Evert Jansen Wendell

The bustling farce, in one act, entitled:

"THE BELLE OF THE KITCHEN."

Penelope, the Belle of the Kitchen, Mrs. William L. Saunders
Mrs. Croaker, the dreaded Missus! Miss Maude Agnes Bowers
Tosser, a soldier, one of the Queen's Own, A. Eustace Fordon
Pitcher, a London policeman, from Dublin, H. Sargent
Walker Chalks, a milkman, William L. Saunders

It was originally intended to hold this entertainment in the new hall of the Park club, as a formal opening of the building, but the interest in the performance is so great that the capacity of the hall is not sufficient for the purpose, hence the Casino of the Union County Country club has been chosen. The seating capacity of the Casino is limited to 500. Tickets may be had of William L. Saunders, secretary of the Park club. There will be no reserved seats. No tickets will be sold at the door. The managers of the entertainment are as follows:

George P. Dupee,	B. A. Hegeman, jr.,
W. J. Roome,	Geo. C. Evans,
H. A. McGee,	Aug. VanDeventer,
W. W. Howland,	Sam. St. J. McCutchen,
Sam'l Townsend,	Morgan S. Taylor,
Geo. T. Rogers,	Chas. A. Reed,
W. L. Saunders.

THE COLORED PATTI.

She Enchants Her Newark Audiences Just as She Captivated That in Plainfield.

Mme. M. Sissieretta Jones, of Providence, R. I., who made such a success in a recent concert in this city, was the star of a concert given at the Young Men's Christian association hall in Newark, Wednesday night, under the auspices of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Colored Third Congregational church. She was assisted by members of the society.

Mme. Jones is styled the "Colored Patti". As demonstrated in her selections Wednesday night, she has a soprano voice of a highly pleasing quality, wide range and thorough cultivation. She sang Pattison's waltz song with great brilliancy of execution. The power and flexibility of her voice, as well as its scope and excellent quality, were given an opportunity for display in this selection, and the opportunity was fully taken advantage of, to the delight of the audience. But what was more to the taste of her hearers, because of its pure melody and sweet sentiment, was "The Suwanee River". This took the house by storm.

The singer was encored four and five times for each of the two numbers she was down in the programme for. She makes a striking figure on the stage. She was dressed becomingly in black silk, but her bosom was literally covered with the decorations conferred upon her in her tours through Central America and the West Indies. She has been in these regions several times. One of the most valuable of these decorations consists of four coins, American, Spanish, Danish and English. In the centre is a big diamond, and at the junction of the coins are four pearls. This was the gift of the Mayor of St. Thomas. A souvenir of a memorable occasion is a large gold medal with two diamonds upon it. This was conferred upon the singer one New Year's night in Cape Hayti; its large music hall was crowded to the doors, and all the notabilities of the island in the gorgeous trappings of the equatorial regions were present to hear the "Colored Patti". That was not long ago, just before the convulsion which nearly unseated Hippolyte, and when the President stepped upon the stage to make the presentation to the "Black Patti", as the medal puts it, a resounding cheer arose.

Other decorations, all of them gold, are from Sir Charles Lee, the Governor of the Barbadoes, from the American residents of Colon, Aspinwall; from the people of Dutch Guiana, of Port au Spain and from Providence friends. This last was conferred at her appearance for the Parnell Defence Fund, April 4, 1889. Under the bar is a pendant bearing a lyre and depending from this by gold links a medal upon which is engraved a scroll of music. Although not the most valuable, it is, perhaps, the prettiest of all the decorations. Besides these Mme. Jones has a tiara, presented in Georgetown, Demarara. It contains three stars, in the centre of which are three diamonds. Altogether the medals and presents are valued at $3,000.

Mme. Jones, although a native of the United States, has not yet made a tour of this country. She will appear again at Newark in the latter part of the month for the benefit of the same church, and it is hoped will favor Plainfield again with her singing before she leaves for distant cities.

BOB MEEKER WILL SPEAK.

Plainfield's Street Commissioner to Inform the State Convention About the Need of Engineering Skill in Road Building.

A State road convention is called under the auspices of the State board of agriculture, to meet in the State House, Supreme court room, at 2 p. m., January 21. Able and well informed speakers have been engaged as follows:

The Value of Good Roads—Dr. James C. Mackenzie, Lawrenceville, N. J.

European vs. American Roads—Hon. Thos. Dudley, Camden, N. J.

Location and Building of Roads—General Elias Wright, C. E., Atlantic City, N. J.

Need of Engineering Skill in Permanent Road Building—Robert A. Meeker, C. E., Plainfield, N. J.

Suggestions from Experience and Observation in Road Building—Chauncey B. Ripley, LL. D., Westfield, N. J.

Construction and Repair of Country Roads—James Owen, C. E., Newark, N. J.

Cost of Maintaining Roads under present methods, compared with proposed plans, and State Aid necessary in Building Leading Roads—Judge Alfred Reed, Trenton, N. J., and Clayton Conrow, Esq., Moorestown, N. J.

Incongruity and Inefficiency of Existing Road Laws—Ex-Judge Wm. M. Lanning, Trenton, N. J.

The convention is called in the hope of evolving some plan for permanent improvement of the public highways of the State; for such a general expression of views as will lead to and suggest needed legislation; and, if thought best, to organize a permanent State road improvement association. There will be committees appointed as may be deemed necessary. The convention will hold two sessions on the Thursday, and continue into the following day if found advisable.

—The great council of New Jersey of the Improved Order of Red men will have a district session to-morrow, at the wigwam of Opechee Tribe, 92, at Elizabeth. Delegations from Newark, Plainfield and Orange will attend the meeting.

Do not consult anybody, but invest 25 cents in a bottle of Salvation Oil. It kills pain!

When we reflect that so many human beings die of consumption we must come to the conclusion that everybody should be provided with Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, the poor consumptive's friend.

How to Run a Household.

Table Talk for January is full of seasonable good things, spread out before the housewife by Mrs. Rorer in her own practical style. To run a household in a manner economical, and at the same time satisfactory to the demands of even an epicurean stomach, is not, one would think, an altogether easy task. Yet this is what Mrs. Rorer asserts can be done, and the province of her magazine is to show and teach exactly how it can be done. That Table Talk is quite equal to the task would seem verified by its years of popularity and success. Published by the Table Talk Publishing Co., 1113 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. $1 a year; 10c single copy.

Inferior Goods.

The only safe way for purchasers is to insist on having the genuine article, and not allow themselves to be swindled by having plasters said to be "just as good," or "containing superior ingredients," imposed upon them. These are only tricks to sell inferior goods that no more compare with ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS than copper does with gold. One trial of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS will convince the most skeptical of their merits.

The eminent Henry A. Mott, jr., Ph.D., F. C. S., late Government Chemist, certifies:

"My investigation of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER show it to contain valuable and essential ingredients not found in any other plaster, and I find it superior to and more efficient than any other plaster."

Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

THE KHEDIVE'S DEATH.

Believed That France Will Insist Upon the Appointment of a Regency.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—The death of the Khedive of Egypo has created an enormous sensation throughout France and particularly in this city.

It is believed that France will take this opportunity of reopening the whole Egyptian question and that she will insist upon the appointment of a Regency with a French representation in such Regency.

England, it is thought, will probably insist that Prince Abbas, the eldest son of the late Khedive, is old enough to reign, or, should England not take that course, it is inferred that she will advocate the appointment of a Council of Regency with Sir Evelyn Barring the British Agent, Consul General and Minister Plenipotentiary in Egypt, as the presiding officer of such a body.

It is generally admitted, even here, that at this stage of the Eastern question the influence of the late Sir William White, the last British Ambassador to the Porte, had with the Sultan, would have been invaluable.

In any case, the situation in the Mediterranean, in Morocco and in Egypt is a dangerous one and will need great care and fine diplomacy to avert a clash of arms.

Conflicting stories are in circulation here as to the cause of the Khedive's death. Apoplexy, and not influenza, is the disease which is most referred to here as having struck down the ruler of Egypt.

Mohammed Tewfik Pacha was just past 39 years of age. He succeeded his deposed father, Ismail Pacha, in 1879. The heir apparent is Tewfik's son, Abbas Bey, who was born in 1874. Egypt is to some extent subject to Turkey.

The succession of a minor, Abbas Bey, to the throne of Egypt, will make the British occupation more important than ever. The British have occupied Egypt upon the pretext that the native government is unable to maintain order and keep off foreign aggression.

It is well known, however, that one reason for the presence of British arms is the importance of making Egypt pay the interest on her bonds, large quantities of which are held in England. The French believe that England means to possess herself of the country.

Suit Against Lottery Officers Dismissed.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 8.—President Conrad, of the Louisiana Lottery Company, and all the other officers and directors in that company who were arrested for alleged violation of the anti-lottery postal law found against them by the grand jury of Martinsburg, W. Va., were arraigned in the United States Court yesterday, where the case against them was dismissed at the request of United States District Attorney Grant. In explanation Mr. Grant said he had been advised to suspend all proceedings against the lottery officials until further orders.

Prominent Scranton Man Dead.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 8.—Hon. Lewis Pugh, ex-assemblyman, died yesterday afternoon, aged 72 years. Typhoid and pneumonia, originating in the grip, caused his death. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1873, and presidential elector from Pennsylvania for Hayes in 1877 and for Harrison in 1888. He was the organizer of the Scranton Board of Trade.

Officials Say It Was Accidental.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Jan. 8.—The report that an attempt was made to wreck the Buffalo express in the Perkasie tunnel for the purpose of robbing the pay car is denied by the officials of the North Penn railroad. They explain that the rock which damaged the tender as the train was going through the tunnel fell on the track in an accidental manner and was not put there by design.

"Seeing is Believing."

And a good lamp must be simple; when it is not simple it is not good. Simple, Beautiful, Good—these words mean much, but to see "The Rochester" will impress the truth more forcibly. All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. Like Aladdin's of old, it is indeed a "wonderful lamp," for its marvelous light is purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light and more cheerful than either.

Look for this stamp—THE ROCHESTER. If the lamp dealer hasn't the genuine Rochester, and the style you want, send to us for our new illustrated catalogue, and we will send you a lamp safely by express—your choice of over 2,000 varieties from the Largest Lamp Store in the World.

THE CRUISER DETROIT.

One of the Most Interesting Ships of Uncle Sam's New Navy.

The first one of three 2,000-ton steel cruisers authorized by congress in 1889 was launched at Baltimore October 28, 1890, from the ways of the Columbian Iron Works and Dry Dock Company. She had been previously known as No. 10, but was christened the Detroit, being classified as second-rate, the law requiring such vessels to receive the names of cities, although the people of Baltimore had desired to have her named North Point, in honor of the battle fought there in 1814. Of the other two vessels authorized by congress at the same time, one is being built at the Columbian iron works and the other at Boston. The launch was in every way a success.

The Detroit's keel was laid March 16, 1890, and her cost is to be $612,500, exclusive of armament. She is 257 feet long on the load water line, has an extreme breadth of 37 feet, with a mean normal draught of 14½ feet. Her engines are designed to give her a speed of 18 knots. She is almost identical in displacement with the two Chilian cruisers recently built in France. Congress limited the cost of each of these three vessels to $700,000 for a guaranteed speed of 17 knots. An allowance of $100,000 will be made on each vessel should 18 knots be made. The Detroit has what is termed an open gun deck, the poop and forecastle decks being connected by a bridge extending fore and aft. There is extended through the principal part of the vessel a center-line vertical bulkhead, which not only helps to support the water-tight deck, but adds "backbone" to the vessel.

Especially interesting is the cofferdam protection along the entire machinery space, which is to be filled with cellulose. Cellulose is manufactured from the fibers of cocoanut husks and has the property of absorbing eight times its weight of water. The French government proved by tests that ships built with a lining of cellulose would be practically unsinkable. There will be 500 cubic feet of cellulose in the cofferdams in the Detroit.

BRAVE MISS HAYS.

The Exploit for Which She Was Rewarded by the British Humane Society.

Addicombe is a small unfrequented bay on the English coast, comparatively unknown to the public. Miss Blanche Hays is a pretty English girl, daughter of a Kensington solicitor, and, like hundreds of other fair English maidens, was unknown outside of her own immediate circle of friends. But last summer at Addicombe Miss Hays and Miss Saunders, her friend, were bathing together on the beach, which, a little ways from shore, shelves down precipitously several feet. Miss Saunders, after taking a few steps, suddenly found herself out of her depth and shouted for help. No one was near except her slender girl companion, who plunged into the water and swam out swiftly to rescue her friend. This was not an easy matter, for Miss Saunders is much heavier than Miss Hays, and she made the common mistake of seizing her rescuer around the throat instead of around the waist. The drowning girl was brought to shore. There were few persons on the beach at the time, and they were not near the girls, and Miss Hays supposed the event unnoticed. But the story of the rescue was told from one to another until it eventually reached the Royal Humane society, which presented her with one of its much-prized testimonials. The gift takes the form of an album, in which is inclosed a parchment document bearing a record of the heroic deed. Miss Hays learned to swim when a child and is now teaching her friend, whose life she so courageously saved.

MISS BLANCHE HAYS.

Married a Perfect Stranger.

In the diaries of the late Mr. Cope, R. A., the following story is given as told by his sister-in-law: She met a farmer friend and said to him: "I hear, John, that you're lately married; who is your wife?" "Weel, Miss Benning, I doan't quite know!" "How so? Where did you meet with her?" "Aweel, you see, miss, I went t' market, and as I was going I seed a canny lass warking along t' road, and I says: 'Will ye git oop and ride?' 'Aye,' says she. So she gat oop, and I asked her: 'Are ye gaugin' to t' market?' 'Aye,' says she. 'What for?' says I. 'To git a plaace,' says she. So I set her down i' t' market and left her; and as I came back i' t' evening there was this same lass warking t' saame way oop hill. So I spak' to her again, and axed her: 'Ha' ye gotten yer plaace?' 'Nay,' says she, 'I hanna.' 'Will ye git oop and ride?' 'Aye,' says she. So she got oop, and I axed her: 'D'ye think my plaace would suit ye?' 'What plaace is that?' says she. 'Why, to be my wife,' says I. 'I doan't mind,' says she. So we got wed, and she's a rare good wife, but she's a parfect straanger to me."

Asylum for Epileptics.

The Ohio State Asylum for Epileptics, now in course of erection at Gallipolis, is the first institution of its kind in this country. Of the large number of epileptics in Ohio about 1,000 are expected to enter the new asylum.

Arithmetic and Dresses.

Teacher—If your mother had twenty-five yards of stuff, and made a dress requiring but eighteen yards, how much would she have left?

Little Girl—Mamma can't make her own dresses. She has tried often, and they are always either too—

Teacher—Suppose she sent it to a dressmaker, how much would the dressmaker send back?

Little Girl—Depends on which dressmaker she sent it to. Some wouldn't send back any.

Teacher (impatiently)—Suppose she sent it to an honest one?

Little Girl—Some of the honestest ones cut things to waste so that there is never anything left, no matter how much you send 'em.—Good News.

Vengeance!

"And now," whispered the dying wife, "when I am gone, John, dear, don't grieve at my loss, but get married again, for the children need some one to look after them, and—"

"O, don't, May, don't" pleaded the sorrowful husband, "don't speak of it!"

"But I must," said she. "And if you get married, marry Miss Mayberly."

"I will, May, if you think she would make me a good wife."

"That's not it," she said, and her breath came fast and faint, "but when she won the prize for making the best bread, I swore I'd get even with her and make her life unhappy, and—and you can do it, John!"—Boston News.

Not That Kind of a Relic.

The widow of a distinguished professor was visited by a rather shabby-genteel sort of a gentleman, who expressed great admiration for her deceased husband and who finally said:

"I revere the memory of your husband, and would like very much to have some relic to keep and cherish."

"The only relic I can offer you," replied the disconsolate widow, sighing heavily, "is myself. If you will love and cherish me for his sake you may, for I am of an affectionate disposition and—"

But the relic hunter had silently stolen away before she could finish the sentence.—Texas Siftings.

He Didn't Lie.

Father—Look here, young man, give an account of yourself. What kept you out so late last night?

Son—I was attending a class in ethnology, and of course I didn't want to leave till the session was over.

"What do you want to lie, for? I have positive knowledge that you were at the bicycle tournament. Good deal of ethnology about that, eh?"

"Certainly. That comes under the head of 'the races of man,' don't it?"—Boston Courier.

HOW HE GOT IT.

Famished Finnegan (politely)—Young lady, would yer please ax yer mother if she can't give a poor man a bit of cold luncheon?

Miss Witherupp (aged thirty-eight)—Sit right down here, poor fellow! I'll get you some myself.—Judge.

A Give-Away.

Judge—Officer, you say this woman, when locked up, was dressed in men's attire?

Officer—Yes, sir; but I didn't suspect her sex until this morning, when she was buttoning her shoes.

Judge—How did you detect it then?

Officer—She asked me for a hairpin!—Puck.

Dressed in Style.

Western Stage Robber—Hold up y'r hands!

Scared Passengers—Yes, yes, yes, of course.

Robber (gallantly) — Beg parding, lady; you needn't hold yours up. Put 'em down again.

Lady—My hands are not up. Those are my shoulder puffs.—N. Y. Weekly.

Right, After All.

Codling—Look here, Mawler, you pretend to be a realistic painter and yet in this picture you have a stream in oil colors instead of putting it in water colors.

Mawler—That's all right, Codling. The stream in that picture is Oil creek, in Venango county, Pa.—Brooklyn Life.

In the Snake Ward.

Dr. Burridge—How do you feel this morning?

Snoozer (the tramp)—Pretty comf'table, doc.; but I wisht you'd let science have a rap at me.

Dr. Burridge—How?

Snoozer—Jest try that oppyration fer th' transfusion of beer.—Judge.

Horizontal Longevity.

"Are boa-constrictors remarkable for longevity?"

"Indeed they are. Some of them grow to be thirty or forty feet long."—Brooklyn Life.

"Comrades! Comrades!"

"Comrades! Comrades!"—he sang in the eventide.
The lights were low—I dealt him a blow,
And "he died right by my side."
—Puck.

Faithful Unto Death.

She—Has she treated you falsely and broken off the engagement?

He—No; that's the trouble. She keeps her engagements—all of them, you know.—Judge.

Only One Place for Him.

Prominent Politician—I have done a good many favors for you, and now I'd like you to put a friend of mine on your paper?

Great Editor—Would he do for a reporter?

"No, he hasn't any legs."

"Um —might make an exchange editor, perhaps?"

"He couldn't read the newspapers. He's blind."

"Poor fellow! Can he hear?"

"No, deaf as a post. He is a fine writer, though, and he has a lively imagination."

"Good! I will appoint him London correspondent."—Good News.

A Matter of Money.

"I congratulate you, Julia, on your approaching marriage," said Mr. Hyatt, a prominent New York merchant, to his daughter.

"Marriage, pa? I don't know anything about it."

"I am telling you about it now," replied Mr. Hyatt.

"But who is the bridegroom, pa?" asked Julia.

"That's none of your business. You must not have so much curiosity. That is a business secret that cannot be divulged just now. I'll let you know who he is after the wedding is over."—Texas Siftings.

STILL IN IT.

Bill Guthrie—Say, mister, what's the name of this yer town?

Mr. Jackson Park—This is Chicago.

Bill Guthrie—Chicago yet? A man told me two days ago I was in Chicago, and I've been drivin' right along.

Mr. Jackson Park—That's right.—Puck.

Noble.

"That was a sacrifice."

"What?"

"Barton wouldn't go bathing at Seabright because he didn't want people to know he had a cork leg; but when a girl who'd snubbed him was thought to be drowning Barton took the leg off and threw it out to her. It saved her life."—Judge.

Husband—Caroline, you know you were in the wrong about that lawsuit you lost. Come back to me and let us be happy once more.

Wife—No; I won't do it until you admit that I was entitled to a divorce.—Judge.

KEEPING HIS OATH

Chas. Quackenbush Swore to Kill His Wife and Did So.

ALSO RID HIMSELF OF LIFE.

Particulars of the Terrible Tragedy at Newark, N. J.

Quackenbush Was the Son of a Mayor of Albany, N. Y., and His Wife Was at One Time the Most Beautiful Woman in That City—She Would Not Let Him Have the Custody of Their Children—He Had Made Repeated Attempts to Kill Her.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 9.—The news of the double tragedy at Newark, N. J., in which Charles S. Quackenbush, a well known and wealthy resident of this city, killed his wife and then shot himself, created great excitement among the friends and acquaintances of the family. He had attempted to kill his wife several times, and about a month ago was only restrained from carrying out his purpose by a policeman. Three weeks ago he tried to shoot her again, and swore he would kill her sometime.

He had returned from Montreal, Can., and about 8 p. m. went to the house where his wife was living, on Warren street. He went into the kitchen from the hall and saw his wife Annie in the next room preparing their three little girls, ranging in age from two to five years, for bed. Some hot words were exchanged, and Quackenbush then pulled a revolver from his pocket and shot his wife in the back of the head near the ear. She had turned to run from him.

He then went into the kitchen and shot twice more at her. He then placed the revolver to the roof of his mouth and fired, the bullet going through his brain and lodging in the ceiling. Quackenbush took his oldest child, a girl of seven years to Montreal two weeks ago. On Dec. 29, he wrote to his wife telling her to send the rest of the children and their clothes to him. The letter read as follows:

ANNIE—Send my clothes and Maggie's, her muff and my gloves, cap and shoes and everything. Send our three young ones but you stay there. If you come you will know the result.

C. S. QUACKENBUSH.

P. S.—Bad luck to you, send the kids.

The next day his wife received a telegram reading: "Send clothes for Maggie and myself by box. Also three children. You stay there. Reply. C. S. Q."

It is probable that he did not receive any reply to his message, and that he came to see about it. The only person in the house at the time of the shooting was a Mrs. Gould. She heard three shots and a heavy fall, but was afraid to see what was the matter. Mr. Gould returned a few minutes after the shooting and began an investigation.

He found Mrs. Quackenbush leaning over the banister groaning, while the three children were huddled together in a corner crying. The police were notified and were soon upon the scene. Quackenbush was found lying in a pool of blood by the kitchen table. His wife was taken to St. Michael's Hospital in the ambulance. There the doctors probed for the bullet and found that it had entered the brain. She remained unconscious from the time she was discovered in the hallway until she died, and could not make any statement in regard to the shooting.

Quackenbush had about $40,000 in securities on his person and $750 in bills. He fell heir to a large estate in Newark by the death of his father a few months ago, and since then has been trying to get rid of his wife. She has persisted in following him. Quackenbush repeatedly tried to kill his wife in this city. Much sympathy for the unfortunate woman and the children is expressed.

Quackenbush is the son of a former mayor of this place and his wife was once considered the handsomest woman in this city, and a well-known society belle.

New York & New Haven Difficulties.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 9.—The officials of the New York & New Haven railroad and those of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers are still trying to arrange their differences. If anything, a strike is more imminent than since the argument began. The railroad is not willing to pay for over time. Chief Arthur and the Directors met, but refuse to give out anything for publication. A big meeting of the men is proposed soon.

Paris Papers on the Egyptian Question.

PARIS, Jan. 9.—The "Journal des Debats" vigorously demands the appointment of a regency to govern Egypt. The "Gaulois" intimates that France is willing to concede a great deal to England in return for a partial restoration of Turkish authority in Egypt. The "Gaulois" adds that Lord Salisbury will probably try to enlist the Sultan into the Dreibund in return for some concession in regard to Egypt.

Maupassant's Insanity.

PARIS, Jan. 9.—The manager of the asylum in which Guy de Maupassant is confined says that the insanity with which the distinguished French author is suffering dates back two years. The disease, he adds, has slowly developed, and it will be a long time before he recovers. In fact, the manager holds out little hope that M. de Maupassant will ever regain his reason.

Punctual Attendance Hereafter.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The Treasury Department has decided to enforce the punctual attendance of clerks, and a record of the arrival of each employe in the morning will be kept. Punctual attendance will be taken into consideration when promotions are made. The regulations governing promotions are now being formulated by Secretary Foster.

THE NEW RULES.

Speaker Crisp to Make Several Changes in the Code.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Speaker Crisp is recovering, though it is not thought it would be safe for him to go out for some time yet, lest he should take cold, being in a weak physical condition. He will probably be able to begin the consideration of the new rules within a few days.

The other Democrats of the Committee on Rules will confer with him at his hotel as soon as it is thought desirable for him to begin work. In this way the majority report will probably be got ready, so that there will be no delay in its presentation to the House after the Speaker resumes his duties at the Capitol.

There is really not a great amount of work to be done on the rules. The code of the Fiftieth Congress will form the basis, and but few changes will be necessary to make the rules conform to the ideas of the Speaker and the leaders of the majority of this House.

The code will not contain any arbitrary features, but some of the laxity of the old Carlisle rules will be corrected.

It is probable that the right to legislate on appropriation and to reduce expenditures will be restored.

THE BOILERS EXPLODED.

Terrible Accident in Chicago—Three Dead, Two Dying.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—By the terrific explosion in the boiler room of the Warren Springer Company's building on South Canal street. Three men are known to have been killed outright and three others so badly injured that their recovery is doubtful. The names of the dead are: Edward Bush, white laborer, Patrick Rogers, white fireman, Arthur Hall, colored fireman.

The injured are: James Siggins, fireman, terribly scalded; Henry Oswald, laborer, internally injured, cannot live; John Lee, colored fireman, frightfully bruised, cannot live.

The cause of the explosion is as yet unknown. The engineer says he left the engine room but a few moments before the explosion occurred, and that the boilers were all right.

All the injured are at the hospital, where it was stated this morning that two of the injured men will undoubtedly die.

THE REPORT UNCONFIRMED.

China Has Not Withdrawn Her Objections to Ex-Senator Blair.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Inquiry among officials who would be acquainted with the fact, did it exist, fails to confirm the report, purporting to be a cablegram, published in a New York paper, that China had withdrawn her objection to ex-Senator Blair as Minister of the United States to that country.

No such information has been received at the Chinese Embassy here, and as the protest against Mr. Blair was transmitted to the home government by the Minister at this place, it is likely that the notification to the United States of a change of mind of the Pekin officials would be made through the same channel. It is said by an official in a position to speak advisedly, that there is not the remotest possibility of the Chinese Government changing its opinion as to the desirability of Mr. Blair as Minister to that country.

To Test the Anti-Lottery Law.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—A brief for the appellant has been filed in the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Edward V. Horner, appellant, vs. the United States and John W. Jacobus, Marshal of the United States for the southern District of New York. This is a case to test the legality of the anti-lottery law, the main contention against it made by Horner being that it provides for the trial of a person charged with its violation, in the judicial district where the lottery matter mailed was received. Horner, it is alleged, mailed lottery circulars in New York city to places in Illinois. He was indicted in the latter State and an order made for his appearance before the Illinois court and the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York ordered him to be sent there for trial. From this decision he appealed.

Sentences of Brave Convicts Remitted.

CALCUTTA, Jan. 9.—The sentences of the female convicts who on November 2 rescued a number of male convicts who were swept into the surf clinging to an overturned wooden building, have been remitted or greatly lightened. The women referred to, it will be remembered, at the time of the cyclone which swept over the Andaman Islands, formed a lifeline by joining hands, ventured into the surf and rescued the men from drowning. The sentence of the leader of these brave female convicts has been entirely remitted, and she has received a sum of money from the government sufficient to enable her to start life in another clime should she elect to do so.

Thrown from a Carriage and Killed.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 9.—George Rosencrans was instantly killed here in the afternoon by being thrown from his carriage. He had just recovered from a severe illness and had taken his first outing after a long confinement to his house.

Believed that Over 100 Perished in the Mine.

FIFTY BODIES ALREADY FOUND.

Of These Only One-Half Have Been Identified.

CAUSE OF THE ACCIDENT UNKNOWN.

It is Supposed that Some Miner Fired a Blast Without Warning.

Many of Those Rescued so Horribly Burned that They Cannot Recover—There were Four Hundred Men in the Mine when the Explosion Occurred—A Week Must Elapse Before All the Entombed Can be Reached—Identification of Many of the Victims Impossible.

SOUTH MCALISTER, I. T., Jan. 9.—The entrance to the Osage coal mine at Krebs, five miles from here, is surrounded by a mass of humanity, many of them women and children who have been at the scene almost every minute since the terrible explosion of Thursday night, hoping against hope for tidings of a lost one.

It is impossible yet to give even an estimate of the number of lives lost, but it is believed that the list will reach 100 and even more. Many of the miners who have been taken out are so badly burned that they will die.

A hastily constructed but strong cage has been placed in operation and the work of rescuing the entombed miners is being expedited as rapidly as circumstances will permit. The crowd about the mouth of the pit has increased to over a thousand people. As most of the miners are Swedes, Norwegians and Italians, the mine officials have great difficulty in preserving order and keeping them at such a distance as will allow the men to run the cage without interruption.

Physicians from the neighboring towns and cities have tendered their services and are working to their utmost caring for the injured. Miners from neighboring coal fields have flocked in by every train during the night and day, tendering their assistance and heroically volunteering to enter the gloomy shaft in which so many of their comrades have perished, and in which perhaps death even awaited them on account of the loosened boulders which the shock of the explosion left upon a flimsy balance and which a breath of air might precipitate upon them.

The McAlister mines dot the prairie at intervals from a quarter to half a mile, and each is surrounded by the usual hovels which serve the purpose of homes to the miners. These homes present a pathetic picture. There is not one in which the sound of mourning is not heard.

Thus far about fifty bodies have been recovered, and of these twenty-four have been identified. New ones are constantly being brought up. The injured are so numerous and scattered so widely among the village houses that their number can hardly be estimated. There were about four hundred men at work, as nearly as can be ascertained, about 150 of whom escaped injury, while the others are either imprisoned or have been brought up injured. Each trip of the cage brings to light a new victim, whom the volunteers carefully carry to the mine blacksmith shop, which has been utilized as a temporary morgue, and through in which the anxious crowd of miners' wives and children surge in search of the absent members of their families.

Many of the men, some say nearly half, employed in the mine succeeded in effecting their escape by climbed up through the airshaft. One of the men who escaped in this way climbing 450 feet with a broken leg. Many of those who climbed to the top were badly burned, in some cases the flesh stripping from their hands as they grasped the ladder.

It will be fully a week before all the bodies of the entombed can be reached and brought to the surface. Work will be pushed as fast as possible, however, and every endeavor will be made to get at them.

What caused the explosion cannot be stated, but it is supposed that some miner fired a blast without warning, a proceeding in direct violation of the rules of the mine.

Many of the bodies recovered are so charred and blackened that identification is impossible.

Case of Dr. Graves.

DANVER, Col., Jan. 9.—The Graves trial and its subsequent developments are still the all absorbing topic here. Two well known men who were summoned as jurors in the trial have made affidavits that they were not called to act because they would not promise to return a verdict of guilty if selected as jurors. Judge Furnam, counsel for Dr. Graves, has raised the question whether a convicted person must be sentenced during the term of court at which he is found guilty, and has asked for a postponement of sentence for thirty days.

THE CHILIAN IMBROGLIO.

Prospects for a Peaceful Settlement Now Appear Very Bright.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The prospects of a peaceful settlement of the Chilian troubles now appear very bright. This country has never changed its position in the matter, but insists now, as it has from the first, upon suitable reparation being made for the outrages of the mob at Valparaiso, and would resort to any means necessary to maintain the national dignity.

The peaceful outlook is due to a change of policy in Chili since the inauguration of the new government. Senor Montt has been trying, ever since he became acquainted with the state of things in this country, to bring the Chilian Government to an appreciation of the folly of trying any bravado in dealing with this question. His efforts with the Junta were entirely unsuccessful.

Information attainable now indicates that the present Government is in accord with Senor Montt and is willing to do anything possible to restore the friendly relations between the two countries. Senor Montt, in discussing the question, said that there was no danger of war between Chili and the United States.

"Chili," he explained, "is ready to do the honorable and proper thing, and just as soon as the report on the judicial action is completed it will be forwarded to this country, and it will, I am sure, be satisfactory to this country."

He expressed the opinion that Chili would not indulge in any more wars. There would certainly be no wars, he said as long as the present Administration or those in sympathy with it retained power. Though the last war was very successful, the strife necessarily was an injury to the country, and every effort would be made to preserve peace.

Congressman John Raines in an interview on the Chilian situation, said:

"The English people are advised that at the present time every effort is being put forward by the Navy Department to place a fleet at the disposal of the Government in case of need. What is more, they know perhaps what is not generally known here in this country—that parts of the work on new vessels awarded under contract to several firms are being hurried along outside the firms that received the contract.

"England, as 'the ruler of the seas,' does not like this state of affairs. Our new vessels fairly outclass her ships of nominally the same grade and her supremacy is threatened. With the people behind this movement for a navy, offensive and defensive foreign powers know that the United States will have a fleet that will command not only respect, but fear.

"To prevent a continuance of the building of new battle ships and cruisers England will step in and fairly choke Chili into a necessary apology."

The Official Investigation.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 9.—In the investigation into the assault upon the sailors of the cruiser Baltimore at Vallejo, Chas. Langen, a seaman, testified that he was in the International Hotel, and gave evidence implicating the Chilian men-of-war's men, police and soldiers in the killing of Boatswain's Mate Riggin.

An Incendiary's Work.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 9.—The fire in the basement of Sowash & Fink's drug store at Jeanneatte is now believed to have been the work of an incendiary. The Cook block, valued at $12,000, nine other buildings—stores and residences—were either destroyed or badly damaged. The total loss will exceed $25,000, insurance about one-half. During the fire a natural gas explosion occurred in J. B. Zeigler's residence. J. E. Scott, Frank Trimble, S. G. Keyes, John King and Mike Foley, who were removing the furniture at the time were terribly burned, but none of them fatally.

Schultels Sued for Slander.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—When Commissioner of Emigration Schultels returned to this country "incognito" on the Servia he claimed to have witnessed debauchery on board ship, and in the connection implicated Ingvor Petersen, a Swedish girl. A medical examination seemed to contradict the Commissioner's charge. Now he has been served with papers in a suit for $35,000 for slander. The Petersen girl has since returned to Sweden; and the suit is brought by Lawyer B. Downer through the Rev. Peter Petersen.

JUDGE COLE'S POKER

It Saved the Books of the Firm from Seizure.

A STORMY SCENE IN NYACK.

The Blauvelt-Cole Affair Bids Fair to Become a Battle Royal.

Rumor That Cashier Cole is to Be Arrested, and That Harry Blauvelt is to Be Prosecuted for Taking the Books of the Firm—Mrs. Blauvelt Now Says It is a Conspiracy to Break Up Their Business.

NYACK, N. Y., Jan. 9.—A battle royal has begun here between the parties to the Cole-Blauvelt affair. The books recently examined by experts and sent by Dickinson to the creditors' meeting in New York Wednesday have just been returned to Nyack. Hearing that they were in Judge Cole's office Mrs. Blauvelt went there during the morning and demanded them. Judge Cole refused to deliver them, and Mrs. Blauvelt sought advice of her counsel, ex-Assemblyman Arthur S. Tompkins.

Then Mrs. Blauvelt, her counsel, Harry Blauvelt, and Mrs. Blauvelt's sister, Mrs. Dr. Polhemus, and William Polhemus, went to the Commercial building and made another formal demand of Judge Cole for the books and he again refused and a stormy scene ensued. Mr. Tompkine, Harry Blauvelt and young Polhemus attempted to enter the Judge's office and the veteran lawyer seized a big poker and ordered them away at their peril. Harry Blauvelt thrust his hand to his pocket, Polhemus swore and both women yelled.

"Well, mamma, they shan't doctor those books," shouted Harry.

The white-haired old judge presented a striking picture as he stood with uplifted poker defying the crowd and roaring in a loud voice: "Go away! Go away, I tell you, before some one is hurt."

The invaders started back and the judge at once closed and bolted his door. The enemy retired from the scene and the box of books was carried from Judge Cole's office to the office of Lawyer Wyre Dickinson's counsel and placed in charge of a policeman.

Mrs. Blauvelt was so excited that it was with difficulty that her sister induced her to leave the public building and go home. The scene and the noise drew many tenants of the building from their offices to witness the disturbance.

Representatives of two insurance companies compelled young Blauvelt to produce their books which he took from the office. He claims he was justified and that he acted under orders from his father and a special agent of the Royal Insurance company. He also asserts that Dickinson has hidden the expiration book to prevent the Blauvelts knowing anything about the expiration policies.

When asked as to a current rumor that Cashier Cole is to be arrested, Mrs. Blauvelt said the matter was in the hands of her counsel, but that severe steps would probably be taken in some directions before many days. It is also reported that Harry Blauvelt is to be arrested for his action of Thursday night. Mrs. Blauvelt was indignant at the report and insists that a conspiracy exists to ruin her and her husband's business.

It is very evident that the business is already ruined, the offices being deserted except by a young clerk, who refused to listen to orders from Harry Blauvelt and said he would only obey Dickinson. It is now impossible for the affair to be settled without further scandal to the injury of all concerned.

Grunski was a green hand, and carried a lamp which did not have the proper protection. He was standing near the men who were injured when a current of gas from one of the fissures came in contact with the flame of the lamp, and a terrible explosion followed. The unfortunate miner was hurled against the side of the mine and had nearly all his bones broken. English and Steele saw the danger a few moments before the explosion, but they could not get out of the way quick enough, and they were tossed against the side of the shaft with considerable violence.

WARM TALK ON A COLD NIGHT.

The Borough Street Light Committee Gets a Hauling Over the Coals.

Mr. Hegeman stirred things up and made the meeting a lively one, at the January session of the borough council last night. To begin with, he sharply criticized the action of the council at a previous meeting in cutting off $5 from a bill of engine-driver Seader. The bill was a correct one, he held, and the council indulged in a most extraordinary proceeding when it lopped off $5 to offset the claim which the borough thought it had against Seader on an old score. Seader believed that he had earned the $5 in dispute, and if the council wanted to recover it after having once paid it the only way to do so was through legal proceedings. After much warm discussion, the council rescinded its former action, on Mr. Hegeman's motion, paid Seader the full amount of the bill which had been cut, and ordered the committee on fire, water and lamps to investigate the old $5 claim and adjust it. Mr. Sebring alone voted against the whole proceeding, and some of his sentiments were received with whistles of disapproval and derision by the lobby.

Mr. Hegeman's second sensation was in the matter of street lights. He made some very strong statements concerning the arrangement of the lamps on the streets which aroused resentment in Mr. Sebring, who is chairman of the lamps committee and who is popularly supposed to be interested in the North Plainfield electric light company.

Mr. Hegeman said that complaints came daily, thick and fast, that lamps were wasted on localities which did not need them and that other localities suffered for lack of light. Many petitions had been presented, but all seemed to be buried in committee.

It is necessary under the North Plainfield system to wire the lamps together, to get light, and Mr. Hegeman intimated that merely to enable the company to put a lamp on Morgan Tayler's front stoop the committee had placed a street lamp on Rockview avenue, and that the borough was therefore paying the company $18 a year so that Mr. Taylor could burn a private lamp. He said that Girard avenue, the spookiest place in the borough, did n't have a light on it, and held that it was high time for an investigation to satisfy the demands of the justly clamorous inhabitants.

Mr. Sebring choked down a sob, and said in an aggrieved tone of voice that Mr. Hegeman had made false charges against him which he considered ungentlemanly. Mr. Hegeman retorted that he made no charges, but only spoke of cold facts. He added that some of the borough residents were so dissatisfied with the street light apportionment that they refused to pay their taxes. He urged that the committee obey the behest of the council, made at a previous meeting, and make a satisfactory report of the placing of the lamps.

The street committee were ordered to investigate the condition of Brook avenue and take steps to erect a fence as a safeguard against people falling or driving into the open raceway running along the street. Brook avenue is an unlighted thoroughfare, and it is a wonder some fatal accident has not resulted from the ungarded condition of the raceway.

After transacting the usual routine business the council went into executive session.

Blockaded by a Snow Drift.

The snowfall of this week seemed a light one to those who wanted the sleighing to last longer, but it was sufficient to block travel on a road not far from this city.

Alonzo DeCamp, his wife, brother, and sister, started from Plainfield Wednesday afternoon to drive to their home in Chester, Morris county. They had a wagon and two horses. On the road between Peapack and Chester they struck a huge snow drift that was absolutely impassable. The wagon got fast in the snow, and they had to unhitch the horses and retreat with them to the nearest farmhouse for the night. Next day the men cleared a way, with shovels, through the drift.

HE WON A FRIEND FOR LIFE.

And Counselor Marsh Also Won a Jury, and a Hopeless Case.

After being out just long enough to figure the amount, a jury in the circuit court at Elizabeth, yesterday, gave counselor C. A. Marsh every cent he asked for his client, B. Fosgate. And that jury—although they do not realize, or at least acknowledge, it—brought in the verdict they did, just because Mr. Marsh did ask for it and asked for it in the way he did. Then, too counselor C. A. Reed on the other side, tried his case with a lack of judgment and a lack of force.

The case was Fosgate against Vail. The former, an architect, drew for the latter, a real estate man, plans for a $4,000 house and a $25,000 hotel. Vail said he ordered the plans so that Fosgate could work out the rent he owed, which was $123. Fosgate, however, demanded the full and regular rate paid architects, which is 2½ per cent. of the estimated cost of the building.

But the case, by the ill tactics of the counsel for the defence, was changed from a simple question of whether the plaintiff was entitled to the money he claimed, into one involving the character and reputation of the litigants on both sides. When the court adjourned for dinner the counsel for the plaintiff, his client, the jury and those present in the court room, realized that the case was dead against Mr. Fosgate. The honors were easy as to the questions of fact and veracity between plaintiff and defendant, but the latter's lawyer, Mr. Reed, had closed his case with an array of witnesses who had sworn away the good name, reputation and character of Mr. Marsh's client.

Before the summing up the case was considered hopeless for the plaintiff. Counselor Marsh was, of course, unprepared for such a line of trial, and although he had with great skill led the witnesses by self contradiction or an exhibition of hostile animus on the stand, to tone somewhat the effect of their testimony, yet when he arose to address the jury the crowd of lawyers in the room shook their heads, Judge VanSyckel seemed sorry for him, and the jurymen thought that though he talked from then till doomsday they could not give his client anything.

Yet counselor Marsh called for a glass of water and began his summing up. From that moment until he closed, the attention of everyone in the crowded court room was riveted upon him. Before he was half through the verdict could be read in the faces of the jurymen. When he finished his client seized his hand, and THE PRESS reporter heard Mr. Fosgate say in broken tones to the man who had, with his eloquence and earnestness alone, wiped out the testimony of a tribe of witnesses against his client's character: "Mr. Marsh, no matter what the verdict may be, you have made of me a friend for all your life."

Then after the jury retired, the judge called the brilliant young counselor to him and said something undoubtedly very nice, for Mr. Marsh's face was at once spread with a smile of evident gratification.

As stated above, the jury was out only a few minutes and returned with a verdict for all counselor Marsh asked for—$470, with the costs of the suit also on Mr. Reed's client.

After suffering for years with the worst form of Dyspepsia, such as bloating, dizziness, vertigo, acid stomach, etc., I came across Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. Using them as directed two months, and still continuing, find great relief. Would not be without, and cheerfully recommend to any suffering with the above symptome. JAMES HENDERSON, Notions and Hosiery, 159 Newark avenue, Jersey City.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely; it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety, and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B.W. Sperry, Hartford, Ct.

Death of a Centenarian.

ANDOVER, N. Y., Jan. 9.—Mrs. Thankful Spaulding died yesterday at the age 102 years. She was a wonderfully well-preserved woman and up to the time of her death her mind was perfectly clear. A few weeks ago she was seized with an attack of the grip, later pneumonia set in, which finally caused her death.

Crippled by the Grip.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Jan. 9.—The United States Life Saving stations along the coast of New Jersey are badly crippled by the grip epidemic. Nearly every station has from one to six men down with the malady. In many cases it has been found impossible to find substitutes for the sick men.

Had Lost an Eye, and Despaired.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 9.—Evan Miller, who committed suicide here Friday, by taking a dose of rough-on-rats, was despondent because of the loss of an eye recently. His wife is ill with grip and is not expected to live.

By innumerable cures, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, has won for itself a most enviable reputation.

I've been suffering for the past three weeks with a sprained wrist. I tried Salvation Oil, and find myself, after having used one bottle, entirely cured. Chas. Keyser, 199 Mulberry St., Baltimore, Md.

Like Angels' Visits.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Secretary Noble has received a letter from a man at Boston, in which he encloses his pension check and says he voluntarily relinquishes his pension, as he does not wish further assistance from the government. It is an unusual occurrence and such people are few and far between.

Death of an Old Indian Scout.

NYACK, N. Y., Jan. 9.—John W. Nelson, grandson of Thomas Nelson, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, is dead here at the age of 80. The deceased was engaged in the Seminole war in Florida and was one of the scouts who went in search of the famous Indian chief, Black Hawk.

The Publishers Didn't Mind.

True Friend—I suppose the publishers get very tired at your calling on them so often?

The Young Writer—No; but I do.—Puck.

Fatted, jaded, tired, overworked women — weak, nervous, delicate and suffering ones. These are the women who are helped to health and strength by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's a legitimate medicine, that corrects and cures; a tonic that invigorates and builds up; a nervine that soothes and strengthens. And if it doesn't do what its makers claim for it, they don't want your money.

For all the functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses that afflict womankind, the "Prescription" is a safe and certain remedy—a guaranteed one. In "female complaints" of every nature, periodical pains, internal inflammation and ulceration, leucorrhœa, and all kindred ailments—if it fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

No other medicine for women is sold on such trying terms. If any could be, you may be sure that it would be. Is something else which pays the dealer better, likely to be "just as good?"

PLAINFIELD'S TALENTED NEIGHBORS.

A Colony of Story Writers Living Among the Jersey Hills and Plains.

New Jersey can boast of not a few writers of prominence working or living within her borders, and many of these live in the neighborhood of Plainfield.

The editor of Harper's Magazine lives in Metuchen, going to his office in New York daily. He is the Rev. Henry Mills Alden. He is fifty-five years old, tall, with iron-gray hair and a beard that covers the lower part of his face. His manner is genial and friendly, even to invaders of his sanctum. Mr. Alden has occupied his present position ever since 1868 and has kept himself almost strictly incognito as an editor, especially in the town where he lives. He says very few people there know what he does for a living. He has lately written a book called "God in His World", the title being suggested by the lines which close one of the songs in Browning's "Pippa Passes"—

God's in His heaven—
All's right with the world.

Mr. Alden is a graduate of Williams College and Andover Theological Seminary. He came to New York city in '61 as a teacher, contributing a little to the Atlantic Monthly. He also did editorial work for some newspapers. In 1863 he began to assist Dr. A. H. Guernsey in the preparation of "Harper's Pictorial History of the Rebellion", a work occupying several years. In the same year he gave a series of lectures in Boston on "The Structure of Paganism". In '64 he became editor of Harper's Weekly and gave it up for the position he has now held for twenty-three years.

Robert R. Sinclair, chief reader of manuscripts for Harper's periodicals, has his home at Westfield. He is a scholarly man, of fine appearance, and a delightful conversationalist.

E. L. Burlingame, editor of Scribner's Magazine, lives at Morristown. He is an accomplished translator and a cultivated and scholarly gentleman, well fitted for the work he has done. He was associated with the literary and editorial work on Appleton's American Encyclopædia and Bryant's History of the United States. He was also one of the chief literary advisers of the Scribners before the starting of the new magazine, of which he was made editor. That he is the man for the place has been demonstrated by the phenomenal success of the periodical. It has paid for itself from the start.

Hamilton Wright Mabie, one of the editors of the Christian Union of New York, passes through Newark daily on his way from his New York office to his home in Summit. He is a graduate of Williams College, and early turned to journalism. In 1884 he became associate editor of the Christian Union, with Dr. Lyman Abbott as his superior. Mr. Mabie has contributed to other periodicals and has printed several books, the most notable being his "Short Studies in Literature", in which he assumed the hard task of philosophically interpreting literature as a whole. His other books, some of them made up of sketches published in the Christian Union, are "Norse Stories Retold from the Eddas", "My Study Fire", and a companion to it called "Under the Trees", just published. He is engaged now on a volume of literary essays. His style is agreeable and elegant. As if all this work were not enough, Mr. Mabie has added to it the giving of lectures chiefly on literary topics at various colleges, among them Smith, Vassar and Wellesley.

Even an imperfect list of New Jersey writers would be very incomplete without the name of Marion Harland, for half the year she spends at her country home in Pompton. She is the wife of the Rev Edward P. Terhune, pastor of a Presbyterian church in Brooklyn. She began to write when fourteen, and has never stopped. She has published a large number of novels and several on domestic science, the best known of which is "Common-sense in the Household". Besides this she was editor of "Babyhood", established and for some years edited The Home-maker, and has conducted departments in Wide Awake and St. Nicholas. She lived for years in Newark and speaks tenderly of it as a place where great joys and great sorrows came to her. Among the joys was the birth of the daughter, Christine Terhune Herrick, who has followed her mother as a writer. The outward signs of the sorrows are some graves in Mt. Pleasant cemetery, where the family lot is located.

John Gilmer Speed, a popular contributor to New York periodicals, lives in Mendham. Fourteen years ago he went to New York, not at all known. He secured a place on the World staff and finally became managing editor, resigning after four years, in 1883. Since then he has done work for Harper's Weekly, the Christian Union, Once a Week and several syndicates. He was also editor of the American Magazine. His most literary work was the editing of the poems and letters of the poet Keats, who was his mother's uncle. A biography of the poet is also a part of Mr. Speed's work.

R. K. Munkittrick, of Puck, an Englishman, "a gifted and agreeable fellow", so his friends say, and a popular contributor to almost every periodical, lives at Summit. He excels in humorous verse and prose, and has written some beautiful things in more serious vein. He is also the author of various children's stories, and a serial by him is now running in Harper's Young People.

Gustave Kobbe, known for his volumes on "Wagner's Life and Work", is another well-known resident of Summit, which place seems to be well supplied with members of the literary craft. Mr. Kobbe is a native of New York city, and was educated there and in Germany. He graduated at Columbia College, and later at the law school connected with it. His first writings were musical criticisms, and his two books above mentioned comprise the standard English work on the subject. Since their publication Mr. Kobbe has done much miscellaneous writing, chiefly for Scribner's and the Century Magazine. His "Life on the South Shoal Lightship", published in last August's Century, was reprinted in full in the London Daily Telegraph, with a highly complimentary notice. Harper Brothers published a very complete guide to New York, by Mr. Kobbe, and his "New Jersey Coast" and "Jersey Central" guides are well-known.

Louis Heilprin, writer and lecturer, is another of the Summit coterie. He does a great deal of writing for the Appleton encyclopedias, and has published an "Historical Reference Book" and a series of readers for children, which are said by teachers who use them to show a great amount of labor and an appreciation of the needs of pupils and instructors. Mr. Heilprin is an authority on history and geography, and offers many lecture courses on the subjects. He is a Hungarian by birth, and while he speaks that language his command of English is unusually good for a foreigner. Together with his countryman, Arminius Vambery, he has prepared and published "The Story of Hungary".

Walter H. McDougall has always been better known by his pencil than his pen, but as he has written as well as drawn, he belongs in this sketch as one of Newark's best known workers in the field of pen and ink. Mr. McDougall is about thirty-five years old, pleasant in manner, and quick to see the funny side of everything and to laugh at it. He was engaged years ago to do illustrating for the New York World, after having sent that paper a single picture. That was a portrait of Mr. Blaine, which had been refused by Puck and Life. It gave Mr. McDougall his chance, and he has been with the World ever since. Before Mr. McDougall's work on the World began he had drawn and written for various comic and other periodicals. He has also been an engraver and designer. His latest and most serious contribution to literature is the novel recently published, called "The Hidden City".

ANOTHER MONOPOLY SPREADING.

From Plainfield to Elizabeth the Monopolists in Light, Like the Monopolists in Water, Are Grasping All.

The New York press tells that a large corporation that promises to have the biggest monopoly in central New Jersey is gradually absorbing all the electric-light companies in that vicinity. Its object is to furnish light to all New Jersey towns lying between this city and Elizabeth. The large corporation recently bought out the Elizabeth Electric Light company, and an alliance with the Plainfield company will soon be consummated, as the negotiations are said to be about completed. This last-named company already has a monopoly in this city. It owns both the gas and electric-light plants.

If an alliance is made between the two concerns, it is probable that all the towns between Elizabeth and Plainfield will by fair means or otherwise be forced to accept the Westinghouse alternating system.

The project is strongly opposed in Westfield, as the townspeople had about completed arrangements to have an electric-light company of their own. It is not known yet whether the monopoly can be stayed from trespassing on the town. Westfield has not the power of a city or borough to keep off such corporations, and it is feared that if the company gains the consent of a majority of the property-owners it will place its poles where it pleases.

The pressure that will be necessary to carry a lighting current from Elizabeth to Plainfield and from this city to Elizabeth will be much greater than the voltage that is used in the alternating system to kill the convicted murderers at Sing Sing. It is said that united action will be taken to prevent the monopoly from gaining a foothold.

An Inside Glimpse at the Religious Editor.

Of especial interest is the January issue of Lippincott's Magazine. Among the several new features by which it is marked is the first of sundry stories and sketches illustrating journalistic life and labors; the first of a series of articles on athletic subjects; an editorial department headed "As It Seems", containing brief essays and comments on various topics of the times, literary and other; and notices of several recent books given in the form of dialogue. The complete novel is by an experienced journalist, Young E. Allison, formerly of the Louisville Courier-Journal. From the sure, easy and practised way in which he writes it might be his tenth rather than his first effort in fiction, yet it has all the freshness and force of a first book, undertaken after the author had thoroughly learned his trade in other of its branches. There are the humors and woes of the newspaper office; and here are its various young men, each drawn from and to the life, including the religious editor, of whom we have often heard before, but who surely was never photographed in such detail till now. The story is interesting throughout, and not lacking in elements of excitement, pathos and unexpectedness; the character drawing is full of shrewd insight and kindly humor; and the style is natural and delightful.

The Death of B. C. Hollingsworth.

Concerning the late B. C. Hollingsworth, whose death at Scotch Plains was recorded in these columns yesterday, the Brooklyn Times publishes the following:

"B. C. Hollingsworth, a well-known resident of this city, who carried on an extensive livery stable business corner of Seventh avenue and Union street, died Wednesday morning after a long illness, at the home of his brother, Loftus Hollingsworth, at Scotch Plains, N. J. His death was very peaceful, being the end of several months' patient suffering. At the time of his demise he was surrounded by his devoted wife and all his relatives. Mr. Hollingsworth was in his forty-fifth year. He leaves a host of mourning friends behind who had learned to esteem him for his many excellent qualities. He had been engaged in business in this city for twenty-five years and was highly regarded by all with whom he came in contact. He received his education under principal Bush at the old Remsen street school. The deceased was a member of Cyrus lodge, No. 208, F. and A. M.; Brooklyn lodge, No, 26, I. O. O. F.; president of the Livery Keepers' association of Kings county and an honorary member of the Carleton club. The funeral services will be held on Saturday in the First Reformed Dutch church, corner of Seventh avenue and Carroll street, and the interment will be in Greenwood cemetery."

At the preliminary funeral services at the home of Loftus Hollingsworth, this morning, the Rev. Mr. Rich officiated. The flower offerings included a broken column, a wreath, and an anchor.

Inferior Goods.

The only safe way for purchasers is to insist on having the genuine article, and not allow themselves to be swindled by having plasters said to be "just as good," or "containing superior ingredients," imposed upon them. These are only tricks to sell inferior goods that no more compare with ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS than copper does with gold. One trial of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS will convince the most skeptical of their merits.

The eminent Henry A. Mott, jr., Ph.D., F. C. S., late Government Chemist, certifies:

"My investigation of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER show it to contain valuable and essential ingredients not found in any other plaster, and I find it superior to and more efficient than any other plaster."

Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

No Decision for Plainfield, However.

Two important decisions were rendered yesterday in the State Supreme court which declare that the act giving municipalities the right to grant franchises to railroad companies does not apply to electric railways. Two identical suits were brought, one from Newark and the other from Trenton, opposing the grants of the common councils, which allowed the erection of poles for the trolley system. Justice Alfred Reed wrote the opinion, and he finds that the legislative act did not empower common councils to permit corporations to change the character of a street railway. It cannot extend the permission to erect structures on the street.

In the Trenton case the ordinance is set aside in the case of George A. Halsey of Newark, who objects to a pole being erected by the Newark Rapid-Transit company, the Judge finds that powers to operate on the streets cannot be given by resolution, as was done by the Newark council. If the council did have the power to grant the privileges it could only be done by ordinance. In the case of Plainfield it was done by ordinance, but a decision is not called for on that point in the above cases.

This decision will necessitate the passing of a new act for electric railways, and both companies will appeal, and pending a decision they will appeal to the Legislature.

—At the First Baptist church, Monday, the Bible normal class will meet; on Wednesday and Friday, church prayer meetings will be held.

A WOMAN'S GYMNASIUM.

Where Ten Thousand Women Cultivate Their Muscles.

Alice MacGowan Visits the Charlesbank Gymnasium in Boston—A Talk with Its Directress—How They Dress for Exercise.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

Physical culture for women is going to work a revolution.

The mind (soul, spirit or whatever you choose to call the unseizable thing) and the body are one in many things. What stimulates, strengthens and develops the body cannot but conduce to the health and strength of the mind; what starves, impoverishes and enfeebles the body must also have its enervating and depressing effect upon the mind.

Men's superior mental and moral stamina and resistance comes more than is commonly realized from their more active habits of life. Over-tender sensibilities get hardened, morbid tendencies are nipped and corrected in the daily scuffle of the sometimes rough but healthful contact with the world at work and at play. How could sickly, melancholy or morbid sentimentality flourish on the floor of the stock exchange, in the various centers of commercial life, or in a football rush, a boat race, a gallop on a good horse or almost any of the stirring occupations or amusements of the average man?

If sorrow, calamity or bereavement hit a man he gathers up what's left and goes ahead to make the best of it, forgetting as much as possible what he has lost. If his wife dies he doesn't go out of business, wrap his head in a hideous black blanket of a veil and refuse all comfort. It's only women who do this, who nurse their griefs and think it a sort of wickedness to be comforted; and I protest it is nine-tenths due to the lack of current in their minds and bodies, the impetus that a good circulation and fine, lusty physical life would give their mental being toward health and happiness.

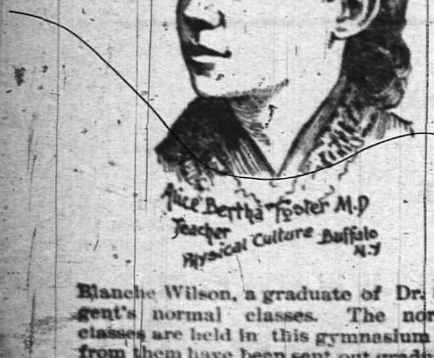
Dr. Dudley Allen Sargent, director of the Hemenway gymnasium at Harvard and the leading authority in America on athletic matters and the study and practice of physical culture and development, tells me that two-thirds of his summer school at Harvard as well as his normal classes are women. He says they are quick, bright, intelligent in learning and most capable and successful instructors; and he insists that women are the coming teachers of physical culture.

Dr. Sargent also has supervision of the gymnasium for the Harvard annex, the teacher in charge being Miss Jennie



Alice Bertha Foster M.D. Teacher Physical Culture Buffalo N.Y.

Blanche Wilson, a graduate of Dr. Sargent's normal classes. The normal classes are held in this gymnasium and from them have been sent out graduates to teach physical culture, according to Dr. Sargent's methods, in colleges and schools all over the country. Of these some of the most distinguished and successful are:

Miss Elizabeth McMartin, in charge of the Charlesbank free gymnasium for women and children, Boston.

Miss Harriet Isabel Ballintine, director of the fine Alumnæ gymnasium at Vassar.

Alice B. Foster, M. D., director of gymnasium Woman's Educational and Industrial Union, Buffalo, N. Y.

Miss Juliette Maxwell, teacher of physical training, Coates college, Terre Haute, Ind.

Miss Ellen L. Lowell, Leland Stanford university, Palo Alto, Cal.

Miss D. M. Elliott and Miss Mary G. Potter, Berkeley lyceum, New York city.

Miss Margaret E. Clark is building a gymnasium of her own in Cambridge.

Miss Ballintine made rather a specialty of swimming, and there is a fine big swimming tank in the Vassar gymnasium, where she now teaches.

This is the one athletic sport in which a woman may easily excel a man, her smaller bone and greater amount of adipose tissue giving her more buoyancy in the water, and the muscular effort required being more continuous than severe. And there certainly could be no two opinions as to its being a most useful and desirable accomplishment to the modern woman, who is quite as likely to "go near the water" as her brothers.

The Charlesbank gymnasium, of Boston, is a free open air gymnasium on the bank of the Charles, with one department for men, and one for women and children; the latter, in charge of Miss McMartin, being the first institution of the sort in the world. This is going at the matter in the right quarter, providing healthful exercise and means of physical development for those who most need it, and stand the least chance of getting it—that feminine portion of the city which files slowly out of the great sweating boxes between the hours of sunset and sunrise. The gymnasium belongs to the city, is absolutely free to all, and is open daily from eight a. m. till half an hour after sunset. Any working girl or woman seeking pleasant exercise and physical development may secure all the privileges of the place, apparatus and instruction, by simply presenting her name. The gymnasium is fitted up in the most improved manner, and in accordance with the most modern methods under Dr. Sargent's supervision. The apparatus used is much the same as that in the men's gymnasium, and in all other well equipped institutions of the sort, differing in some respects from the men's in that some of the paraphernalia has been changed to meet the requirements of the sex.

You often hear it said that when given opportunities for physical or mental improvement people (especially poor working people who have most need of them) are too indifferent to avail themselves of them. But this certainly has not proved true in the case of the Charlesbank gymnasium for women. The total attendance of women and children the first week of its existence was 9,693; and Miss McMartin told me on October 12 that the total attendance from June 1 till that day was 140,000.

The dress prescribed for those who use the more difficult and advanced apparatus is very neat, becoming and suitable, consisting simply of a loose blouse and full, zouave like trousers. There is no skirt; for, as Dr. Sargent justly says, a skirt is an immodest and improper looking garment on a woman using vaulting bars, flying around on horizontal bar, or hanging head down on a trapeze.

At first the girls were quite timid and very shy of being observed. The gym. was only protected from the gaze of curious men by thick shrubbery; and in the early days the stopping of one lone man to observe the goings on within was sufficient to suspend all operations temporarily. So a big wooden fence was put up, and a city ordinance passed making it a finable offense for persons—even in carriages—to stop unduly and watch the girls at exercise. Miss McMartin is a policeman, too, wearing the regular badge of the park police, and carrying a policeman's whistle with which she can summon help, if needed.

It is a sight to do your heart good—the gymnasium when things are at their liveliest. All classes, types and varieties of girls and women are there, from nine years to sixty, from the child weighing 50 to 55 pounds to the "stout lady" who tips the beam at 200, so that Miss McMartin says she sometimes trembles for the apparatus. All is life, animation, jollity. This goes without saying. How could they be otherwise than gay, good humored and hopeful with the blood bounding in their veins, cheeks and limbs aglow, eyes shining, hearts waked up and pounding away like great, glorious engines to send the healthful currents, like glad tidings of good cheer, to the uttermost provinces of that dark land, the weary body, cramped and chilled and enervated through long hours in close sewing rooms, behind counters or in ill ventilated tenement houses?

There is a nursery attached to the gymnasium for the babies and little chaps who are under age to use the apparatus. There they play games, run romp and dig in the sand beds, several of which are provided for them, all under the charge of a careful matron.

It seems to me that such a gymnasium established in every city, absolutely free, scientifically fitted up and conducted by thoroughly trained and competent teachers, would count more to the good than many existent public semi-charitable institutions, would be a great factor in the physical improvement of the race (for it is the minority who can patronize expensive private gymnasiums and physical culture classes), and would be, to the mass of girls and women, a welcome evangel of the good time which is surely coming.

ALICE MACGOWAN.

IS CURTIS INNOCENT

Said He is the Victim of Police Persecution.

TRIAL TO BEGIN THIS WEEK.

The Actor's Counsel is Confident He Will Be Acquitted.

It Will Be Shown at the Trial That Two Men Were With the Murdered Policeman—Both of Them Arrested and the Guilty One, It is Alleged, Allowed to Escape—Strange Circumstances in the Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 11.—The trial of M. B. Curtis, well-known on the stage as Sam'l of Posen, who is charged with the murder of Policeman Alexander Grant, will be begun in the Superior Court this week.

The case against him was purely one of circumstantial evidence. The dead policeman was found on the sidewalk at midnight, and Curtis was captured in an intoxicated condition as he was running away nearly a block from where the policeman's body lay.

Curtis denied doing the shooting, but the police made out a strong case and produced a revolver which they claimed to have found in the street not far from where Grant's body was found.

The police also succeeded in making Curtis out as the owner of the revolver. At the preliminary examination the police brought forward alleged witnesses to the shooting, and notwithstanding that one of the witnesses named Johnson, confessed to having committed perjury, Curtis was held for murder and committed for trial without bail.

A startling rumor is afloat to-day that Curtis was not only innocent of the crime with which he is charged, but that he was the victim of a police conspiracy.

Investigation seems to substantiate this story, and it looks as if Mr. Curtis would be acquitted when the case is tried. Attorney George A. Knight, counsel for Curtis, makes the following statement:

"The case of Mr. Curtis is simply one of conspiracy and persecution by the police department. Curtis is an innocent man, and we will have no difficulty in securing for him a triumphant acquittal. We will prove at the trial that there were two men with Policeman Grant the night the murder was committed.

"Both men were under arrest, and a policeman had the nippers on the wrists of both. One of them was M. B. Curtis, the other unknown prisoner was the man who fired the shot that killed Policeman Grant.

"We will prove that Capt. Lees, of the detective force, was in full possession of these facts early the next morning. Our witnesses for the defense will not only prove that, but will also prove that they notified the police of the facts, and the police failed to act upon the information they received.

"Curtis maintained from the first that he never shot Grant. For a long time we thought we would maintain for the defense that Curtis did the shooting, as we might make stronger defense, for the reason that Grant was not in uniform, did not have on a policeman's star and was in a locality where footpads are numerous.

"If Curtis had shot this man all he would have to say in defense of his act would be that an unknown man not in uniform assaulted him. But we have since discovered the evidence I speak of, and now have a clear case of conspiracy by the police.

"The police allowed the guilty man to escape and having a dead man on their hands thought they could fix this terrible crime on poor Curtis and that the facts would never come out."

Russell Sage to be Sued.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—W. R. Laidlaw, jr., the banker's clerk who was seriously injured by the explosion of the bomb in Russell Sage's office, intends shortly to begin his suit for damages against Mr. Sage for the injuries he received through being used as a shield by the eminent financier. He will be able to leave St. Vincent's Hospital in a few days, but will bear the scars of his wounds for life. He has been advised that he has good grounds for a recovery of damages, and will sue for a large sum. A prominent physician states that had not Laidlaw been in front of the millionaire, the beam which struck him (Laidlaw) would doubtless have ripped open Mr. Sage's stomach.

A Priest's Actions Criticised.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Jan. 11.—Father Smith's actions in refusing permission to bury the remains of Mabel Moore, an Episcopal communicant and daughter of Catholic parents, in the Catholic cemetery here is meeting with some adverse criticism by those outside his church, while the parents of Miss Moore are censured by Father Smith's friends for their violation of the priest's orders. When the cemetery was reached it was found that the gates had been closed by Father Smith. The coffin was lifted over the wall and carried to the lot and interred.

THE KREBS DISASTER.

Claimed that Nineteen Men Are Still in the Mine.

MCALISTER, I. T., Jan. 11.—Perhaps it will never be known just how many lives were lost in the accident at Krebs. Some of the galleries and approaches are so blocked with debris that it is nearly impossible to open them.

The mine officials now claim that only one man is missing. This is an Italian named Antonio Gonesetei, who seems to have no family and no friends except those who were killed. His body is supposed to be near the main entry under a mass of rocks, which are now being removed.

The men claim that there are others dead or imprisoned in the mine. There were 335 men working in the mine on Thursday, according to the pay roll and the tally reports of every man who goes down the shaft. Of these 51 dead bodies have been recovered, 187 men escaped by way of shaft No. 7, now used as a ventilating shaft, and 108 were taken from the main shaft, in a critical condition. This leaves 39 still unaccounted for.

The list of those who escaped by shaft No. 7 and of those who were taken from the main shaft is known to be incomplete, and it is believed that 20 have escaped and were not listed. This leaves 19 men still in the mine.

The work of recovering the bodies is very slow, and is impeded by the caving in of shafts and galleries. It is believed all who escaped death have been rescued. No signs of live miners entombed within the mine were detected this morning, and the rescuers now expect to find nothing but the remains of the dead. It is claimed now that the undue haste of the entrymen to get away from the mine caused the death of many miners. The entrymen fire their own shots.

John Hurley and John Williams are blamed as the authors of the accident, but death has already called them to a higher court.

The mine committee and the owners will hold an investigation into the cause of the accident. Missouri, Kansas, Pennsylvania, Ohio and other great mining States have State inspectors of mines, but there is no such officer in the Indian Territory.

DR. GRAVES' CASE.

His Only Hope Now Lies in the Supreme Court.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 11.—Dr. Graves will not get a new trial unless the Supreme Court grants it. Judge Rising has refused a new trial and also denied the motion for a continuance of judgment. A motion for arrest of judgment was then filed. This will be heard to-day, and if denied sentence of death will be immediately passed.

Dr. Graves was in the court-room while the matter was pending. He looked well and greeted his friends warmly. Later he was taken to see his wife. The interview was a sad one and was very effecting.

Mrs. Graves physicians to-night report that her condition is much improved.

Worked the Merchants of Johnstown, Pa.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 11.—Some months ago a man named F. M. Willey came here from Philipsburg and started a collecting agency. His scheme was to get the merchants who had accounts outstanding to pay $7.50 to join what he called the Eureka Collecting Agency, of Philadelphia, guaranteeing them that he would collect all their bad debts on a basis of 15 or 20 per cent. if they became members of the agency. Willing succeeded in getting a large number of patrons and collected many debts. He has skipped without turning over a cent of money. His downfall is attributed to drinking and gambling.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Jan. 11.—The Monmouth County Grand Jury have indicted Louis Harriott for murder in the first degree. Harriott is the Frenchman who about seven weeks ago brutally murdered Mrs. Charles K. Leonard, the wife of his employer, at Atlantic Highlands, by choking her with a rope and then mashing her head with a hammer. The murderer says he will plead guilty to the indictment. Chief Justice Mercer Beasly will insist upon Harriott's lawyers interposing a plea of not guilty. The murderer does not appear to realize the enormity of his crime.

Augustin and Ada are Out.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—It is rumored in theatrical circles that Ada Rehan, the well known leading lady of Daly's company, had quarrelled with Mr. Augustin Daly, and that the disagreement was so serious as to involve her possible retirement from Mr. Daly's company at the expiration of her present contract; with that gentleman. Color is given to the report by the fact that Miss Rehan is not in the cast of the new play, "The Cabinet Minister," which is to be produced at Daly's Theatre this week.

EGAN AND REFUGEES

The Minister's Action Gives Rise to Much Talk.

COMMENTS OF CHILIAN PRESS.

President Harrison's Message on the Baltimore Affair to be Presented Soon.

The New Rules for the Fifty-second Congress—Contest for Reading Clerk—Mills Will Try for the Senate—Special Treasury Agents Exonerated—Other Washington News and Gossip.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—A dispatch from Valparaiso says there is a great deal of talk about the action of Minister Egan in escorting the three Balmacedist refugees, Juan and William McKenna and Jose Carrera, from the American Legation at Santiago to Valparaiso and placing them on board the U. S. cruiser Yorktown, but the knowledge that he did so with the tacit approval of the new administration has disarmed severe criticism.

The press gives considerable space to the subject, but discusses it in a calm spirit.

While in nowise condemning Mr. Egan for what he has done in the matter; it asserts that the United States Government must assume the responsibility if its Minister loses the respect of the public in escorting such characters as these refugees, for his doing so degrades him to the level of a policeman.

Then, recalling the well established fact that Mr. Egan had done exactly the same thing for many prominent Congressionalists in their hour of peril, the press goes on to say that there is no comparison between caring for men like Pedro Montt, Agustin Edwards and others of their standing who were on the side of liberty and order, and protecting these refugees, who are known, outside of their career as Balmaceda's coadjutors, to be men utterly devoid of good deeds.

This, it adds, is especially the case with Juan McKenna, whom it accuses of endeavoring to rob an American named Chase of a silver mine near Iquique, and of afterward hiring men to attack him.

The New Rules.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Speaker Crisp's condition is so far improved that his associates of the majority of the Committee on Rules believe he will be able to meet with them this week for the preparation of a code of rules. Messrs. Catchings and McMillin have been individually studying the situation and it may be said that the rules of the Fiftieth Congress will form the basis of the new rules. These do not differ materially from those of the Fifty-first Congress, except in the matter of authorizing the Speaker to count a quorum and to determine whether or not a motion is dilatory.

The Contest for Reading Clerk.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Tests in the contest for appointment to the very difficult and trying position of Reading Clerk have been going on ever since the House organized last month. On the start there were about 40 aspirants. That number has narrowed down to four gentlemen, with positions waiting for two of them. Prominent in the contest is Mr. William J. Houghtaling, of Albany, N. Y. He was a friend of the late Secretary Manning, and filled for a long while the important position of Examiner of Civil Service Examinations in the Treasury Department.

Mills Will Be a Candidate.

CORSICANA, Texas, Jan. 11.—Congressman Roger Q. Mills in an interview said he would be a candidate for the Senate should there be called a session of the Texas Legislature. Free coinage of silver, he did not believe would in the slightest manner relieve the financial distress of the country, notwithstanding that he had advocated it in and out of Congress and had voted for it. He advised the postponement of the further agitation of the subject until the tariff is reduced. On the latter issue the Democrats had won the country and could hold it.

The Special Message.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The one question now asked in diplomatic circles in Washington is when will President Harrison send his special message to Congress? Will it be to-day? It is known that the State Department has finished copies of all the correspondence between Chili and the United States up to Dec. 18, and the copies are ready for transmission to Congress whenever the President and Secretary Blaine decide to send them.

Special Treasury Agents Exonerated.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The Treasury Department has exonerated, after investigation, the special agents of the Treasury Department from all blame in connection with the re-appraisement of goods imported by McCreery & Co., of New York. Two Pumas Against 700 Men.

LEIPSIC, Ohio, Jan. 11.—The greatest hunt ever undertaken in the State took place near here yesterday when 700 men and fifty hounds turned out to run down two pumas which for two weeks have been preying on livestock in the neighborhood. The beasts were encountered early in the afternoon, much to the sorrow of both hunters and hounds. The fight was kept up until dark, with the result that seven of the hunters are dangerously injured, at least two of them fatally and nine of the hounds are dead. The pumas are now surrounded in a swamp and the fight will be renewed.

SHE MAY RECOVER.

Possibility that Mrs. C. S. Quackenbush's Wound May Not Prove Fatal.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 11.—It is possible that Mrs. C. S. Quackenbush, who was shot by her husband Friday night, may recover. Her recovery was at first doubted, but yesterday afternoon she rallied sufficiently to undergo an operation.

The bullet, which was found lodged two inches from the left ear, had, in its course, passed through a portion of the brain.

Mrs. E. L. Stender, Quackenbush's only sister, came to this city yesterday from Syracuse, N. Y., with her son. The latter will take Quackenbush's body to Syracuse to-day. Mrs. Stender explained that several years ago, while in Montana, her brother received a wound in the head, which, she believed, affected his brain.

Will Dance Till the "Messiah" Comes.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Jan. 11.—Nearly 1,000 Indians, on a large level mound on the Arkansas River, in the Cherokee Strip, are holding a religious dance day and night, and are awaiting the coming of the Messiah. All of the Pawnees are there, and many Kaws, Otoes and Osages. Some have come several hundred miles, bringing ponies and cattle to sacrifice, and others have spent all their money for presents to give to their Saviour. One trader has sold nearly $1,000 worth of presents to them. They are not hostile to the whites, but say they will not stop the ceremonies until the Messiah appears. During the last few days five or six of the dancers have died from over-exertion and exposure.

Dr. Rogers, Pasha Chief of the Egyptian sanitary service, presides, and is assisted by Dr. Will, a German, Dr. Binet, and two natives. The inquiry is said to have developed the fact that the native doctors at first in attendance upon the Khedive administered morphine hypodermically to an extent that may probably have hastened his death.

General Uprising Probable in Several States.

GARZA GAINING RECRUITS.

President Diaz Appealed to for More Troops to Crush the Rebellion.

Monterey to Be Attacked First—General Stanley Thinks There Will Be no More Trouble on This Side of the Border—The Critical Situation of Captain Chace—Much Anxiety Felt for the Safety of His Command.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 11. — The startling information is brought here by J. C. Godfrey from Piedras Negras, Mexico, that there is a general uprising threatened in the States of Durango, Chihuahua, Coahuaila and Sonora, and that the malcontents are well organized and will flock to the standard of Garza. He states that in parts of Chihuahua, the poorer classes have already revolted and are marching in bands of from 300 to 400 across the country committing depredations. The objective points of these forces is said to be Monterey. The Governor of Chihuahua has appealed to President Diaz for more troops to put down the rebellion.

Gen. David S. Stanley is of the opinion that there will be no more serious engagement with the Garza men on this side of the border, for the present, at least.

He states that they will not attack the Government troops unless cornered, and in that event he places confidence in the ability of the troops.

The officers whose command is now regarded in most critical situation, is Capt. George F. Chace, who was to have reached the Palito Blanca ranch, 17 miles southeast of San Diego, at which place the Mexican authorities and Gen. Larenzo Garcia, particularly, claim that Garza has his headquarters. Capt. Chase has instructions to make a thorough search of the ranch, and the result of his expedition is awaited with much interest, and no little anxiety at department headquarters here.

NEW YORK'S TREASURY.

The State Report Will Be Presented to the Legislature Very Soon.

ALBANY, Jan. 11.—State Treasurer Danforth's report is in the hands of the State Printer and will probably be presented to the Legislature on either Tuesday night or Wednesday morning. It is as voluminous as usual and details minutely how $19,800,000 has been expended.

The Treasurer has had in his hands during the past year $22,400,000, and of this amount, with receipts since Oct. 1, when the report was compiled, there was in the treasury, Jan. 1, about $6,000,000.

This is an increase over former years' balances, and the tax rate is likely to be correspondingly decreased.

Of the money received during the fiscal year there has been about $1,100,000 from collateral inheritance tax, a slight falling off from last year. The general tax fund has amounted to about $7,000,000, a decrease from last year because of the reduced tax rate of the year.

Only very little allusion is made to the direct war tax fund refunded to the State by the government. It amounted to something over $2,300,000 and is deposited in several banks of the State.

The canal fund amounts to $1,467,510.18, and the free school fund to $423,246.16. The general fund in bank is $407,540.13; the military record $17,710.49; the land scrip fund to $93,348.71, and other funds to $3,706,000, making a total of over $5,000,000 now on hand.

Indianapolis Not After the Convention.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 11.—Reports of the Executive Committee in charge of the movement to have this city chosen as the place where the next Democratic Convention shall be held, show that some remarkably effective work has been done in a quiet way in the interest of Indianapolis, and the members of the committee are encouraged to believe that if the Convention is held in the West, Indianapolis will be selected as the place. Plans have been prepared for a convention hall with a seating capacity of 15,000, with the most perfect arrangements for convention purposes ever offered in the country. All parts of the hall are within easy view and hearing distance of the stage, and the press and telegraph arrangements are everything that could be desired. More than sufficient money for the erection of the building has been raised by subscription, and everything is in readiness to begin work on it as soon as the question as to where the convention shall be held is decided.

Will Probably be no Strike.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 11.—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen held a meeting here yesterday at which the trouble between the Consolidated railroad and the firemen and engineers on the Valley, Naugatuck & Northampton divisions, was thoroughly discussed. THE GRIP OF MONOPOLY.

THE COUNCIL OF '92 CONFRONTED BY A CONDITION, NOT A THEORY.

Interesting Review of the Water-works Situation, With a Statement of Facts to Which Many Plainfield People Have Hitherto Been Blind—Electric Light Troubles Likely to be Repeated in the Water works Question.

At to-night's session of the common council some decision will undoubtedly be reached concerning water-works matters. At last Monday's meeting councilman See moved for the discontinuance of the city's suit against the Plainfield Water Supply company. Action in the matter was postponed till to-night, however, through councilman Marsh's motion to place Mr. See's resolution upon the table.

In view of the fact that the council will consider such an important matter, THE PRESS gives to-day a brief history of the question of water-works privileges in Plainfield during the last two years. Interesting matters to every Plainfield taxpayer and resident are made public now for the first time. It is quite needless to say that this paper is the only one in this city that dares publish these interesting facts. The thinking citizen who thoughtfully reads the following will probably ask himself how much longer must the "one man monopoly" exist in Plainfield? The common council may answer that question to-night.

The Plainfield Water Supply company, or a party claiming to operate under that title, having without permission of the Plainfield authorities laid its pipes through the city streets, is now urgently endeavoring to obtain a contract with the city for hydrant service, and to secure recognition of what it claims as its charter rights. It assumes to have been chartered about twenty-three years ago, in the days of special legislation. So far as its property is concerned, it is really the extension of the system begun about two years ago under what was known as the Moore contract with the city council. That contract failed, the parties being unable to complete the work. An Elizabeth capitalist, who had made considerable advances on the Moore works, found himself liable to loss; and then the suggestion was made that the property could still be put to use by assuming to operate under the old charter of the Plainfield Water Supply company granted in 1869—a charter of which almost nobody knew anything, and the few who ever had heard of it supposed it had died long ago. Without waiting to get either contract or permission from the city, the balance of the water pipes were laid, and the question now is whether the new council will countenance or approve this act, and make the contract asked for.

In order to do this, the first step is to dismiss the city's case in the courts against this company, which many of the citizens of Plainfield regard as an intruder and a trespasser, and as having no valid chartered rights or legal existence. In this connection it is of interest to know—though scarcely anybody seems to have ascertained the fact—that the majority of the corporators of the company have for a considerable time been dead; and, of the few who are still living, only two are residents of Plainfield; and one of these, James Clark, (who is one of Plainfield's most substantial citizens) protests against the present assumption of the party that has laid the pipes, and claims that no such party is authorized to act under the old charter. The single one out of all the twelve incorporators who does claim rights under the old charter, as belonging to the present company, is E. B. Pope, and he is urging the acceptance of the situation, and the making of a contract by the common council.

One important practical question, apart from the legal phase, is that of water rates to the citizens and property owners. It is asserted by Mr. Clark and others that the rates to be charged by this water company (if countenanced by the city authorities) will be greatly in excess of the rates charged in many other cities. The moderate charge of $15 per hydrant to the city is proposed by the water company; but this is subject to being raised later on, and, even if continued, is believed by Mr. Clark and others to be only a bait thrown out to secure recognition of a defunct charter and of such an authorized status as will enable the water company to charge whatever rates it pleases hereafter to citizen consumers. Plainfield has already had some experience with this same sort of thing in its dealings with the gas company and the electric light plant, in both of which Mr. Pope has been interested, and as to the charges for which many consumers are dissatisfied. As to the electric light concern a charge is now pending before the common council, based on expert testimony, that the city did not get a large proportion of the light and service for which it has been paying under the contract. Citizens who see that Mr. Pope is the only one of the corporators of the original Plainfield Water Supply company now pressing for the accomplishment of a contract with the city, are showing considerable apprehension lest the experience with these other companies may have to be repeated.

The new common council is largely composed of gentlemen of high respectability, but it contains several new members who are not quite familiar with the situation of the water question; and it remains to be seen whether as a body the council will be induced to dismiss the city's rights against the water company in court and make the water contract asked for.

The original incorporators of the Plainfield Water Supply company were Stephen O. Horton, D. J. Marshall, Daniel C. Hyde, J. K. Field, William B. T. Laing, E. W. Runyon, Carmon Parse, A. C. Cordell, Ayres Coddington, Augustus Coddington, James Clark and E. B. Pope. Of these the first seven are known to be dead. The three named after them, if living, do not reside in Plainfield. The only surviving Plainfielders are James Clark and E. B. Pope, and of these Mr. Clark asserts positively that the present concern is not in possession of the charter rights of the old company.

OBITUARY.

Timothy Hunting Morse.

Timothy Hunting Morse, who was undoubtedly the oldest Freemason in the State, died at his home on East Fifth street Saturday night, from complications resulting from the grip. He was quite conscious to the last, and when he realized that his end was near he calmly and resignedly planned the details of his funeral services.

Masonic services over the remains will be held at the Congregational church, Wednesday afternoon at 2:45. Past Grand Master of New Jersey, Robert M. Moore, of Elizabeth, will conduct the services by request. There will be short services at the house, 26 East Fifth street, at 2:15. The brothers of Mr. Morse's own lodge, Jerusalem, No. 26, of this city, and those of Anchor lodge, No. 149, of Plainfield, of which Mr. Morse's son-in-law, P. D. D. G. M., R. W. Bro. W. A. Freeman, is a past master, will meet at Masonic hall, 10 East Front street, at 1:30 o'clock, and attend the services in a body.

Timothy Hunting Morse was a native of Natick, Mass., where he was born May 24, 1801. At the age of 15 he was apprenticed to the carpentry trade, and it was through a simple incident in his early career as a carpenter that he became a Mason. While assisting in the erection of a barn he had to flee to an old farm-house attic for shelter from a storm. In rummaging about the rubbish he found and read a Masonic Monitor, and immediately made up his mind to adopt for himself the principles contained therein. He accordingly handed in his petition to Mt. Moriah lodge, Cantertury, Conn., in the year 1824. His thoroughness in acquiring the Masonic work was remarkable, and he speedily was raised to the degree of Master Mason, and became Senior Deacon. In 1827 he removed to Uxbridge, Mass., and affiliated with Solomon's Temple lodge of that place. In 1829 he became its Worshipful Master, and held that station three years. In 1833 he received what were thought to be serious injuries, caused by his falling fifty feet from the top of a building, and he was forced to retire from active business, and removed to Bangor, Maine. His public spirit won him various offices of trust and honor. He was made a select councilman and warden of the Penitentiary, and was commissioned by the United States Government keeper of the U. S. Arsenal at Bangor. In 1848 he was elected Worshipful Master of Rising Virtue Lodge, of Bangor, and in 1851 was appointed District Deputy Grand Master. Armed with authority from the Grand Master, he instituted many new lodges, and appointed officers and instituted elected odones. In 1849 he was elected a member of Mt. Moriah Chapter, and in 1853 received his Knight Templar degrees from St. John's Commandery at Bangor. He held for four years the position of Prelate, considered one of the finest working positions in the Commandery.

In 1857 Mr. Morse removed to Plainfield, and in 1865 affiliated with Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, of that city. He resided in Plainfield ever since. The members of Jerusalem were proud of him, not only on account of his veteranship, but also because of his sterling worth. To the enterprise of Mr. Morse Jerusalem owes its elegant hall, and it was through his instrumentality that the late Henry G. Latimer bequeathed to the lodge a valuable Mildmer organ.

Mr. Morse was beyond question the most renowned Mason in the State. At all big gatherings of the order he was accorded the highest honors, even greater than those given to the Grand officers. He held at the time of his death the office of District Deputy Grand Master.

The veteran Mason was very benevolent in appearance. His hair was a soft gray, and his side-whiskers were of the same color, until at the cheek-bones they merged into a jet black.

At his birth Mr. Morse weighed but two pounds and a half, and at the age of ten days had developed full-fledged measles, that left him deaf. In the course of his life he had two narrow escapes from violent death. The first was his terrible fall, when several ribs were broken, an arm was fractured, a leg was put out of joint, and the scalp was stripped from his skull. Good surgery prevented bad scars. At another time he was whirled about a whizzing shafting, and only the utmost self-possession and superhuman physical exertion saved his life.

Mr. Morse was the father of four children. He leaves a daughter in the west, and resided with the other, Mrs. William A. Freeman; his sons are William G. Morse, a well-known Plainfield architect, and George L. Morse, a Brooklyn architect, of wide-spread fame. Among the many big buildings that George Morse has designed and built is the new home of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle. The elder Mr. Morse was himself the designer and builder of many substantial brick and stone blocks and public buildings in the Nutmeg State.

Mr. Morse had an honest disapproval of physicians, and held that the human race is prone to over-doctoring. He attributed his health and longevity to his avoidance of unnecessary medicine-taking, his shunning altogether the use of tobacco, and his leaving strong drink entirely alone.

Hilaire Obitz.

Hilaire Obitz, whose serious illness was noted in these columns last week, died Saturday evening, in his 71st year. Funeral services will be held from his late residence on Somerset street to-morrow morning at 9, with interment at Greenwood.

Abram Kershaw.

Abram Kershaw, an old New Jersey hotel man, and latterly manager of a hotel at Washington, D. C., died in that city Saturday evening, of typhoid-pneumonia, superinduced by the grip. He was a brother-in-law of Mrs. Meader, station agent at Evona, who left for Washington Saturday evening. Funeral services over the remains of the deceased will be held at the First Presbyterian church, at Somerville, Wednesday afternoon.

THE FOSGATE-VAIL CASE.

Mr. Reed Tried the Case for all it was Worth—So Insists Craig A. Marsh, His Legal Adversary, and He Ought to Know.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In your account of the trial of the case of Fosgate vs. Vail, your criticism upon my opponent, Charles A. Reed, was in my opinion wholly uncalled for and unjust. It took away all the pleasure that I would otherwise have felt over the result of the case. Praise may be grateful when deserved, but never when it is coupled with disparagement of a foeman, who, as in this case was preeminently true, was worthy of one's steel. The case turned almost wholly on questions of fact, and the method adopted by the defense to weaken the force of the evidence given by the plaintiff was one to resort to which defendant had a perfect right. Will you oblige me by permitting me in your columns to publicly disavow any sympathy with the criticism made upon Mr. Reed's professional conduct, and to express the conviction that he tried the case for all it was worth.

CRAIG A. MARSH.

Words of Praise.

The following, regarding a former citizen of Plainfield, is taken from the Birmingham, Ala., Daily News, of January 4, 1892:

There died yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock at his residence, 509 North Nineteenth street, John T. Lee, aged 65 years, a well-known and prominent citizen. Mr Lee had been ill of pneumonia about three weeks, and yesterday the end came. He leaves a widow and four children, three of whom, Robert E. Lee, Mrs. F. D. Squires, and Mrs. J. M. Wharton reside in Birmingham. Mr. Lee came to Alabama about eight years ago from New York. He was widely known and to know him was but to like him. The funeral takes place from his late residence, 508 Nineteenth street North at 3 p. m., to-morrow, and the interment will be at Oak Hill cemetery.

Postponement of Mr. Fraser's Lecture at the Casino.

In consequence of the non-arrival from New York of the gas cylinders which are used in connection with the stereopticon, Mr. Fraser was unable to deliver his lecture at the Casino Saturday night. The lecture will be given to-morrow night, and, as already announced, tickets will be sold at the door. It should be borne in mind that this lecture is given free of expense by Mr. Fraser, as is the case with the two to follow by Messrs. Elwell and Adams respectively.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely; it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the med cine above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety, and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Ct.

Notes of the Boys' Club.

The average attendance at the rooms last week was 53 per evening, the largest being 75 and the smallest 33.

The Edwards Zouaves will meet for drill Wednesday evening at 8:30. A full attendance is desired.

An entertainment will be given one week from this evening, to which all members and their friends are invited. One feature of the entertainment will be views by the magic lantern.

It fills the bill—a dose of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Sick or Bilious Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels are promptly relieved and permanently cured.

But not in the way the huge, old-fashioned pill tries to do it. These little Pellets have better methods. They cleanse and regulate the whole system naturally. In other words, they do it thoroughly, but mildly and gently. There's no disturbance to the system, diet or occupation. They're the smallest pills, but the most effective in result—purely vegetable, perfectly harmless. Only one little sugar-coated Pellet for a laxative—three for a cathartic.

They're the cheapest pills you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You pay only for the good you get.

This is true only of Dr. Pierce's standard medicines.

"TROLLEY SYSTEM THE BEST."

So Says the Supreme Court, but it Decides That the Poles Can Only be Erected on Private Property and With the Consent of the Owner.

The decision of the Supreme court at Trenton—published in THE PRESS of Saturday—setting aside as illegal a resolution of the Newark common council granting a street railway company the right to erect trolley poles in the streets, does not, as THE PRESS stated, effect the Plainfield case. The common council of this city gave the privilege by ordinance.

Here are the vital points of the Supreme court's decision, delivered by Justice Reed:

A resolution of the common council giving consent to a street railway to place posts and stretch wires in a street, and prescribing the size and location of the poles, and limiting the speed of the railroad when operated by electricity, is a street regulation which, under the charter of Newark, must be by ordinance.

This writ of certiorari brings up a resolution passed by the common council of Newark on Dec. 17, 1890.

The resolution, in its first clause, purported to grant to The Rapid Transit Street Railway company, of the city of Newark, and to several other companies, the right to use electric motors to be supplied with electricity from overhead wires supported by posts to be placed in the street.

* * * * * *

The main question discussed in this case is whether the common council of the city of Newark possessed the power to pass the resolution, the substance of which has been set out.

* * * * * *

But if it should be conceded that there was power in the common council to deal with the subject matter of the resolution, I think such power should have been exerted by ordinance.

The grants, restrictions and limitations contained in the resolutions, were regulative of the use of the streets.

That the regulation of streets shall be by ordinance or by law, and not by resolution, seems to be the necessary conclusion from the language of the charter of Newark.

In regard to the right of the prosecutor to sue out this writ, it appears that the poles in front of his property were to be placed in the middle of the street.

He owns to the middle of the street.

So it will be seen that the above decision was only upon the granting by resolution of the privilege to erect poles; and it also defined for the purposes of a suit, how far a man's property extended. But a decision has followed in another case, that does cover the question in Plainfield. Here are extracts from that opinion which is also by Justice Reed:

The provisions of the act, Rev. Supp't p. 369, 630, empowering street railways, with the consent of municipal authorities, to use electric or chemical motors or grip cables as the propelling power of its cars instead of horses, does not legalize the erection of poles and the stretching of wires in a public street, as a part of a system of electrical railroading.

An ordinance which purports to grant permission to erect such poles and stretch such wires is illegal.

An abutter, owning to the middle of a street, can use the writ of certiorari to test the validity of an ordinance which purports to confer the power to place such posts upon his land lying in the street.

This writ of certiorari brings into this court the following ordinance, passed by the common council of the city of Trenton:

* * * * *

The inhabitants of the city of Trenton do ordain:

Section 1. That permission be and the same is hereby granted to the "Trenton Horse Railroad company" of the city of Trenton to use electric motors as the propelling power of its cars on all the lines of the city of Trenton which they now or hereafter may control and operate, to be supplied with electricity from properly guarded overhead wires, supported by poles at least twenty feet high:

* * * * *

The question propounded is, whether the common council is invested with the power to grant a street railway company the privilege of placing obstructions in the street in the shape of poles and wires. The counsel for the defendants contend for the existence of this power in the municial body. The counsel for the prosecutrix, on the contrary, insists that the power of the council is limited to a grant of a permission to use motors upon or attached to the cars, but does extend to a permission to erect structures upon the street, although for the purpose of supplying such motors with the electric fluid.

But the defendants claim that since 1886 the relative merits of the several systems have been decisively tested. They claim that the result of these tests is to demonstrate, that at the present time the overhead or trolley system is the only scheme which is commercially successful; that it is the only system by which street railroads can be run by electricity more cheaply than by animal power.

I think that it is true, that at the present moment the trolley system is the best, and perhaps the only practicable electrical substitute for horse power. It is uncertain how long this will continue to be true, for scientific inquiry and experiment is astir, touching new methods in the use of the electric fluid for railway purposes.

Now the defendants insist, that the grant of power to use an electric motor, carries with it by implication, the privilege of employing such accessories, as are necessary to utilize the express grant. Assuming that the overhead or trolley system is the only one by which the use of an electric motor can be made commercially successful, they claim that the right to use this system springs out of the express grant. This is the substance of the defendants' insistence.

And in respect to the trolley system itself, it is to be observed that, while the erection of posts is essential to the successful operation of the system, nevertheless the locations of posts in a public street is not necessary for its operation. Posts placed upon private property adjoining the street will subserve the purposes of the system. This involves a difference in expense and trouble, but involves no radical obstacle to the successful operation of the electric motors.

The conclusion is that the act of 1886 expressly grants only a right to use—with the consent of the municipal authorities—an electric machine attached to some part of a car, for the purpose of transmitting electric energy into car movement. The act contains no implied grant of power to obstruct the ordinary use of a public street by posts, wires or any other apparatus designed to be used in connection with any electric motor.

The Common Council had no power to authorize or consent to anything more than to the use of an electric motor. The ordinance pretending to vest, as it does in the defendant corporation, a right to place posts and string wires in the public streets is a nullity.

It is perceived that this result does not rest upon the want of power in the Legislature to authorize these erections upon the land of an abutting owner, without providing compensation—upon which question no opinion is expressed—but rests upon the intention of the Legislature as expressed in the act.

The defendants insist, however, that the prosecutrix has no standing from which she can attack this ordinance by the use of the writ of certiorari. I think that she has. Unless these poles are to be placed in their intended position by some one having authority to do so, they will constitute a nuisance. Inasmuch as the prosecutrix owns the fee to the middle of the street, such an erection will also be a trespass.

The execution of the project, which this ordinance professes to authorize, involves a special injury to the prosecutrix and she is not bound to await its accomplishment. She has the right to anticipate this injury by testing the legality of the ordinance which professes to confer the right to inflict it.

This ordinance is set aside.

The result of these decisions will be, that as the Trenton and Newark companies are wealthy and powerful corporations, and as the people of those cities by a large majority—as also in Plainfield—want the roads, the legislature that begins work at Trenton, Tuesday, will enact laws that will give the Newark, Trenton, Plainfield and all other companies all the power necessary to go ahead and construct, operate and maintain the roads without fear of interruption by some one, or more, selfish or factious person.

MAYOR GILBERT'S MESSAGE.

That Admirable Document Receives High Commendation by One PRESS Reader, Who Undoubtedly Voices the Sentiments of Two Thousand of Them.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The admirable message of our new mayor, given in full to the public in your paper, is receiving high commendation from all parties, Democrats and Republicans alike, and fully justifies our remark on his inaugural that we have at last the right man in the right place. Let us itemize his recommendations which are all in the line of Reform and Progress.

1st. He calls attention to the great responsibility assumed by, and imposed on, those who undertake to make laws for so large a constituency as Plainfield. This, a much needed Reform.

2d. The paramount importance of a full water supply for our rapidly growing city. This, in the way of Progress.

3rd. A sharp reduction in appropriations to our fire department. This will bear severe pruning, for to use a homely maxim, "The child has got quite too big for its clothes". A much needed Reform.

4th. The great importance of a complete sewerage system for our entire city—thorough and free from all patch work. This in the way of Progress.

5th. The great need of a city railway. This could, in time, be gradually extended to Scotch Plains, Fanwood, Netherwood and South Plainfield. In course of time, those growing suburbs would be only too glad to come under our protecting wing. All factious opposition will now be removed. This in the way of much needed Progress.

6th. Strongly recommends the suspension of work on the streets and the needless destruction of our beautiful shade trees. This carries with it a large reduction of our excessively high taxes. Capital and population will not be attracted by high taxes. A much needed reform.

7th. An increase in our police force, and a radical overhauling of our system for the relief of the poor. These cannot be too soon acted upon, and are also in the way of Reform; and,

Lastly, That the baneful influence of the saloon shall be abridged, and the hour of closing be restored to 11 p. m. Wives and mothers will hail this Reform with joy.

With these measures of Reform and Progress in full operation, who shall dare to prophesy the growth of our beautiful city. With a death rate lower than any of the cities of this healthiest of all the States; with a society unsurpassed for general intelligence, refinement and culture; with churches and schools the boast as well as the pride of our city; who will dare say what shall be the number of our population in 1900. M.

He'll Not Have to Hustle—He'll Walk Over.

[From The Plainfield Courier.]

The New York World of this morning says that James E. Martine, of Plainfield, has announced himself as a candidate for congress from the new Eighth district, of which Union county is part. If this district is to be a Democratic district, it could not be represented by a more honest or capable man than "Farmer James", and he deserves the nomination at the hands of his party. He will, however, pardon the Courier if it expresses the wish and belief that the new district will not be Democratic. The Republicans of Union county intend to do some pretty tall hustling this fall, and as honest as popular as capable a candidate as Mr. Martine would make, he will have to hustle, too, if he would be elected.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyon question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield N.J.

They Wanted Counselor Marsh's Opinion.

Corporation counsel C. A. Marsh of this city addressed by invitation a union meeting of the church people of Somerville, yesterday afternoon, in the Methodist church of that place. The subject was selected by those having in charge the meeting which was one of a series of Sunday afternoon talks at which have already appeared some of the most learned divines and prominent public men in the State. Counselor Marsh gave a legal opinion as to "Our courts, their power to grant and withhold licenses to sell intoxicating liquor".

I have used Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills for Dyspepsia, etc., and have been cured by them. I cheerfully recommend them to all who suffer from the same.—STEPHEN BURHANS, sexton Wayne street Reformed church, Jersey City.

Installation of Post Officers.

There will be a public installation of the officers of Winfield Scott post, No. 73, department of New Jersey, G. A. R., at their Hall, 12 East Front street, to-morrow evening, at 8 o'clock. The installing officer will be Quartermaster General, R. A. Donnelly. There will be short talks by the Rev. W. R. Richards, the Rev. E. M. Rodman, Col. G. H. Starr and others, interspersed with music and recitations. The committee in charge of the affair is composed of W. D. W. Miller, J. E. Stewart and John A. Goodwin.

The infant reason grows apace and calls for one more application of that good friend, Salvation Oil, which never disappoints but always kills pain.

It is neither pleasant nor profitable to hear people constantly coughing when they could be easily cured by a 25-cent bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

BOUND TO KILL THE JUDGE.

Botkin's Life Unsafe if He Does Not Retire from the Bench.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 11.—Joseph Pitzer of Arkalon, attorney for James Brennan and an intimate friend of Judge Botkin, who has had a long consultation with Governor Humphrey in regard to the condition of affairs which exists in the Thirty-second judicial district, says that there is an oath-bound organization of Citizen's Alliance men in Woodsdale and Springfield whose object it is to kill Judge Botkin, and that if he does not retire from the Bench they will eventually depose him.

"Judge Botkin is just as likely to be killed in Stevens county or Morton as in Seward," said Mr. Pitzer. "It will be necessary not only to arrest those who participated in the plot to kill him but those who knew of it as well and who neglected to inform the authorities."

Of the six prisoners now held under suspicion of being connected with the murder of Dunn, but two will be held for trial, Anderson and Leach, they having been recognized by Sheriff Guyman and others who were attacked by the mob. No more of the 30 warrants will be issued at present, as the county attorney does not have evidence that will hold them. It having been revealed that the witness, Hutchinson, who is supposed to have given the conspiracy away, might be in danger, he will be removed to a place of safety as soon as possible.

New York's Legislature.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 11.—The active sessions of the State Legislature begin to-morrow night at 8 o'clock, when both branches meet. In the Assembly Speaker Bush will announce his full committees and in the Senate President pro tem Cantor will announce his. After these committee the balance of clerks and messengers are appointed and both branches will settle down to routine business. The assembly has already a calendar of twenty-nine bills and a deluge of new proposed measures is anticipated for to-morrow.

Another Crank, Perhaps.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 11.—Detectives McManus and Cronin, of this city, have evidence which leads them to believe that it was a crank who tried to wreck the Consolidated express trains at Fairfield last week. They thought they had him where they could arrest him, but he unexpectedly appeared in Norwalk and made another attempt at train wrecking on the Consolidated. The detectives think he is the man who has set fire to the many barns and outhouses in Fairfield and Black Rock recently.

Sensation Over an Elopement.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 11.—The elopement of Miss Hattie Happing, of Littleton avenue, with George Wirtz, a salesman in a Broad street drygoods house, created quite a sensation in the West End when the news leaked out to-day. The parties went to Paterson Friday night, where they were married. Miss Happing is well known among the elite of Newark, and was engaged to be married to a Mr. Valentine.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Jan. 11.—Trinity Reformed Church of this place, which has been greatly changed and enlarged, was consecrated yesterday by the pastor, Rev. T. J. Barkley. Rev. E. V. Gerhart, D. D., President of the Theological Seminary at Lancaster, preached in the morning and Prof. J. C. Bowman, of the same institution, in the evening.

Cotta Granted a Stay.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The Italian murderer Cotta, who was sentenced a few weeks ago in Brooklyn, to pay the death penalty during the week beginning Jan. 18, has been granted a stay pending an appeal to the Supreme Court.

Destitution in Quebec.

QUEBEC, Jan. 11.—There is much destitution in this city. A mass-meeting of over 4,000 unemployed workingmen was held Saturday afternoon and resolutions adopted petitioning the government and city council to provide them with work.

THE WASHINGTON ARCH.

A Work of Art to Be Finished in a Short Time.

It Stands on the North Side of Washington Square, New York, Just Where Lower Fifth Avenue Begins—Description of the Arch.

Place, position, add effectiveness to the Washington arch now in process of erection in New York. The arch stands on the north side of Washington square, just where lower Fifth avenue begins. Washington square is of ample area, and becomes the fitting frame for such a monument. Though lower Fifth avenue at its beginning is not of great length, it has fair width, and so the artistic impression of the arch is not lessened by its surroundings.

The exact appreciation of an arch, the meaning it would convey, may differ with the event it commemorates. Nationalities, says Barnet Phillips in Harper's Weekly, have various expressions. There is the Arc de Triomphe, the largest of arches. It is grand in conception, fulfills its functions as the monument typical of the glories of France in the past. It imposes by means of its massive qualities, while its decoration tells of battle and conquest. Its title indicates triumph. It may not recall the caudine fork of a savage victor, but if its vault could give a sound, its echo might be "væ victis!"

As has been judiciously remarked in criticisms on the Washington arch, the architect, Mr. Stanford White, has made his design with perfect appreciation of the surroundings. Such buildings as are in proximity near lower Fifth avenue, or visible through the trees, can neither be called noble nor impressive. It would be nonsense to say that the arch was assorted to the neighborhood. Mr. Stanford White was too good an artist to lower his conceptions. It will not as an artistic creation stand, however, aloof from its modest neighbors, but it must in time exercise its influence. In the years to come the quiet repose of this portion of New York will have an awakening, perhaps, and then, following the lead of the arch, a better type of buildings will be reared. Committees who select localities for monuments never lose sight of what is in the future. It may, then, be safe to say that just as long as Washington square exists, and Fifth avenue begins there, this special quarter of New York will never lose its importance.

In all ways Mr. Stanford White's plan is excellent, and, above all, is appropriate. An arch may be grave, but never somber. If it stood bald, unornamented, it would be meaningless. Differing in no way from all other art conceptions, it must tell what it means. An American arch, if it had any idea to convey to us, could never be one of conquest, but reminding us of the superbest of all triumphs—that of freedom. Anything else than this would jar with true republicanism. No one ever dared, when the nation was still young, to think of rearing a pile blatant with our victories over Mexico.

The initial idea of this arch was due to the erection of a temporary wooden one when the celebration of the inauguration of Washington took place. The great event of 1789 was remembered in 1889. "Why not," it was once asked, "have a durable monument as lasting as our country which shall tell forever the greatness, the goodness of George Washington?" At once means and ways were thought of, committees were formed, with the result of a handsome sum of money to be devoted to the erection of the arch. On the 30th of May of last year, with appropriate services, the corner stone of the arch was laid, the orator of the day being Mr. George William Curtis.

The illustration gives an idea of the arch as it will be when finished with its surroundings. The view through the arch is looking up Fifth avenue. Two columns holding globes surmounted by eagles give the proper balance and add to the effective qualities of the arch.

Great Fires of History.

The great fire of Moscow, which occurred in 1812, was the most gigantic conflagration of history. In it 30,800 buildings were destroyed, valued at $150,000,000. The estimated loss in the great Chicago fire of October, 1871, was $125,000,000. The buildings destroyed numbered 17,450. The number of buildings destroyed in the great fire of London, 1666, was 13,200, valued at about $55,000,000. The property destroyed by the great fire of Boston, 1872, was valued at $50,000,000. That fire burned over sixty-five acres and consumed or ruined 776 buildings of all kinds. In 1870 Constantinople had a conflagration which entailed a loss of $25,000,000 and burned 1,000 persons and 7,000 buildings. In 1851 San Francisco lost 2,500 buildings valued at $17,000,000. In 1852 Hamburg, Germany, had a fire which consumed 1,747 of the finest buildings in the city.

LARGEST SHIP AFLOAT.

Principal Dimensions of La France, the Great French Clipper.

The largest sailing ship under any flag is the five-masted vessel La France, which recently took coal from Newcastle to San Francisco. She is 375 feet in length, 49 feet in breadth, and 33¾ feet in depth, measured from the upper deck to the bottom of the hold. Her net gauge is 3,600 tons, and her burthen 6,100 tons. The principal dimensions of the vessel are as follows: Bowsprit, 50 feet long and 12 inches and 30 inches in diameter; mizenmast, in a single piece, 140 feet long; main boom of the mizenmast, 46 feet long; upper throat, 21 feet; lower throat, 23 feet. The lower and top masts are in a single piece, and of the following dimensions above deck: Foremast, 159 feet; foremainmast, 166 feet; aftermainmast 167 feet. The diameter of the mast varies from 30 inches to 17 inches; that of the topgallant masts is from 16 inches to 10 inches. The length of the lower yards is 82 feet, that of the upper yards from 75 feet to 77 feet, special supervision of the Bureau Veritas. She was built on the Clyde by D. and W. Henderson, and is owned by Ant. Dom Bords et Fils, of Dunkirk. It may be interesting to mention that on her first voyage from Cardiff to Rio de Janeiro the trip was completed in thirty-three days, and although only moderate winds prevailed a speed of 12½ knots was attained, the vessel being laden with 6,000 tons of coal. The fifth mast "very much facilitates the working of the ship, which tacks about with wonderful ease," said the captain at the conclusion of the voyage. Referring to big sailing ships calls to mind the monster Yankee clipper, The Great Republic, built in "the fifties" for Law and launched, but she was too big for her time, and she ended her days as a French transport and then as a coal hulk. But in her prime she made the run from New York to Scilly in thirteen days.

The largest British ship is the Liverpool, of 3,330 tons, built of iron by Messrs. Russell & Co., on the Clyde. She is 333 feet long, 48 feet broad and 28 feet deep. Her four masts are each square rigged; but she is far from clumsy aloft, is easily handled, and has run 14 knots an hour for a whole day. We were much impressed by her exceptional size; but for beauty she compares unfavorably with such a ship as the Thermopylæ, or a large wooden ship of America, having bright, lofty spars, and decks as white as a hound's tooth. Iron decks do not lend themselves readily to adornment. Next in size is the Palgrave, of 3,078 tons. The United States' ship Shenandoah, of Bath, Me., built by Messrs. Sewall & Co., of that port, is the largest wooden vessel in existence. She is 3,258 tons register, and will carry about 5,000 tons of heavy cargo. She has just left San Francisco, Cal., with 112,000 centals of wheat, worth $175,000. This is the largest grain cargo on record. Another wooden vessel, the Rappahannock, also built at Bath, Me., is 3,053 tons register, cost $125,000; and 706 tons of Virginia oak, together with 1,200,000 feet of pine timber, were used in her construction. The largest British wooden ship is the Three Brothers, of 2,963 tons register, built at Boston, United States, in 1855. She is 323 feet long, 48 feet broad and 31 feet deep. A further conception may be formed of the carrying capacity of such ships when we mention that the Liverpool brought 20,000 bales of jute from Calcutta to Dundee, and the Rappahannock took 125,000 cases of petroleum from Philadelphia to Japan.

GRAVES IN PRISON

Taken to Canon City After Being Sentenced.

Governor Routt Says that the Doctor Shall be Heard in the Supreme Court.

The Deputies Who Alleged that He Had Made a Confession on His Way to Jail After the Verdict Exonerated Yesterday—Not Allowed to See His Wife—Her Condition is Somewhat Better.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 12.—Dr. Graves was taken to the penitentiary at Canon City last evening, having been sentenced during the day by Judge Rising to be hanged some time during the two weeks beginning Jan. 31.

Besides the officers he was accompanied by a large number of other prisoners, mostly petty offenders. Steel cuffs were on his hands and chains bound his feet. This is the first time he has been exposed to such indignity. He took the situation coolly, and was pleasant and courteous to the officers in charge. The doomed man talked freely on all topics but the one of his supposed guilt.

Dr. Graves was not permitted to see his wife before departing. She is improving rapidly, and is ignorant that her husband has taken one more step in the direction of the gallows. This information will not be conveyed to her until she is well enough to go to him.

Judge Rising held an investigation yesterday into the conduct of the officers who conveyed the doctor to jail the night the verdict was returned and who alleged that the accused made a confession. The officers stated under oath that they did not ply the prisoner with questions, but the doctor grew loquacious of his own accord. The court exonerated the deputies of all unbecoming conduct.

Gov. Routt has stated that the doctor shall have time enough to be heard in the Supreme Court if His Excellency has to grant a reprieve.

TWO KILLED, MANY HURT.

A Boiler Explosion at Bridgeport, Pa., Causes Great Havoc.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Jan. 12.—The boiler in a pork-packing factory at Bridgeport, near here, exploded yesterday morning and two people were killed and several others injured.

The killed are: John Shaw, of Conshohocken, a butcher. John Myers, bruised and crushed, killed by shock.

The injured are: Benjamin Shaw, aged 15 years, son of John Shaw, skull crushed, and scalded; will die. Thomas Headren, Walter Whitman, Oliver Baker, engineer; William Henwood, William Hillebrecht, Kurtz Law. The injured were taken to Charity Hospital, where Headren has since died.

Tolstoi on the Russian Famine.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The Russian writer, Tolstoi, is the author of an article in the London "Telegraph," two and a-half columns long dealing with the Russian famine. He discusses the problems of the supply of seed corn and fuel for the suffering peasants. As to the relief works begun under government auspices, Tolstoi says that there would not be work for one-tenth, if all who were in need should at once apply for a chance on the relief works. Not one-tenth of the work necessary had yet been done, if the peasants were to be saved, and only arduous effort could now accomplish the task.

Anarchy in Russian Provinces.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 12.—A state of anarchy exists in several districts of the Governments of Penza and Saratoy, where the starving peasants have looted and burned the houses of the Jews whom they accuse of monopolizing the grain product. In a number of instances the mobs furiously attacked the helpless Jews killing several and wounding many. The local authorities appear to have been either unable or unwilling to protect the helpless people.

The Elopers Have Returned.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 12.—George Wirtz and his young wife, who was Hattie Hopping, have returned from Paterson, to which place they eloped on Friday night. Hattie has gone to her father's house and George is stopping at his boarding house on West Park street. Hattie's folks will not recognize the marriage yet, and George cannot go to see his wife, as matters now stand. A reconciliation may be effected.

Born and Died Together After 60 Years.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 12.—Julia and Mary Howard, maiden twin sisters, who died at their home in this city almost simultaneously, had lived together all their lives. They died on the same day of the year and at the same hour they were born. They were 60 years of age. One was a victim of pneumonia, and the other of dropsy.

Did Not Grant the Injunction.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 12.—The application of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company from flooding the Conyngham mine, which has been on fire for the past six months, was denied yesterday by Judge Rice of the Luzerne county court. The plaintiffs claimed that the weight of the water would break the pillars between the two workings and destroy their mine.

Postmaster for 45 Years.

WINCHENDON, Mass., Jan. 12.—Mr. E. S. Merrill, who has been postmaster of this town for 45 consecutive years, is dead of the grip. Before coming here in 1849 Mr. Merrill was in the postal department at Montpelier, Vt.

A BRILLIANT AFFAIR.

First of the Official Dinners to be Given in the President's Honor.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The first of a series of official dinners in honor of President and Mrs. Harrison was given last night by Vice-President and Mrs. Morton at their residence on Rhode Island avenue.

It was a brilliant event. The house was beautifully decorated. Dinner was served at 7 o'clock in the grand dining hall. The floral decorations were American beauty roses and maiden hair fern.

The guests' places at the tables were indicated by cards with the names inscribed in gold letters, the cards forming pretty souvenirs of the event. Those invited to meet the President and Mrs. Harrison at dinner were the Secretary of State, the Secretary of War and Mrs. Elkins, the Secretary of the Navy, the Postmaster-General and Mrs. Wanamaker, the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Noble, the Attorney-General and Mrs. Miller, the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Rusk, Senator Harris, Mrs. Sheridan, Senator and Mrs. Manderson, Mrs. Rhinelander Jones, General and Mrs. Schofield, Mrs. Slater, ex-Speaker Reed and Mrs. Hartpence.

After dinner a reception was given, to which several hundred invitations were issued; those bidden including the Justices of the Supreme Court, the Senate and members of the Diplomatic Corps, all of whom were fully represented, and a large number of the prominent society people of the capital.

FATAL RAILROAD WRECK.

Two Passengers Killed and Thirty-eight Injured in Indiana.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 12.—The northbound Monon passenger train was wrecked north of this city yesterday afternoon by a broken rail. Two passengers were killed and thirty-eight injured, two of whom will probably die.

The locomotive and one car remained on the track while four cars rolled down a sixty-foot embankment.

The passenger coach rolled over three times. It was full of passengers and caught fire, but all escaped alive. The baggage and express cars went over, but no one in either was seriously hurt. The ladies' coach and the parlor cars were literally torn to pieces.

Hardly a passenger on the train escaped injury. Help was soon at hand, and in a few moments the roadway was full of the maimed on their way to the town.

There were three theatrical troupes on board, one of which was the City Club Burlesque Company, nearly every member of which received more or less serious injury.

The killed are:

Ben Hamburg, Cincinnati, a traveling man; Madam Elna Van Hokey, of the City Club Company.

The Collins-Derby Suit.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 12.—The contest in the Collins-Derby matter for the seat in the 16th District was resumed yesterday afternoon in the Senate chamber. Senator-elect Derby filed his answer to the complaint of Mr. Collins and says that every specific allegation of fraud is false and that there were no irregular or fraudulent proceedings and no intimidation of any voter. He alleges that his majority in fact was not as large as he was entitled to in that gross irregularities were practiced by the upholders of Michael F. Collins, the contestant. A number of witnesses were examined after which the suit was adjourned until Thursday afternoon.

The Small-pox in Trenton.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 12.—At a meeting of the Board of Health yesterday the health officers reported that there have been 72 cases of small-pox in Trenton up to date, and 12 deaths have resulted. The board urges all the large manufacturers to secure vaccine points, and it insists on the vaccination of all employes. Roebling & Co., iron works, are vaccinating their employes, who number 1,500, at their own expense. The epidemic seems to grow daily, and some physicians here ascribe the fact to the inefficiency of the health board.

Deadlock Probable in Iowa.

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 12.—As matters stand now, it looks as though neither party would be able to organize the Senate for a long time to come. Senator Schmidt, Democrat, is dangerously ill and will probably be unable to leave his room for many days. This leaves the Senate standing 24 Democrats, 24 Republicans and 1 Independent, Engle. The latter declares he will support neither of the other parties, and if he adheres to his resolution a deadlock will result.

Crushed to Death by a Car.

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., Jan. 12.—Frank Brady, well known as a baseball player in the coal region, accepted a position at the Mid Valley Colliery yesterday. He had been at work but a few minutes when a runaway car jumped the track and crushed him to death.

Curtis' Trial Postponed for a Week.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12.—The trial of M. B. Curtis, the actor, charged with the murder of Policeman Grant, was postponed yesterday for one week.

A TOWN CAVING IN

Part of Hazleton, Pa., in a Sorry Plight.

STREETS AND WALLS SETTLING.

The Place Has Been Undermined and the Danger is Considered Great.

New Fissures Discovered Last Night Almost Caused a Panic—Many Families Left Their Homes—Five Hundred Houses Affected—The Excitement Growing, Although the Mine Owners Say There is No Danger.

HAZLETON, Pa., Jan. 12.—Last evening a miner on his way from the Laurel Hill shaft to his home on South Pine street, noticed a ragged black line in the snow near the pavement. He found the crack extended along Pine street 30 feet. The miner knew what that meant. He knew that 700 feet below that part of the city men were at work taking out coal. So she rang the door bell of the nearest house, and told the man who lived there of his discovery.

An hour later 1,060 men and women were patrolling Pine, Chapel, Walnut, Chestnut and Cedar streets with lanterns. They found fifty cracks from half an inch to five inches in width. In the walls of houses long, ragged lines were found.

Foundations had fallen away from the frame structures in some cases five inches. The yards and alleys were seamed, and occasionally a cracking noise indicated that the buildings were settling further.

Soon twenty families were moving out of their homes. Women hurried along the streets to a safer neighborhood, their arms filled with bundles of clothing, clocks, and bric-a-brac. Sleighs and wagons were backed up to the door steps and all the furniture was carried off.

Now and then it was noticed that the cracks in the streets gaped further, and it was found that for thirty feet on the north side of Chapel street, east of Pine, the ground had fallen fully a yard. Long, undulating hollows here and there showed that the street was caving in elsewhere, and the excitement grew, minute by minute.

Of those who moved away about a score took with them part or all of their household belongings, while the rest put out the fires in furnaces and stoves and departed without trying to save any furniture.

The cave-in commenced on Christmas Day, and the first houses to suffer were in the neighborhood of Broad and Pine streets. It extends southward five blocks and a-half, ending 100 feet beyond Chapel street, and east and west about one block between Wyoming and Cedar streets. A. Pardee & Co. are the people operating beneath that district. Five hundred houses are affected.

Peace Said to Reign in Kansas.

ABILENE, Kan., Jan. 12.—Dispatches from the Governor have been received, ordering the dismissal of the troops heretofore held in readiness for this section of the State, and indications are that there will be no further use for the soldiers. A part of the General's staff has been relieved from duty and ordered home. The court at Springfield has been opened quietly and with no indications of trouble more than would be observed in any eastern county. Whatever the future may bring forth, the troubles are over, and security may be said to be restored.

New Jersey's Legislature.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 12.—The town is full of politicians, as both branches of the Legislature will organize to-day at 3 p. m. Robert Adrain of Middlesex will be re-elected President of the Senate, and Speaker Bergen of Somerset will again preside in the House. Among the first bills expected is one to meet the defects in the law of 1886 in regard to electric railways. As nearly half the more important towns in the State are interested in it, the passage of the bill is assured. Gov. Abbett in his message will treat chiefly of improvements in the tax laws.

Chief Judge Ruger Critically Ill.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 12.—Chief Judge William C. Ruger, of the Court of Appeals, is dangerously ill at his residence in this city. He has been confined to his bed with the grip since last Wednesday, and to-day is suffering severely from an attack of hiccoughs, which is wearing his strength away rapidly. Dr. Nathan Jacobson, Judge Ruger's physician, admits that his patient's condition is critical in the extreme.

To Oppose Judge Wood's Confirmation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday decided to lay over without action until next Friday the nominations of the Circuit Judges. This was done at the request of Senator Voorhees, who desires to enter a protest against the confirmation of Justice Wood.

NOT THE REAL LEADER.

Prominent Mexican Officials Said to Be Backing Garza.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—A private letter from Monterey, Mexico, says: "Though Garza is intelligent and brave, he is not the real leader of this revolutionary movement. The leader is one of the most prominent men in this republic, and he is ably seconded by very prominent military men and diplomats, who will never tire unless killed or triumphant.

"What aids or, rather, will aid the revolutionists is the general depression which reigns, and which makes itself felt more and more every day. The prisons are full of people driven to crime by distress, and President Diaz himself understands that the situation is critical. The police are very active in the search for the leading conspirators, but are meeting with poor success.

"L. Lameda Diaz, Mexican Consul at Laredo, has orders from the fort to doctor all reports passing through his hands and destined for the United States.

"Though Garza may be defeated now by the combined efforts of the United States and Mexico, and though he may be killed, the revolution will not end. Small bands will harrass the government on all sides until the election, when another stronger effort will be made, and then the Conservative or Clerical party may take a hand."

MRS. LINDLEY DEAD.

Cyrus W. Field Again Afflicted By the Death of His Daughter.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Mrs. Grace Field Lindley, wife of Daniel A. Lindley and eldest daughter of Cyrus W. Field, died about 3 a. m. of cancer in the stomach, after a lingering and painful illness.

Mrs. Lindley leaves six children. She was nearly 51 years of age, having been born October 18, 1841. It is but seven weeks ago to-day that Mrs. Cyrus W. Field died, and this new sorrow has greatly prostrated the aged millionaire.

Mrs. Lindley was a sister of Edward M. Field, who in November last defaulted for $700,000, wrecked the firm of Field, Lindley, Wiechers & Co. and is now in Ludlow Street Jail under several indictments charging him with larceny and forgery.

Mrs. Grace Field married Daniel Allen Lindley, E. M. Field's partner, March 5, 1874.

Important Decision By Judge Colt.

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—Judge Colt of the U. S. Court handed down yesterday a decision involving millions of dollars. The Court reverses the decision of the Board of General Appraisers which assessed a duty of twelve cents a pound on common goat hair and declares that it is entitled to enter free of duty. It holds that the intention of Congress, not the literal meaning of the words of the act should determine the decision, and declares that it could not believe that the law makers intended to place the prohibitive duty of twelve cents per pound upon goat hair unfit for combing. All duties a vast amount assessed under the appraisers decision, will have to be returned to the importer unless the Government carries the case to the Supreme Court.

Closed the Bank.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Jan. 12.—The First National Bank of Muncy was closed yesterday afternoon by United States Bank Examiner E. H. Dengler. On the latter's arrival the vault could not be opened, and an expert had to be called. The bank has not been doing a profitable business for some time past, and has met with heavy losses in loaning money. There was $70,000 on deposit at the last statement, and now there is a shortage of $40,000. Capt. J. M. Bowman is president, Baker Bowman is cashier, and James Bowman and B. Landcake are directors. The Walsall Dynamite Plot.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Scotland Yard is said to be meditating a large number of arrests of persons connected with the dynamite plot discovered at Walsall. One or more detectives will probably be sent to America to follow up clues there, as the police have evidence that several of the dynamiters have fled to that country. It is said that the London police are in communication with the New York Chief Inspector on the subject, and that assurance has been received that assistance will be given in tracing out the American ramifications of the plot.

Clarence's Condition Critical.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Latest bulletins regarding the health of the Duke of Clarence are not reassuring. His illness is affecting him severely, but his constitution bears up under the strain. The doctors in attendance consider the symptoms on the whole to be favorable. The illness of the Duke is the chief topic of the town. One cause for anxiety is the fact that so many deaths have occurred under the Georges in the royal family, a fact to which the Queen owes her elevation to the throne.

New York State Railroad Commission.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 12.—A meeting of the State Railroad Commission was held yesterday afternoon. The Hastings railroad disaster was considered, a report and an opinion of which will be handed down to-day. Applications for change of motive power from the Brooklyn City Railway Company, the Coney Island and Brooklyn Railway Company and the Brooklyn City and New Tower were received, all of which were put over without any decision.

Do Not Want the Law Changed.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 12.—The New Jersey Federations of Trades and Labor have passed resolutions to oppose all attempts of the builders and tradesmen to change the present Mechanics Lien law. They say the law as it is now is protects the workingman, but the changes proposed are not acceptable to the labor organizations and they will bring a powerful influence to bear on the Legislature to keep their hands off.

THE CHILI MESSAGE

It is Written and Will be Presented This Week.

PROMPT ACTION IS ADVISED.

The Senate Ratifies the International Slave Trade Agreement.

Congressman Breckinridge's Reciprocity Resolution in the House—Vice-President and Mrs. Morton Give the First of the Series of Official Dinners in Honor of the President—Other Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—There is the best authority for saying that the President will not much longer delay his special message to Congress about Chili. Indeed, the bulk of the message is already written. Its transmission awaits only the conclusions of Judge Advocate Remey's court at Vallejo, Cal. As soon as the testimony is all taken and the report of the court, which will be sent by telegraph, has been filed at the Department of Justice, is all received, the President will send his message. There is good ground for believing this message will be received this week and there is, of course, every reason to expect that it will be of a nature to uphold the flag of the United States in all its honor.

Secretary Blaine was at the White House late yesterday afternoon in consultation with President Harrison on Chilian matters. It is generally expected that the President will send the correspondence with Chili to Congress within a very few days, probably this week, and that he will, in his message accompanying the correspondence, advise early action without any regard to a possible apology or reparation on the part of Chili.

CONGRESSIONAL DOINGS.

Ratification of the International Slave Trade Agreement in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Speaker pro tem McMillin, who in the continued absence of the Speaker presides over the deliberations, called the House to order. Ex-Speaker Reed was in his seat for the first time since the Christmas holidays.

Mr. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, asked unanimous consent to offer a resolution authorizing the President, without further legislation, to declare the ports of the United States free and open to the products of any nation of the American hemisphere upon which no export duties are imposed, so long as such nations shall admit to its ports free of all national, municipal and other taxes flour, oatmeal and other breadstuffs, preserved meats, fish, vegetables and fruits, cottonseed oil, rice, lumber, agricultural implements, etc., or such other products as may be agreed upon.

Mr. Barrows, of Michigan, objected, and repeated his objection when Mr. Breckinridge asked that it be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Many bills were introduced and referred.

Mr. Aldrich presented the remonstrance of the woolen manufacturers of New England against any agitation of the question of the duties on wool, and asked that it be read and printed in the "Record."

Mr. Harris objected to the encumbering of the "Record" with the full text of such papers, and so the remonstrance was ordered to be printed as a document and was referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Perkins presented a communication from Mr. Ryan, the American Minister to Mexico, to the late Senator Pitimb suggesting that it would be a generous and neighborly act to return to Mexico the trophies of war captured by United States troops in the Mexican war of 1847. The letter was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

A large number of bills were reported from committees and placed on the calendar.

The Senate yesterday responded to the pressure brought to bear by religious bodies from all over the country by unanimously ratifying the general international agreement for the prevention and suppression of the slave trade which was adopted in Brussels on July 2, 1890. The time within which this general anti-slavery act should have been ratified expired July 2, 1891, but was subsequently extended.

In a special message sent to the Senate on the 20th of February last, the President urgently invited attention to the fact that unless this anti-slavery act, "as well as the commercial convention with the independent state of the Congo," should be promptly ratified, the whole work of the Brussels conference would be imperilled.

The White Squadron at Montevideo.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The Navy Department is informed that the United States steamship Chicago, Admiral Walker's flagship, arrived at Montevideo yesterday. The other vessels of the squadron, the Atlanta and the Bennington, were last reported at Bahia. They are expected to join the Chicago at Montevideo. The future movements of these vessels will be governed entirely by circumstances. They were ordered to proceed to Montevideo and await further orders. In case of necessity they will be ordered to Chili, but unless such a necessity arises they will remain on duty in the South Atlantic.

To Walk Around the World.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—John A. Bostum, a young newspaper reporter of Akron, O., has left Washington for New York with the intention of completing a trip around the world which he began last March, but which he was compelled to abandon at Port Said, Egypt, at which place he will resume the present trip. He intends to penetrate the Dark Continent, and go through Turkey, India, China, Japan and Australia. He will sail for San Francisco and walk across the continent to New York. Every mile possible of the entire journey will be made on foot.

Admiral Rodgers' Funeral.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Funeral services over the body of Admiral C. R. P. Rodgers were held yesterday at St. John's Episcopal Church. They were conducted by the rector, Dr. Douglass. There was a large attendance, including the Vice-President, Secretary Blaine, Secretary Tracy, Justice Gray, a number of Senators and a great number of other friends. The body was taken to Annapolis for interment.

McKINLEY INAUGURATED.

Ohio's New Executive Takes the Oath of Office.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 12.—The inauguration of Governor McKinley yesterday was conducted on a scale of magnificence. The day was crisp and not too cold, and the streets were in excellent condition for marching.

The inaugural ceremonies proper were held in the rotunda of the State Capitol.

The General Assembly met at 10:30, and almost immediately proceeded to the rotunda accompanied by the Supreme Judges and State officers-elect, except Major McKinley and the State officers.

At 11 o'clock Gov. Campbell and Gov.-elect McKinley were escorted by a joint committee of the House and Senate, appointed to have charge of the inaugural ceremonies, from the Chittenden Hotel to the State Capitol.

Rev. Dr. H. W. Bennett, of the Wesley Chapel M. E. Church, offered prayer, after which Chief Justice Marshall J. Williams, of the State Supreme Court, administered the oath of office.

Gov. McKinley then delivered his inaugural address.

The inaugural address treated briefly of the progress of Ohio in population and wealth between 1880 and 1890, of the State finances, taxation, agricultural interests, public institutions, etc.

In speaking of Ohio's representation at the World's Fair, the Governor said that not only should the State Legislature "see to it that ample provision be made to have a creditable exhibit, but the people and their representatives should urge upon Congress to take such action as will make this exposition worthy of the great event it celebrates, and worthy also of the dignity and honor of the nation."

The whole inaugural party repaired to the reviewing stand in the State House yard immediately north of the capitol and facing Broad street.

After the parade had passed the Senators and Lieut.-Gov. Harris returned to the State chamber, where the Lieutenant Governor took the oath of office and the other State officers went to their respective offices in the State capitol, where they were sworn in by different members of the Supreme Court.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 12.—It is reported that an attempt will be made to break the existing deadlock in the Legislature by the New York and New England railroad in order to secure legislative sanction of the proposed blanket mortgage on the New England properties.

Austria Will Keep Out of the Mass.

VIENNA, Jan. 12.—Austria has decided not to send a warship to Tangiers, and will leave it to England, France, Italy and Spain to settle the existing, or create a greater, difficulty there. Austrian interests at Tangiers are small, as compared with the others indicated.

The Republican Won.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 12.—Judge Depew yesterday announced his decision in the 13th ward Aldermanic election contest. It favors the Republican incumbent, and follows very closely the decision laid down in a similar case by the New York Court of Appeals.

Society Descriptions as They Are Wrote.

The society editor of the Courier is out in all his glory on the description of a local christening, but he does mix matters now and then in his exuberance, as witness the following:

"The baptismal fount and floral decorations were of Easter lilies and white hyacinths, and the supper was served by Marsel of New York."

A "fount" that was made of flowers must have been a curiosity. But after the supper it appears, according to the S. E., there was a dinner, at which he was not present, as witness the closing paragraph of this beautiful description:

"The table decorations were white lilies and white hyacinths. After the ceremony dinner was served to the immediate family."

To Ask Aid from the State.

It is said in Grand Army circles here that the New Jersey members of the G. A. R. will make an application to the Legislature for an apppropriation to cover their traveling expenses to and from Washington, D. C., during the session of the National encampment to be held there in September. It is the object of this encampment to gather together all the old soldiers now living in the Union, and as there are hundreds of veterans in New Jersey who are too poor to pay their own expenses an effort will be made to obtain aid from the State. Similar requests have been made in other States.

$5,000 FOR AN EYE.

The Verdict is Against the Pond Tool Company, But the Real Losers Are the Insurance People.

When employed by the Pond Machine Tool Works company, Joseph W. Robinson lost an eye and a finger; yesterday a Union county jury at Elizabeth awarded him $5,000.

The suit was brought only on account of the loss of the eye. Suit for the finger was not begun. The eyeball was struck by a flying particle of steel, which came from a casting from which some other workmen for the company were knocking chips.

The fragment of steel imbedded itself so deeply in Robinson's eye as to ruin the sight. His lawyers, Wm. H. Davis and E J. Davis, of Phillipsburg, brought suit against the company, and the jury brought in a verdict for $5,000.

The trial was begun last Friday, and ended yesterday afternoon. The jury was out one hour. The verdict was for the full amount asked. The principal witness for Robinson was his physician, Dr. T. S Davis.

The plaintiff is satisfied, but the defendant corporation is not, and will, it is said, appeal from the verdict to the supreme court. The Pond company was represented by Senator Edwards of Jersey City.

The case was tried before Judge Van-Syckel.

While the verdict is nominally against the Pond company, the real losers are the Fidelity and Casualty Insurance company, who insure the Pond people annually against all accidents to workmen in their works, and who are the real fighters in the present case.

SCRIPTURE FOR THE COUNCIL.

The Society of Friends Protests Against the Granting of Liquor Licenses.

The following was presented to the Plainfield Common Council last night, read, and ordered filed:

To the Honorable Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:—Your memorialists, in behalf of the temperance committee of the Religious Society of Friends, respectfully represent:

1st. That the licensed saloons for the sale of intoxicating beverages in Plainfield are opposed to the general public welfare; a menace to the safety and purity of the homes of its citizens; and a special peril to the young and inexperienced, and to those who are trying to reform and to lead temperate, Christian lives.

2nd. That the economic burdens of the taxpayers of the city are largely and needlessly increased, apart from the license fees, by the disorder, crime, and pauperism fostered by the saloons; that "in the revenues of the wicked is trouble"—(Prov. xv: 6); "woe to him that buildeth a town with blood, and stablisheth a city by iniquity"—(Hab. ii: 6).

3rd. We therefore respectfully and earnestly ask that in the exercise of the optional power vested in you, and as official guardians not only of the material, but of the moral wellbeing of our beautiful city, you will grant no license for the sale of intoxicating liquors, for beverage purposes, for the ensuing year.

For the committee,
AARON M. POWELL,
RACHEL BOGERT.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., 1, 10, 1892.

To Make the Law Concise and Clear.

The local liquor license law is at present governed by a confining multiplicity of ordinances and amendments. All of these are to be abolished, and a brand-new ordinance stating the present law clearly and concisely, and compelling the bar rooms to close at 11 p. m.; is to be presented for adoption at the common council's next meeting. All of the city ordinances are to be collected into one volume at an early date.

Friday, February 12—"The Lands of Old Testament History".

Everybody is invited to attend, with bible and note-book.

The Plainfield Constitutionalist last week celebrated its silver anniversary—25th year. The Force Brothers—W. L. and A. L.—, who started the office, are still at the helm, and also a goodly number of their old employes. It is a bright and able Democratic newspaper, and has done good work for the cause all along the line. J. A. Demarest is the city editor of their daily, which was started several years ago. It also is a success.

Can a Man Rob God?

In the Monroe Avenue chapel, last night, was held the first of the series of meetings which will continue every evening this week, Saturday excepted. The pastor, the Rev. C. B. Mitchell, preached a forcible sermon on the subject "Can a Man Rob God?" The meeting was full of spirit and feeling. Everybody in the vicinity of the chapel is earnestly invited to attend these meetings.

The announcement was made last week in these columns exclusively that the local physicians were about to proceed against an alleged physician, John C. Williams, for practicing without a diploma. Subsequent investigation has brought forth more detail, and the New York papers to-day publish the following story of the case:

One day last week the firm of A. M. Runyon & Son was called on to bury the child of a poor family named Perrine, living on the outskirts of the town. When they asked to see the certificate of death, a curious document, which set forth, in rambling and unusual phrase, the statement that the child had died of grip, was handed to them. The Perrines said that the doctor who treated the child and gave the certificate was a colored man named John C. Williams. Mr. Runyon knew no doctor of that name, and did not believe that the child died of grip. He refused to act on the certificate.

Then the colored doctor made his appearance. He was a peculiar-looking man, about 50 years of age, and wore a dozen or more ribbons and trinkets pinned to his coat and waistcoat. Some were coins and some old army buttons. He declared that they were all medals given to him in token of his skill as a physician. He said he did not write the certificate himself because he could not write. A friend wrote it for him. But he offered to sign it. When Mr. Runyon still refused to accept it, Williams said that while he had only lived in town three weeks he had made some wonderful cures.

When Mr. Runyon, puzzled as to what he should do, entered justice Vincent W. Nash's office that afternoon in search of advice, he found the agent of a dime insurance company there. The agent was complaining that a boy named Perrine, who was insured in the company, had died, and that a man named Williams, an alleged doctor, had sent the company a certificate of death so preposterously worded and spelled as to make them doubt that the boy died as alleged.

Justice Nash sent for Williams. He brought his medals with him and was oratorical, but admitted that he had no certificate from the State board of medical examiners, the conditions upon which physicians are allowed to practise in New Jersey. Justice Nash declared that Williams's death certificates were worthless, whereupon the negro threatened to "let loose the dogs of war of the United States Congress" upon him. Later on the negro said he was "the Crown Head Physician, champion of the world, M. D., D. D. LL. D., 2048, Washington, D. C." He is supposed, with some reason, to be crazy.

Justice Nash sent for county physician Westcott, who found that the Perrine child had died of inflammation of the bowels.

About the same time Williams advertised himself as a physician. The local physicians saw the advertisement, and Dr. D. C. Adams, the secretary of the local board, wrote to Dr. W. Perry Watson of Jersey City, secretary of the State board of medical examiners, asking if Williams had a certificate. Upon Dr. Watson's reply in the negative, action will be taken against Williams.

Increasing the Treasurer's Bond.

An ordinance was introduced by councilman Ackerman last night, passed on first and second readings, and ordered engrossed and advertised preparatory to final passage, increasing the city treasurer's bond to $25,000. It has been $15,000 since 1881. Sometimes the treasurer has as much as $50,000 of the city's funds in his possession at one time.

—The salaries of the city officials will be fixed for the year at the next meeting of the common council.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

Work Performed by Women During the Eighteenth Century.

The scarcity of domestic relics at the Guelph exhibition left many visitors under the impression that needlework, like all manual occupation, was much neglected by the ladies of the Georgian era.

Happily this imputation is clearly refuted by sweet Cowper, witty Dr. Johnson, and humorist Addison, who all agreed in their praises of the needle, so inspired were they by the astounding quantity of every kind of work executed by their acquaintances.

Who is not familiar, too, with the capacious work bags of our great-grandmothers, as well as with their quaint samplers and pictures embroidered in a flat style, which contrast greatly with the raised and complicated productions of the needle during the reign of the Stuarts? The example of women's activity came, as usual, from high quarters.

We read with no little amazement of the prodigious number of tapestry chairs worked by the Electress Sophia, mother of George I., who left tokens of her nimble fingers to palaces, convents and churches all over the country, which did not prevent this gifted princess from learning five languages, besides being renowned as a clever painter and gardener as well as a profound philosopher.

Caroline, when princess of Wales, 1795, interested herself in the silkworms kept in the mulberry garden at Chelsea and was forever knitting. Later on Queen Charlotte, fond herself of knitting, knotting and ribbon work, showed her special interest in needlework by establishing a school for the daughters of clergymen and decayed tradesmen, where silk embroidery was taught as a profession.

The pupils worked for their patroness a magnificent bed-cover in lilac satin, which was exhibited for a long time at Hampton court, and another for Lord Howard, in gray silk, embroidered with white and gold spots. It is also well known that at the court of George III. idleness even in leisure hours was not tolerated.

We are told that when at Windsor castle, every day during the evening concerts, the princesses, their visitors and attendants were all busy either with pencil, needle or knotting.—Queen.

Recovered—sound health for every consumptive who hasn't delayed too long. There's a positive cure with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Just as it cures the worst of the many forms of scrofula, so it cures, and just as certainly, the scrofulous affection of the lungs that's called Consumption—through the blood.

But, even with this remedy, it won't do to wait. It can't make new lungs, but it can make diseased ones healthy when nothing else will. As a blood-cleanser, strength-restorer, and flesh-builder, there's nothing like it known to medical science. For Scrofula in all its forms, Bronchial Throat, and Lung affections, Weak Lungs, Asthma, Severe Coughs, and every disease that can be reached through the blood, it's the only remedy so unfailing that it can be guaranteed.

If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

On these terms, it's an insult to your intelligence to have something else offered as being "just as good."

A SCATHING PRESENTMENT.

EX-MAYOR RANDOLPH AND OTHERS ARRAIGN THE WATER-SUPPLY COMPANY.

These Leading Citizens Deny the Charter Rights Claimed by the Company, and Call Upon the City Not to Bow its Neck to the Yoke of a Soulless Monopoly.

The following communication, presented to the Plainfield common council last evening, was listened to with most respectful and earnest attention, and on motion of Mr. Marsh was referred jointly to the committee on fire and buildings and the committee on water and sewerage, they to report at the next meeting if possible:

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:—The undersigned, citizens and tax-payers, respectfully request you not to order a dismissal of the city's case in the supreme court against the parties claiming to be the Plainfield Water-supply company. We respectfully request the council to defend the city's rights in said case to the fullest extent, and to take such other measures as are necessary to prevent encroachment on the part of said parties upon the rights of the city and upon the property of its citizens.

And the undersigned respectfully request that the common council make no contract with the so-called Plainfield Water-supply company. And this request is urged in view of the following reasons and pending questions:

1. The undersigned believe that the party now claiming to be the Plainfield Water-supply company has no charter rights or legal existence. No court has held the contrary of the view here expressed. Indeed, the presumption, after more than twenty years of inaction, is, on the very face of the matter, against the assumption on the part of those who claim now to be the company. The point here made was, as we are informed, to have been submitted by the corporation counsel, pursuant to his announcement to the court, but was never so submitted and no proof has been taken by the city—either by interrogating the parties now claiming to hold a charter, or otherwise. This matter should, we believe, be thoroughly sifted now.

2. By way of amplifying to a limited extent our position, we beg to state that to the best of our information, the original corporators of the Plainfield Water-supply company took no steps to put into control of its charter rights the party now assuming to be the company. Several of those corporators are dead, and certainly died without taking any such steps; of the survivors James Clark is a signer of this paper and is confident that neither he nor his original associates ever did anything to cause the charter rights of the company to vest in those who now claim to exercise them.

3. Again, it has, as we understand, been admitted from time to time, by certain of the persons who now claim to be the Plainfield Water-supply company, that the original charter rights of the company lapsed from non-use, or for non-performance of essential acts by the party incorporated; but these persons are said to claim that such charter rights were revived by subsequent special legislation obtained prior to the time when all such special legislation was forbidden by the Constitution of the State. It is, however, certain that any such additional, and so-called curative, legislation, if obtained, must have been and was had long subsequent to the date of the city's charter, and must therefore have been subject to, and not superior to, the charter of Plainfield. In other words, even if the Plainfield Water-supply company have a valid existence, it can lawfully only lay down pipes or do a water-supply business in Plainfield, by consent or agreement of its inhabitants. Its entering upon our streets, as this concern has done, without permission from the city, or from the property-owners, was an act meriting rebuke rather than countenance.

4. To the argument that has been urged that a defence of the rights of the city would involve expense to the tax-payers, it may be answered: first, that public money is seldom better extended than in defending the city's rights; secondly, the expense of such litigation cannot be great; thirdly, a few private citizens can be found to bear this expense if the city itself cannot afford it.

5. Before recognizing in any way the so-called Plainfield Water-supply company, it is well that investigation be had touching the scale of charges proposed to be made to citizens, for water to be furnished to them. It should surely be known whether or not this charge is decidedly in excess of charges for water in other cities.

6. It is also surely most desirable to know what, if any, risk is to be incurred as to paying for an incomplete service, or one that may be short of that called for by a contract entered into in good faith on the city's part, as the contract for electric lights was. And, in this connection, the capacity and resources of the company for furnishing water to our growing city should be fully investigated.

7. It is hardly at this day a matter of dispute that the best thought of our age in regard to all public works is that they should be owned by, and operated for, the public. It is a retrograde movement to put a thriving city at the mercy of a private corporation in respect to its water-supply.

8. In cities generally, and, owing to our situation, in Plainfield particularly, water-supply and sewerage can only be intelligently and successfully dealt with as two inseparable branches of one subject. Public health and economy both require that no move be made toward separating them.

9. Sewerage is the difficult—the non-profitable—the expensive—enterprise. Water-supply is the money-making enterprise. We do not agree in the mayor's opinion that the city should give the profitable business to private parties, and, at the same time, take upon itself the onus of the costly and unprofitable undertaking.

10. The mayor's recommendation that a contract be made for one year, with an option for nine more, is seemingly a limited and an innocent one. But this, when fully carried out, involves certain important and undesirable consequences:—first, recognition of the so-called Water-supply company; second, abandonment of our municipal rights in the court as against the company; third, definite and permanent occupation by the company in a manner amounting, so far as can now be seen, to a continuous monopoly. In a word, it involves bowing the neck of the city to the yoke which, with singular persistency and assurance, this party is seeking to put upon us.

11. We venture to suggest that the subject of water-supply and sewerage, being a large and important one, and one having to do with all the future of our fair city, should be fully investigated by a competent commission. We feel at this point the need of an able non-partisan board of public works. It might answer at present to refer the whole question to some such a special body or commission as the mayor proposes for the unprofitable half of the subject. In some practicable way, we submit, the whole subject should be adequately examined and reported upon, before committing the city to any partial policy, or to any private speculation.

On motion of Mr. See the proposed resolution instructing the corporation counsel to interpose no defence for the city, in the pending water-works and sewerage litigation, was continued on the table. This was done at counselor Marsh's wish, who desires to be present at the hearing of the argument and not be hampered in protecting the city's interests.

PARSON DILL ON TRIAL.

His Free Way of Talking With Young Women Fully Investigated.

The trial of the Rev. A. C. Dill, the former pastor of the Presbyterian church at Stirling, back of North Plainfield, was begun yesterday before the Presbytery of Morris and Orange, in the First Presbyterian church of Morristown, behind closed doors. The Rev. Dr. Harlow of Mendham was Moderator. About thirty members of the Presbytery were present.

The testimony yesterday was apparently very damaging. When the witnesses were called, in nearly every case, Mr. Dill's counsel attempted to show that they had been instigated by H. G. Torrey, and that they gave their testimony at his request. This was the principal line of the defence.

Miss Carrie Halliday testified that when she was ill in bed Mr. Dill came to her room and made improper proposals to her. Her sister, Ella Halliday, and Miss Lucy Blake had also been approached in the same way and had given affidavits to that effect. Two other stories that Miss Halliday had to tell attesting the parson's immorality were thrown out on technical grounds.

Miss Anna D. Cooper testified that Mr. Dill had told her that the women of Mt. Freedom, where he was pastor before he came to Stirling, were not as healthy as the women of Stirling, because they did not take frequent enough baths, and were not particular about the underclothing they wore. Mr. Dill had also told her, she said, what irresistible attractions he had for the fair sex. On his way from Canada, he said he could n't tell how many wealthy men had begged him to marry their daughters. On one occasion, when riding on a train, he picked up a handkerchief for a young lady who was a stranger to him, and so captivated her with his manners that soon afterward he received a letter from her making a proposal of marriage.

Frederick Nichwitz, a white-bearded man, testified that Mrs. Sage had come to him once after her husband had died and asked him what she should do to protect herself against the advances of Mr. Dill. After dinner at her house one night her children had gone to sleep in the sitting room down stairs, and she picked up one of them to carry it to the nursery. Mr. Dill lifted one of the other little girls up in his arms and followed her upstairs. He stayed upstairs talking with her while she undressed her children, of whom she has four, all girls, and put them to bed. Mr. Dill assisted her and undressed one of the little girls. He spoke about their beautiful forms.

Miss Wolff, who is a fine-looking blonde, testified that one night when she was boarding at Mrs. Bowman's she and all the others in the family had gone to bed, when Mr. Dill came under her window and called to her. She heard him calling, but did not answer. Then he threw pebbles at the window to wake her, and called again.

"How did you know it was Mr. Dill?" asked the pastor's counsel.

"Because I heard his voice."

"How do you know he threw the pebbles?"

"Because nobody else in Stirling would do such a thing. Besides, there was no one else in the neighborhood at that time of night."

Gray Torrey testified that Mr. Dill one night at his mother's table had described a dance hall in Paris where 300 naked women danced. The pastor said he had gone in with a friend and had seen them.

Robert Cornish testified that the minister had told the same story about the dance hall at his house, only on that occasion Mr. Dill said that he had not been in the house himself, but that Henry Ward Beecher had been there.

Miss Florence Pember testified that she and Carrie Newman had gone to Mr. Dill's house one Friday and stayed all night there. The next day it rained and they stayed in the house all day and the following night. Mr. Dill read strange love stories to them and told them other stories unfit, as they thought, for a minister to tell.

Carrie Newman testified that the minister came to her bedroom one day when she was indisposed, and sat by her bedside and taught her how to sing alto.

Frederick Moffett and Frederick Tuff both repeated immoral conversations that they said Mr. Dill had had with him.

The trial continues to-day.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely; it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety, and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B.W. Sperry, Hartford, Ct.

MR. JACOBS MARRIES AGAIN.

His First Bride Went Back to Her Mamma, Before They Had Been Married a Day—Now He Has Wedded a Dunellen Girl.

Since Mr. Jacobs left the force of Dunellen letter-carriers, he has not altogether been idle, as regards his own welfare; and although the vicissitudes of Mr. Jacobs's life have been very prominent at times and have caused him much notoriety, he seems not at all discouraged.

Last winter when the nights were cold and dreary, and bachelor's quarters seemed so lonesome, Mr. Jacobs bethought himself that "life was but an empty dream" without a mate, and before many days had cast their sunshine upon his quiet domicile he secured a wife in the person of a Mrs. Forman of Brooklyn. The happy twain were married under the roof of their future home by the Rev. Mr. Kinsey of Dunellen.

Whether that reverend gentleman failed to tie the knot securely or not, the outside world were not informed; but the bride of a few hours had changed her mind when the next morning came around, and, taking her bag and baggage, left her husband in solitude and returned to her native soil. She afterwards lived with him a short time, but soon left again for her old home.

Through all this ordeal Mr. Jacobs did not become one whit discouraged; but when the recent fall of snow came, and the mercury began to lower its degrees, he found himself just as far from having a mate as he had been the year before. So he again entered the field of matrimonial bliss, this time securing for his happy bride Miss Lydia A. Richards, an estimable woman who has resided in Dunellen almost ever since her birth, and who comes of excellent family. They were married last Thursday afternoon, and have the best wishes of all the town.

FANWOOD'S FRIVOLOUS FEW.

The Silent Club Members Said Never a Word, But the Umpires Helped to Break Four Bottles.

At the Fanwood club, last Friday evening, three members of the club engaged in a game of billiards—no stakes up. Talking was not permitted, and under the umpiring of president Stevens and Clarence W. Smith the game was closely finished, whereupon the two high-score men—George R. Brown and the "silent member" from Quality Hill—played fifty points, the stakes, it is reported, being a bottle of wine for each point made by either gentleman in excess of his opponent. Had the agreement as to perfect quietude been carried out, the result would have been different, as the "silent member" was unquestionably talked out of the game, much to the satisfaction of the umpires, who are said to have assisted in breaking four small bottles the following afternoon. Score: Mr. Brown, 50; the Quality Hill "silent member", 46; game finished at exactly 2 o'clock.

If an agreement can be adjusted between the two members above mentioned and Capt. Briggs and his son, the club-house will be packed next Friday evening to witness a 200-point contest, the Messrs. Briggs to play a handicap of 50 points, on account of the junior's dexterity with the cue.

A Partisan Organ that Fears the Republican Defeat that Cleveland's Nomination Means.

[From The New Brunswick Fredonian.]

The Plainfield Constitutionalist this week runs up to its masthead the name of Grover Cleveland for President, and calls down anathemas upon the heads of the party leaders, who would relegate that gentleman to the rear. The Constitutionalist is somewhat previous. Before declaring for any particular candidate it should have waited until Gov. Abbett and Allen McDermott gave the cue. New Jersey Democratic editors are not supposed to have any opinions of their own upon such matters, and the Constitutionalist is likely to be rebuked for its temerity. And then again the Constitutionalist's zeal is evidently superogatory. The New York World has voluntarily assumed the task of electing a Democratic President, and for other Democratic journals to mix in it smacks of impertinence. As we said before, the Constitutionalist is too previous.

Dunellen Dots.

Miss Sadie Berry has returned from a two-weeks vacation spent with her parents.

Mrs. Psazn died very suddenly at her residence last Thursday afternoon. She had a very severe attack of the grip, and was recovering, when a reaction set in and she was seized with pneumonia and died. Funeral services were held over the remains Sunday.

Inferior Goods.

The only safe way for purchasers is to insist on having the genuine article, and not allow themselves to be swindled by having plasters said to be "just as good," or "containing superior ingredients," imposed upon them. These are only tricks to sell inferior goods that no more compare with ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS than copper does with gold. One trial of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS will convince the most skeptical of their merits.

The eminent Henry A. Mott, Jr., Ph.D., F. C. S., late Government Chemist, certifies:

"My investigation of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER show it to contain valuable and essential ingredients not found in any other plaster, and I find it superior to and more efficient than any other plaster."

Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

Weavers Refuse to Arbitrate.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 12.—The Narragansett mill weavers, now on strike, have refused the offer of the agent of the mill to submit their grievances to the State Board of Arbitration. They demand a recognition of their organization. As this is not conceded the strike is likely to be indefinitely prolonged.

Agrees to Accept $13,000.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Jan. 12.—George Herstine, who was awarded $19,800 damages by the courts because of injuries received by an accident on the Lehigh Valley railroad, has agreed to accept $13,000. He makes this compromise rather than take a retrial of the suit.

The Gallatin a Total Loss.

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—Capt. Duncan, the diver, reports at the Boston Custom House that the steamer Gallatin will be a total loss, being broken in two at the middle. If a storm comes it is not likely that anything can be saved from the vessel.

To Represent the Whaling Industry.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Jan. 12.—A proposition has been made to the Board of Trade to fit out the old whaling bark Progress for the purpose of sending her to Chicago to represent the whaling industry of this city. The matter will probably be favorably considered.

Differences Amicably Settled.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 12.—The controversy between the officers of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad company and the engineers and firemen in their employ was settled yesterday without the strike that had been threatened.

A Murderer Sentenced.

A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN.

Miss Mattie Mitchell, Who Is to Marry a French Duke.

Her Belleship Is Acknowledged in Europe, as Well as in America—Personal Chat About the Distinguished Prospective Bridegroom.

Miss Mattie Mitchell, the beautiful daughter of Senator John H. Mitchell, of Oregon, whose engagement to Duke Francois de la Rochefoucauld has recently been announced, is one of the few much-talked-of society beauties whose charms merit their fame. Her belleship, says Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper, is acknowledged from the banks of the Nile to "where flows the Oregon." She is now in the exquisite full bloom of womanhood. Her figure, just a shade below medium height, is perfectly proportioned and softly rounded. Her head is matchless in poise and coloring. Her hair is a soft, bright bronze, always worn in the same fashion, twisted on the crown, and in loose little rings across her forehead. Her face is a perfect oval, with the curves of a child; her eyes, under delicately penciled brows and sweeping dark lashes, are dark, full and expressive, and her cheeks are like damask roses, while her mouth is full-lipped "Cupid's bow." She dresses with simple elegance in faultlessly fitting gowns of gray and black combined, brown, or quiet, dark shades for the street, and usually in white in the evening, and rarely is she without a bunch of violets, which, with roses, are her favorite flowers. She was a member of the dancing class while in Washington, and at one of its evenings wore a gown, which, by its simplicity and becomingness, received universal admiration. It was a simple round waist and straight skirt of white mousseline de soie, the low bodice, short puffed sleeves, and edge of the skirt of which were bordered with violets, and a narrow belt of violet velvet outlined the waist and fell in loops down the back.

She made her debut in Washington about six years ago, has lived abroad a great deal since then, where she was a great favorite, particularly in Paris, and last winter and the winter before she spent in Washington.

Her accomplishments are numerous. She is a fine linguist, speaking French, Italian and German fluently, and for that as much as for her beauty was always a great favorite in the diplomatic circle. Indeed, at one time it was rumored that the British minister, Sackville West, was going to lead her to the altar—a rumor which arose, however, solely from her intimacy with his daughters. She is a good musician, has read widely in the different languages, rides horseback a little, dances "divinely," the men declare, and above all, has the tact and aplomb of a society woman of twice her years. Owing to Mrs. Mitchell's delicate health she not only discharged the many social duties that are imposed on a senatorial household, but looked after the domestic machinery, and herself did the marketing. Senator Mitchell's dinners are famous from epicurean and decorative standpoints, and to his charming daughter belongs the credit.

She met the duke de la Rochefoucauld in Paris about six years ago, and it was a case of love at first sight. There were obstacles in the way of their marriage which have at last been cleared away, and the engagement, which comes as a surprise to many, is a natural consummation of their hopes to her friends.

The prospective bridegroom comes of an old and distinguished French family, noble in deed as well as in name. Its original seat was the town of La Rochefoucauld, near Angouleme, and its history traces back to 1026, when a certain Foucauld, first seigneur de la Roche, is spoken of in a charter of an abby of Angouleme as "vir noblissimus Fulcaudus." It has a literary vein also, which manifests itself in the present duke and is traced back to Francois Duc de L. and Prince de Marsillac, born in 1613, who was much attached to literary pursuits, and who cultivated the society of the most eminent literary people of his time, Boileau, Racine and Moliere, and who published, besides his memoirs, the "Reflexions du Sentences et Maximes Morales," which is still widely quoted, and regarded as a model of French prose.

The duke de la Rochefoucauld is not one of the many impoverished nobles seeking for rehabilitation in an American fortune, but possesses estates and an income in harmony with his rank. Miss Mitchell's very comfortable "dot" will not be a mere drop in the bucket even there, however.

Corncob Pipes.

About 100,000 corncob pipes are daily manufactured in this country, all being made in three factories, at St. Louis, Greenwood, Neb., and in Kansas. The cobs are all procured in Missouri, and are supplied by the Collier variety of corn, on which they grow unusually heavy, woody and hard.

A Flat Sky.

The apparent flattening of the vault of the heavens has been found to have an annual period and to depend on clouds. It seems least flat with a misty horizon and less by night than by day.

MICROSCOPIC WONDERS.

Elegant Shells Decorated with Delicate and Fantastic Figures.

One peculiarity of nature's art work, very noticeable under the microscope, the reverse of that of man, is that small surfaces are decorated more elaborately than larger ones. The egg of a hen, a goose or an ostrich is plain, but the egg of a butterfly is richly decorated with reticulations, flutings and a variety of ornaments.

Among the microscopic wonders of the ocean, the Polycystina acanthometrida and other families of the same order occupy a conspicuous rank, both by their beauty and variety of form. "It is a peculiar feature of these elegant shells (whose delicate sculpture frequently reminds the observer of the finest specimens of the hollow ivory balls carved by the Chinese)," says Dr. Hartwig, "that they are usually surmounted by a number of spinelike projections, very frequently of a radiate disposition. Some have an oblong shape; others, a discoid, from the circumference of which siliceous spines, projecting at regular intervals, give them a starlike aspect." They are smaller than the Foraminifera, and consequently, by the rule given, are even more closely and richly decorated. Mivart makes the curious suggestion that they may be produced by "a kind of organic crystallization—the expression of some as yet unknown law of animal organization here acting untrammeled by adaptive modifications, or by those needs which seem to be so readily responded to by the wonderful plasticity of the animal world."

WYOMING'S CHATEAU.

Queer Structure to Be Built on the World's Fair Grounds.

Wyoming has adopted a design for its world's fair building, which is of the French chateau style. The design has been approved by the construction department, but just why Wyoming should want a building characteristic of French architecture is not stated. The structure is designed by Van Brunt & Howe, of Boston and Kansas City. The building will cost $20,000 and its dimensions are 70x50 feet. The first story contains a large hall extending to the roof with a gallery at the second floor. A veranda 12 feet wide is provided for on the east and west sides. The second story contains toilet and retiring rooms. The gallery around the hall leads out upon balconies on each of the four sides of the structure. On the main frieze of the exterior panels there are elaborately wrought hunting and pastoral scenes.

A Slight Mistake.

The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle tells a good story at the expense of a society bud in that city. She was at her first dinner party. She was naturally a little nervous, but everything went off well, and she soon became more at ease and talked rather brilliantly to those around her. The dessert was being served, and the stately colored waiters were engaged in passing those funny little frosted cakes which seem indespensable to the proper service and deglutition of ices. They were cakes with pink frosting. The waiter came to where the bud sat and presented them. She looked them over and said: "I don't care for any." The waiter was about to pass on, when she saw what she thought was an eclair on the side of the dish farthest from her. "Yes, I will, too," she said, reaching over for the eclair. "There is one with chocolate on it." "Beg pardon, miss," said the waiter, as she tried to pick the chocolate-covered cake up—"beg pardon, but that's my thumb." And everybody laughed, and the young lady spoke in monosyllables all the rest of the evening.

A Gold Mine in the Teeth.

French statisticians have recently made some curious calculations of the amount of gold which is annually buried in the United States. M. Victor Meunir asserts, after making careful inquiries, that the American dentists annually insert into the teeth of their patients 1,800 pounds of the precious metal, which would be worth $450,000. This gold is never recovered, of course, but is buried with the person in whose mouth it is placed. Making allowance for the rapid increase of our population and for the continued deterioration of the human teeth, it appears that in less than 100 years American cemeteries will contain more gold than now exists in France. This is no fancy sketch, but the results of study and cold figuring.

A Deep Artesian.

An artesian well 3,095 feet in depth has been sunk at Ashland, Wis., at a cost of $14,000. After the first 175 feet it passes through brown sandstone.

Explosions of Laughter Follow.

"Father, what makes it rain when the rain-makers work?"

"Oh, they introduce loud explosions in air."

"Does anything loud produce the rain?"

"Yes, my son."

"Well, why don't they send up a flashy dressed dude in a balloon?"—Philadelphia Press.

A Capital Idea.

An Official Injustice.

Justice Duffy (to inebriate)—My dear sir, you drink beer as if it was water. You do nothing but swig it down!

Inebriate—Alas! you have too good an opinion of me. I'm so out of practice at drinking water that it will be a long time before I can swig it down as if it were beer.—Texas Siftings.

Time Evens All Things.

Father—My dear, this seems like a strange marriage. He is but eighteen years old and you are twenty-eight. When he is forty you will be fifty.

Daughter—No, indeed. I'll still be twenty-eight.—N. Y. Weekly.

A Convenience.

"I shouldn't think you'd care to live here in New Jersey, so far from a drug store."

"Oh, that's all right. You drop a nickel in the slot-machine, up at the station, and get all the quinine you want."—Life.

Not to Be Considered.

As George folded the fair young creature to his heart, a dull crackling sound smote his ears. "Ah, it's goodby to those imported cigars in my vest pocket," he said, grimly; "but darn the expense at a moment like this."—Life.

Marriage Popular.

Little Girl—I wonder what's th' reason all our school-teachers go an' get married.

Little Boy—I guess it's cause they likes to boss.—Good News.

A Corollary.

He—It was love at first sight with them, was it?

She—Yes.

He—Then it must have been a bird's-eye view on his part, I suppose?—Jury.

Ups and Downs.

He—They had a lover's quarrel, parted, and she married her father's coachman for spite.

She—What became of her lover?

He—Oh! he married her sister and hired the coachman.—Life.

A CHICAGO CRANK

Judge Gresham's Experience With a Crazy Man.

A HARMLESS SORT OF LUNATIC.

He Wanted $5,000 Which He Said Jay Gould Had Left in the Judge's Care.

He Imagined Anarchists Were Pursuing Him With Intent to Kill—Mr. Gresham Alone With the Madman for Several Hours—Arrested and Will Be Taken to an Asylum for Examination.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Judge Walter Q. Gresham had an experience with a crazy man yesterday, which is best told in the distinguished jurist's own words:

"In the morning when I first entered the Chambers in the northeast of the court room, I found Judges Blodgett and Jenkins and this man. After speaking to Judges Blodgett and Jenkins this man approached, asking of some one a name I did not know.

"About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the man entered the chamber on the other side of the hall where I was and told me that the Marshal had that money locked up and would not give it to him, as I had ordered he should. Not yet realizing that the man was out of his mind I asked him what money he referred to and he said that $5,000 which Jay Gould had paid for him and which it had been ordered he should have.

"I then looked into his face and observed a wild expression on his countenance and told him to go with me to the Marshal and I would see that he got what he was entitled to. He declined, saying that the Anarchists were after him and wanted to kill him.

"I had managed to get between him and the door, and, keeping my eyes on him, told him to sit down and I would be back in a moment. He then took a seat, and I at once went to the Marshal's office, told the deputies what had occurred, and told them to inform the police of the condition of the poor man so that he might be cared for.

"Deputy Hayes returned with me, and when the deputy entered the room his presence seemed to excite the man and he declined to go with the officer. I directed the deputy to leave the room for a time, which he did, not closing the door after him. The man then closed the door, and went to the door leading from the Chambers to the court room and locked it.

"His manner did not indicate that he was dangerous. I told him to sit down and he did so.

"In the meantime some of the deputies had sent for the police and they were outside of the door. The man in some way learned of their presence and again became excited.

"I told the police and the marshals that they had better not enter the room for a time. The man again convinced himself that the door leading to the court room was still locked and tried to lock the hall door, but found no key.

"I had him take a seat again and told him I must go soon, at the same time keeping careful watch on him. He asked what would become of him, and requested that I protect him until the military arrived, I told him he'd better demand the protection of the Marshal until the soldiers arrived and he said he would do so.

"I then went out and requested Marshal Hitchcock to go in the room, as I expected to leave it soon. He could not not go, but sent his son, and I told the man that the young man was Marshal Hitchcock's son and would afford him protection when I left, and immediately quitted the room."

Two policemen and two other men, after a struggle, succeeded in overpowering the lunatic, who, with a cane which he carried, attempted to prevent his capture. He gave his name as Martin McCinahay, is of powerful build and about 50 years old. Nothing further is known of him. He will doubtless be sent to an insane asylum.

Bribing is Alleged.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 13.—Indirect charges of bribery in the United States Senatorial caucus which came to a close last Wednesday have been made since then, but only recently have they assumed definiteness. An evening newspaper, the "Post," charged that Representative J. F. Daugherty, of Fayette county, received $3,500 for his vote in the caucus. Yesterday Mr. McGrew arose to a question of privilege and denied the charge, asking the House to investigate the matter if it saw fit. No action was taken. A sensation was caused late in the afternoon when it was found that City Editor Kelly and Reporter H. D. Landon, of the "Post," had been taken before the grand jury, now in session, to give evidence in the case.

COMMITTEE APPOINTMENTS.

Officers of the New York Legislature Make Their Selections.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 13.—The first night session of the Legislature and the first practical session of any consequence took place last night. The galleries reserved for spectators were crowded, many prominent society ladies being in the crown and on the floor of both Senate and Assembly.

In the Senate the proceedings began at 8 o'clock, Lieut.-Gov. Sheehan ascending the rostrum and Rev. Mr. Phelps delivering the prayer. Senator Saxton was in his seat and so all the members of the Senate were present including the new Senator Walker. As soon as the general proceedings were over the Lieutenant-Governor announced the committees, the more important of which are given:

SENSATIONAL LIBEL SUITS.

Col. Boies and Ex-Congressman Scranton of Scranton, Pa., at Variance.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 13.—Col. Henry M. Boies' articles on "Pauperism and Crime," printed in the "Tribune," and the comments made on one in which the Roman Catholic Church was spoken of as being antagonistic to American institutions and patriotism, have resulted in sensational libel suits, which were commenced here yesterday.

The Colonel, who is a member of the State Board of Charities, and part owner of the "Tribune," sues ex-Congressman Scranton for $100,000 damages, and the latter is now suing the "Tribune" Publishing company for libel, basing his action on certain charges made to the effect that his political career during the past dozen years has been marked by duplicity and treachery and blackmail.

Boies is a millionaire and some broad insinuation having been made against him in the "Republican," the Congressman's paper, concerning Boies, it is probable that a counter suit will soon be brought against Scranton. Other suits will follow, in all probability, as several of the rich owners of "Tribune" stock feel aggrieved at Scranton's broad reflections.

Commercial Travelers Want Special Rates

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The commercial travelers of the country believe in being early in the field and in not failing to achieve their aims through procrastination or lack of energy. They have already begun to move on Congress for an amendment to the Inter-State Commerce law which will permit the railroads to give them special rates of fare and an extra allowance of baggage. Several bills on the subject have been introduced. The House Committee on Foreign and Inter-State Commerce took up the subject yesterday and devoted its session to a discussion of the matter. This discussion developed a favorable feeling in the committee towards the request of the commercial travelers, and showed that they will probably get what they want from the committee.

Ostrander and Trampbour Still in Jail.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Jan. 13.—A hearing came on before Judge Cody of Hudson in the Supreme Court chambers here, yesterday, for a reduction of bail in the case of the defaulting treasurer, James E. Ostrander of the Ulster County Savings Institution, and the reduction of that of his accomplice, Matthew J. Trumpbour. After lengthy argument the Judge decided that he had no jurisdiction and that the matter must be taken before a Supreme Court judge by habeas corpus or otherwise. The prisoners were taken back to jail and it may be some time before they secure their release.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—At the meeting of the Board of Trade and Transportation to-day a committee of representative Philadelphia merchants will be present when Professor Houpt will address the board on the subject of a ship canal between New York and Philadelphia. HARDSHIPS AT SEA

Rough Experiences of the Crew of a British Bark.

THEIR CHRISTMAS PRESENT.

It Was a Hurricane, and Their Ship Was Totally Disabled.

One Man Washed Overboard—All Hands Worked at the Pumps Day and Night Until January 4 to Keep the Vessel from Sinking—Rescued at Last by the Steamer Lake Huron—Landed in Boston.

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—The crew of the British bark Kate McCann, from Boulogne, France, for Sandy Hook, in ballast, was landed here yesterday by the steamship Lake Huron. The bark, according to the story of the shipwrecked mariners, encountered a terrific hurricane on Dec. 25.

During the height of the storm the vessel sprang a leak and was thrown on her beam ends. The masts were cut away in an effort to right the vessel, but this failed to accomplish its purpose. The vessel began to fill rapidly, and all hands were put to work at the pumps.

In the course of a few hours these became choked up and buckets had to be resorted to. This work was kept up night and day until Jan. 4, when the Lake Huron was sighted. The steamer sent boats, which took off the members of the crew, who were thoroughly exhausted after their incessant work at bailing the vessel.

Had help been delayed another day there is but little doubt that the vessel and all hands would have gone to the bottom.

The abandoned bark was of 952 tons burden and was owned in St. Johns, N. B. A seaman named Roulare, who was shipped at Boulogne, was swept overboard and lost when the hurricane first struck the vessel.

$150,000 FOR A HORSE.

J. Malcolm Forbes Buys Arion of Senator Stanford.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—Arion, the greatest two-year-old the world has ever seen, has brought the highest price ever paid for trotting horse-flesh. Axtell brought $105,000, but J. Malcolm Forbes of Boston yesterday agreed to pay Senator Leland Stanford $150,000 for the mighty son of Electioneer. Two months ago Arion made a record of 2:10 3-4 at Stockton, Cal.

Arion is a bay colt, 25 hands high and was foaled March 13, 1889. His sire was the illustrious Electioneer and his dam Annette, sister to Woodnut (2:16 1-2).

New England Tobacco Growers.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 13.—The annual meeting of the New England Tobacco Growers' Association occurred here yesterday. There was a large attendance. President Frye, in his opening address, spoke highly of the beneficial effects of the McKinley bill and said it enabled the tobacco producer to do business at a profit. Resolutions were passed looking to the formation of a national association, one of the objects of which will be the maintenance, defence and perpetuity of the leaf tobacco schedule as enacted by the 51st Congress. Officers were elected as follows: President, H. S. Frye, Poquonock; Vice-President, T. S. Graves, Hatfield, Mass.; Secretary and Treasurer, J. S. Hardin, Glastonbury.

Speaker Crisp Improving.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Speaker Crisp had a good night and appears better and considerably stronger to-day. Acting on the advice of his friends he will not bother about codifying the new rules for the House until he is able to go to the House, but will leave them to Messrs. McMillin and Catchings, his Democratic associates on the Rules Committee. These gentlemen are spending most of their time on the preparation of the rules, and they expect to have the proposed changes in shape to submit them to the Speaker as soon as he can get about again.

ANOTHER CHILIAN OUTRAGE.

A Party of American Sailors Stoned in Valparaiso by a Mob.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The following dispatch, received at the Navy Department several days ago from Commander Evans, was made public yesterday afternoon:

VALPARAISO, Jan. 9, 1891.

TO THE SECRETARY OF THE NAVY:

Yesterday afternoon my gig, while lying off the landing place waiting for me, was stoned by three men in a crowd of bad character. No one injured. I visited immediately the Chilian senior naval officer afloat, and requested him to notify the police authorities here that I demanded their efficient protection, and that if the offence was repeated I should take the matter into my own hands and protect my men with arms. Much regret was expressed by the Chilian senior naval officer, who went at once to the police. To-day I have assurances that the parties will be punished and protection given. (Signed) EVANS.

WORKING DAY AND NIGHT.

The Government Laying in Huge Stores of Dynamite Cartridges.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Mortimer McRoberts of this city, who has a contract to furnish all the dynamite cartridges for the United States Army and Navy, said today that his factory, which is located at Dubuque, has put on a double force of workmen and is working night and day turning out their product.

No fewer than two thousand men have been engaged for the work, and it is stated that the payments made by the Government will foot up into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The prospect of a possible war with Chili is assumed to be the cause for pushing the manufacture. Until a year ago the United States purchased all her cartridges of England.

The Case of Fireman Shields.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The testimony taken by District-Attorney Carter in San Francisco in the case of Fireman Shields, of the American merchant steamer Keweenaw, is causing a revival of the war feeling against Chili. Some people do not accept the case as a worthy one, yet most men in official life are inclined to accept it as indicative of the feeling in Chili against Americans. It is not probable that the Administration will make an issue of the Shields case, for there is a grave doubt as to his citizenship, and some authorities are inclined to question the merits of the case.

COLLISION OF FREIGHT TRAINS.

A Flagman and Fireman Killed Instantly and their Bodies Burned.

CASTILE, N. Y., Jan. 13.—A rear-end collision between two Lehigh Valley freight trains occurred in the Erie yard here at 5 a. m. A flagman named McCarthy of Buffalo, and a brakeman named Woodruff, who was making his first trip, were in the caboose and were instantly killed.

Ten cars were wrecked, five of which, loaded with oil, caught fire and were entirely consumed, burning the bodies of the dead men.

The engineer and fireman escaped uninjured.

Arrest of a Smuggler.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Jan. 13.—Joseph L. Rice of Rochester was arrested here yesterday by Deputy Marshal Bardwell for smuggling operations and bribery, and was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Gilbert. Rice, who confessed to the charge, owes his arrest to a boast uttered while in Rochester to another merchant there, to the effect that he had smuggled $800 worth of goods from Europe on the Augusta Victoria, by giving the examining Custom House official $10. This was overheard by Deputy Marshal Pomeroy, who, after ascertaining who Rice was, reported the matter to Bardwell, who made the arrest.

WAS HE KIDNAPPED?

Rumored That Young De Lima is Held for Ransom.

HIS STRANGE DISAPPEARANCE.

The Family Hope He May Have Been Carried to Europe By Accident.

No Tidings from the Young Man Since He Left the Hotel to Visit, It is Now Thought, Some Friends on the Steamer Rhynland—Fears That He May Have Been Waylaid, Robbed and Killed—He Had Plenty of Money.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—But one hope now buoys up the friends and relatives of Edward De Lima, who mysteriously disappeared one week ago from his home in the Langham Hotel on Fifth avenue. That hope is that he was accidentally carried off by an European steamer and that when she arrives at her destination they will receive a cable message from him. In the meantime his widowed mother waits in awful suspense for the word that will either confirm her worst fears or turn her sorrow to joy.

Young De Lima is only 23, but he knows the ways of the world and is amply able to take care of himself. His father was the late Minister to Guatemala, and the family are well known in business and social circles. Edward is connected with the firm of D. A. De Lima, of 68 William street, and he has considerable money in his own right.

The circumstances of his disappearance are peculiar. After dining at the Langham Tuesday evening with his mother, sister and brother-in-law, he went out to make some calls. He expected to be home in a few hours, and had made several business engagements for the following morning. Since he left the hotel that evening not a word has been heard from him, and the police and private detectives have alike made unavailing efforts to discover his whereabouts.

What alarms his friends is not alone his absence but the failure to hear from him. He has several times been called suddenly from the city on business, but he invariably on these occasions kept his mother, to whom he was devotedly attached, informed by telegraph as to his whereabouts and the probable time of his return. Said his brother-in-law this morning:

"I am certain of one thing, and that is he thought too much of his mother not to let her know where he was going if he could do so. That is why we hope he has been carried off against his wishes. If we do not hear when the Rhynland arrives we must then believe the worst."

His friends say that he had talked of visiting some frienps who were on board the Rhynland waiting for her to sail. This gives them reason to hope that he went aboard and was carried off, or that he suddenly determined to sail and that the message he sent to his mother was not delivered for some reason. But while his going to the steamer gives grounds for hope it also causes anxiety. He was in evening dress and had considerable money and jewelry with him.

That he might have been waylaid, robbed and killed in the dark side streets is quite possible. His friends declare that his business and family relations were most happy, that they know of no trouble or entanglement to cause him to go away, and that he was perfectly sane.

There was a rumor uptown at the hotels last evening that he had been kidnapped and held for ransom. His relatives had not heard of it, however, and it could be traced to no reliable source.

McGurk, and Charles Smith. All own or are interested in disreputable saloons, low dance houses and concert saloons.

Herrick Again Blamed.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 13.—In the matter of the Hastings accident on the Central road the State Board of Railroad Commissioners finds that the immediate cause of the accident was the criminal failure of Herrick to signal the St. Louis express. No Behring Sea Friction.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 13.—The reports telegraphed from Washington of friction existing between Great Britain and the United States over the Behring matter cannot be confirmed here. On the contrary, it is learned that a most friendly feeling prevails between the two countries. That Sir George Baden Powell has been appointed one of the arbitrators is not believed, as he is to be a witness at the hearing.

To Take Charge of the Muncie Bank.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Comptroller Lacey has directed Bank Examiner C. Dengler to take charge of the First National Bank, of Muncie, Pa., which closed its doors Monday. The full extent of the failure is as yet uncertain, but an investigation is being held. Fonzi has disappeared and the authorities are inquiring for him in all directions. It is rumored that he has gone to Africa.

Aransas Pass Situation Unchanged.

TAYLOR, Texas, Jan. 13.—The Aransas Pass strike situation is unchanged. Both sides appear firm. It is the opinion of employes here that a tie-up on all Texas roads tributary to the Aransas Pass is inevitable. They still refuse to handle the large number of Aransas Pass freight cars side tracked in the International and Great Northern yard here and the employes of that company say they will strike if Receiver Campbell insists upon their being moved by them.

THE TABERNACLE EXPLAINED.

Excellent Opportunity for Bible Study by Plainfield People.

The Rev. W. H. Walker, of Bridgeport, Conn., delivered an intensely interesting lecture, the first of a series to be given this week, on "The Gospel According to Moses; or, Christ in the Tabernacle", in Trinity church, last evening. Considering the weather, the attendance was large. T. E. Hazell, with an excellent volunteer choir of six voices, led the singing, and A. L. Titsworth presided at the organ. The Rev. Asa Reed Dilts offered prayer, and the Rev. Cornelius Schenck introduced the lecturer. The model of the Tabernacle and of the court was set up on a platform in full view of the audience, and the typical teachings of each part were explained. The lecture was a most entertaining and instructive one, and was a most excellent help to the Bible students present. The full course of Mr. Walker's lectures includes the following subjects:

The Tabernacle as a whole. Introductory.
The Tabernacle Court. Pillars. Curtains and Gate.
The Brazen Altar and Brazen Laver.
The Tabernacle Itself, its Coverings, Boards, Sockets, Pillars and Bars.
The Holy Place. Its Door. Table of Showbred. Golden Candlestick and Golden Altar of Intercession.
The Most Holy Place. Its Vail. Ark, and Mercy Seat.
The High Priest. His clothing. Consecration and Service.
The Levite Service and the Tabernacle en March.
The Day of Atonement and the Offerings.

Last evening Mr. Walker covered the first three topics.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Trinity church deserve great credit in securing so great a treat for the Christian people of Plainfield. The lecture will continue, with further explanation of the Tabernacle, to-night and to-morrow night. No admission fee is charged.

Concerning Mr. Walker's lectures, the Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes of this city writes as follows:

The Bible Readings given in Saratoga by brother Walker, during the week, have been singularly rich in their unfolding of God's word. They were marked not only by a wonderful knowledge of the letter of the scriptures, but also by a deep and clear apprehension of the mind of the Spirit, as expressed by the word. He is not merely a reader, but a rare expounder of the meanings of the scriptures. Such expositions as we have heard from him would be most helpful to the members of our churches, and in such a labor our brother would render eminent service in the cause of Christ.

VETERANS INSTALL THEIR LEADERS.

Interesting Ceremonies of Winfield Scott Post, With Stirring Speeches by ex-Mayor Randolph and Others.

The public installation of officers of Winfield Scott post, No. 73, G. A. R., last evening, was a felicitous event in local grand army circles. Many prominent Plainfield people were present in the East Front street headquarters of the post. Quartermaster-General R. A. Donnelly, who was expected to conduct the installation ceremonies, was detained at home by the illness of his wife and daughter. Past Commander E. C. Stahl, of the Wilkes post, of Trenton, filled the position of chief of ceremonies in a dignified and soldierly manner. The installation of the following post officers was conducted with a strict observance of the Grand Army regulations:

Commander—William C. Smith.
Senior Vice-Commander—Charles Stevens.
Junior Vice-Commander—John Emmons.
Quartermaster—Andrew Cox.
Officer-of-the-Day—Isaiah McVoy.
Officer-of-the-Guard—Captain Hand.
Surgeon—Edward Willis, jr.
Chaplain—John Goodwin.
Adjutant—George W. Moore.
Serg. Major—I. Compton.

Mrs. Jennie B. Atwood, assisted by Mrs. Southwick, of Trenton, conducted the installation of the following officers of the Women's Relief corps, auxiliary to post 73:

President—Mrs. Andrew Cox.
Senior Vice-commander—Mrs. W. C. Smith.
Junior Vice-commander—Mrs. Proscher.
Chaplain—Mrs. Corwin.
Treasurer—Mrs. C. Stevens.
Secretary—Mrs. H. C. Drake.
Conductor—Mrs. Brewster.

Short addresses were made by the Rev. William R. Richards, the Rev. E. M. Rodman, Major W. D. W. Miller, L. V. F. Randolph, and comrade Atwood. The talks given by Messrs. Randolph and Miller were particularly interesting to the veterans, although all the addresses were received with vigorous applause.

The programme of entertainment arranged by Messrs. W. D. W. Miller, J. E. Stewart and John A. Goodwin, the committee in charge, included vocal duets by the Misses Manning, instrumental orchestral music under the direction of Miss Buckley and elocutionary selections by Mrs. C. W. Lines. Asa Collier also read several letters of historical interest.

A pleasant incident of the evening was the presentation to the post by George W. Moore, through Comrade Atwood, of a handsome gavel. The head is of brass, heavily silver-plated, while the handle is made of locust wood cut near the spot where the Pilgrims landed. The head was obtained years ago by Mr. Moore, and in design is unique as it is beautiful.

WHO IS "JASPER, 120"?

He Promised to Meet Two Grangers at a Plainfield Hotel to Sell Them "Green-Goods", But They Blew Out the Gas and Spoiled the Game.

Silas Griffin and M. B. Ball, who were on their way to Plainfield to buy counterfeit money, narrowly escaped death in Ryan's Hotel at Elizabeth, Monday night, and as a result of their escape they are under arrest and the police are looking for the Plainfield green-goods swindler.

At midnight a strong smell of gas was traced to their room in the hotel. The door was burst open, and the two men were found on the bed unconscious, having ignorantly blown out the gas. When a physician resuscitated them, after an hour's work, they chased him and his assistants out of the room. The men were then arrested, when it was found that they were from Lee county, Va., and were going to Plainfield to get $3,000 in counterfeit money for $300 in hard cash, from green-goods men, who had written to them from New York. They were instructed to speak to no one but the one saying "Jasper, 120". That individual was to meet them at the City Hotel. The victims would not tell their story to Chief-of-Police Tenny, because he could not give the countersign. They are held for further hearing, and the Plainfield cheap-money chap will be arrested as soon as his identity is established.

Didn't Collect the Note and Had to Pay the Costs of a Suit.

The long, drawn-out legal contest between Wm. J. Buttfield, of North Plainfield, acting as assignee of L. A. Rheaume and W. S Simpson, was yesterday decided by Judge McCormick. The decision was in favor of Mr. Buttfield.

On taking charge of the Rheaume estate, Mr. Buttfield was presented with a demand from Mr. Simpson for payment of a note of $500 and interest, held by Simpson and bearing Rheaume's signature. Mr. Buttfield investigated the claim, and became satisfied that Mr. Rheaume's signature to the note had been obtained by unlawful means, and so he declined to pay. Hence the suit. Testimony was taken on both sides at considerable length before the Surrogate and the case was argued before the Orphans' Court. On this argument before that court, Mr. Buttfield's counsel insisted that the evidence established a case of fraud. Opposing counsel indignantly combatted this view. Whether the court adopted it or not, one thing is certain it sustained the assignee in refusing to pay the note and thus threw the whole costs of the litigation on the other side. Craig A. Marsh was counsel for Mr. Buttfield, and Jackson & Codington for Mr. Simpson.

Parson Dill Was Champion Wrestler.

The Rev. Arthur C. Dill, now on trial before his Presbytery, is an undersized, delicate-looking young man, with brown hair and a black-brown moustache. He has a flow of language when he talks, and his manner is exceptionally suave and gracious. He is a graduate of Yale college, and was coxswain of Bob Cook's celebrated '80 crew, in addition to which it is said he was Yale's champion lightweight wrestler throughout the six years of his college course. He studied at the Yale Theological seminary, and also at Union college.

For a time he was very popular at Stirling. The first demonstration of unpopularity was when some young men took down the church bell and buried the clapper and other appurtenances. A month later they painted the pastor's horse red, white, and blue. In the latter part of last year the opposition grew so strong that he was obliged to resign. He then said he would hold open-air meetings on the dancing platform Sunday afternoons. This led to a White Cap affair on July 4. Nine young men of the place went to his house at 11 o'clock at night and gave him a week's notice to leave the town. Pistols were drawn on both sides.

Installation of Anchor's New Officers.

There was a large gathering of masons of both the Plainfield lodges, at Masonic hall, last evening, when Anchor's new officers were installed. Among those present were past masters W. H. Sebring, B. F. Coriell, W. L. Titsworth, John Chandler and H. Woodland of Jerusalem lodge. A collation was served at the close of the ceremonies, by stewards F. C. Langhorne and J. A. Smith. The officers installed were:

W. M.—Henry H. Lowrie.
S. W.—C. C. Howard.
J. W.—Robert S. Morrison.
Treasurer—J. E. Turrill.
Secretary—J. A. Demarest.
Chaplain—E. M. Rodman.
S. D.—A. F. Venino.
J. D.—W. R. Cock.
S. M. of C.—P. A. Emmons.
J. M. of C.—B. O. Bowers.
Organist—E. C. Woltmann.
Tyler—J. T. Odam.

A Wandering Wife's Return.

After eight months' absence from her husband's home, Mrs. Abram Freeman has returned to the shelter of his roof.

She went away last spring, taking her four children with her, and, paying her carfare with money her husband had given her to pay the rent with. She obtained work in New York, and supported herself and children there, but lately tired of metropolitan life, and returned a prodigal to her husband. He is of a forgiving nature, and has given her her old place in his heart. The reunited family will live on West Second street near Plainfield avenue.

NEW JERSEY LEGISLATURE.

The Annual Session Begun—Governor Abbett's Message.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 13.—The new Legislature of New Jersey met at noon yesterday in the State House. The Senate was called to order by Senator Adrian. James J. Bergen, Speaker of the House, called the House to order. The Legislature was then organized by the re-election of Senaor Adrian as President of the Senate, and the re-election of James J. Bergen as Speaker of the House.

The following officers of the Senate were elected: John Carpenter, Secretary; Samuel C. Thompson, Assistant Secretary; John H. Mattison, Journal Clerk; John J. Matthews, Engrossing Clerk; Sergeant-at-Arms, George K. Coleman; Michael Naihat, Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms; H. J. Carle, Bill Clerk; William Beekman, Joseph Harter, John T. Hoe, G. S. Robinson, Doorkeepers; John McKee, Calendar Clerk. John H. McMasters was appointed Private Secretary to Senator Adrian.

In the Assembly Thomas Noonan, of Jersey City, is Clerk. William Harrigan, of Essex, is Sergeant-at-Arms. Hudson County captured the doorkeepers.

Gov. Abbett sent in his message shortly after noon. It is a document of more than 100 pages, including a statistical appendix of about twenty pages.

The Governor opens by congratulating the people on the splendid condition of the State, which for the first time since 1885, is without any floating debt. Many improvements have been made and are under way at the State House, the expense of which will be met without borrowing money and without additional taxation.

The recommendations of the Commissioners appointed in 1890 to correct unfair tax assessments and enforce existing laws, is laid before the Legislature with the request that they receive careful attention.

In regard to riparian lands and the improvements of lands under water the Governor considers questions of grave importance and recommends the improvements suggested by the Riparian Board if they can be carried into practical operation with the assent of the United States.

The creation of a Commissioner of Agriculture and Railroad Commission are again recommended.

An examination by the Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture confirmed the Governor's views that there are no farms in New Jersey which come truly or properly under the head of abandoned farms.

The State Superintendent of School's report shows a large increase in the attendance of children over the previous year.

The National Guards have an increase of fourteen men over the previous year.

The State pension roll for veterans of the war of 1812 includes only seven persons against eight for the previous year.

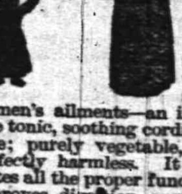
Investigating the Gallatin's Loss.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The Acting Secretary of the Treasury has directed an investigation to be instituted into the case of the revenue steamer Gallatin, recently wrecked off the coast of Massachusetts, with a view to fixing the responsibility for the accident. An effort is being made to raise the vessel, and if this cannot be done she will be sold at auction where she lies.

A Strike Expected.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 13.—A strike is expected at the Homestead Steel Works of Carnegie, Phipps & Co. Three thousand men are involved. They are angry over the discharge of several spearmen. The company has erected a high board fence about the works, which indicates that non-union men may be called into service unless the Amalgamated Association backs down.

The ancient French Abbey of Fecamp, a seaport town in the Department of the Seine, Inferieure, on the English Channel, where the famous Benedictine liquor is made, has been destroyed by fire.



A helping hand to lift up weak, tired, overtaxed women—that's what you'll find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives you just the help that you need.

It's a medicine that's made especially to build up women's strength and to cure women's ailments—an invigorating, restorative tonic, soothing cordial, and bracing nervine; purely vegetable, non-alcoholic, and perfectly harmless. It regulates and promotes all the proper functions of womanhood, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and strength.

What's the use of "trying this" and "trying that," when here is a remedy that's guaranteed? In all the derangements, irregularities, and weaknesses peculiar to the sex, periodical pains, internal inflammation and ulceration, weak back, leucorrhea and every kindred ailment, if the "Favorite Prescription" fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

"Well, you see your prediction has come to pass."—Texas Siftings.

SENT TO THE ASYLUM.

The Police Laughed at Her Story of Persecution and Said She Must Be Crazy.

The career of Mrs. Vincenza Palermo, formerly of this city, was brought to a sad ending a few days ago in New York city. Mrs. Palermo is an Italian woman whose unfortunate circumstances in this city won her some true friends. Her enemies finally forced her to leave this city, however, by malicious persecution, against which she naturally retaliated. Her husband deserted her and went to Italy, and it is not known whether he is dead or alive. Although left alone to support a large family, the woman went bravely to work, but it seems that trouble still followed her unrelentingly.

Lately she has been living at 44 Laight street, New York city. Last Saturday she went to the Leonard street police station and told a tale of persecution that it appears was not believed. She stated that several men had threatened to kill her because she refused to marry them.

It seems that since her husband deserted her, Mrs. Palermo became known as a widow. Judging from recent events her attractiveness won the admiration of several sons of sunny Italy. Each one threatened to murder her if she failed to return his affections, and in her despair she went for protection to the New York police. The blue-coated upholders of law and order failed to understand her story, it appears, and, taking the shortest method of disposing of a trouble, they sent her to the Chambers street hospital to be examined as to her sanity.

Driven to desparation by trouble of every kind, the poor woman talked so irrationally that the hospital physicians sent her to the insane pavilion at Bellevue, where she now is. The condition of her forsaken children at home is not yet known.

WORKED FOR THREE CENTS AN HOUR.

Oliver Dunster's Start Was Humble, but He Died Worth $200,000.

Oliver Dunster, who died last week at his home near Bernardsville, in the mountains back of North Plainfield, left an estate valued at nearly two hundred thousand dollars, although he began to build up his fortune by laboring for 3 cents per hour as a man of all work for ex-Sheriff Samuel McMutry. He was 82 years of age, and was in some respects considered eccentric. He had two relics which he took much pride in showing to his friends. One was the indenture binding him to Oliver Woodward and the other a tobacco box half filled with tobacco. He shut this tobacco box forty years ago and never used tobacco afterwards. He first married Abigail Sanders and by her had five sons and one daughter. His first wife died in 1886 and he married again last year. He bequeathed his entire estate to his grandchildren, cutting off his own children without a cent. They are now contesting the will. Some years ago Mr. Dunster quarreled with his sons, Andrew and John, and drove them from his house at the point of a shotgun. His other children sided with John and Andrew, and the old man tore up his will and made a new one disinheriting all of the children.

JERSEY'S FIRST LEGISLATURE.

Steps Taken to Erect a Monument to Mark the Place Where It Met.

The erection of a monument is planned to mark the locality at Atlantic Highlands where the first Legislature assembled in New Jersey, under Gov. Nichols, in 1667.

It has been claimed for years that the first Legislature met at Amboy under Gov. Carteret, but for nearly two years past the Atlantic Highlands people have been making researches, and have succeeded in finding the minutes of the Legislature held three years before Carteret and formed under the proclamation of Gov. Nichols, who preceded Carteret. These minutes were found in the Monmouth County Clerk's office. The place where the legislators assembled was then called Portland Point. It was settled by a party emigrating from Gravesend, L. I.

It is proposed that the cornerstone of the Legislature monument shall be laid next fall, and also the cornerstone of a monument to Hendrik Hudson, who first landed in the region where now stands the town of Atlantic Highlands, Sept. 9, 1609, being driven ashore in his ship the Half Moon the first night after he entered the lower bay and before he discovered the Hudson River.

Got a Pearl in Her Mouth.

Mrs. J. W. Hummer of High Bridge attended an oyster supper for the benefit of the Methodist church, the other night, and while she was eating oysters from the half-shell her teeth struck a hard substance. She removed the substance from her mouth and found it to be an extraordinarily large pearl. A Philadelphia jeweler who chanced to be present pronounced it to be of perfect formation and exquisite color and said it was worth at least $2,500.

The Newark News comments on the case as follows: "A High Bridge woman is said to have found a $2,500 pearl in an oyster at a church supper. The story must be taken with several grains of salt. Whoever heard of anyone's finding an oyster at a church oyster supper?"

I have used Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills for Dyspepsia, etc., and have been cured by them. I cheerfully recommend them to all who suffer from the same.—STEPHEN BURHANS, sexton Wayne street Reformed church, Jersey City.

DAMAGES AGAINST THE CENTRAL.

A Peculiar Case Tried Before Judge Van Syckel.

A suit against the Central railroad of New Jersey has just been decided in the Union county court. It was brought by the brother of Martin Halperin, the deceased son of a Jewish rabbi, to recover $20,000 damages from the railroad company for the killing of Martin while in the act of crossing the railroad tracks at Elizabethport. Halperin was employed in the Singer factory, and was nineteen years and two months old. His brother took out letters of administration, so as to bring the suit as the dead man's executor.

Judge VanSyckel, in charging the jury, said the only question for them to consider, if they found the railroad really responsible for the accident, was that of damages, and these consisted of the funeral expenses and the time that would elapse from Halperin's death to when the young man became of age, namely, one year and ten months. His services for this period belonged to his father, who was the only one that sustained any pecuniary loss. His brother, who brought the suit, was not entitled to anything except $8.50, the cost of letters of administration.

The jury were out two hours and brought in a verdict against the railroad company, placing the damages at $1,026.34. This sum, less the expenses of the trial, must be paid to Halperin's father, if the latter can be found.

Great Theft of Cellars at Bound Brook.

The Religious Editor of the Courier writes:

There has been a great deal of cellar thieving of late in Bound Brook, and the people there begin to think an effort should be made to collar the rascals who are engaged in the business.

The only way to keep one's cellar from being stolen is to keep it in doors nights, chained to the bed post. But he is no genteel thief who runs away with a Bound Brook cellar that has carelessly been left out over night to air. Bound Brook cellars have the reputation of being full of mud and malaria, and he must indeed be a desperate, hardened wretch who will purloin one. He is to be pitied, not "collared". He needs sympathy, not retribution.

A Modern Aladdin.

Plainfielders all have rejoiced in the old and fascinating story from "The Arabian Nights", "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp", and in this era of bringing things "up to date" book lovers will rejoice in the story of "A Modern Aladdin", which Howard Pyle has just published through the Harpers.

Mr. Pyle is a young man who lives at Wilmington. All the world is familiar with the work of his pen and pencil, and will hail with delight this new product of his genius. The book has been printed in the usual sumptuous style of Harper Bros., and all who want to enjoy a really wonderful tale, and one that is even superior to the "Aladdin" of old, have but to get a copy of this book, cast to the winds the cares of life, and accompany Oliver Munier on his marvelous career of adventure.

In time to come somebody will write of those Barmecidian feasts when romances were so luscious, but of all the feasting there was never anything so entirely satisfying as that meal taken al fresco by the fountain's side, when the astrologer fed Aladdin on cakes and fruit. Mr. Pyle in his extravaganza takes the dear old story of the wonderful lamp, carries it out of China, and lights it anew in France in the reign of Louis XV. The Count de St. Germaine is his satanic majesty. He has found Raymond Lulli's own original laboratory, and the alchemist had stored away there two precious bottles. In one flask was that fluid which transmutes charcoal into diamonds, in the other the elixir of life. The Count wants these bottles, but cannot pass a certain kind of magical dead line, and so he picks up Oliver Munier, a peasant boy of Flourens, to act as cat's-paw. Howard Pyle introduces ghosts, thunder and lightning, Mme. de Pompadour, the Dukes of Choiseul and de Gontat. Oliver in a measure outwits the Count and secures a bushel of diamonds. Becoming the Prince of Golconda, he wins Mlle. Celeste, but his fortunes and misfortunes are many and varied, and the climaxes are most astounding. M. Galland has not, as far as we remember, given the original Aladdin a pigtail, but somehow the tailor's son is not recognizable as the old Aladdin in a powdered wig, lace sleeves, a small sword, cocked hat, and red heels.

The book is just what Pyle claims for it—an extravaganza; but its extravagance of imagination and unrealism is just what fascinates one. Some fanciful creations are horrid nightmares, and generate nothing but ugly dreams, but this is absorbingly interesting and at the same time wholesome. There is an interesting study underneath the story. One confesses to a good deal of satisfaction in the way that Oliver finally gets rid of his satanic partner in adventure; and the steadfast devotion of his sweetheart is deliciously refreshing. One sympathizes with him in his uncanny experiences in that musty old underground chamber where he secures the Key to Wealth and the Key to Life, and the gradual development of the story, with its constant startling episodes, is very cleverly done. The dense mystery that enshrouds the unknown woman adds to the excitement. Pyle has liberally illustrated the tale with his own quaint pictures, and the book deserves a place of prominence and honor on the library shelves.

Union Got Left.

In the organization of the House of Assembly on Tuesday, the Democratic Assemblymen from Essex and Hudson formed a combination to capture the offices. They took in Bergen and Middlesex and the South Jersey men to insure the necessary majority, and that left the other counties out in the cold. Vigorous protestations were made in the caucus. John R. Hardin was elected chairman. The offices were apportioned as follows:

Clerk—Thomas F. Noonan, Hudson.
Reading Clerk—Peter Stagg, Bergen.
Journal Clerk—William S. Naughright, Morris.
Assistant Journal Clerk—John H. Hickey, Hudson.
Engrossing Clerk—John H. DeMott, Hunterdon.
Assistant Engrossing Clerks—A. C. Yard, Monmouth; Mervin Armstrong, Hudson.
Bill Clerk—Andrew J. Bale, Sussex.
Sergeant-at-Arms—William Harrigan, Essex.

There were three assistants and twenty-two doorkeepers selected to help Mr. Harrigan. Hudson gobbled ten of those and Essex took seven.

Its Classic Spelling Needs Furbishing.

The Elizabeth Herald, which publishes the following, has evidently had as its source of information some paper other than THE PRESS, for its statements are incorrect and its argument is misdirected. But what can be expected of a paper that spells Homer with two o's?

"What dire events from trivial causes spring!" sang Homor of old, through Pope. A ton of coal has well-nigh broken up Mount Olive Baptist church at Plainfield. It was purchased with funds that were raised at an entertainment where the entertained had joined in tripping the light fantastic toe. The pastor was horrified, and insisted that God's house should not be warmed by any such profane fuel. The trustees, however, being wise in their generation, insisted it should, and it was. The heat so generated probably warmed the pastor up and afforded him the chance of expatiating on flames that grow out of the products of no earthly mine and are extinguished by no fire department even though equipped with the most modern appliances. But a fanaticism, even though in comes from a source that in its estimation is not altogether what it might be, far less when it is innocent, as the Plainfield case, is of the sort that strains out a gnat and swallows a camel.

Photographing the Snow.

The snowfall of last week was welcomed by probably none more than by the amateur photographers. There is a charm about taking snow views and then developing them that is felt by those who have made a little progress in photography and have acquired that confident feeling in their abilities that is necessary to success. In consequence, for two or three days the camerists were out in force, photographing beautiful snow-clad foliage, and getting fine snowscape views.

The snowfall, however, was not of a nature to produce the best effects. A damp snow, that clings to the branches of the trees, heaps up on the telegraph wires, and makes grotesque effects in the woods and among the bushes, is the most desirable for photographing purposes. One of the funny pictures that traveled over the country and is probably still being exhibited at lantern-slide exhibitions was that of the Washington Statue in front of the Sub-Treasury Building, taken during the blizzard.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield N.J.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely; it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety, and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B.W. Sperry, Hartford, Ct.

Will Think Better of Pastor Dilts.

[From The Elizabeth Journal.]

Pastor Dilts, of the Park Avenue Baptist church of Plainfield, has stirred up his congregation to such an extent, over an old debt, that something must be done. In other words, the debt must be paid or the church must part with its pastor. It is not a debt that can be collected by legal measures, but the pastor believes it right for the church to act honestly with contractors, whether there is law for it or not. The probabilities are that the debt will be paid, and that the contractors and the church members will think better of the Rev. Mr. Dilts and of themselves and their fellow-men.

THE WOMAN OF FASHION.

She Is Spotted Like the Leopard of Tradition.

Quaint and Pretty Things in Jewelry—The Animal Kingdom to the Fore Once More—The Latest Thing in Trains—Return of the Dolly Varden.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

The epidemic for spots has spread to boot tops. Everything is spotted or threatens to become so soon.

The last article to fall a victim to this disease was the top of the dainty boot which is now made to match the spotted gown which is so fashionable.

Last week felt hats came out with great spots upon them, and the velvet trimmings which decorated the hats were of shot velvet or were dotted in a way which suggested that ere long the dots would become pronounced spots.

The swellest thing in an outdoor garment is not a fur cloak. To the grief of those ladies who have spent their entire substance upon a fur coat, it must be mentioned that a much more stylish garment than fur is the rough cloth coat with great furry spots upon it, supplemented by fur sleeves, fur cuffs and a big fur collar.

These cloaks are very long, coming almost to the bottom of the dress, and their entire surface is covered with spots, large, pronounced and malignant in appearance.

To be quite stylish now-a-days get a dress with spots upon it. Get a cloak with spots of a larger type. Have a pair of shoes made with spotted tops. Get a pair of long topped gloves with chenille dots upon them. Purchase a hat which is a symphony in spots and dots. Trim it with a big dotted bow to match. Tie a dotted veil over your face, gather it up well at the back, and let two long dotted ends hang down. Now make a muff of the dotted material of the coat and trim it with a spotted bow.

When you have done all these things you may be sure that you are extremely stylish in your dress, and, if you have selected the colors properly, you will probably look quite pretty. The dotted effect is becoming to nearly everyone, and the variety of appearance is pleasing, and, at the present writing, extremely fashionable.

If you are a woman who likes to go to extremes, or who wishes to appear exactly a la mode, get a shopping bag of leopard skin with the spots still on it and purchase also a portemonnie of the same material. The handkerchief, which is tucked so daintily in your muff, has a border of silk spots and the fan which it is the proper thing to carry in the front of one's dress for everyday use, of dotted silk stretched upon slender slabs of sandal wood.

Do not despair when you have done done these things, and do not think that you have come to the end of your rope in the dotted line, but keep your eyes well opened that when you see anything new that is sprinkled with dots you may get it and wear it, for the epidemic is going to rage all winter and even spring mildne will not subdue it. Traces of it will linger throughout next summer, and nothing but a second attack of frost and snow will kill it.

The latest thing in trains is not much different from the trains which have been fashionable all winter. They are still cut on the bias to produce the long, slim effect, and are worn both indoors and out.

For house dresses, there is a slight difference shown in the cut of the train, making it fuller and broader than it was. The bias seam is still preserved, but the fullness at the waist line is distributed a little more, so that the train does not jut out to a sudden broadness as it did. It tapers more gradually. Skirts with trains are also made a little fuller in the fronts and sides.

If you have watched the fall trains closely you must have noticed how very scant and skimp they were in front. They were easy enough to walk in, but the trouble came when a woman attempted to sit down The skirt was absolutely drawn over her knees. When she arose there was a sudden effect of a great deal of material in the back, and as she walked away there was the appearance of having a tablecloth or a quilt fastened to her back in the style which we used to love as children.

The pointed neck—front and back—still holds its own. It is a style that is so becoming that it will not readily be superseded. A pretty fashion for the pointed neck is to make the shoulders of the dress entirely of tulle.

The folds of the tulle may be brought up from the back of the waist and over the shoulders, coming down in front where they are crossed on the bosom. This forms a low point at both front and back and is a simple and graceful style.

Since trains are fashionable, and are going to stay fashionable, it is part of every woman's duty to learn to manage a train properly. It is really quite a knack, and the first requisite is that the train be made correctly. It should be of a kind that will neither turn over nor yet lie flat and stiff like a great platter It should be pliable and lie in folds, and yet so secured on the under side that it will not turn over readily, even if the wearer has a trick of turning about suddenly.

The street train is dragged through the mire, walked upon, torn and abused, until it cannot be worn at best more than ten days without looking very much the worse for its evil associations. And yet there is no thought of the train becoming less fashionable.

A few days ago a couple of well-dressed women, dragging demi-trains behind them, were sweeping along Broadway with the crowd, stopping occasionally to took into a window, and chatting as they went. Behind them came a young man, cane in hand and head well in the air, in true English fashion.

Without seeing the offensive trains upon the walk, the young man stepped on the skirt, and before he realized his offense, was there with both feet. There was a crash, a tear, a giving away of goods and a feminine shriek.

"That man is walking up my back," cried the afflicted woman, grasping the other by the arm.

"Then keep your back off the sidewalk, and I cannot walk upon it," retorted the young man, lifting his hat politely and tramping on, happy in the thought that he had dropped a lesson by the way to teach other young women not to make nuisances of themselves in a crowded thoroughfare.

New things in jewelry have come to light of late. The happy wishbone pin is something which not everyone has seen. It is a broken wishbone, and it is made of gold. Two diamonds are set alongside of the bone, and there is a clasp to fasten it with.

The chicken brooch is another eccentricity in jewelry. It is purchased principally as a gift for young ladies, who are fond of gay clothes, and who admire fancy bits of jewelry rather than the regulation heavy set styles.

The parrot pin is another novelty. A greenish gold parrot set with stones of various colors is clasping a bar with its feet, while its beak reaches toward a gold ball.

Among men's pins there is a very pretty hunting pin, which consists of a horn, a horseshoe and a whip. The whole is mounted upon a long pin, so that it can be worn in the cravat. It is however, rather large for a man's scarf-pin, and is prettier worn as a woman's brooch. Another arrangement of the sporting pin is to have it fastened upon a band, so that it is used as a clasp for a necktie rather than a pin.

A gold monkey mounted upon a long pin is another of the New Year favorites.

The Dolly Varden gown is certainly coming in again, there can be no doubt about it. The old, full Dolly Varden skirt with the round waist with the rather low cut neck, and the sash tied rather high under the arms, is again seen.

The material for these dresses is figured and the figures, which are preferably vines, run all over the skirt and the waist.

For house dresses, the Dolly Vardens are ever so pretty. The best dress material for them is China silk. In China silk there is China silk and there is China silk. The kind to get is not the thin papery sort that breaks and pulls and tears and comes to pieces at slight provocation, but the real, true silky kind that is soft as satin and shiny in appearance. It does not pull and it does not fray at the seams, and it wears beautifully, never showing a crease or a fold.

At this season of the year dress patterns of the lighter grade can be bought at a very low price. One frequently sees them in stores, cut off in lengths and tied together, to be given as holiday presents.

For eight or ten dollars one gets a very good dress pattern of light silk, or thin goods, which in two or three months will cost two or three times that sum.

The economic buyer is the one who takes time by the forelock. She purchases her summer clothes when winter stock is on the counters, and her winter buying is done when shopkeepers are trying to get the left-over stock of winter goods out of the way.

By this kind of management a very large percentage is saved

Respect That Was Earned.

"You must honor your parents," the Sunday-school superintendent said to the new boy. "I am sure you obey your mother."

"Yes, sir!" came the reply with an emphasis that rather startled the questioner.

"And you and your little brother here always show her respect, don't you?"

"You bet we does. Why, she kin lick dad, she kin."—Judge.

A Literal Truth.

Sageman—How is it you failed to meet popular expectation? The whole town looked on you as affianced to Miss Tickle.

Sapsum—Yes, that's so; but you see I subsequently discovered that she was suffering from heart failure.

"You don't say!"

"But I do say! Her heart failed to find any room for me within its sacred inclosure, and of course that knocked our engagement endwise." — Boston Courier.

Tommy—Well, papa was sick and mamma had to be with him, and sister was away.

"Is your husband in?"

"No, he has gone to the prayer meeting this evening."

"To the prayer meeting? Isn't that something unusual?"

"Yes, but he put down a carpet for me this afternoon."—Cape Cod Item.

A Point in His Favor.

Jaysmith—I'm going to sue the Howler for libel. It called me a thief.

McWatty—But papers are allowed to print the news, you know.

Jaysmith—But that isn't news.

McWatty—True enough—everybody knows it now.—Judge.

A Hero.

Bloombumper—Speaking of heroism, McJukin did the bravest thing I know anything about.

Spatts—What did he do?

Bloombumper—He married a widow with two sets of twins.—Philadelphia Press.

Found His Lot.

Bouttown—Where did you go on your vacation?

Laschance—I went out west to look at a corner lot I bought by mail.

"Find it?"

"Yes; went swimming in it."—N. Y. Weekly.

Believed Him.

Cora—Didn't you think he was trying to flatter you when he said you was beautiful as an angel?

Dora—No.

"Why?"

"Because I thought so myself."—N. Y. Herald.

Had Seen the Game Played.

Eastern Boy—Did you ever play football?

Western Boy (watching the game)—No; but I once got caught in a drove of stampeded mules.—Philadelphia Press.

A Slight Mistake.

A little fellow, three years old, who had never eaten frosted cake, asked at the table for a "piece of that cake with plastering on it."—Detroit Free Press.

Profit.

School-teacher—Bobby, you may define "profit."

Bobby (whose father is a druggist)—Four hundred per cent.—Judge.

Wise Men's Peculiarities.

"A little nonsense now and then,
Is relished by the wisest men."
But e'en some wise men think their wives
Must stand their nonsense all their lives.
—Puck.

FOUR HUNDRED LOST

Foundering of the Steamship Namchow off China.

THE MAD STRUGGLE FOR LIFE.

Several Passengers Killed in the Fight to Get into the Boats.

Most of the People on Board Were Chinese, and When They Discovered That the Ship Was Sinking All Efforts on the Part of the European Officers to Restrain Them Were Fruitless—A Broken Shaft the Cause of the Trouble.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Dispatches from Hong Kong give particulars of the foundering of the steamship Namchow off Cut Hi Point, in which 414 persons, including the European crew of the ship, were drowned.

The steamship Meifoo brought the news of the wreck of the Namchow to Hong Kong. It appears that the propeller shaft of the Namchow snapped in two while that vessel was plunging in a heavy sea, the regulators not having power enough to control the shaft while the propeller was whirling out of water during a head plunge.

When the shaft was carried away the sea rushed into the shaft alley, which, with that part of the stern of the vessel from which the shaft protruded, was badly damaged by the accident. The water quickly made its way into the hold. The steam pumps were put to work but the fires of the engine room being extinguished by the rising water, they were soon useless, and the Namchow began to settle down.

When the first signs of danger became known there was a terrible panic among the 300 or 400 Chinese passengers on board. The European officers did everything possible to allay the fears of the passengers, but in vain.

The Chinese acted more like a lot of raving maniacs let loose than like human beings in their senses. They crowded into the boats and so hampered the officers and crew in their efforts to lower them that it was soon seen that escape by that means would be an impossibility.

The panic-stricken Chinese were not to be cowed down to order, even by the pistols of the officers, and the doomed steamship went down with the Chinese and a few Europeans battling desperately for possession of the boats, for life belts, for spare spars or other means of safety.

Several of the boats, partly lowered, were overturned as the vessel was sinking by the crowd of Chinese who had forced their way into them. Several Chinese and a few Europeans are reported to have been killed by knife thrusts and pistol shots during the mad struggle for life.

The steamship Meifoo rescued a few survivors who furnished this account of the wreck of the Namchow. The latter vessel is described as an Anglo-Chinese trading steamship engaged in the coasting trade in Chinese waters.

Duke of Clarence's Condition.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—The latest advices from Sandringham bring but little comfort, although people are lingering around the newspaper offices, anxiously waiting for news. The Prince and Princess of Wales are described as nearly prostrated by the serious illness of their son. The Princess May tries to bear up bravely, but she, too, is nearly broken down by the spectacle of her royal lover's condition. The intimate friends of the royal family are said to make no concealment of their apprehension of an unfavorable result. The latest advices say the condition of the Prince is slightly improved.

Preparing for Fight in Tennessee.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 14.—Trustworthy information from an officer on duty at the camp of State troops, guard and convicts at Coal Creek, is that, acting on a pointer that the camp would be attacked within two days, the greater part of the cothmand has been moved to the top of the hill commanding the prison pen. Interfering tools were used, an earthwork thrown up, and the Gatling gun and howitzer mounted thereon. The garrison at Coal Creek is ready for a fight and evidently looking for it.

Hoyt-Donaldson Contest.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 14.—The Senate Committee on Contested Seats took up the Hoyt-Donaldson contest at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and County Clerk Griffing, of Hamilton, was put on the stand. Returns from several districts were put in evidence and were examined and testified to by the witness. The testimony of the witness was suspended to allow the defence to examine the returns so that they might question more intelligently. The hearing was adjourned until Tuesday at 7:30 o'clock.

Arrested for Forgery.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 14.—George E. Webb, 22 years of age, son of a well known citizen of Lockport, was arrested in the depot here yesterday as he was taking a train to the West. He is charged with forging his father's name to a check, which he passed upon a jewelry firm in Lockport. He is said to have been leading a gay life.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Yesterday's Proceedings in the Senate and House of Representatives.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—There was a lively two hour session of the House yesterday. Mr. Holman, of Indiana, offered a resolution denouncing the granting of subsidies or bounties of cash, land or credit as impolitic, unjust, and in violation of republican institutions, and that Congress should vote no money except "to carry on the several departments frugally, efficiently and honestly administered."

The House seconded a demand for the previous question by a vote of 154 to 80, and then Mr. Holman asked unanimous consent that it might be debated. This was given, and it was agreed that the debate should cover two hours on a side. On motion of Mr. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, the debate was postponed until to-day.

Mr. Martin, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, presented a resolution providing for Friday night sessions to consider pension bills.

Mr. Bland introduced a resolution asking the Secretary of the Treasury to tell why, if there was money to pay the 4 1-2 per cent. bonds as they became due, he has assumed to continue them at 2 per cent.

Next Saturday was set apart for consideration of the bill to regulate the whole matter of public printing, and Saturday, Jan. 30, for eulogizing the late Hon. L. C. Houk, of Tennessee.

A number of bills were introduced, among them one to abolish the $100,000,000 reserve, to give each Representative not a Chairman of a Committee a clerk; declaring Oct. 12 the anniversary of the discovery of America and a day of national thanksgiving, and one to repeal the sinking fund law.

There was almost a scene in the Senate between Mr. Cockrell, of Missouri, and Mr. McPherson, of New Jersey, over a New Jersey public building bill. The difficulty was smoothed over, and the Senate before adjourning succeeded not only in passing that bill, but several other from the calendar.

The greater part of the balance of the session was taken up in a discussion of the needs of the Court of Claims and the Attorney-General's office with special reference to the disposition of Indian depredation claims. The matter was finally referred to the Judiciary Committee.

FIFTEEN WIVES SO FAR.

Much-Married John Anderson of Cleveland Hears More to His Disadvantage.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 14.—John Anderson, who is held here under charges of robbery and bigamy, and who has been rapidly gaining a world-wide reputation owing to his frequent and numerous matrimonial alliances, yesterday heard through the police of four more women, residents of as many different States, who wish to lay claim to him as their lord and master. This makes a total of fifteen wives for Anderson.

Four others have at different times since his arrest put in claims upon his affections, but investigations showed that they had either been wholly mistaken with regard to his identity or that breach of promise damages were the most that they could expect to gain from him.

Like their sister sufferers, the women just heard from, all complain of having been robbed of large sums of money by Anderson, who in each case left the ladies to shift for themselves as soon as he could obtain possession of their pocketbooks.

Case of Minister Shober.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jan. 14.—It is said that Rev. Mr. Shober, who left his wife and children at Barrytown, is now at Salisbury, N. C. His friends expect to hear from him to-day. A friend of Shober, who lives at Barrytown, said this morning that Warden Fairbairn, of St. Stephen's College, Prof. Hopkins and Rev. Mr. Lambert are interesting themselves in Shober's behalf and making a thorough investigation of everything regarding the mysterious estrangement. The friend also states that the people of Barrytown cannot be made to believe that Shober had delirium tremens, and that the familiarity between Mrs. Shober and Carter has been the talk of the town for some time past.

Conspiracy Against Bulgaria's Ruler.

VIENNA, Jan. 14.—A conspiracy to poison Prince Ferdinand has been discovered at Sofia. The Prince's cook has been placed under arrest. Fifty officers of the army have also been arrested on a charge of conspiracy to murder Premier Stambuloff. The cook was instigated, it is claimed to put poison in the Prince's food, while the army officers had been led by Russian intrigue to determine to get rid of Stambuloff. The conspirators will be treated with the utmost severity, and those convicted will undoubtedly suffer the fate of Major Panitza, who was shot for conspiring against Ferdinand and his Ministers.

Minister Lincoln Better.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Mr. Robert T. Lincoln, the United States Minister, who is suffering from a slight touch of influenza, passed a good night, resting fairly well. His fever, however, remains unchanged.

DABBLED IN STOCKS

How Ruin Came to Joseph W. Mabee, of Tarrytown.

HE WAS A TRUSTED BANK CLERK

His Defalcation of $10,000 Made Good by Himself and His Friends.

The State Bank Examiners Discovered the Shortage in a Recent Research of the Books—He Will Not be Prosecuted—Depositors Threaten a Run on the Bank—The Money Lost in Luckless Speculations.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 14.—It was made public yesterday that Joseph W. Mabee, a trusted clerk of the Westchester County Savings Bank of Tarrytown, was a defaulter.

Mabee was one of the most prominent citizens of Tarrytown, a village trustee, and one of the trustees of the Asbury M. E. Church. He had been in the employ of the bank a great many years, and had the implicit confidence of all the trustees.

A week ago the State Board of Bank Examiners visited the bank and examined the books. They found a number of discrepancies in the ledger, showing a defalcation.

When President Ferris ordered Mabee to assist the examiners he broke down and confessed that he was a defaulter, telling how he took the money and falsified the books.

He said that his peculations had been going on from 1876 to 1888, and he was willing to sacrifice everything he had to the bank to make restitution and begged him not to expose him to the people of Tarrytown.

President Ferris promised this and on Monday the directors of the bank, Mabee and some friends held a closeted meeting which resulted in Mabee deeding to the bank his home, while some of his friends made up the balance of the shortage which amounted during the twelve years to $9,451.37. When he paid the money over to the directors he handed over his resignation which was accepted.

The board allowed him to go to his home without being arrested. The bank officials will not prosecute Mabee.

Mabee said to a reporter yesterday that he overdrew his account at the bank and used the money in unsuccessful speculations in Wall street. He said that he intended to pay the money back to the bank very soon.

When the bank opened yesterday morning many depositors were on hand and it was soon circulated through the village that there was a run on the bank.

People who had money on deposit in the bank began to flock there, and when the bank closed at 3 o'clock in the afternoon $3,000 had been withdrawn. The officials are not alarmed as to any serious trouble from a run.

Redmond Kills Dr. Wilder at Last.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—John Redmond, whose daughter Annie Redmond was abducted two years ago, and who was afterwards sent to the Kankakee asylum for insanity and released, shot and instantly killed Dr. Flavius M. Wilder yesterday at the former's boarding house. Redmond, who is a man of powerful physique, is a blacksmith, and the story of his little daughter's abduction, her wanderings and strange experiences occupied public attention for months. The loss of his daughter drove Redmond to drink and finally to insanity. Among his alleged hallucinations was his statement, openly avowing that his wife was unfaithful and that the doctor who was her physician and whom he killed yesterday was not guiltless.

Gov. Russell's Appointments.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—At a meeting of the Executive Council yesterday afternoon, Gov. Russell appointed John Sanford of Taunton Railroad Commissioner in place of George G. Crocker, resigned; and Joseph P. Scott, Deputy Superintendent at the Massachusetts Reformatory, to be Superintendent in place of the late Sol Gardiner Tufts. Mr. Sanford is a Republican, and was prominent many years ago in State affairs and is at present a member of the Harbor Commission. Mr. Scott is a Democrat.

Wants No Liquor at the World's Fair.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 14.—James L. Bowen, of this city, Grand Chief Templar for Massachusetts, has issued a circular letter addressed to his 44 brother Grand Templars in other States, recommending a united protest against the sale of intoxicants at the World's Fair grounds during the Exposition of 1893.

Author of "Marguerite" Dead.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—Charles A. White, the well known music publisher and composer of popular pieces, died yesterday of pneumonia. He was 62 years old. He composed over 1,000 pieces during his lifetime, including "Come, Birdie, Come" and "Put Me in My Little Bed." He also composed "Marguerite."

A PETITION FOR GRAVES.

Strong Efforts to be Made to Get His Sentence Commuted.

CANON CITY, Col., Jan. 14.—Dr. Graves was quite cheerful yesterday. Through the intercession of friends he was excused from having his hair and whiskers removed. He was not compelled to wear the striped suit of the prison.

The regulation death watch has not yet been placed on his cell, and will not be unless the Supreme Court refuses to grant the doctor's motion for another trial.

The doctor speaks confidently of an early release, and says he could not live if he thought he had to stay here long.

Every effort is being made to hurry the action of the Supreme Court, and it is expected that an early decision will be rendered in the motion for a new trial.

There is talk now of getting up a monster petition to the Governor, asking him to commute the sentence of Dr. Graves. Pressure has been brought to bear from several points, and when the time is ripe all forces will be united, and executive clemency will be sought.

Governor Routt is a kind-hearted, politic man, and one likely to meet the requests of the people, provided the appeal to his humanity is general.

Reports from all points in the State show a general change of opinion in the last ten days. Never before in the history of Colorado has a murder trial excited so much interest as that of Graves.

The women of the State have now taken the matter up, and sympathy for the condemned man is spreading.

PREFERRED HUSBAND TO HOME.

A Romantic Elopement, Which Didn't End in the Usual Forgiveness.

RED BANK, N. J., Jan. 14.—The quiet village of Middletown is treated to a sensation in the form of a romantic elopement. Miss Laura Bellee Van Kirk, the pretty daughter of Charles Van Kirk, a farmer, has eloped with Frank Lamb, a young Englishman, who was employed by her father.

Last Wednesday Lamb's term of employment was up, and he left the place. A few days later Miss Van Kirk told her parents that she was going to visit her aunt at South Amboy. Nothing further was thought of the matter until Mr. and Mrs. Lamb returned to Middletown with their marriage certificate.

The bride related the romance of her runaway marriage to her parents while her husband remained outside. Mrs. Lamb's parents were willing to receive her back into the household, but emphatically vowed that Lamb would not be allowed to put his foot across their threshold.

Mrs. Lamb then asked for her clothing which was given her and she then joined her husband and the couple walked away.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Kirk do not know the present whereabouts of their daughter and her husband.

CARDINAL MANNING DYING.

Last Rites of the Church Administered to the Prelate.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—The physicians of Cardinal Manning announced last evening that they could no longer hold out any hope for the recovery of their patient. His malady is bronchitis, complicated with congestion of the lungs.

The Cardinal was able in the afternoon to make formal profession of his faith, and impressive and touching ceremony being observed in the presence of the full-robed Canons of the diocese, who were ranged about the bed. Afterward the venerable prelate feebly uttered his blessing upon the Canons. He received the last sacraments of the Church. The Pope sent his blessing.

The dying Cardinal lies in a small bedroom at the top of the Archbishop's house, Westminister, which he has occupied as his sleeping apartments since 1865.

A Uniform Text Book Bill.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 14.—In the Senate to-day a new uniform text book bill will be introduced by Senator Coggeshall. It provides that the Regents of the University shall within six months after the bill becomes a law compile a series of text books for use in the schools. The books are to be copyrighted and printed by contract. An appropriation of $30,000 is made to defray the cost of compilation, and $250,000 for the publishing. The books are to be furnished to the pupils in the public schools at their actual cost. It is expected that if the law passes books now sold for $1 can be obtained for about 25 or 30 cents.

De Coursey Will Be President.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 14.—The election of the directors of the Western New York and Pennsylvania railroad closed yesterday. The official count of the tellers will not be announced until to-day, but the New York contingent has conceded its defeat and withdrawn from the field. The election of Nicholas Thowson, Randle Smith, William C. Ballitt and John K. Barclay of Philadelphia is conceded by the New Yorkers. This assures the election of Samuel G. De Coursey as President and places the control of the property in the hands of its Philadelphia owners.

Mrs. Quackenbush Still Alive.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 14.—Mrs. Annie Quackenbush, who was shot by her husband, is still alive. Her condition remains practically unchanged and there is a bare possibility of her ultimate recovery. Still the physicians say she is in such a critical condition that she may change for the worst at any moment. She suffers comparatively very little pain because she is under the influence of anæsthetics.

State Treasurer Boyer's Claim.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 14.—State Treasurer Henry K. Boyer has entered in court here two assessments of damages against E. K. Jamieson & Co. of $28,062.50 each. The assessments are on the $60,000 deposited with E. K. Jamieson & Co. before their failure.

STRONG WAR TALK

A Speedy Fight With Chili is Promised.

CONGRESSMAN O'NEIL'S VIEWS.

He Believes it Time for the United States to Make a Stand.

Predicted that a Detachment of Our Army Will be Moving on Chili Within Six Weeks—The President's Message on the Matter to be Presented to Congress Monday—Why He Has Withheld the Proclamation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Representative O'Neil, of Massachusetts, said this morning:

"You may say there will be war. Don't put any if's or or's in it. Make the statement broad and unqualified."

A prominent officer of the army, who received a letter from one of the naval force at Valparaiso yesterday said: "In six weeks a detachment of the army will be moving on Chili. I thoroughly believe what I say."

The officer quoted has exceptional opportunities for knowing just what the sentiment of the people of Chili is as manifested to the officers of the United States vessels in the harbor of Valparaiso, and is undoubtedly honest in the expressions made.

In view of the crisis which is evidently approaching, it is interesting to note the gradual concentration of the new navy in the direction of Pacific waters. The gunboat Bennington has just arrived at Montevideo, and the Atlanta will reach there to-morrow. The flagship Chicago, the Essex and the Yantic are already there. The Philadelphia, Concord and Kearsage are in the West Indies, ready to sail southward at any moment.

In the Pacific, the San Francisco and Charleston are at San Diego, the Baltimore and Mohican at San Francisco, the Pensacola at Honolulu, the Iroquois at Samoa, the Boston at Callao, and the Yorktown at Valparaiso.

Many Democratic Members are growing restive under the delay of the Executive in communicating the Chilian correspondence to Congress, and some of them believe that the time has come for Congress to take some action.

Representative O'Neill, of Massachusetts, called on Chairman Blount of the Foreign Affairs Committee and told him that he had it in his mind to introduce a resolution asking the President to inform the House whether the press representatives of Col. Remy's investigation on the Baltimore had been officially authenticated and declaring that if they had been, a casus belli existed between the United States and Chili.

Mr. Blount cautioned Mr. O'Neil to be careful, reminding him that war is a serious thing and declared that the the initiative ought to be taken by the President, not by Congress.

Mr. O'Neil replied that ordinarily the President ought to take the iniative, but while he had faith in the patriotism of Mr. Harrison he believed he was surrounded by influences tending to restrain him from asserting the dignity of the United States. He said that he, for one, and many other Democratic members of Congress, believe that the time has come for the United States to declare before the world that her flag and her seamen were to be respected in every part of the world.

The President has practically determined on the form of his special message concerning Chili, which it is now expected he will send to Congress not later than Monday next. There is no doubt that this message, together with a review of all the correspondence in the case, would have been sent to Congress last week had it not been for certain private advices which the president at the time received from Valparaiso. This was to the effect that Chili was then on the brink of another revolution, and for that reason it might be as well for the United States to defer an appeal to Congress for further authority for at least a few days. This the President decided to do.

Attempted to Kill Her Tradueer.

NYACK, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Mrs. Charles Pine, a well-known and highly respected lady of Haverstraw, heard she had been slandered by Michael Walshaver, the proprietor of a tailoring establishment in the place. She procured a revolver yesterday and went into Walshaver's store. On espying the object of her search she drew the pistol to fire when it was grasped by an employe who turned the barrel toward the ceiling into which its contents were discharged. The prompt action on the part of the employe probably saved Walshaver's life.

Arrested for Innkeeper Dunham's Murder.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 14.—Superintendent of Police Brown yesterday took into custody in Paterson George W. Fuller, suspected to be the murderer of William Dunham on Christmas eve. Fuller was locked up. He has been examined in the case before and was discharged by the Prosecutor, satisfying that officer with an alibi. The evidence against him is very strong, but also very circumstantial.

Whittier Has the Grip.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Jan. 14.—John Greenleaf Whittier, the poet, is confined to his bed at the residence of his cousin in this city, with an attack of the prevailing grip. His physicians think the illness is not serious.

Grounded During a Fog.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—The steamship Lake Superior, which left port yesterday for Liverpool, went aground below Nix's Mate during the dense fog which prevailed in the afternoon. It is believed the vessel can be floated and that she will not suffer much injury.

NEW JERSEY LAW MAKERS.

A Large Number of Bills Introduced in the Legislature Yesterday.

TRENTON, Jan. 14.—There was a short session of the House of Assembly this morning. The only work accomplished was the introduction of bills. The most important was that of Assemblyman Cole of Camden, who amends the Mechanic's Lien Law so that all liens must be filed in four months. The State Federation of Trade have authorized their legislative committee to fight all amendments to the Mechanics Lien Law and before this bill passes there will have to be several hearings.

Edward Stokes, an Assemblyman from the prohibition county of Cumberland, which was made wet by the creation of a county excise commission, introduced a repealer of the act which creates the county excise boards.

Assemblyman Engard introduced a bill asking the State's consent to erect a bridge between Camden and Philadelphia over the Delaware river.

John R. Hardin, from Essex county, introduced a special act to allow the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Newark to receive the funds of a person who dies intestate without heirs.

Howard Packard of Burlington introduced a bill which prevents being committed under the drunk and disorderly act by Justices of Peace. The bill is for the relief of Burlington county, where Justices of the Peace are growing rich gathering in tramps.

EMPIRE STATE'S EXHIBIT.

Bill for the Representation at Chicago Introduced in the Senate.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Senator Cantor introduced a World's Fair bill in the Senate yesterday. It was ordered to a third reading, ordered printed and referred to the Committee on Finance. The expenditures for the purpose of a New York exhibit shall not exceed $300,000.

The bill provides that: Chauncey M. Depew, John Boyd Thacher, Gorton W. Allen, members of the World's Columbian Commission, and three others to be appointed by the Governor, are constituted the General Managers of the exhibit of the State.

The Governor shall appoint a Board of District Commissioners for each judicial district of the State, consisting of three persons. Such Board shall, under the direction of the general managers, perform such service as may be proscribed by the general managers, for the purpose of securing a full and complete exhibit of the resources, products and general development of the State, within their respective districts.

These officers are to receive no compensation beyond actual traveling expenses, and will make all preparations for a creditable representation of the State at Chicago and for the naval parade to be held in New York harbor in April, 1893.

A Cotton Firm in Trouble.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 14. — Joseph H. Coates & Co., dealers in cotton and yarns in this city, are in trouble and their paper has gone to protest. The firm conducted a business with many branches here and in Europe. The firm was rated at $400,000. Their embarrassment is attributed to the continued heavy decline in the price of cotton, and their inability to market the immense quantity they are carrying.

He is Gone, But His Debts Remain.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Jan. 14.—William H. O'Brien, who has been running a stock broker's office here as a branch of the Metropolitan Stock Exchange, has disappeared, leaving behind him, it is said, debts aggregating between $15,000 and $20,000. His friends claim that his debts will not exceed $1,000.

Judge Botkin Decides to Resign.

SPRINGFIELD, Kan., Jan. 14.—Judge Botkin has decided to resign. His resignation as Judge of the Third Judicial District will probably be in the hands of Gov. Humphrey this week, and its acceptance will doubtless end the trouble in this district.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

John Witteman died this morning in the nineteenth year of his age.

Mrs. D. C. Bird and daughter, of East Front street, are visiting relatives in Brooklyn and Jersey City.

John T. Connelly, a student of Columbia college, and son of judge P. W. Connelly of Bayonne, has been visiting his cousins, the Misses Finley of East Third street.

Mrs. David Zeigler of Denver, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Sarah Laing of West Fourth street, has been suddenly called home by a telegram from her husband. The message said to come at once. She left Plainfield on the 2:07 train this afternoon, and the express on the Pennsylvania railroad was stopped at Elizabeth, by order of the company, for her accommodation.

Emily Ryno, the wife of James N. Ryno who was for many years a well-known resident of this city, died at her home in Jersey City, Tuesday. She was in the 42d year of her age, and had been sick a year of consumption. Funeral services will be held at Warren mission chapel, North Plainfield, to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Members of Plainfield lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., are specially invited to be be present.

Lecture by the Rev. Mr. Chadwick.

The fifth lecture in the Unitarian course was given last evening by the Rev. John W. Chadwick of Brooklyn. His subject was "Sacred Places of European Travel." The lecturer took his audience to the homes and the tombs of many of the most famous poets, philosophers, novelists, and reformers of the old world. The pictures were drawn with a skillful hand and, throughout, the lecture illustrated that rhetorical and literary culture for which the poet-preacher is distinguished.

THE HEIR OF THE THRONE, DEAD.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

LONDON, January 14.—The Duke of Clarence and Avondale, eldest son of the Prince of Wales and heir presumptive to the English throne, died this morning at nine o'clock.

PRINCE GEORGE OF WALES.

In view of the wedding which was expected shortly to take place, of the Duke and Princes May, of Teck, and also of the fact that the young man has always had the sympathy of the public, the information that death had snatched away the heir presumptive has caused a wide spread feeling of sorrow and alarm.

Business men halted to read the announcement to-day on the bulletin boards, with as much sincerity and feeling as though they related to the aged and sorrow-stricken Queen at Windsor.

CARDINAL MANNING DEAD.

The Aged Prelate Breathes His Last at Westminster.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Cardinal Manning died this morning, in his bedchamber at the Archbishop's house, Westminster, where he had lived since 1865. He passed gently away surrounded by friends, and breathing blessings upon his people and his church.

[Particulars of the Cardinal's illness are to be found in the general telegraphic news on the first page.]

DEATH OF CARDINAL SIMEONI.

ROME, January 14.—Cardinal Simeoni, formerly Papal Secretary of State and Prefect-General of the Propaganda, died to-day. His death was due to an attack of influenza, from which he had been suffering for several days.

Bright, Winsome and Charming.

Mora, one of the best soubrettes on the stage to-day, will open at Music Hall, next Monday evening. Her manager has rented the Hall for a week and will present a different play each evening at popular prices.

The Waltham Tribune says: "Mora, the comedy sunbeam, opened a week's appearance in repertoire at the Park theater. Popular price touched a sympathetic chord in the hearts of enough theater goers to fill the hall with one of the largest audiences of the season.

"For Mora herself praise is not needed. She is always the same; bright, winsome and charming. Her supporting cast was first-class and the piece passed off with a pleasing spirit and dash which delighted the auditors.

"Some of the cleverest histrionic talent in the country is to-day to be found playing week stands at low prices and the immense saving in travelling and hotel expenses leave a handsome profit which is drawing more and more talented performers into repertoire. Mora is one of the leaders in this sort of venture and her success would seem sufficient excuse for others imitating the departure."

"Quack" Won the Game for Fanwood.

Clarence Teel of the Crescent League bowlers, rolled the highest score in the contest between Plainfield and Fanwood, on the former's alleys, last night. But unfortunately Teel was on the Fanwood team and the Crescents were consequently defeated. The visitors arrived with one man missing, so, rather than bowl a four-men match, Teel was loaned to Fanwood. The result is given below.

George Williams was umpire. Fanwood led at the start but fell behind on the fifth frame. The Crescents were then ahead for three frames and the score was a tie in the eighth. By strikes in the ninth and tenth frames, however, Teel won. The score:

MRS. BOOTH-CLIBBORN COMING.

She Will Tell the Plainfield People of the Obstacles and Persecutions Which Have Beset Her in Salvation Work in Switzerland and France.

The Rev. Dr. Lewis, the Rev. Dr. Ketcham and the Rev. Mr. Richards, a committee of the Ministers' association of this city, have arranged for a meeting of all the churches of Plainfield at the First Baptist church, next Monday evening, at which Mrs. Booth-Clibborn, eldest daughter of General Booth, and commander of the Salvation Army in France and Switzerland, will speak upon the work in those countries. The following extract of a notice of her work in Canada is taken from a late number of the Montreal Witness:

The Swiss are not a humorous people. That is why they always sent sixteen policemen (armed to the teeth) three officers (also armed to the teeth) and two covered carriages (drawn by two horses each, to arrest a poor young girl for beseeching sinners to be reconciled to God. That is why the assemblies of the Cantons solemnly met, and solemnly expelled Miss Booth long after she had left the territory, and why they sealed the public halls with sixteen seals which she never intended to enter! Humor is not a common property; but Dogberry is a pretty general entity. He may even be seen in Montreal now and then, in the neighborhood of the City Hall.

But Mrs. Booth-Clibborn (daughter of General Booth), who was in Montreal last week, and the guest of Mr. George Hague, manager of the Merchants' Bank, has an exceedingly lively sense of humor, and she laughed heartily at the recollection of those sixteen policemen and the three officers. "I used to say to them: 'Are so many of you gentlemen necessary?' and then I would point to my poor slight figure, but they never laughed."

Mrs. Booth-Clibborn is tall, fragile, spirituelle. She looks as if a breath would blow her away. Her frame is slight, and her health is not good, and she suffers from a spinal complaint. (This is where we get the humor of the sixteen policemen.) But the indomitable spirit of her father shines out of those large, mild-looking blue eyes. She is like the father, too, in the general contour of her face. The forehead is lofty, and above it is brushed carelessly back a mass of dark brown hair. (No curl papers or curling tongs in the Salvation Army). Her voice is soft and richly musical, and her diction carefully chosen.

Mrs. Booth-Clibborn, the pioneer of the French and Swiss work, has been in prison dozens of times. She has been stoned. She has lain upon a straw bed, and the rats have run over her in scores.

Masonic Honors to the Dead.

Very impressive were the funeral services over the remains of the late Timothy Hunting Morse, held yesterday afternoon. Short services were held at the home of Mrs. Freeman, Mr. Morse's daughter, East Fifth street, at 2:15; and from there the Masonic brethren and other mourners went to the Congregational church. There were about 80 members of Jerusalem and Anchor lodges present. At the church the Revs. C. L. Goodrich and E. M. Rodman gave Scriptural readings, including the appropriate portion from I Corinthians, xv, begining at the 20th verse. Dr. Rodman also led in prayer. Mr. Goodrich preached a short sermon from II Corinthians, v: 1. The sentiments of this chapter, he said, were constantly on the lips of the departed, during his later years, and he made touching allusion to remarks Mr. Morse had made about being called up higher.

After the repetition of the Lord's prayer by Dr. Rodman, the Masons took charge of the service, and the solemn burial ceremonies of the fraternity were gone through with. Robert M. Moore, of Elizabeth, Past Grand Master of New Jersey, had at much personal sacrifice forsaken other business to fulfill the dying wish of Mr. Morse, that he should have charge of the obsequies. He was assisted by W. F. Bartlett, Senior Deacon, J. E. Flannery, Acting Junior Deacon, and C. H. Rugg, Master. The pall-bearers were F. O. Herring, William L. Gavett, E. C. Mulford, J. A. Hubbard, H. H. Lowrie and M. C. Dobbins. William H. Sebring was Marshal.

It had been Mr. Morse's request that the Masonic burial service be performed indoors, so that the brethren would not have to risk their health standing bareheaded in the open air. Hence the full service was performed just as though the casket was then being lowered to its last resting-place. Chaplain Rodman read the invocation, and Past Grand Master Moore delivered a touching eulogy of the deceased and read the Masonic service. Especially impressive features were the forming of the endless chain symbolic of eternal brotherhood, the chorus "We cherish his memory here, we commit his body to the dust, and his spirit unto God who gave it", the depositing of the snow-white lambskin and sprigs of everlasting acacia on the casket, and the singing of the Masonic dirge. With the heartfelt expression of sentiment quoted above the brethren united in expressive gestures, indicating that their hearts would keep green his memory, the earth was to receive his body, and his soul was on High with its Creator. Each Mason laid a sprig of the evergreen upon the departed brother's breast.

The choir singing was by E. E. Runyon, M. VanArsdale, W. R. Cock and Craig A. Marsh, and was very sweet and pathetic. The floral tokens included a sheaf of wheat and two beautiful pillows of white roses and green, inscribed respectively with "Father" and "At Rest" in immortelles.

Victor Baier, organist of Trinity church, New York, where he presides at the great organ, was organist during the ceremonies.

—The Woman's Home Missionary society will hold its regular meeting for sewing, Friday, at 2 o'clock, in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church. All the ladies are invited and a special invitation is extended to the young ladies.

This Sort of Thing Should be Stopped.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Jan. 11.—The grip is raging in Plainfield as violently as it did ten days ago. The death rate for the last two weeks is larger than it has even been, with the exception of the month of July, 1887, when forty-nine deaths were reported.

The above is from the New York World of Tuesday. A score of communications have been received by THE PRESS in relation to the falsehood and its effect on the growth and good name of Plainfield. One correspondent wants to know who wrote it, and advises that: "He be made an example of and driven out of the city; and his body burned in effigy as one who for 30 cents will dirty his own nest."

Dr. Walker's Lectures.

In his second lecture at Trinity church, last night, the Rev W. H. Walker was even more eloquent than the previous night, and many beautiful thoughts were brought out. The Christian people of Plainfield who do not hear these lectures are missing a chance they may never have again. The lecturer got only as far as the door of the tabernacle last night. To-night he will take his audience inside, and a rich feast is in store for all who attend. Mr. Walker is one of the most entertaining lecturers on the platform to-day. Remember, the admission is free, but a collection will be taken at the close of the lecture.

Pleasant to the taste, surprisingly quick in effect, and economical in price—no wonder that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the leading preparation of its kind.

The Objection Not Sustained.

"I will insert the item with pleasure," said the city editor, "as the gentleman it refers to is a nephew of yours, but I think I would change it a little. You say: 'The public will be interested in knowing that Mr. Orville Ardup is about to embark in the lecture field.' The expression is not strictly accurate. The figure is a faulty one. Persons embark in vessels or something of that kind, you know. They don't embark in a field."

"The figure is all right," said the old subscriber, after reflecting a moment, "I expect to float him."—Chicago Tribune.

Overdoing It.

"There," said the wife of the president of the wrecked bank, as she gave the finishing touch to her toilet; "if your bank has failed that is no reason why I should hide myself. I intend to show myself at the opera to-night."

"Very well, my dear," said the husband, "show yourself if you wish to; but don't you think," he added, as his eye took in the cut of her corsage, "that it were better to conceal something?"—N. Y. Press.

Murderer Brady Gets 20 Years.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 14.—Patrick Brady, who killed his wife on Oct. 5, was yesterday convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor for twenty years. Judge Depue, in closing his remarks, directed that the jury bring in a verdict of murder in the first degree. He said the murder was the most brutal that had been committed in this county since he had been upon the bench. Brady came from work in the stone quarries at Avondale on Oct. 3, and when he found that his dinner was not ready kicked his wife to death.

Cashier Green Protests Innocence.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Jan. 14.—The cashier of the failed Muncy Bank, Dela Green, has given bail in $50,000 for a hearing to-morrow. He protests his innocence and sought to have warrants for others of the bank's officers. Mr. Dengler, the Bank Examiner, has found a shortage of $15,000 in cash.

Well Known Pastor Dead.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Jan. 14.—Rev. Garner R. Snyder is dead at his home in Ocean Grove, from pneumonia, which was superinduced by an attack of the grip. He was 71 years old and was one of the best known members of the New Jersey Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. During his 48 years of ministerial work he filled many important pastorates.

Backed up by a cash offer—the statements that are made by the proprietors of Doctor Sage's Catarrh Remedy. They say that their medicine will cure, perfectly and permanently, the worst case of Chronic Catarrh in the Head—that not only Catarrh itself, but all the troubles that come from it, and every thing catarrhal in its nature, are cured by the mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties of their remedy.

They can't say any more. Probably every medicine for Catarrh claims as much. But it's one thing to promise a cure—it's a very different thing to perform it. The proprietors of Dr. Sage's Remedy want to prove that they mean what they say. So they make this offer: If they can't cure your Catarrh, no matter how bad your case or of how long standing, they'll pay you $500 in cash. You're sure of the money or a cure. Isn't such a medicine worth trying?

I have used Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills for Dyspepsia, etc., and have been cured by them. I cheerfully recommend them to all who suffer from the same.—STEPHEN BURBANK, corner Wayne street Reformed church, Jersey City.

INCREASED ONE MILLION DOLLARS.

How the Tilden Estate Has Grown in the Hands of a Plainfield Financier.

The executors of the estate of the late ex-Governor Samuel J. Tilden, of New York, will make an official accounting on March 2. The value of the property left by Mr. Tilden will then be finally determined.

He left about five million dollars, which, since his death, has remained in the hands of his executors. The latter, upon taking charge of the estate, at once made L. V. F. Randolph of this city—then treasurer of the Illinois Central railroad—a big bid for him to take entire management of affairs. Mr. Randolph was then drawing a salary of $18,000 a year. How much more the Tilden executors offered him is not known. He accepted, however, and the lower floor of the Gramercy Park home was turned into a counting room with desks, clerks and different departments where a regular stock and banking business was done. The lesser paying stocks left by Mr. Tilden were gradually disposed of as Mr. Randolph's judgment advised, and the moneys reinvested as he directed. Where he thought a loss might result by the disposal of certain interests in iron mines—for which Mr. Tilden seems to have had a great fancy—Mr. Randolph went into the board of direction of such corporations, and by experience, financial ability and generalship, put them on a paying basis, and more than doubled the value of the estate's holdings. And in the same shrewd and skillful way was handled all of the dead man's millions of dollars in bank and railroad stocks, real estate, bonds and mortgages, and collateral of all kinds. The result is that probably there has been an increase in the estate of over $1,000,000 since Mr. Randolph took hold of it.

Mr. Ledyard of Carter & Ledyard, counsel to the executors, said yesterday that the estate was worth at present about $6,000,000. "These figures", he said, "may vary $200,000 one way or the other, but not more than that. It is almost impossible to fit an exact value on the real estate, especially of the country place at Yonkers. Of the $6,000,000, the Tilden Trust receives $2,000,000. When the will was broken Mrs. Hazzard became entitled to one-half of the estate. She signified her desire to have the wishes of Mr. Tilden carried out in regard to the trust, and received $1,000,000, relinquishing $2,000,000 to the trust. The rest of the estate, worth $3,000,000, will be divided between the other heirs.

"The validity of the bequests for a public library and reading room at Yonkers, for a public library and reading room at New Lebanon, Columbia county, and for the maintenance of the old cemetery at New Lebanon, has not been finally determined".

In his will Mr. Tilden left "$50,000 for a library and reading room at Yonkers, and a further sum, "not exceeding $50,000", for the same purpose. He left $65,000 for a similar institution in his native town of New Lebanon, and a further sum, "not exceeding $35,000". To keep the New Lebanon cemetery in order and erect a monument over his grave, Mr. Tilden left $10,000.

Dr. Lewis's Sabbath.

[From The Somerville Messenger.]

The Rev. Dr. Lewis, with whom we have had a pleasant little controversy on the binding obligation of the Fourth Commandment on Christians, writes to the Plainfield Courier that he is too busy at this time to present detailed reasons on which Seventh-day Baptists base their practice relative to the Sabbath; notwithstanding, he furnishes eight. The second one alone we deem of sufficient pertinence to note as being the gist of the whole matter.

The following is this reason: "The Fourth Commandment of the Decalogue fixes the Sabbath upon the seventh day of the week." Well, suppose (and granted) it does: it fixes it for the Jews, not for Christians. Dr. Lewis and some other Christians cannot rid themselves of the bondage of Judaism, and, therefore, are forever going back to the laws of Moses.

What have Christians to do with Moses? He was a lawgiver to the Jews, but to no other people. The morality of the Ten Commandments is binding on all people everywhere, and in all ages—not, however, because they were the laws of Moses, and were of force because of that fact, but because they forbid evil per se, such as murder, theft and adultery.

But the Fourth Commandment is not of that character. It is simply statutory, and its transgression was not mala per se, but only mala prohibita. It was part and parcel of Jewish economy, and appertained alone to it; and when that dispensation ceased it became of no effect.

And, indeed, Christians in the early days of Christianity continued to observe the Jewish Sabbath longer than they ought. In course of time it fell into disuse, and finally ceased to be observed altogether, doubtless by the will of God.

No day is intrinsically holy, or one day better than another. To hallow, to sanctify, to keep holy the Sabbath, means to keep it in the manner as God had appointed. To the Jews the Sabbath day was a day of rest, on which no work was to be done. This was more of an act of mercy than anything else, and more of a privilege than a duty. The children of Israel had been in bondage, where they were worked by taskmasters unmercifully, beaten with many stripes, and had to make brick without straw. God said, six days verily shalt thou work, and the seventh thou shalt rest.

"Oh! woman, in thy hours of ease, uncertain, coy, and hard to please." With children hurt, long hours she's spent. Do try Salvation Oil, the liniment.

PRAISED ON ALL SIDES.

The Old Reliable Reading Road the Favorite Everywhere.

In glancing over exchanges from everywhere, THE PRESS finds frequent mention and high commendation of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad, which, under the wise and vigorous policy instituted by president A. A McLeod and ably prosecuted by his devoted lieutenants, has reached a degree of prosperity that a few years ago seemed impossible of attainment.

To meet the demands of the traveling public of to-day it is necessary that a railroad company shall furnish not only speedy and safe transportation but luxurious accommodations as well. All these requirements are met in the fullest measure by the Reading, which certainly deserves its pet appellation, "The Royal Route". The road is in exceptionally fine condition, and its motive power and car equipment are constantly being improved and added to. It enjoys the proud distinction of owning and running the fastest locomotive in the world, the famous "No 206", which made the world's record of a mile in 39¾ seconds.

This triumph is but an example of what the Reading is accomplishing in all directions. In the Boston Christian Leader of Jan. 7, is found the following, which fairly reflects the popular appreciation of this line:—"The Royal Blue line between New York, Philadelphia and Washington, via the Reading railroad, has attained a world-wide reputation, owing to the high standard of excellence it has maintained ever since it was inaugurated, and its success, although unprecedented, is fully deserved. The trains are the finest and safest in the world and vestibuled from end to end making each train a practically solid and continuous structure throughout. They are equipped with Pullman's anti-telescoping steel frames, rendering injuries from collision impossible. They are heated by steam and lighted by the Pintsch gas system. Each train is equipped with palatial day coaches, the finest Pullman cars on all day trains and sleeping cars on night trains, and an unequalled dining car service. The speed attained by this line is the fastest ever made between New York, Philadelphia and Washington, and it is a service which, taken as a whole, is unequalled by any through line in the world."

A Lively Fire Behind the Smoke.

[From The Newark Advertiser.]

Whatever the outcome of the trial of the Rev. A. C. Dill before the Presbytery of Morris and Orange, on charges of immorality and unbecoming conduct, there can be no question as to the desperate wickedness of the little town of Stirling in Morris county. The gossip of the trial suggests only one opinion on that point, and Stirling will have to go down in history in the same category, although on a minor rank of achievement, with Jersey City and Paterson. There has been enough smoke in that obscure village for the past half year to convince the casual observer that there must be a lively fire crackling around somewhere. The hot disclosures of the secret investigations of the ministers and elders reveal the presence of a conflagration of considerable size and extent. If Mr. Dill is not guilty, he has certainly been the victim of the most malicious gossiping that ever beset a country pastor, and if the parishioners are not lying, their pastor has ideas regarding the ministerial office which savor more of the dives of New York than the parish work of Stirling. While everyone deplores the existence of this condition of affairs, it will be a matter of congratulation if the truth is made known, if the tares are separated from the wheat, and the scamps stripped of the ministerial garb in which they love to cloak their sins and dissemble their hypocrisy.

A Plainfield Capitalist's Enterprise.

The New York Transit company, capital $5,000,000, filed a certificate of incorporation with the Secretary of State at Albany, yesterday. The company is formed to own and operate for public use lines of pipe already constructed from the town of Olean, in Cattaraugus county, through the counties of Cattaraugus, Allegany, Steuben, Tioga, Broome, Delaware, Sullivan and Orange; thence through the State of New Jersey to the Hudson river and New York bay, a distance of about 877 miles; also lines of pipe already constructed from the town of Olean through Cattaraugus and Erie counties to the city of Buffalo; also to construct, and operate for public use, another line of pipe alongside of those already constructed, as announced above, and such branch lines as may be found necessary for connecting the main lines with petroleum wells and receptacles for petroleum, convenient for receiving and delivering it, and the transportation through their pipe lines of petroleum, or liquid products of petroleum, or other liquids and gas. The company is to continue for fifty years. The directors are Henry M. Flagler, William Rockafeller, Benjamin Brewster, Henry B. Rogers, John D. Archbold, Daniel O'Day, of New York city, and John Bushnell of Plainfield, N. J.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely; it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety, and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Ct.

A Plainfield Preacher's Ultimatum.

[From The Newark Evening News.]

For some reason satisfactory to the trustees of a Plainfield church, the builders of its new edifice were paid $800 less than their agreement called for. The contractors, though they lost heavily on the work, signed a receipt in full, and it is said have no legal claim against the congregation. The church has not prospered, although its debt has been paid and it has seemed as if everything was favorable to its growth. The pastor, who believes that the $800 withheld from the contractors is morally their due, has insisted that it shall be paid to them, and has given notice that unless payment be promptly made he will resign. He believes that the evasion of this debt is the cause of the church's stagnation, and that growth and prosperity will come only when it has been paid.

This clergyman deserves credit for his determined and outspoken course. Presumably he did not publicly announce to the congregation the alternative between the payment of the debt and his resignation until he had exhausted private persuasion in his efforts to convince the officers that it is their duty to pay the debt. In their conduct in the matter there has probably been nothing at variance with the policy that almost universally prevails in business transactions. They doubtless had reason growing out of change of plan or the manner in which the work was done, for their bating of the contractor's bills; and the latter's acceptance of the reduced amount was a business justification of the reduction. The fact that the contractors lost money was doubtless due to their own imprudence in taking the work for less than it was worth, and the trustees doubtless felt no responsibility for this. Besides, these gentlemen were spending other people's money and were bound to spend it as economically as possible and to pay only legal claims with it.

The preacher, however, appears to believe that the church is under a moral obligation to pay this money. He is not satisfied with conduct that is simply as honest as the law compels it to be, and, holding these opinions, he has done a proper and a manly thing in deciding and announcing that he will not remain with the church unless it pays this debt. After such an announcement it will be for the congregation to decide in regard to its duty. It will be spending or declining to spend its own money, not like its officers dispensing trust funds, and if it take the preacher's view it can without casting reproach upon the latter gentleman pay the debt they have repudiated.

The clergyman's view that it has been the failure to pay this money that has retarded the growth of the church may not be without foundation. The new church building will have little of the odor of sanctity if there is in the mind of the community a suspicion or belief that it has in it the trace of the scent of sharp practice. And even if the preacher did not refer to the influence of this kind, but to the retribution which oppression and dishonesty bring through the hardening of those who practice them or the judgment of a higher power, he may not have spoken at random. There are in New York to-day many men not over-superstitious and not even remarkable for kindliness and honesty, who believe that the evil fortune which fell upon the house of Stewart began and gathered its force in the curses of the unlucky builder, who was ruined in mind, body and estate through the merciless enforcement of the contract under which he reared the dry-goods king's marble palace on Fifth avenue.

All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. POET AND DIPLOMAT.

The Eventful Career of the Late Lord Lytton.

One of the Most Versatile Noblemen of the Nineteenth Century—Some of the Important Offices Intrusted to His Care.

Rt. Hon. Edward Bulwer Lytton, G. C. B., embassador to France, poet, novelist, diplomat, died in Paris November 24, aged sixty years. He was best known in America by his literary works, published over the nom de plume "Owen Meredith." "Lucille," issued in 1860, at once attained a wide-spread popularity on both sides of the Atlantic. This was followed three years later by the "Ring of Amasis." In 1874 appeared his "Fables in Song," and in 1877 "After Paradise, or Legends of Exile." Among his prose works are "Speeches of Edward, Lord Lytton," with a prefatory memoir issued in 1874, and "The Life, Letters and Literary Remains of Edward Bulwer, Lord Lytton," issued in 1883.

Lord Lytton was appointed minister to France four years ago. His last public office previous to this was that of viceroy of India, a position which he resigned in 1887 simultaneously with Lord Beaconsfield's retirement from the premiership. Lord Lytton may be said to have spent most of his life in diplomatic service. When not quite eighteen years of age he was appointed, October 12, 1849, attache at Washington, where his uncle, Sir Henry Bulwer, afterward Lord Dalling and Bulwer, was minister. To Sir Henry he acted at the time as private secretary. On February 5, 1852, he was transferred as attache to Florence, and on August 12, 1854, was removed to the embassy at Paris. He was thence promoted, shortly after the peace of 1856, to be paid attache at The Hague. Two years afterward, on April 1, 1858, he was appointed first paid attache at St. Petersburg, and a little more than two months later was gazetted first paid attache at Constantinople. From that embassy he was, on January 6, 1859, transferred to the one at Vienna. He was on October 1, 1862, gazetted second secretary in the English diplomatic service, being employed in that capacity at Vienna. Shortly afterward he was promoted on January 6, 1863, to be secretary of legation at Copenhagen. There, during two intervals, from February 27 to March 18, 1863, and again from April 14 to May 24, 1864, he held the position of charge d'affaires. A week before the date last mentioned (on May 18, 1863) he was gazetted as secretary of the legation at Athens, whence on April 21, 1865, he was transferred to Lisbon. Upon three several occasions he there also discharged the office of charge d'affaires, from May 30 to October, 1865, from April 29 to November 18, 1866, and from September 14, 1867, to March 19, 1868. In little more than a month from the last-named date, on February 29, 1868, when he successfully concluded the negotiation of a commercial treaty between Great Britain and Portugal, he was transferred to Madrid. Six months later he was promoted to the secretaryship of embassy at Vienna. There he acted once more from October 30 to December 29, 1869, as charge d'affaires and was thence transferred on October 5, 1872, as secretary of embassy to Paris. Three months afterward, upon his father's death, he succeeded to the title as the second Baron Lytton. Twice during that same year, from April 13 to May 17, and again from September 14 to October 22, he acted at Paris as charge d'affaires, and to the close of his career here as secretary of embassy he was always, during the absence of the embassador, accredited there as minister plenipotentiary. Having previously declined the governorship of Madras, he was appointed embassador at Lisbon in December, 1874, and after occupying that post for a year was suddenly informed by telegram in January, 1876, of his nomination by Mr. Disraeli as viceroy of India.

New Explosive.

"Americanite" is a new explosive of great power. The principal ingredient is nitro-glycerine, and the others are secret. It is insensible to shock and can be exploded at will. It withstands friction and if ignited with a match simply burns like a candle. Gen. O. O. Howard says of it: "The advantage of being able to use an explosive of a force equal to nitro-glycerine with safety, fired from any gun now in existence and with terrific effect at extreme range, is evident. With such a powerful agent the problem of coast defense is resolved almost to one of range, and our greatest seaboard cities can be made comparatively safe without excessive expenditure."

Queer Atmospheric Freaks.

Prof. Leonhardt Webber, in his atmospheric experiments with kites and balloons, has found that the atmosphere is negatively electrified up to a height of about 100 yards, beyond which it is positively electrified in a degree increasing very rapidly with the distance from the earth. The negative electrification of the lower strata of the air is attributed to the presence of germs and dust particles.

CAN WE MAKE RAIN?

An Explosion of Government Theories by Noted Men.

Prof. Chandler of Columbia College Denounces the Recent Government Experiments—What Prof. Lafavour of Williams Thinks.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

C. F. CHANDLER, PROFESSOR OF CHEMISTRY, COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY.

The Deyrenforth and Melbourne rain theories do not appear to me as in an way worthy the attention of scientific men.

The recent experiments made by the government border on the absurd. I would say that it would be absolutely impossible for me to find many words to apply to the subject. I consider the whole business the most ridiculous bosh, and do not think there is a shadow of foundation of common sense to be found in it.

C. F. Chandler

UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS, AUSTIN, TEX., Dec. 8, 1891.

The plan of the experiments conducted in Texas by Gen. Dyrenforth and party may be briefly described as an imitation of a battle. The theory was that a battle was almost invariably followed by rain, and the plan of the experiments was, in the general's own words, "to imitate the effects of a great battle as nearly as possible." This was entirely unscientific. Nature cannot answer clearly when a number of questions are put to her at once. The proper plan was not to mix up the different elements which exist in a battle, but to try the effects of the elements singly. The questions which ought to have been put to nature are: First "What is the effect of smoke by itself?" Second. "What is the effect of concussion by itself?" Third. "What is the effect of an ascending current of air free as much as possible from smoke or concussion?" As regards the first question it ought to have been known to the man commissioned to make such experiments that Aitken, of Scotland, had demonstrated by experiments on a small scale that raindrops do not form even in saturated air unless solid particles are present to act as nuclei. Hence the air may often be saturated, but no rain fall merely from the want of smoke particles upon which to condense. The fall of the rain will not in general follow immediately on the production of smoke, because the air may not then be saturated, and the sequence of this rain some time after the battle points to smoke as the active element.

From the account given of the operations in the North American Review, one may doubt whether the general understands the nature of sounds. It is supposed that warm and cold currents of air in the atmosphere may be mixed by making a big noise. Now, sound speaks out by a wave motion of the air, the particles themselves performing only a small excursion; and even the sound produced by a great explosion dies away at a small distance in the air. Nothing impresses one more at the top of the Eiffel tower than the great silence. Observations at the top have shown that there may be a warm current of air above, while there is a cooler current over the city; could such currents be mixed the mixture might be saturated, but the mixture cannot be made by explosions produced on the ground. Whether such currents can be mixed sufficiently to start a rain by making an explosion near the boundary between the current or by establishing a vertical current are important practical questions, but no conclusive information has been obtained from the experiments made in Texas.

Alex Macfarlane

I do not believe that a shower can be produced by the disturbance of the air caused by the concussion which attends an explosion, whether the explosive be a solid, a liquid or a combination of gases. If the particles of water which are distributed through the air happen in certain isolated instances to be on the point of agglomerating, the disturbance of the air may facilitate the process and a few drops heavy enough to fall be formed, but by no means in sufficient number to cause a shower, so that so far as the noise was concerned the most of Gen. Dyrenforth's efforts were in vain. Since gases in expanding absorb heat, and since the cooling of a vapor causes it to condense, if large quantities of hot gas are introduced into the atmosphere it may be that sufficient condensation will be caused to produce a precipitation. It is my opinion, however, that the results would be far too meager to justify the expense.

The most plausible method is, undoubtedly, as Prof. Blake, of Kansas, has suggested—to introduce into the atmosphere large quantities of minute solid particles which may serve as centers for the formation of drops of water from the extremely minute vaporous particles which are suspended in the air. These solid particles can be introduced by explosions from balloons, being either the products of the explosions themselves or extraneous matter scattered by the explosions. That this will inevitably produce a shower at the place where the explosion occurs I think quite improbable. That it will facilitate a precipitation in some place at some time subsequent to the explosion is probable. If the air is abnormally dry, or if strong currents of air are present, which will tend to scatter the dust particles before the drops are formed, a certain time being required for this, the result is problematical.

For ordinary purposes of irrigation I doubt the practicability of the method, but in times of threatened water famine in cities, especially for those which are not very far from large bodies of water, the experiment would be well worth trying on a large scale.

Henry Lefavour

THE DODGE DIDN'T WORK.

How Blifkins Did It.

Mr. Blifkins (to Miss Dorothy, with whom he is deeply smitten and cannot find a way to propose)—I hate these weddings with so much fuss and feathers, so many guests and flowers and music and all that. When I'm married there'll be no one present but myself, the bride and the minister.

Miss Dorothy—Oh, I'm so sorry! I was hoping to get an invitation to your wedding. Such an old friend as I should not be left out.

Far Worse.

Sniggleton—I'm in trouble. My landlady told me I'd have to settle up or leave.

ROME'S DOUBLE LOSS

Cardinals Manning and Simeoni at Rest.

INFLUENZA'S FATAL WORK.

Manning's Efforts to Better the Condition of the Laboring Classes.

A Vigorous Writer and a Persuasive Orator—Loss to the English Speaking Catholic World—Sketch of His Life—The Works of Simeoni, Late Prefect-General of the Propaganda—His Devotion to the Holy See.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—While the death of Cardinal Manning had been momentarily expected, its announcement yesterday caused a profound shock.

The scenes attending Cardinal Manning's death were very impressive. The canons of the Diocese of Westminster were grouped around the bed of the dying prelate. Provost Gilbert read the profession of faith, as is customary when a dignitary of the Roman Catholic Church is dying. Cardinal Manning closely followed the words. The canons kissed his hand, and he returned the salute as well as he could.

At 7:20 o'clock he became unconscious and he died at 8 o'clock. His death was calm and painless, and appeared like a gentle sinking to sleep. The household of the Cardinal is in the deepest distress, and there were pathetic scenes in the hall of old men and other attendants and friends weeping for the departed prelate.

The end when it came was painless and without any paroxysms of suffering.

THE LATE CARDINAL MANNING.

This must be attributed to the feebleness which has for long been a result of the Archbishop's ascetic life.

The broad catholic spirit of His Eminence constantly marked his labors with phases of popularity, and the settlement of the great London strike of 1889 was largely due to his personal efforts.

The figure of the aged Cardinal, who was then in his 81st year, spare, and almost ghost-like in form, with pale, worn, intellectual face, devoid of a single trace of the animal propensities so strongly noticeable in most men, working day and night to secure peace and protection for the poor laborers—this figure powerfully touched the popular imagination, and a few ultra-Protestant bigots professed to think that the Cardinal was making ecclesiastical capital out of the situation.

Perhaps he was, in a very broad sense, for such action must have tended to strengthen the influence of any church represented by such a man, but the same course was open for the Archbishop of Canterbury to make ecclesiastical capital for the Anglican Church.

To Cardinal Manning in a pre-eminent degree belonged the honors of the day so fas as the religious teachers of England are concerned.

In a religious way he was an oblate. As to Irish affairs he was a Home Ruler. Minutely acquainted with the poverty and wretchedness of London, he was ever anxious to help any movement to relieve or abolish poverty, which he could consciously aid.

His most ardent enemies could not call him a bigot. For Mr. Gladstone, whom he knew as a youth at Oxford, he always had the profoundest admiration.

His great sympathy for the suffering brought him into prominence with all public movements of benevolence.

As an author he gave to the world a large number of books, besides his numerous sermons and pamphlets.

The celebration of the Cardinal's episcopal jubilee took place on Sunday, July 8, 1890.

Sketch of the Cardinal's Life.

His Eminence Henry Edward, Cardinal Manning, titular Archbishop of Westminster, was born in Hertfordshire, England, on July 15, 1808. He was the son of a wealthy London merchant, who sent him to Harrow School at the proper age.

After leaving Harrow Manning entered Balliol College, Oxford, and in 1830 graduated with high honors in classics.

At Oxford Manning met Gladstone, the late Bishop Wordsworth, Newman, and many others who afterward became famous. Even among these Manning was distinguished for his ability.

After remaining at Oxford for some time as a fellow of Merton College, Manning took holy orders, and in 1834 was appointed Rector of Lavington, Sussex. In 1840 he became Archdeacon of Chichester, having meanwhile gained celebrity as one of the select preachers of the University of Oxford.

The turning point in Manning's life came in 1851, when he entered the Roman Catholic Church, resigning his preferments in the Church of England. While Manning was in sympathy with the leaders of the Tractorian movement, he was not prominent among them. The point on which he left the English Church had reference to the doctrine of baptismal regeneration.

After his entrance into the Roman Catholic Church his promotion was comparatively rapid. He founded an ecclesiastical congregation at Bayswater, called the Oblates of St. Charles Borromeo in 1856.

The honorary degree of doctor in divinity was specially conferred upon Father Manning at Rome. Before 1860 he was appointed Provost of Catholic Archdiocese of Westminster, Prothonotary Apostolic and Domestic Prelate to the Pope.

It 1865 Cardinal Wiseman died, and Dr. Manning succeeded him as titular Archbishop of Westminster. In 1875 he was created a Cardinal by Pope Pius IX. The same pontiff two years later publicly invested him with the Cardinal's hat at a consistory held in the Vatican.

Of late years Cardinal Manning has shown himself very active in philanthropic work. All his life he has been a strenuous advocate of temperance, if not total abstinence.

The British Government has appointed him member of several Royal Commissions on the Housing of the Poor, on Artisans' Dwellings and kindred subjects.

An excellent and not unfavorable account of Cardinal Manning was given by Mr. Disraeli in his novel "Lothair" under a very thin disguise.

CARDINAL SIMEONI.

The Former Papal Secretary of State Also Dead of Influenza.

ROME, Jan. 15.—Cardinal Simeoni, late Papal Secretary of State and Prefect of the Sacred College of the Propaganda, died yesterday morning from influenza, from which he had been suffering for a few days.

It was stated that the condition of the distinguished prelate was extremely serious, but it was not believed that dissolution was so near at hand. The announcement of the death therefore came as a shock to his sorrowing friends, not only in the Vatican itself but throughout the world.

Giovanni Simeoni was born at Palinai July 28, 1816, and having been ordained a priest, was, on account of his learning, employed in many offices of importance, among them being that of domestic prelate to the Pope, Pro-Notary Apostolic, Secretary to the Congregation of the Propaganda for the affairs of the Oriental Rite, Adviser to the Roman Inquisition and Papal Nuncio to Madrid. In 1875 the Pope created him a Cardinal, reserving him in petto, and later in the same year published him in the Consistory and made him Secretary of State. He was an accomplished diplomat, and was at one time prominent among the possible candidates for the Papacy. Upon the accession to the Papacy of Leo XIII. he was made Prefect General of the Propaganda.

WILLIAM C. RUGER.

Death of the Chief Justice of the New York Court of Appeals.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Chief Justice Ruger, who has been suffering from the grip for the past week, died at his home here at noon yesterday.

William Crawford Ruger was born in Bridgewater, Oneida county, about 68 years ago. His father was a prominent lawyer and Democrat, who went to Syracuse in 1850 taking his son with him.

The two established a law firm there and practiced together until the father's death. William then formed a partnership with Edward Jenney, a member of the State Committee and an influential man in Onondaga county politics.

Subsequently W. J. Wallace, late Judge of the United States Circuit Court, was taken into the partnership and the three did a thriving business.

In the celebrated Canal suits Lawyer Ruger was counsel for Dennison & Belden. He was twice defeated in conventions for the nominations to the Chief Justiceship of the Court of Appeals. The third time he was successful.

He was very popular in Syracuse society. It is not thought that he died a rich man. He married a daughter of E. S. Prosser of Buffalo.

It is thought that Judge Robert Earl of Herkimer, ths longest in continuous service on the bench, having served since 1875, will be designated Chief Justice by Governor Flower, and a successor to him as Associate Justice will be selected from the western part of the State.

Mr. Depew Re-elected.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The annual meeting and election of the officers of the Union League Club occurred last night. It was particularly notable from the fact that a formidable element in the club was opposing Chauncey M. Depew's re-election as president on the ground that he had held office long enough. Cornelius N. Bliss was the nominee of the opposition. The interest taken in the contest was shown by the large number of members voting. There were cast 723 ballots, and of this number Mr. Depew received 425, thus re-electing him to office. A great deal of enthusiasm was displayed when the outcome was announced.

ALL BRITAIN MOURNS

Albert Victor's Death Creates Widespread Sorrow.

SYMPATHY FROM ALL CLASSES.

Princess May, His Betrothed, Inconsolable, and Reported Seriously Ill.

The Heir Presumptive's Condition Had Been Regarded as Improved—History of the Young Prince's Life—Speculation Regarding the Succession—Should Prince George Die the Duke of Fife May Become Prince Consort—Arrangements for the Funeral Not Completed.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Prince and Princess of Wales are too much prostrated by grief to suggest as yet any details for the funeral of their son, Prince Albert Victor, Duke of Clarence and Avondale, whose attack of pneumonia terminated fatally yesterday. It is likely, however, that the funeral will be held at Frogmore on Tuesday.

The Princess of Wales is said to bear her first great bereavement with greater fortitude than the Prince, whose quiet and haggard appearance, when he appeared at a window in the afternoon, and looked upon the familiar grounds in which he had seen his family grow up.

The Princess May is said to be almost on the verge of mental collapse. The worst sign is her restlessness. She wanders about in an aimless way through the house, as if she expected to meet her royal lover somewhere alive, and be greeted by him in the old way. Her grief at the deathbed was so overwhelming that it attracted the attention of the Prince and Princess of Wales from their own. She is reported seriously ill this morning.

When the last moments came the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Prince and Princess of Teck, and the Princess Victoria Mary, commonly known as the Princess May, the betrothed of the dying Prince, were grouped at the bedside. The Princess May had passed a sleepless night, but she bore herself with courage in face of her terrible affliction. Her eyes, red with weeping, and the heaving breast, told of her broken heart. The Princess of Wales was apparently overwhelmed by the sense of her privation.

THE LATE PRINCE ALBERT VICTOR.

When the first outburst of sorrow over the Prince's death has passed away, it would not be strange to find that the grief-stricken betrothed of the dead Prince will receive the largest amount of sympathy. People will not forget, however, that the Princess of Wales, the future Queen of England, is mourning her first-born; but the picture of that weeping girl, of the poor Princess May, only a few days ago the happy, proud, much-envied betrothed of the heir-apparent, whose hopes and future are thus crushed beneath the stride of death, is the saddest of all.

Prince Albert Victor Christian Edward, Duke of Clarence and Avondale, eldest son of the Prince of Wales and heir presumptive of the throne of England, was born Jan. 8, 1864. After an education at Trinity College, Cambridge, and at the Heidelberg University, he served two years as a naval cadet on the Britannia, and started in 1879 for a three-year voyage around the world, in company with his brother, Prince George.

He was created Duke of Clarence and Avondale and Earl of Athlone in 1890, and at once took his seat in the House of Lords. He was also made third major in the Tenth Hussar Regiment, of which his father is colonel. To his associates he has always been known as "Prince Eddie," and because of his good dressing the people called him "Collars and Cuffs."

By the death of the Duke of Clarence and Avondale Prince George of Wales becomes the heir of the Prince of Wales, and therefore heir-presumptive to the throne.

Prince George Frederick Ernest Albert of Wales was born June 3, 1865. He soon displayed a predilection for naval affairs, and after serving in minor capacities was appointed in March, 1890, to the command of the gunboat Thrush, and while on this vessel he was attached to the British North American Squadron. In August, 1891, he was promoted to the rank of commander in Her Majesty's fleet.

It may be stated that Prince George is far more popular among all classes of British society.

The gossip concerning the succession, which was freely indulged in during the illness of the Duke, has been greatly increased by his death. It is generally agreed that haste will now be made in bringing about the marriage of Prince George to remove the possibility of the Fife succession.

On July 29, 1889, Alexander William George Duff, who was then Earl of Fife, but who was subseqnently created Duke of Fife, married Princess Louise Victoria Alexandra Dagmar, eldest daughter of the Prince and Princess of Wales. Of this marriage there was born on May 17, 1891, a daughter, who was christened Alexandra Victoria Alberta Edwina Louisa Duff.

As the succession now stands, in the advent of the death of the Prince of Wales and Prince George, the throne of England would fall to the wife of the Duke of Fife, and after death to Lady Alexandra Duff, her daughter, who is not yet a year old.

This possibility is not viewed with any equanimity by the members of the nobility, who believe that all the heirs to the throne should be of the full blood royal.

It is hinted very broadly that a marriage between Prince George and Princess Victoria May of Teck will be arranged. The weekly paper, "Modern Society," however, asserts that a marriage has already been arranged between Prince George and a daughter of Prince and Princess Christian.

Princess Christian is the third daughter of the Queen, and was married to Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Augustenburg on July 5, 1866. There are four children of this marriage, two sons and two daughters. The eldest daughter, Princess Victoria Louise, was born May 3, 1870, and the younger, Princess Francesca Josepha, was born Aug. 14, 1872.

No performances were given in any of the leading theaters last night, all having closed their doors as a token of respect to the dead Prince.

All the newspapers of every shade of opinion express in their leaders deep regret and the most profound sympathy with the Prince and Princess of Wales and Princess May.

Sorrow in the Dominion.

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—Despatches received here indicate that profound sorrow has been created throughout the whole of Canada by the announcement that Prince Albert Victor had succumbed to his illness. Everywhere flags are flying at half mast from public buildings, while from many private residences and business places floats the same sign of general grief. J. R. Robertson, Masonic Grand Master for Canada, sent the following dispatch to the Prince of Wales: "Will your Royal Highness in your deep sorrow accept assurances of loyal and respectful sympathy from 20,000 Free Masons and British subjects in the Grand Lodge of Canada."

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

Enumeration Bill Passed—Senators Adjudged Guilty of Contempt.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Upon the question of substitution of a new enumeration bill Senator Coggeshall asked to be excused from voting, stating that he had not read the bill and therefore could not vote intelligently. The Lieutenant-Governor put the question to the Senate as to whether Mr. Coggeshall should be excused, and by a party vote permission was refused.

Senators Erwin, O'Connor and Saxton each followed Senator Coggeshall's example and were treated in like manner by the Senate. A substitute was adopted, and the question recurred on the final passage of the bill. The Senators again refused to vote.

After the roll had been finished and the bill announced as passed, Senator Cantor offered his resolution: "Resolved that the members of the Senate refusing to vote be adjudged guilty of contempt and that the whole matter be referred to the Judiciary."

Senator Coggleshall voted "No," explaining himself in favor of an enumeration bill but not being willing to vote for one he had not read. Senators Erwin, Saxton, and O'Connor positively refused to vote. Senator Erwin announced that he would rather go to jail than stultify himself.

The resolution was thereupon passed, every Democratic Senator voting in the affirmative, 17 in all, and 9 Republicans voting against. The members in question not voting were adjudged guilty of contempt.

At least a hundred other informations have been made and wholesale arrests are expected.

Earthquake Shocks in Tennessee.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 15.—Considerable alarm was created in this city at 2 o'clock yesterday morning by two severe shocks of earthquake, nearly equalling in intensity those which were felt here on the night Charleston was wrecked. The vibrations were from north to south, and was generally felt at points south of this section.

HILL A DEFAULTER

Jamesburg's Late Bank Cashier Short $30,000.

KEPT A FANCY POULTRY FARM.

The Bank Examiner Characterizes Him as a Scoundrel and Thief.

The Depositors Will Not Lose Anything—Hill Had Been Trusted Cashier for 20 Years and Systematically Appropriated the Funds—His Two Brothers Were Defaulters, and One of Them Committed Suicide.

JAMESBURG, N. J., Jan. 15.—The cloud of suspicion and distrust which has hovered over the acts of T. Wilton Hill in his late capacity as cashier of the Jamesburg National Bank has at last been broken, revealing him a defaulter to the amount of $25,000 or more. Hill had been the Jamesburg Bank's cashier for 20 years. His death occurred three weeks ago, and before he was buried rumors were circulated impugning his integrity.

A Government bank examiner was called in to examine the bank's books. Yesterday this examination was concluded, and the examiner's report showed that Hill was an embezzler to the extent of $25,000 to $30,000, that he appropriated all the assets of the bank he could lay his hands on, and even systematically robbed the depositors.

F. L. Buckelow, the president of the bank, and his family own three-quarters of the $75,000 stock, and the greater part of the balance is divided up between Directors W. H. Courter, J. C. McGee, George Van Arsdalen and Mr. Townsend. In any event the depositors will be safe, as the directors will be compelled to make good the loss.

It is reported that when the Government examiner was leaving town he told a depositor that Hill was both a scoundrel and a thief.

Hill's salary as cashier of the bank was only $1,500 a year, yet his expenses were reported to be at least $20 a day.

Hill's favorite hobby was keeping a fancy poultry farm on which he spent much time and money, but which, it is said, was never a paying investment. The stock on the farm was sold at auction on Wednesday.

The history of the Hill family has been a remarkable one. John T. Hill, whose death occurred about a year ago, was president of the Ninth National Bank of New York. Only after his death did it become known that he had embezzled $400,000 of that institution's money.

Charles Hill, another brother of T. Wilton, was for many years the trusted cashier of the First National Bank here. About four years ago he committed suicide, almost simultaneously with Mahlon Runyon, then president of the bank. These two had combined in wildcat schemes in Wall street, and took their lives when the fact of their $70,000 defalcation became known.

Hill leaves a wife and two daughters to bear the stigma of a dishonored name.

YALE-HARVARD DEBATE.

An Enthusiastic Gathering and a Spirited Argument—Honors Divided.

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—Sanders' Theater, Cambridge, was filled last night with a large and interested audience gathered to listen to the joint debate between representative students of Yale and Harvard. The proposition under discussion was "That a young man casting his ballot in 1892, should vote for the nominee of the Democratic party."

The debate was opened by R. R. Upton of Yale, in the affirmative who declared that the Democratic party was the party of fair trade and progressive ideas.

G. F. Costigan of Harvard was the first speaker in the negative and confined his remarks wholly to a review of the two parties positions on the silver question. With the record of the Democratic party upon this question in view, the new voter should vote against its nominee.

Other speakers followed, but no vote was taken at the close of the debate, and the speakers on either side presented such strong arguments as to leave a newly fledged voter in a tangle of uncertainty and doubt.

No News of Young De Lima.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The whereabouts of Edward De Lima, the young man who so mysteriously disappeared on Jan 5, are still unknown. The missing man lived with his mother, brother and sister at the Hotel Langham. The theory of the missing man's brother is that he went on board the steamship Trave to say goodby to some friends and was carried out to sea. The Trave has arrived at Southampton, but at the office of De Lima & Co. it is said that no cablegram from the missing man has been received.

Suicide Ran in the Family.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 14.—The body of Lewis J. Cooley, a prominent merchant of Westfield, who committed suicide Wednesday night during a temporary fit of insanity by drowning himself, was recovered yesterday. Cooley was a prominent Mason and Odd Fellow. A curious fact in connection with the manner of Mr. Cooley's death is that both his father and brother took their lives in the same way.

Daniel Hand's Will.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 15.—The will of the late Daniel Hand, of Guildford, who has altogether given about a million and a half of dollars for the education of the colored race in the South, was offered for probate yesterday. With its 14 codicils and filling 48 printed pages containing some 22,000 words, it is one of the most remarkable documents ever offered to a Connecticut probate court.

GREAT ACTIVITY.

The Washington Gun Foundry Going 12 Hours a Day.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The extraordinary activity in the Washington Gun Foundry has not abated and the force there is working twelve hours a day instead of eight, the legal limit. Preparations have been made to the end that if necessary the entire plant can be run for twenty-four hours without stopping, by means of three shifts of men, each working eight hours.

The officials at the Navy Department say that no orders have yet been given to that effect, but all is in readiness for the twenty-four hour system. It is expected that in a week the yard will be going both night and day.

Much depends, it is said, upon the developments of the Chilian controversy, and by the end of next week, the entire aspect of things may be so changed as to render such speed unnecessary, but the officers at the Department think that this will not be the case.

Hugg at the Watervliet Arsenal.

TROY, N. Y., Jan. 15.—The feeling in Washington that a war with Chili is a possibility, if not a probability, is reflected in the extraordinary activity at the Watervliet Arsenal, or Government Gun Foundry, as it is now called.

Orders have been received by the foundry officials to complete all orders for the big guns with the greatest possible dispatch, and the rumor about the works is that the orders were accompanied by the admission that a necessity for the use of the guns was expected almost any day in view of the insolent attitude of Chili. Every man who can be utilized is now at work.

It is significant that the final polish and fancy finishing touches to the guns are left undone. Serviceable and not elaborately finished ones are needed. This has not been done since the rebellion.

There are now being built thirteen eight-inch guns that are each twenty-two feet long. These thirteen guns will not undergo the polishing process at all. The paint will be applied over the rough surface of the steel.

No More "Ads" from Saloonkeepers.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 15.—The Yale faculty has issued a command to all the boards of editors of the college periodical that henceforth no more advertisements from saloonkeepers can appear in their respective publications. The revenue to the papers from this kind of advertisement was very large and it is doubted whether they can exist without this support.

OIL HELPED SAVE HER.

BUT SHE HAD ROUGH WORK ROLLING THREE WAYS AT ONCE.

A Very Interesting Story of How One of Joseph W. Yates's Ships Lived Through a Terrible Cyclone.

THE BARK LIBERIA, one of a number of ships owned by Joseph W. Yates of East Seventh street, went through a cyclonic experience, a little over two months ago, the like of which no ship has ever before escaped nor sailor lived to tell of. But because of its dangers the cyclone was really of great scientific interest to the departments in Washington who have these matters in charge, and Mr. Yates has sent them a complete chart of the revolution of the gale, giving the different points of latitude and longitude, all of which THE PRESS regrets it has not the room to present to the public in full. The story of it all, however, is as follows:

Three professors from Sims university, at Syracuse, sailed from New York Oct. 31, for Monrovia, on the Liberia. But for the able seamanship of Capt. Edward T. Page, the three might have met the fate of three other wise men who ventured out in a tub in the days when Mother Goose wrote her rhythmical log book. As it was, the three professors, O. F. Cook, Geo. D. Brown, and Guy N. Collins, versed respectively in the mysteries of botany, mineralogy, and entomology, had a pretty close call. There was no professor of meteorology along, but Capt. Page was a good substitute, and noted, with the characteristic coolness of a Yankee skipper, everything that was going on while the Liberia, which has weathered the storms of eighteen years in voyages between New York and the western shore of the Dark Continent, was tussling with as fierce a cyclone as ever whirled past the Bermudas from its tropical lair.

Capt. Page has just sent his report of the Liberia's experience in the giant whirlwind to the bark's owners, Yates & Porterfield, of 19 William street, New York. The Liberia entered the storm area about 325 miles north-northeast of the Bermudas on the night of Nov. 4, four days from Sandy Hook. The wind came whistling out of the east at 8 o'clock that night, permeated with a rain that drove nearly parallel with the swelling surface of the sea. The bark was hove to on the port tack under lower maintopsail and mizzenstaysail. Between 10 o'clock and midnight a professor of meteorology with sea legs might have enjoyed the aspect of the sky and sea about the bark. The professors of other things did n't. They were battened under hatches. Capt. Page writes that forked lightning scored the blackness above and around, and St. Elmo's fire appeared on each yard arm and truck. The two sails, which would have been torn to tatters if left standing, were gathered in and furled, and tarpaulin was spread in the mizzen rigging. While the brave little bark was lying to under tarpaulin, her lee rail was submerged and her main deck floated by the seas. The professors felt as if they would have liked to get out and walk.

The rest of the bark's battle may be told in Capt. Page's own words:

"I judged,"—he writes—"by the steadiness of the wind and the increase thereof, and the rapid falling of the barometer, that I was in the track of the focus of a hurricane. I wore ship under head of the foretopmast staysail and brought the wind two points on the starboard quarter, and scudded under bare poles. Shipped three heavy seas, completely submerging main deck and sweeping poop, after which put out two oil bags, each containing about two gallons of fish oil. One was put on the weather cathead and the other on the weather quarter. The wind was no professor of meteorology along, but Capt. Page was a good substitute, and noted, with the characteristic coolness of a Yankee skipper, everything that was going on while the Liberia, which has weathered the storms of eighteen years in voyages between New York and the western shore of the Dark Continent, was tussling with as fierce a cyclone as ever whirled past the Bermudas from its tropical lair.

Between 10 o'clock and midnight a professor of meteorology with sea legs might have enjoyed the aspect of the sky and sea about the bark. The professors of other things did n't. They were battened under hatches. Capt. Page writes that forked lightning scored the blackness above and around, and St. Elmo's fire appeared on each yard arm and truck. The two sails, which would have been torn to tatters if left standing, were gathered in and furled, and tarpaulin was spread in the mizzen rigging. While the brave little bark was lying to under tarpaulin, her lee rail was submerged and her main deck floated by the seas. The professors felt as if they would have liked to get out and walk.

The rest of the bark's battle may be told in Capt. Page's own words:

"I judged,"—he writes—"by the steadiness of the wind and the increase thereof, and the rapid falling of the barometer, that I was in the track of the focus of a hurricane. I wore ship under head of the foretopmast staysail and brought the wind two points on the starboard quarter, and scudded under bare poles. Shipped three heavy seas, completely submerging main deck and sweeping poop, after which put out two oil bags, each containing about two gallons of fish oil. One was put on the weather cathead and the other on the weather quarter. The 'slick' [a fisherman's term of oily smoothness] from the bags immediately broke the heavy combers, and no more seas were shipped, although they were running mountain high and combing.

At 1:30 a. m. Nov. 5 it suddenly fell a dead calm, leaving a tremendously heavy broken sea running from east and northeast. It seemed as if the vessel would capsize or roll her spars overboard. At 2 o'clock the heavens took on a terribly wild appearance. High scud flew from the northeast with railroad speed, and the lightning was vivid. A spiteful rain set in and the wind came in heavy squalls. Scudded with wind on the starboard quarter. Great seas running from astern would have engulfed us but for the slick breaking them. At dawn heavy nimbus clouds, with ragged tops snow white, filled the horizon. Ran into clear weather at 10:40 a. m. Still blowing a heavy gale. To the east a dense black bank, looking like a solid stone wall about 40° high, with wild clouds in spiral motion on the upper part. At 6 p. m. the air was nearly calm, with bright stars and moonlight, but a frightful confused sea was running from east, northeast and north, and the vessel labored very heavily, trying to roll three ways at once."

By manœuvring as he did, scudding with the wind on the starboard quarter, Capt. Page gradually worked away from the storm. Otherwise the professors might not have arrived at Monrovia. Capt. Page finishes his report thus:

"In all we used about five gallons of oil, without which we would have been unable to scud, and in all likelihood would have lost boats, skylights, and perhaps would have sustained more serious damage."

The three professors have been commissioned by the New York Colonization society to make a thorough exploration of the resources of the West African republic.

Joseph W. Yates said that in addition to the professors the Liberia took out about the largest number of emigrants ever sent to Monrovia by the American Colonization society in one vessel. For many years the births on the voyages to Monrovia had always exceeded the deaths, and there had been no deaths by accidents at sea. Mr. Yates thinks Capt. Page's account of how he eluded the grip of the cyclone will be of great benefit to navigators and a valuable contribution to the Hydrodraphic Office.

WRECKED BY THE ROYAL BLUE.

Miraculous Escape from Fatality in a Jersey Central Collision.

The Royal Blue Line express from Washington, due here at 9:55, last night crashed into a Philadelphia and Reading freight train, on the Jersey Central tracks, near the round house at Dunellen.

At that point the tracks are a network of switches. One of these had been opened to permit a local passenger train to shift tracks, and it is said that the switchman neglected to close the switch again.

At any rate, the freight train left the track at this point, and the rear end of it was swung around upon the main track, directly in the way of the Blue Line.

The engineer of the express saw the obstructing train barely in time to reverse his engine. He stuck manfully to his post, and the ponderous locomotive ploughed its way through several cars, strewing the tracks with wreckage.

It is considered a miracle that no one was injured. The vestibule arrangement of the passenger cars prevented telescoping, and the Blue Line locomotive, though damaged, was not disabled, and after two hours delay proceeded on with its train to Communipaw.

An investigation is being made to fix the blame of the accident.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman returned to-day from their wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Israel C. Pierson, and Miss Pierson, will give a reception at their home, 115 Broadway, Tuesday afternoon, the 26th inst., from 4 until 7.

The Rev. H. E. Gilchrist, rector of the Church of the Holy Spirit, Schenevus, N. Y., with his wife, is visiting at the home of his uncle, Seymour G. Smith, 141 Central avenue.

Miss Christine Yawger, daughter of Isaac C. Yawger, and formerly of Duer street, North Plainfield, died yesterday morning at the residence of her grandfather, Sherwood Atno, Dean street, Brooklyn, after a lingering illness of consumption. The funeral will take place at All Saints' church, Seventh street, near Seventh avenue, Brooklyn, to-morrow morning at 9:30. The interment will be at Morristown.

A Chinaman Becomes a Jersey Citizen.

The first Chinaman ever naturalized in Union county took out his papers at Elizabeth yesterday. He is Jo Kee, a Chinese laundryman, at 8 South Broad street, Elizabeth, and has been eleven years in this country and most of them in that city. He has been converted to Christianity and has joined the First Presbyterian church. He has been left a large sum of money in China, and intends to sail for there in a couple of weeks. Jo Kee wants the naturalization papers, he says, to protect him in China and also to insure his readmission to the United States. Judge McCormick granted the request, and the Celestial went away hugging the precious document to his bosom.

Death From Excessive Cigarette Smoking.

John Witteman, the eighteen-year-old lad who died yesterday, was a sufferer from consumption, which was said to be caused by excessive cigarette smoking. Witteman was a young man of excellent prospects, and was very popular. Some time ago, when employed by the telephone company, he met with an accident which resulted in the loss of a hand. After his recovery, his idle days hung so heavily on him that he smoked incessantly to pass away the time. Germs of disease were generated by the poison of the cigarettes, and the victim was cut off from life in the prime of his youth.

Grip Mortality Small.

In conversation with Oliver B. Leonard, registrar of vital statistics for this city, THE PRESS learned that there has not been unusual mortality among Plainfield citizens from the ravages of the grip this winter.

There were 18 deaths in Plainfield during the month of December, 1891, 8 cases being from pneumonia following the grip.

In January of 1890 and 1891 there were 22 deaths each, pneumonia claiming 9 in the former year and 7 in the latter. These are the official figures of the board of health.

BAD WRECK AT CLAREMONT.

The Dunellen Collision Followed by Derailment of a Freight Train.

Between 4 and 5 o'clock this morning an eastward bound freight train jumped the track at Claremont, two miles from Jersey City, on the New Jersey Central Railroad. Several of the cars and the engine were almost demolished.

One of the forward axles of the engine's driving wheels broke, and the engine was pitched from the track into the snow.

Up to 10 a. m. the wreck had not been cleared, although two wrecking crews were working hard to clear the tracks.

All incoming trains were delayed from thirty to forty minutes.

Some persons say that the accident was caused by breaking of the axles, but General Supt. Olhausen said he thought it was due to a switch becoming blocked with snow.

The accident occurred just after the tracks had been cleared of the wreckage from the collision which occurred near Dunellen about 10 o'clock last night.

Illegal Liquor Selling.

The case of Matthew Kilpatrick, charged with selling liquor without a license, was adjourned by judge Codington this morning to Jan. 23. The trial of Michael Watson for a similar offence was set to begin at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

—John VanNatta of New Brunswick, assisted by Carl Peterson from Florence mission, and by the singing evangelist, Mr. Mullenberg, will hold gospel services at Reform hall next Sunday at 4 and 7:30 p. m.

The Switchman Was Responsible.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 15.—The investigation into the cause of the accident on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad near here revealed the fact that Switchman Hugh Houghton was responsible for the accident. The company at once discharged Houghton, who is 70 years old and has worked for the railroad nearly 50 years.

A New Inducement.

"Here's the latest thing out," said the groceryman; "a parachute goes with each kerosene can."—Judge.

They go together the "cutting" of prices and the substitution of inferior goods. Sometimes it's a fraudulent imitation of the genuine article—sometimes it's some cheap compound represented as "just as good;"—there's profit for a sharp dealer, even at "cut prices."

To prevent this kind of fraud and imposition, the genuine guaranteed medicines of Dr. R. V. Pierce are now sold only through druggists regularly authorized as agents, and always at these long-established prices:

Golden Medical Discovery (for the Liver, Blood, and Lungs), . . . $1.00.
Favorite Prescription (for women's weaknesses and ailments), . . . $1.00.
Pleasant Pellets (for the liver), . . 25 cents.

They're the cheapest medicines you can buy at any price, for you pay only for the good you get. They're guaranteed, in every case, to benefit or cure, or the money is returned.

Beware of the dilutions, imitations, and substitutes offered by unauthorized dealers at less than above prices.

QUEER TESTIMONY IN A LAWSUIT.

One Witness Swears that He Knew a Horse to Run 25 Miles With a Broken Leg.

The trial of the case of Edward Schenck against Firman Gise came off Wednesday at Dunellen. The facts of the case, which are as follows, were told in THE PRESS at the time of the occurrence. Mr. Schenck, who lives near New Market and has a milk route in Plainfield, started out on his morning trip at a very early hour, long before it was daylight. On reaching Dunellen, he proceeded up the main street for Plainfield, when, about opposite the round house, he ran into a large cart wagon loaded with crushed stone, which had been left there for the night, by Mr. Gise, who was doing some repairs on the sidewalks.

The wagon had been left on one side of the street, and Mr. Schenck must have necessarily been a good distance from the centre of the street to strike it.

Mr. Schenck's horse ran away, breaking the wagon, and injuring itself to such an extent that it had to be shot.

The trial, which was held at Maier's hotel, was witnessed by no less than 50 Dunellenites. Each side had his counsel on hand, and the defendant and plaintiff each selected two arbitrators to act as a jury, after which Harry C. Gaskell was agreed upon by both sides as a fifth arbitrator. The other four were Chas. Day and W. D. Davis of New Market, for Schenck, and Isaac Stites and Alva Gray, for Gise. Judge Codington was counsel for the defendant, and W. A. Coddington for Schenck.

The evidence taken in many instances was very contradictory, and was not at all satisfactory, and although the counselors did their work manfully the tenor of public opinion was unchanged.

One witness for the plaintiff swore that the wagon was so near the centre of the road as not to allow another wagon to pass between, when he never saw the wagon there, and only gathered his information from hearsay. Another knew of a horse that had run 25 miles with a broken leg!

In almost every case the witnesses gave very conflicting evidence, which was not at all satisfactory to the arbitrators.

The arbitrators have three weeks to bring in a verdict. Public opinion in the borough is at the present largely in favor of the defendant, and Dunellen people have no doubt that he will have to pay very little if any damages.

A Stricture That We Fairly Stagger and Sag Under.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In your issue of the 13th inst. reference is made to the late unfortunate accident at the Pond Tool works whereby a worthy man was terribly hurt and maimed for life, "while his wife and family are left in destitute circumstances"; and then follows a suggestion that the "good women of the several foreign mission bands of the city might leave their work on those flannel shirts for the heathen", etc.

Permit me to remind you that the unfortunate sufferer whom you name has been made as comfortable as possible in Muhlenberg Hospital, and that the Ladies' Relief association and the Needle-Work guild have done all that their means permit in aid of the family.

Now it is well-known to the public—if not to THE PRESS—that all the above institutions owe their usefulness wholly or in great part to the "good women" of Plainfield; very largely to the same "good women" who are busy in foreign mission work. But it should be added that personal attention from good women has not been lacking in connection with the case in hand.

Opinions may differ as to foreign missions; with Dickens you may scoff at Booriboola Gha and at flannel-for-the-heathen benevolence; but you may observe, as a matter of fact, that those who give freely to foreign missions are not the least active, and liberal in private and domestic charities. And I submit that the paragraph which is here quoted conveys an imputation unworthy THE PRESS, from which every good work in Plainfield expects a kind word.

The able editor, sitting at his desk and criticising the rest of mankind, may come to think himself infallible; but, if he finds himself losing the confidence of thoughtful people to some extent, may it not be because of an occasional lack of exactness? H. P. REYNOLDS.

An ex-Councilman Talks About Insurance.

At the Y. M. C. A. rooms last evening E. B. Clark told an interested audience many things about insurance.

The speaker cited as the first recorded instance of the principles of insurance put in practice, the custom of the merchants of Rhodes, in the year 900 B. C., of averaging the loss on any cargo, so that all the owners would share the loss equally. The history of fire and marine insurance to the present day was then traced, showing the general principles on which the business of underwriting is conducted. The different ramifications into which it has extended, and the courses for the present complicated policies and the way in which they have been built up, were shown.

The audience freely questioned the speaker, thus bringing forth additional information and discussion of much interest.

I have used Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills for Dyspepsia, etc., and have been cured by them. I cheerfully recommend them to all who suffer from the same.—STEPHEN BURHANS, sexton Wayne street Reformed church, Jersey City.

Interesting Account of the Discovery of Iron Ore in 1790.

Georges township, Fayette county, Pa., has the honor of being the first to furnish ore for the manufacture of iron west of the Alleghanies. The credit of that discovery is due to John Hayden, one of its citizens. Hayden was a Jerseyman, and in those early days often called on Job Custead, a fellow Jerseyman, to talk over the comfortable homes they had left to come to those wilds. A theme uppermost in Hayden's mind, and one of which he never tired of talking, was the old folks' saying of western Pennsylvania—"A very fine country, but it can never prosper, because there is neither salt nor iron there."

He would say over and over again, "Iron ore is here, I know, and I am always looking for it; and, mark my words, will find it yet." It was about the year 1789 that Hayden began to dig what he supposed to be limestone from the creek bed of a branch to Georges creek, in Georges township. In the autumn of 1790 he built a lime-kiln of his supposed limestone, and, as he thought, burned it. Having occasion to need lime at the time, he tried to slack some of the stones from the kiln by plunging them into water. Contrary to all expectation, the water did not slack them. He tried and tried again, but found after each trial that the bluish stones were as heavy and hard as ever. The subject always near him returned to his mind.

From his pocket—says the Pittsburgh Dispatch—he quickly took the magnet he always carried, and trembling in every limb stooped and touched it to some broken particles of the stone which lay at his feet. As if endowed with life, they clung tightly to the magnet in his shaking hand. But his faith almost failed him, for this was so different from any kind of ore he had ever yet seen, and fearing that he might be making a great mistake, he determined to have it quietly tested at some blacksmith-shop. From shop to shop he rode carrying a few precious stones with him, but the ill-natured smiths would not permit any experimenting over their fires.

"That is folishness. Everybody knows there is no ore here", was what they said, but Hayden was not discouraged. In his travels he at last reached a shop where a Jersey friend presided over the trial. Long did the two men heat and hammer, but at last the reward came in the shape of a strong bar of iron—as thick as a harrow-tooth. Hayden mounted his horse, taking with him the precious piece of iron and a lump of the blue stone, and rode to New Jersey to get help to build a forge. No one would listen, and he returned to Philadelphia disheartened. There Hayden made known his discovery, and, with the assistance of Comptroller John Nicholson, built the furnace known as Fairchance.

To Raise Celery on the Great Meadows.

A large company of Michigan capitalists, extensively interested in celery-growing in that State, have recently come on from Washington, D. C., at the instance, it is said, of the Commissioner of Agriculture, to inspect the vast extent of low waste lands in northern New Jersey locally known as the "Great Meadows". The experts in the party pronounce the virgin soil of those lowlands the best for their purposes they have ever seen; and arrangements are already concluded for the transformation of several hundred acres of the meadows into celery gardens. If the experiment prove successful, the Michigan people will transfer their entire business to this part of New Jersey, as they have already secured an option on 2,500 acres at a nominal figure. The north New Jersey farmers and dairymen have been able to utilize to advantage but a small part of the meadows, on account of the periodical inundations from the Pequest river. The comparatively small districts redeemed by costly drainage are used at present for onion-raising.

Dunellen Doings.

The Republicans are soon to erect a new flag-pole in place of the one that blew down. This time they are to have a good one.

A number of Dunellen's elite will attend the reception given by Company H at Somerville this evening.

T. F. VanHorn has returned to his business after an illness of three weeks. Mr. VanHorn was very ill. He was first taken with the grip, which eventually turned into pneumonia.

The "New Jersey" Telegram has suspended publication. Dunellenites who have feared having their names and private affairs published in its columns may now rest in peace.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely; it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety, and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B.W. Sperry, Hartford, Ct.

On Train Robber Perry's Trail.

SUSPENSION BRIDGE, N. Y., Jan. 15.—A. A. Eusten, a Pinkerton detective from New York, passed through here on the trail of Oliver Perry, the man who robbed the express car on the New York Central last fall. The detective had a letter written by Perry and mailed at Guelph, Ont. Eusten found that the description of the man who called for Perry's mail at Guelph tallied with the description by Agent Moore of the man who committed the robbery. Eusten is confident he will capture him in a short time. He says Perry has a woman friend, who keeps him posted on the movements of the officials.

CASTLE ROMINTEN.

The Most Curious of Emperor William's Residences.

It Is Built of Unhewn Trunks of Norwegian Pine—A Hunting Lodge Located Among Odoriferous Pines of Great Height.

The most curious of imperial residences is Emperor William II.'s Castle Rominten, near Theerbude in East Prussia. It was planned by a Norwegian architect under the emperor's supervision, and was put together by a Norwegian builder. His ideas for its construction the emperor got on his first journey to the North Cape. It is in a great wild forest that covers some seventy-five square miles of rough and rocky territory, abounding in the finest deer that run on the continent. Here the emperor delights to hunt, as his ancestors hunted long ago in the days when Hohenzollern first became a royal name. For the dandified and namby-pamby Parforce hunts at Potsdam, on which natty young lieutenants and high society belles ride safely over hill and dale in pursuit of half-tamed boars, William II. has no liking. He is a fine horseman, and, despite his crippled arm, almost an unerring marksman, and so he cares only for the chase that requires both horsemanship and marksmanship. The proverbial endurance of the bucks of the Romintener heath gives him an opportunity to exercise all his skill, and that he has not exercised it in vain is shown by the almost unrivaled collection of antlers at Castle Rominten.

The castle near Theerbude rests on a made platform of rocks 85 feet long, 70 feet wide and 12 feet high. It is of unhewn trunks of Norwegian pine fitted, not nailed, at the corners. For the better preservation of the wood, all the walls are heavily coated with varnish. Otherwise there is not even an appearance of ornamentation. The cracks were stopped with cotton covered with bark. No tapestry or screen hides the rough interior of the walls, except in the dining-room and the emperor's study, which have wainscoting five feet high. Every room has a huge chimney of old Norwegian pattern of old Norwegian brick.

The kitchen of the castle is set down in the rock foundation. Above it and in the middle of the castle building is the dining hall, adorned with the finest antlers that have rewarded the emperor's two seasons of hunting on Rominten heath. One huge table stretches down the middle of the hall. The chairs are large, rough looking and entirely of wood. The floor is polished and bare of rugs or carpet. Behind the dining-room is a small apartment to which the food is raised in dumbwaiters from the kitchen to be prepared finally for serving. The castle has but one story in the part taken up by the dining-room.

The wing on each side of this low building is two stories high and is surrounded by verandas on both floors. The east wing has a little tower at the corner and a high staff, from which floats a flag bearing the great black eagle. All this indicates that this part of the castle is for the special use of the emperor. On the ground floor of the east wing and opening into the dining room is a large reception room. Next to this is the emperor's audience chamber. Beyond this are the rooms of the emperor's immediate attendants. Up a richly-carved stairway and on the second floor is the emperor's sleeping room, with the famous brass bedstead, a desk, a table and a few military maps. From the balcony before this room the emperor has a magnificent view over the Rominten valley, across the black expanse of forest to the mountains on the boundary of the great threatening colossus. Next to the sleeping room is a study where the emperor writes the dispatches which keep the wires to Berlin hot during his hunting days. Beyond the study are apartments for his most honored guests, and a bathroom. The west wing contains bedrooms for less favored guests.

With its rocky foundation, its odoriferous Norwegian pines, its huge open fireplaces and its great dry forest, unpolluted by the breath of factory civilization, Castle Rominten is as well calculated as any place could be to soothe and steady the effervescing and overworked young man who built it.

A Practical Scientist.

A distinguished foreign physician, paying a visit to the Berlin medical institute, found Prof. Brieger busily at work in the laboratory, surrounded by a most formidable array of chemical and bacteriological utensils. The professor's sole attention and care, however, appeared concentrated on one particular vessel, which was enveloped by smoke and steam. "Guess what I am boiling here," said the professor to the visitor. The latter began to enumerate the entire scale of micro-organisms: "Micrococci?" "No." "Gonococci?" "No." "Spirochetæ?" "No." "What then?" "Hot sausages," replied Brieger.

New Material for Growlers.

Aluminum is found to be an excellent material to use in the manufacture of beer mugs. It will prevent the beer from becoming flat for a long time.

ARCHBISHOP KENRICK.

Career of a Prelate Who Has Been Fifty Years a Bishop.

Archbishop Kenrick, of St. Louis, was born in Dublin, August 17, 1806. He entered Maynooth college for his theological studies and was ordained to the priesthood on March 6, 1832. Two years before this his elder brother, also a priest, Father Francis Patrick Kenrick, had been made bishop of Philadelphia, Pa. After the young priest had served in a Dublin curacy for three years he followed his brother to Philadelphia in 1833. Bishop Francis Patrick Kenrick, it will be remembered, held the see of Philadelphia until 1851, when he was made archbishop of Baltimore, where he died in 1863. Father Kenrick on reaching Philadelphia was given a professor's chair in the diocesan seminary at Overbrook. Besides this duty he did parochial work and edited the Catholic Herald, a paper no longer in existence.

ARCHBISHOP KENRICK.

In 1835 he became pastor of the cathedral parish and president of the seminary, holding the chair of dogmatic theology. In 1837 he was made vicar general, and was accredited by Bishop Brule as theologian to the third provincial council of Baltimore. In 1841 Bishop Rosati, of St. Louis, asked for a coadjutor, and Father Kenrick was chosen by Rome for the office. He was consecrated bishop of Drasa in Philadelphia by Bishop Rosati November 30, 1841, the event recently commemorated. Two years later Bishop Rosati died and he succeeded to the see of St. Louis. In 1847 St. Louis was made a metropolitan see and Bishop Kenrick was raised to the archiepiscopacy.

The St. Louis diocese is one of the largest west of New York. Bishop Kenrick has under him nine suffragan bishops, 300 priests, 250 churches and a Roman Catholic population of about 300,000. For the first twenty-five years of his episcopate he was without a coadjutor. In 1872 Rt. Rev. P. J. Ryan, now archbishop of Philadelphia, was appointed bishop of Tricomia and assigned to St. Louis. He remained until 1884 and since that time Archbishop Kenrick has maintained his high office alone. A coadjutor was appointed at the recent jubilee.

THE NEW LORD MAYOR.

He Is a Good Man and Popular with All Classes.

We give here a portrait of Mr. Alderman David Evans, J. P., the new lord mayor of London. Mr. Evans is, of course, a Welshman, and lives at Ewell grove, Ewell. We quote from the London World: Ewell grove is one of those substantial, comfortable, roomy mansions which our forefathers built when George III. was king. There is absolutely nothing of the typical lord mayor in the man who welcomes you so cordially to the grove. His "light weight" has not yet been impaired by a whole decade of civic conviviality; there is a healthful glow on his face which you associate more easily with Ewell than Watling street, and his thick light mustache would do credit to a cavalry officer. David Evans revels in the joys of outdoor exercise, and if you want to talk business or "corporation" you must look in some day at his office in Watling street about lunch time, when he will be able to tell you more than any man in England about the latest novelties of St. Etienne and Coventry, the mysteries connected with the trade in fringe and trimmings, the particular wants of his ward, or the aspirations of "gallant little Wales." As it is, he is full of the merits of "Blackbird"—"my black" as he familiarly calls him—and takes you away to the stables to make the acquaintance of his favorite Irish hunter and his companion "Ballyhooly." The lord mayor elect makes no effort to disguise the pride he feels in his horseflesh, and from the carefully kept stables you go on to the lawn tennis courts, where the future lady mayoress is busily engaged in a game with her two eldest girls. Mr. Evans puts into politics all the thoroughness and earnestness which have in the past contributed so materially to his success in life; and, as you walk along over the soft turf, he takes an encouraging view of the conservative prospects in the division now held by Mr. Cubitt. Mr. Evans, though a Welshman born and bred, is a tory to the backbone.

LORD MAYOR EVANS.

1,365 Miles Per Hour.

A locomotive working under a pressure of 140 to 165 pounds to the square inch of boiler surface may move a train at a velocity of 60 miles per hour; and, under favorable circumstances, even a greater distance. While we are apt to think this a wonderful rate of speed, it is slow, very slow, when compared with the velocity of a projectile fired from a modern "great gun." Such missiles push forward through the air at the rate of 1,365 miles per hour, the impelling force exerting a pressure of 32,000 to 45,000 pounds to each square inch.

A Doubtful Compliment.

"Don't you know that it is a felony to steal a pocketbook out of a gentleman's pocket?" asked Justice Duffy of a hard case.

"I know it, judge, but the fact is that pocket was so full that it made the man's coat bulge out so I couldn't help it. I believe your honor has got pluck enough to have made a break for it yourself if you had been in my place."—Texas Siftings.

Found His Level.

Old Friend—Well, old boy, how have you been getting along? Did you succeed as a novelist?

Mr. Soarhigh—No; the publishers said my imagination was too lively—plots lacked probability, you know—so I had to give it up; but I'm doing first-rate.

"What at?"

"Writing railway advertisements."—N. Y. Weekly.

She Laid Him Out.

Williamson—I hear Jagman was so drunk last night that several of you fellows had to take him home on a shutter. Did his wife think he was dead?

Henderson—She must have. She was certainly laying him out when we left. —Brooklyn Life.

At the Amateur Play.

Reginald—At last, my love, we are together. Rest you in these arms forever. (Aside, to man in the wings) Step lively there with the curtain. Do you suppose we want to stay this way all night?

Hortense (as the curtain drops)—Forever!—Life.

She Took One Wing.

Tommy—Mother, what is an angel?

Mother—An angel is a being that flies.

Tommy—But, mamma, papa calls my governess an angel.

Mother—Then, my dear, she is going to fly immediately.—Brooklyn Life.

A Spirit-ed Discussion.

"What was the subject of your debate this evening?"

"Whisky."

"Was it well discussed?"

"Yes; most of the members were full of the subject."—Kate Field's Washington.

TABLE TALK.

Knife—Dull times for me nowadays.

Fork—Here, too, pard. I've been stuck in everything I've taken hold of lately.

Easily Explained.

Sayso—Those who love books almost invariably love dogs. That is a rule with, I think, few exceptions.

Nowitt—I am one of the exceptions.

Sayso—You love books and hate dogs?

Nowitt—Exactly.

Sayso—That is strange.

Nowitt—Not in the least. I am a book agent.—Jury.

The Race to the Swift.

"Did you run for office the other day?" asked Spriggins of a defeated candidate.

"No," said the candidate, sadly; "I walked. The other fellow ran."—Somerville Journal.

ROYAL ORDERS FOR MOURNING.

The Nobility, Gentry and Tradesmen Nearly All Complying.

Prince George, However, Will Not Postpone His Valetudinarian Trip Abroad, and the Queen will Visits the Continent as Intended—Question as to What is to be Done With the Funds and Presents Received for the Marriage of the Dead Duke and Princess May.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The funeral of the Duke of Clarence and Avondale is now the absorbing topic of conversation.

There is no family tomb at Sandringham, but near the east end of the parish church is the grave of the baby Prince Alexander John Charles Albert, the third son of the Prince and Princess of Wales, who was born April 6, 1871, and died the next day.

His brief span of life is commemorated by a memorial window and a white marble cross, surrounded by a gilt railing. The baby brother of the Prince is still spoken of as Prince John in the district about Sandringham.

It is the Queen's wish that her dead grandson should be interred in St. George's Chapel at Windsor, the ceremony to take place toward the end of next week and to be of a military character.

In this case the body would be placed in the catacombs under the chapel, by the side of the remains of the Duke of Albany.

Not the least sad consideration regarding the Prince's death is the fact that the metropolis, which had been discussing how best it could honor his triumphal passage from one railway terminus to another on the day of his wedding will now have to consider how best it can honor his remains when they are transferred from St. Pancras to Paddington station.

The body will be conveyed from Sandringham House to London over the Great Eastern Railway and at once taken to Windsor over the Great Western road. This will necessitate a funeral procession through the streets from St. Pancras to Paddington, a little over two miles.

Every engagement, public and private, of members of the royal family, made previous to the melancholy event, has been cancelled for the next six months.

Her Majesty, however, will not postpone her visit to the Continent, and Prince George of Wales will go abroad to recruit his health, as originally intended.

The visit of Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, to Ulster has been indefinitely postponed, and the proposed United Service Exhibition has been abandoned, as also the festival of the city police.

All Cabinet and political engagements, together with a large number of dinners, concerts and balls, have also been deferred.

The "Royal Gazette" issues a special mourning supplement, giving full directions as to official mourning for the death of the Duke of Clarence. The Court has gone into full mourning, which will continue until the fifth of February. Then half-mourning attire will succeed, to be worn until February 26. By command of the Queen the Earl Marshal gives notice that persons are expected to go into mourning for three weeks, and officers of the army and navy to wear crepe on the left arm for six weeks. The nobility and gentry are also very generally complying with the notice, as well as nearly all tradesmen.

King Leopold, of Belgium, will not, it is stated, attend the funeral. His physicians have advised him to this course, on account of the condition of his health, which is far from strong; but the King would probably have attended, nevertheless, had not his ministers sustained the advice of his physicians, and urged upon him not to incur any risk at this time.

It is already apparent that the obsequies will be the most imposing known in England for many years.

Every nation will be officially represented, and such another gathering of eminent men has not been known for a generation.

The death of the Duke of Clarence and Avondale leaves an awkward question open concerning the disposal of the funds subscribed for wedding gifts to him and Princess May of Teck. The Lord Mayor has cancelled the call for a meeting of the Welch subscription, and most of the other funds already paid in in money will be returned to the subscribers; but in some cases the gifts have already been purchased, or the orders for them have been partly executed and cannot be cancelled.

The Elkintons, goldsmiths, have partly finished a superb dinner service, which was to have been the present from the corporation of London, besides many valuable gifts from other quarters; and no one knows what can be done with them.

Gladstone Deeply Moved.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—In an interview with Mr. Gladstone at Nismes, he said that the death in one day of the Duke of Clarence and Cardinal Manning had been a dreadful shock to him, and he deeply felt the sorrow which the loss of the Duke had caused the royal family and to all the subjects of the Queen. Mr. Gladstone said he had been a scholar with the Cardinal at Oxford, and the Cardinal was but a year and a half older than himself.

SPAIN AND THE FAIR.

Little Co-operation Need be Expected From that Country.

MADRID, Jan. 16.—The energy and activity of Mr. Little, agent for the Chicago Fair to the government and people of Spain, have so far been powerless to move the Spanish Government to action in behalf of proper representation at an event of such historical interest to the Spaniards. The nation seems paralyzed with financial troubles, added to natural inertia.

With army officers and soldiers, teachers and other public employes unpaid, the government is bewildered by any proposition for outside expenditure. Every penny that comes into the treasury is clamored for from a dozen sources. The popular feeling is about the same, and it is feared that much co-operation need not be looked for from traders and manufacturers.

The country seems affected by a dry rot, and pride seems to be all that has survived decay. As an excuse for inaction it is alleged that there is some pique in official circles over the non-arrival of the American Commission which was promised in November. This, however, is but a pretext. The truth is that officials, most of them with salaries long overdue, scowl at the idea of a single peseta going out of the treasury for any purpose abroad.

SUFFERING AT SEA.

Harrowing Tale of Captain Davis, of the Bark Arlington.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Captain Davis of the Nova Scotian bark Arlington, which arrived at Quarantine from Cork early in the evening, relates a story of suffering at sea. On Christmas day he experienced a severe northwest gale and on the night of the 29th he fell in with a wreck which showed evidences of persons on board. He stayed alongside the wreck all night and in the morning took off the Captain and ten of the crew.

They proved to be Captain P. T. Doble and crew of the British bark Countess of Dufferin, which sailed from St. Johns, N. B., on December 8. The wrecked vessel had been in the same gale which Captain Davis had encountered on December 26. She had filled up and become a total wreck.

They had suffered severely from the cold and were without food or water, having only the clothing they stood in, until taken off by the Arlington's people.

Captain Doble and his crew were badly frostbitten. On January 7 the shipwrecked men were transferred to the British steamship Yesso, bound from Sunderland for Baltimore.

President Hamilton Absented Himself.

BOSTON, Jan. 16.—The case pending against Joseph W. Hamilton, one of the officers of the defunct endowment order which was to have a hearing in the Municipal Court, did not materialize. Mr. Hamilton did not answer when his name was called and was declared defaulted. Hamilton was the supreme past president of the Royal Ark and was arrested recently charged with violating the laws relating to fraternal benefit corporations by unlawfully using and devoting monies of the corporation to the amount of over $42,000.

Resolution to Investigate Census Office.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Representative Alderson, of West Virginia, has introduced in the House a joint resolution providing for the investigation of the Census Office, its practices, methods and the correctness of the data furnished by it. The resolution recites that it has been charged through the public press that the Census Bureau has been wrongfully conducted by Superintendent Porter. It provides that a special committee of seven be appointed to investigate the charges.

Another will be paid at a later date.

Mercier's Men Must Move.

MONTREAL, Jan. 16.—The new Quebec Government has determined to dismiss a majority of the government employes appointed under Mercier's rule. Already the Crown prosecutors appointed by Mercier have been dismissed and L. P. Archambault and Mr. Atwater, partisans of the new government appointed in their places. The Chief of Provincial Police, Phaneuf, has been replaced by Louis Chevalier. Other changes will follow.

JACK THE SLASHER

Latest Victim of the New York Cut-throat.

CARSON MAKES THE SIXTH.

A Fear Created Akin to That Caused by the Whitechapel Atrocities.

The New York "Jack" Has a Fondness for Slashing Drunken Men's Throats — His Previous Crimes — The Police Without a Clue — History of the Man Carson — He Had Been a Lawyer in Baltimore — Two of His Sisters the Wives of Judges.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—The finding of the dead body of John Carson, a former Baltimore lawyer, on Chrystie street, with a fearful slash across the throat, has created an excitement not unlike that created in London by the doings of the notorious "Jack the Ripper." Carson is supposed to be the sixth victim of the mysterious fiend dubbed "Jack the Slasher" on the lower East Side. Residents of the Fourth and Seventh Wards are terribly excited over the bloody deeds of this mysterious desperado, who appears to roam about at night and seek out drunken victims for his ready razor.

Although Carson is the first death resulting from the murderous weapon of the "Slasher," there have been five other men, more or less, seriously cut about the neck in that locality within the past two weeks. No less than fifteen detectives are hunting for the murderer, who is still at large.

Carson was a man of good family. One of his sisters is Mrs. Annie Sanderson of Paterson, N. J., wife of Judge Sanderson, and another is Mrs. Mattie Benzinger, wife of a Judge living in Baltimore. Carson met with business reverses a year ago, and has since been employed as a canvasser and been traveling through New England.

He made his headquarters in this city and had been drinking heavily for the past week. About 1 o'clock in the morning Watchman Schmidt found him on the stairs of the Germania Hotel asleep. Clerk Weldling was called, and although he recognized Carson, decided to turn him away. Carson had paid $1.50 on Tuesday for a week's room rent in advance. The clerk paid back seventy five cents of this amount and told the guest to go. Carson, who had registered as "John Chester," staggered down the street and disappeared. His movements from this time until he was found dead cannot be traced.

The operations of "Jack the Slasher" are briefly chronicled in the blotter of three police stations and the Chambers Street Hospital. The first victim was James Hedin, 34 years old, found in Bayard street, December 29, with an incised wound in the neck, which he said was inflicted by an unknown man from behind. He was in Bellevue Hospital two weeks.

George Wilson, or Stevens, of Brooklyn, was the second victim. He was found on January 8 by a policeman of the Oak street station near Catherine Ferry with an incised wound in the face which he said was made by a man whom he could not describe.

The third victim was John Clark, of Elizabeth, N. J., who received an incised wound in the neck January 4 while in Mulberry street. An unknown man did the cutting. Clark is still in Bellevue Hospital.

Louis Lawson, a sailor, was the fourth victim. He was cut in the face Jan. 8 by an unknown man while in Peck Slip.

Victim No. 5 was Edward Christensen, a Swede, who went to the Old Slip police station a week ago, and said that a man whom he had never seen before had slashed him in the throat. His wound was not serious.

The wounds inflicted upon these five victims and the dead man Carson, were similar, and all were evidently made by a razor or a keen-bladed knife. Every gash was semi-circular and was probably made by the same hand. All of the victims were poor, so that robbery could scarcely have been the motive of the "Slasher." Not a penny was found in the pockets of young Carson. He had seventy-five cents when turned away from the Germania House, but he might have spent that amount for liquor before he met his fate. All of the living victims of the "Slasher" were so drunk as to be unable to furnish a description of their assailant.

Resets the Idea of a New Trial.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 16.—The principal witness for the prosecution in the Barnaby murder trial, Mr. John H. Conrad, has arrived here from Denver. He scouted the idea of a new trial being granted and characterized the reported feeling in favor of Dr. Graves as untrue.

An Evangelist Threatened.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 16.—Evangelist Kane, who has begun a crusade against the liquor dealers in Pittston, has received anonymous letters threatening his life unless he desists. The Evangelist says that he will heed the communications.

RUSSIAN RELIEF.

Embarrassment that is Caused by the Shelving of the Resolution.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Many members of the House are embarrassed by the Russian relief resolution, which is still in the air, or at least indefinitely postponed. They are very anxious that the action of the House the other day in refusing an appropriation shall not be construed by the Russian Government as an indication of the lack of friendly feeling and sympathy.

Still, there are enough members who are opposed to the appropriations of public money for such purposes to prevent a reconsideration of the action taken several days ago. It is asserted that had no such resolution been introduced, the people by private contribution would have before this time contributed, and the desired relief would have been secured through the Red Cross Society; but the doubt in which the public are left by the situation of the matter in Congress interferes with the work, and the fact that Congress has touched the matter at all, without accomplishing anything, is felt to have subjected the country to the suspicion of a lack of generosity.

It is proposed, therefore, to withdraw the original proposition, and to pass a resolution with a preamble reciting what is being done through the Red Cross society, and expressing sympathy for the Russian people, but declaring that it is against the principles of our constitution to appropriate money from the public for such purposes, and at the same time expressing confidence in the generosity of the people of this country being equal to the occasion. This, it is declared, would give encouragement to the efforts of the Red Cross society and make clear the attitude of this country.

SUES FOR $100,000.

The Sensational Case of Lawyer Bowman Against Dr. C. Ellsworth Hewitt.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Dr. C. Ellsworth Hewitt has been arrested here and imprisoned, pending the outcome of a suit brought against him by John O. Bowman, a Philadelphia lawyer, for the sum of $100,000. Bowman alleges that Hewitt, while attending his wife, formerly a Miss Nellie Backus, of Holyoke, Mass., drugged and outraged her, and, when she revived, so worked upon her fear that she did not dare divulge his brutal conduct.

Mr. Bowman further alleges that Dr. Hewitt not long thereafter administered an overdose of morphine with intent, and would administer no antidote until the woman promised to elope with him. They fled to Europe, where Hewitt's brutality compelled the woman to seek aid from the American consul, who sent her back to America again. Hewitt soon after returned and is now in prison

National Game Matters.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—President Young of the National League of Baseball Clubs, says that the salary of baseball players would be in accordance with contracts made by them with the League and the American Association before the present scheme was adopted. In regard to the complaints of a number of players who were not assigned to some of the clubs, Mr. Young says that there was not room for all, and that the selections were made in accordance with the preferences of the clubs. As each club could choose but fifteen players, thus making a total of 180 players required by the twelve clubs, it was necessary to leave out a large number of tried and trusty ball players.

Over a Million Dollars Involved.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—The assignee is making an examination of the books of Joseph H. Coates & Co., the cotton firm which failed Thursday. No definite statement of assets and liabilities has been prepared, but it is understood the amount involved is over a million dollars. A protested note of $5,000 was the immediate cause of embarrassment, together with a call from their Liverpool brokers for several thousand pounds. The firm is selling agent for over forty mills in the South, but it is said none of them will be affected.

Cardinal Manning's Poverty.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Cardinal Manning's will has not yet been opened. It is said to contain detailed directions for his funeral. He left practically no estate, the whole of his property having long since been bestowed in charities. His death is deeply mourned by the Labor party, to which he was the best and most influential friend. The Roman Catholic bishop of Salford, Herbert Vaughan, is regarded as most likely to succed Cardinal Manning as Archbishop of Westminster.

Creditors Will Be Paid in Full.

BOSTON, Jan. 16.—The creditors of Messrs. Lee & Furguson of the Brazos River enterprise in Texas, whose paper was placed through Potter-Lovell Co., and who suspended owing some $800,000 hereabouts, have held a meeting at which a committee was appointed, also trustees to represent the creditors who it is believed will be paid in full as the company is now rapidly selling its lands.

Think 12 Hours a Day Long Enough.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 16.—Two hundred and twenty-five motor men and conductors employed by the Pittsburg, Allegheny & Manchester Traction company are on a strike, completely tieing up the four divisions of the road. The strikers have been working twelve hours per day and claim that the schedule will require sixteen hours without a corresponding increase in wages.

New York Court of Appeals.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 16.—The Court of Appeals (both divisions) will adjourn on Monday to Tuesday, Jan. 19, on which day no business will be done. The regular business will begin on Wednesday, Jan. 20, with the call of the motion calendar. The judges of both divisions will attend the funeral of Chief Judge Ruger on Monday, leaving here Monday morning on a special train.

THICK WAR CLOUDS

A Fight With Chili Seems Inevitable.

CONSUL M'CREARY'S REPORT.

He Fears for His Life and Says the Hostile Feeling is Increasing.

The President's Special Message on the Subject to be Transmitted to Congress at Noon Wednesday — Orders Issued to the Recruiting Commander at New York to take All the Men that Offer Their Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—It is now evident to the most skeptical that the country is upon the verge of a war, and that in a region that six months ago showed no sign.

The President has informed his Cabinet of many things he had not mentioned before. Two weeks ago he directed that each United States consul in Chili be called upon for a confidential report touching the sentiments of the people where he is stationed toward the United States.

These reports have been arriving for the last week. They are unanimous in stating that there is an extremely unfriendly sentiment against this country.

The report of Consul McCreary at Valparaiso is particularly interesting. This official knows the people well, speaks the language and is intimate with some of the leading native families.

"Until the last month," said McCreary, "I had no uneasiness in regard to my personal safety, but since then I have been warned that I must be careful when out at night—that there are persons who will take advantage of any opportunity that offers to do me serious injury not because of anything I have done but simply on account of their uncontrollable hatred of the United States.

"All sorts of stories are current among the populace of Santiago and Valparaiso about Minister Egan. He is charged with having received immense sums for protecting the refugees lately under his roof and of aiding Balmaceda in every way possible.

The reports created a profound sensation. The President then outlined his present plans. He expects the full report of Judge Advocate Remey's investigation by Tuesday next. He is fully informed as to what it will contain, and is preparing his message so that it may be ready to go to Congress by Wednesday noon.

Confidential orders have been issued to the General Superintendent of Recruiting at New York to accept every available man fit for artillery or infantry. Gen. Schofield intends filling up the infantry regiments to their maximum of 1,000 rank and file.

Recruits are coming forward in unusual numbers just now, and the reports today are that 300 were accepted from four stations alone this week.

Everything now looks like trouble. Nothing except an apology from Chili will prevent it, and the South American Ministers here declare that President Montt will not dare offer it. They say his people would despise him if he did.

Differences Regarding House Rules.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Until Speaker Crisp is able to attend the session of the House, there can be no definite line of policy followed. There is some difference of opinion among the Democrats interested in the appropriation of the new rules as to the question of a quorum of the committee of the whole. Mr. Catchings is said to be in favor of preserving the rule of the 51st Congress making one hundred a quorum in committe, while Mr. McMillin prefers that this quorum should be the same as the quorum of the House. This is probably the only matter as to which there is any disagreement, and it is unknown how the Speaker feels about it.

Death of a Centenarian.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 16.—Thomas Schofield died at his home in North Lyme yesterday of grip. He was 101 years and 3 months old. Schofield was born in England but came to this State when a child and resided in the vicinity of North Lyme ever since. He enjoyed remarkable health during the greater part of his long life, and recently made a remark to some friends that he had not needed a doctor in sixty years.

Sir Edwin Arnold Ill.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—Sir Edwin Arnold is seriously ill at the Lafayette Hotel in this city, and has been obliged to cancel all engagements. He became a victim to the grip in the West, and gave his recent Philadelphia reading under pressure. He was obliged to go to bed and his physicians tell him that he is threatened with pneumonia.

Knights of Abraham Lincoln.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 16.—The Supreme Council of the Knights of Abraham Lincoln, an order never before heard of, is having a four-day session here with a large attendance of delegates. Little is known of the aims and objects of the order outside of the fact that it is bitterly opposed to the Roman Catholic Church, and the members claim that Lincoln was murdered by Catholics for political purposes. All the members are sworn to secrecy.

Sheriff Dunn's Murderers on Trial.

LIBERAL, Kan., Jan. 16.—The trial of the murderers of Deputy Sheriff Dunn is on here. The proceedings so far have been orderly and quiet. Judge Botkin's testimony did not vary from the accounts already made public. Under Sheriff H. P. Laribee testified that he recognized over half a dozen of the gang as they emerged from the ambuscade. He gave their names and was positive as to their identification.

How They Differ.

In make-up: Most baking powders contain ammonia or alum. Cleveland's does not; not a particle.

It is made of pure cream of tartar and bi-carbonate of soda, with a little flour to keep the strength, nothing else. Cleveland's is wholesome.

In strength: A rounded spoonful of Cleveland's does better work than a heaping spoonful of any other.

A large saying on a year's bakings. Cleveland's leavens most.

In results: Cake made with Cleveland's is fine grained, keeps moist and fresh.

Cleveland's leavens best.

TWO DEAD, TWENTY HURT.

Horrors of the Wreck of the Andrews' Opera Company Train.

BRAINERD, Minn., Jan. 16.—Conductor Ball of the special train on the Northern Pacific conveying the Andrews' Opera company, which was wrecked near Jonesville, says the sight was the most appalling he had ever witnessed.

The wife of Manager Andrews and Miss Wallace are the only ones dead so far, but it is feared that several others, who were severely burned when the sleeper took fire, cannot recover. About twenty were injured.

The shrieks and moans of the women could be heard half a mile away. Miss Douglass, when brought from the car, was literally enveloped in flames, her hair being on fire. Many of the women were nude, but were wrapped up as they were taken out. Mr. Andrews rescued his little baby and supposed his wife was safe. He is wild with grief.

DEFIANT MOONSHINERS.

Lawless Swiss in Sullivan County, New York, Who Make Threats.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Deputy Internal Revenue Collector John L. Schultz seized two other illicit whisky stills run by moonshiners in the eighteen miles from Liberty, Sullivan County. Two were broken up last week. The stills are located in a Swiss settlement, where it is believed there are many others.

Those latest seized were owned by men named Nriger and Gambler. Quantities of liquor and cider were also confiscated. The intention is to arrest the moonshiners in a few days, and for that purpose a force of United States marshals is to be sent to Sullivan County. The Swiss in the settlement, it is said, threaten to kill the revenue officials if they go there again.

The Russell-Bulkeley Requisition Case.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 16.—The request of Governor Russell, of Massachusetts, for requisition of Jailer Sibley, accused of crossing the line to capture an escaped prisoner, has been replied to by Governor Bulkeley, who says custom has long allowed officers of the two States to cross the line to capture criminals. On this ground he thinks it advisable to quash the proceedings, and is willing to change the custom if Governor Russell insists.

MEN ROASTED IN THE FLAMES.

Destructive Conflagration and Loss of Life On Eleventh Avenue, New York, This Morning.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

A fire started just before ten o'clock this morning in the two story frame stable at Bank street and Thirteenth avenue, New York, occupied by the Knickerbocker Ice company.

The firemen were quickly on the spot, but the fire spread so rapidly that a third alarm was sent out.

While Fireman Anderson and two comrades were carrying a line of hose across the roof of a stable, they stumbled over the insensible form of "Joe" Spiddle, a feed handler, who had been working on the top floor of the elevator building. He was carried quickly to the ground and in a few moments he recovered consciousness.

"Albert Cobb and John Kurster, two of the men who were working with me fell back in the flames and were burned to death", said Spiddle, with a look of horror on his face.

The fire spread with lightning-like rapidity as soon as the inflammable meal caught, and it looked very much as if the whole block would go.

Twenty or thirty tugs were gathered about the river front at noon waiting to remove the vessels in the vicinity should the flames assume a more dangerous aspect.

As it is, the fire is one of the largest the town has known in years.

The blaze, from the inflammable material, at eleven o'clock reached nearly two hundred feet out over the river.

They will give up the hotel business.

MAYOR AND MINISTER MAKE UP.

Scores of Prominent Citizens of Elizabeth Publicly Confess Their Sins, as a Result of the Mills Meetings.

The big religious revival which has been in progress at Elizabeth for the past two weeks, conducted by the Rev. B. Fay Mills and Mr. Greenwood, closed last night, and evangelist Mills was escorted to the 10 o'clock train for New York by a great crowd of admirers. It is estimated that more than 2,000 persons have been converted. Scores of prominent citizens, among them the Mayor of the city, made public confession of their sins, asked for prayers, and promised to lead hereafter more consistent Christian lives.

Mayor Rankin had not spoken to the Rev. Dr. Kempshall, the anti-race-track crusader, since he ran for State Senator, and his race-track record was used to defeat him. The mayor blamed Dr. Kempshall for this and left his church. He acknowledges now that he was wrong, and has written to the clergyman asking his forgiveness.

La Marechale Next Monday.

The Ministers' association has arranged the people of Plainfield a rare opportunity to hear Mrs. Booth-Clibborn, next Monday evening at 7:45, at the First Baptist church. It is well to know how the work of applying Christianity to the world's needs goes on, at home and abroad. The whole Christian world is interested in having the true idea of Christianity as a helping and saving power brought before the masses of France and Switzerland, where the spiritual needs of the people are so great. The work in Switzerland is described by Mrs. Clibborn as follows:

La Marechale Booth-Clibborn touched the hearts of her hearers by her earnest eloquence in describing her ten years of active work in France and Switzerland. The many difficulties encountered and overcome by herself and the officers of the Salvation Army were spoken of with a truthful earnestness and a spice of keen wit. While in Switzerland the work she was carrying on so moved the whole country that the authorities tried to have it stopped. Petitions, signed by thousands of citizens who were making their money at the cost of other men's souls, were sent to the authorities, asking to have her expelled from the country. Some of the pastors banded themselves together against the Salvation Army, but other pastors thanked God from the bottom of their hearts that the Army had been sent. They said, "We are having hundreds of conversions as a result of your work." Both the pastors and LaMarechale were called up at all hours of the night to answer questions and speak words of hope and assurance to poor suffering men and women who could not rest under the heavy load of sin which they had been carrying for years. But bad men, whose worldly interests were damaged by this great change of feeling among the people, made up their minds to get rid of LaMarechale (or Miss Booth as she then was). She was expelled from Geneva, and went at once to another town to begin work there.

. . . .

In speaking of those and other prison days, LaMarechale said with a beautiful smile, "Those were days which, though painful to my body, were filled with great blessings to my soul." She gave many instances of those who had been altogether given up to vice of every kind, but had turned their hearts to God and were now earnest workers for Him. She contrasted the Romanism, Communism, and infidelity of France with the cold Protestantism of Switzerland. She said if there was one kind of person she could not understand it was the cold Christian. She said, "I do not see how Christians can be cold. I would rather have hot devils to deal with than cold Christians." She asked for the practical help of her hearers to aid in the work in France, and told how, in many instances, the officers often lack the bare necessaries of life.

It is a happy presage of better things when the world learns that Christianity is a "life", rather than a theory, and that he serves God truly who serves God's children, those who need spiritual healing and such uplifting as Christians alone can give.

Tom Quinn Shoots His Boarding Mistress.

Thomas Quinn shot and killed Mrs. Annie Snyder, at her home in Elizabeth, this morning. Then he walked over to the court house and gave himself up—telling the officers what he had done. Quinn boarded at the Snyder home.

This morning, after Mr. Quinn had left to go to work, Quinn and Mrs. Snyder sat drinking beer together. It is supposed that he was jealous of her and that they had some words over it. Anyhow, he went out, got a revolver and returned to the house. Then he shot her three times. She leaves two children.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely; it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety, and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Ct.

The Garston Bigamy.

It took only thirty months for Albert Ross, hitherto unknown in the novelist field, to market half a million copies of his books, through the house of G. W. Dillingham, New York. Mr. Ross has now started apparently on the road to a speedy completion of the balance of the million, and his new novel, just issued, entitled "The Garston Bigamy", ought to go far to accomplish that result. Though dealing with a subject which in less skilful hands might be open to objection, he has given a fascinating story, with a moral lesson of the strongest kind.

Gerald Garston is the son of an Iowa farmer, who has been brought up in the close companionship of Alma Adams and Edith Staples, daughters of neighbors. When he reaches the age of early manhood he finds that his attachment to both is equal, and he is unable to choose between them. Each of the girls believes herself the real love of Gerald, and thinks the other only a very dear friend. Business troubles between the elder Adams and Garsten induce Gerald's father to urge his son to marry Edith, and the result not unnaturally is that he decides for Alma. It would take from the pleasure of the reader were we to outline more of this charming story. Mr. Ross has pursued his usual method of leaving everything in suspense until nearly the close of his interesting narrative. That there is a bigamy the title of the book indicates from the start, but the manner in which the denouement is brought about makes an absorbing story. The two girls are among the most entertaining characters in fiction.

The highest place, among all blood-medicines, belongs to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. See if you don't think so, when you consider how it's sold to you. It's guaranteed—and no other medicine of the kind is. If it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. Wouldn't every medicine make the same terms if it could do as much good?

But the "Discovery" acts differently, just as it's sold differently. It's not like the sarsaparillas, which claim to do good in March, April, and May. All the year round, with equal benefit, it cleanses, purifies and invigorates the whole system. All Blood, Skin and Scalp Diseases, from a common blotch or eruption to the worst Scrofula, are cured by it. For Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Goiter or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands, Tumors, and Swellings, it's a remedy that nothing can equal.

It's the cheapest one, too. With this, you pay only for the good you get. Refuse worthless substitutes.

AN OLD-TIME MYSTERY RECALLED.

Paris Spooks Beaten Out of Sight by a Plainfield Sensation Recalled by a Ghost Story from the Giddy Capital.

Saturday's New York Herald contained the following cablegram:

There is at present a haunted house in Paris. The occupants of the haunted chambers are a widow, aged seventy-nine, Mme. Boll, and two adopted children.

On Saturday night at eleven o'clock they were all awakened by an indescribable tumult and strange creaking sounds coming from the furniture. The widow rose quickly, struck a light, and on the floor were the chairs and tables upset. A bowl containing oranges was broken, and several glasses, as well as the glass of some pictures on the walls, were in fragments on the carpet. On entering the boys' bedroom Mme. Ball distinctly saw a bowl on the table start up into the air and describe a curve in space, and then smash in the centre of the room. Mme. Ball called for help and two neighbors rushed to the rescue. As the spiritual manifestations did not continue the two gentlemen concluded that the widow had been deluded by a hallucination, although they could not account for the broken glass. But after a few moments, in the presence of the whole party, the frames of the pictures on the walls broke of their own accord. After that the household went to bed again, but about three in the morning the same phenomena were repeated. Every day since Sunday last similar incidents have taken place. While the spirits were at work it seemed to the witness as if sand were falling down the walls.

This is all very creditable to Paris, and shows a proper and commendable spirit of emulation even if at the same time it goes to prove that the gay city, despite its reputation for hustling, is mightily slow and behind time in the matter of spooks. Upwards of fifteen years ago a gentleman, who has since moved away, dwelt with his small family in a certain house on Plainfield avenue, then William street, in this city. He was a teacher by profession, and the better part of the lower floor of his house was devoted to his school for boys, and was fitted up with desks, maps and black-boards just as schoolrooms always have been ever since these ornamental articles of furniture came into existence. Besides the apartment mentioned there were on the same floor a modest parlor, a dining room, an entry hall, and, of course, a kitchen. The house, which still stands not far from Front street, had been occupied, previous to the schoolmaster's day, by an elderly widow of peculiar habits, who was possessed of an uncommonly good library, a large bank account, and a precocious parrot of vast linguistic accomplishments. The old lady in those days was well-known for her oddities, and even now one occasionally hears a flying story about some of her numerous freaks, which were innocent enough, although once in a while they did happen to step a trifle on some other lady's skirts; and it is these peculiarities that have lived in tradition when the old lady's name has been forgotten. When she died, however, which she did at last in the same house I have alluded to, her will was found to be a most gracious and benevolent affair, and by virtue of it one of our leading churches came into possession of her valuable library, and the erection of one of the prettiest chapels in this vicinity was made possible. History does not record the fate of the lugubrious orphaned parrot, but he probably was adequately provided for in the testament. But all this is perhaps irrelevant, and I have only mentioned it in order to invest the real story with the regulation atmosphere of mystery and melancholia. And now to the spooks.

The schoolmaster had not lived in the house a great while when his wife, a quiet, timid little woman, came to be troubled by the fact that no matter how neatly and tidily she arranged her parlor she would almost invariably find things more or less disturbed whenever she had left them even for a very short time. The matter was scarcely noticed at first, but at length it got beyond a joke, and the greenhorn servant girl was accused on circumstantial evidence of having taken it upon herself to rearrange the parlor furniture in the absence of the mistress; and, despite an earnest protest of innocence on the part of the menial she was respectfully informed that if she found it imperative to monkey with things beyond her province the family would advocate a removal of her field of operations at an early date. But matters failed to improve, and one day while the servant was upstairs a tumult arose in the kitchen, and investigation disclosed that the lids had been thrown off the stove, the coal-scuttle overturned, and a lot of miscellaneous deviltry done when absolutely no one was about to do it. This put a new phase on the business, and the sinister, plain-thinking schoolmaster, who, like all his genus, held everything supernatural in abject contempt, himself became interested. It didn't require any very great mental elasticity to see that something extremely peculiar was going on, and the more the family thought about it the better they realized their powerlessness to control the antics of that which declined to introduce itself in person and only consented to let them see what it could do when it tried. And so it went on.

One day they locked and double-bolted all entrances to the parlor after putting it in perfect order. No sooner had they turned their backs than a great uproar came from the closed room, and they hastened to unlock the door and re-enter. Silence returned with the opening of the door, but the sight they saw took their several breaths far, far away. The piano was laid on its back, the stove had been carried across the room and taken apart, the mantel-ornaments were strewn upon the floor, although none were broken, the chairs were piled in an immense pyramid on the sofa, and every one of the pictures was turned toward the wall. Twice this happened, and then the poor servant-girl grew alarmed for her life and threw up her job, and strange to say after she went nothing unusual ever again disturbed the tranquility of the household. And the school-master with all his erudition could not explain the thing. Nor can I: Could you? THE CENSOR.

TAXES AND ASSESSMENTS.

Much Inequality Shown in Different Sections of the State—Plainfield Assessments Uniform and Fair.

The annual report of the New Jersey State board of taxation has just been issued, and from it are selected the following extracts of especial and local interest and importance:

INEQUALITY OF ASSESSMENTS.

That there is a total absence of uniformity and equality in the assessments in New Jersey, should not excite surprise so much as the fact that there is not more inequality and injustice by the three hundred and thirty-seven assessors in New Jersey, all acting independently of each other, and all, in fact, trying to impose on one another for the purpose of favoring their friends and localities. A few illustrations will suffice to show how the result reached is unjust and unfair in the distribution of the burdens of taxation. Thus, one assessor is elected or appointed, as the case may be; he makes the assessment by copying the assessment of the previous assessor, without examination of the property, and without any energy in ascertaining invisible personal property. This is one of the ways by which assessments are made in New Jersey. Again, another assessor starts out, takes a general survey of the property in his taxing district, without ascertaining the cost, income or earning capacity of the property assessed, or what property of like nature has sold for in the market, and without ascertaining any of the important facts on which the foundation of an intelligent judgment can be based, of what the true value of such property is, makes a general guess, varying somewhere between one-third or two-thirds of its true value, and occasionally guesses at a figure somewhat in excess of its true value.

Under such methods, the assessor undervalues the property of his friends and adds to the value of the property of his enemies.

SOMERSET COUNTY.

This county is almost exclusively agricultural, and as compared with many other of the counties is small geographically. The total assessed valuation in 1890 was $16,666,000, and has varied from that figure to $16,600,000 in 1882. It has had little or no increase in valuation by reason of city residents locating in this county. We have no hesitancy in saying that this county is one of the best assessed, and the taxes are evenly distributed, and for the simple reason that the board of assessors as a rule are all men of intelligence, energy and capacity. They take a pride in the performance of their duty and do it with fairness and uniformity. They meet before they commence their assessments, to exchange views and ideas with one another. The result is fairness in the mode of assessment and valuation, and relatively a large amount of invisible personal property is listed and the basis of taxation enlarged.

It seems a grave injustice that this county should have contributed $5,259 10 from its reserve fund, and Salem $3,265 from the same source, to such counties as Camden, Cumberland and Middlesex. The result of these assessors doing their duty is a contribution to the school fund of other counties more wealthy and prosperous, and if the State board of taxation accomplishes nothing else than to prevent this grave injustice it would be a duty well done.

UNION COUNTY.

In this county the State board of taxation has been pleased in meeting the county board of assessors and to inspect the results of their work and the methods adopted. As a rule, the assessors are men of intelligence and fairness, and have done their work with uniformity and upon the basis of equality. This is particularly so in the cities of Elizabeth and Plainfield, and as in Somerset county, the board of assessors have met before commencing their work, have had a standing committee to exchange views each with the other, and the result is, to a very large extent, equality and uniformity in the assessment of property. The lack of uniformity in this county and the low basis of valuation, are principally in the city of Rahway and in Summit.

PRACTICAL RESULTS.

The practical results which have followed the creation of the State board of taxation, seem to be, in our judgment, many and of far-reaching importance to the subject of taxation in New Jersey. It has been the aim of this report to point out, in detail, many of those results. They can be summarized, in addition to what has been already stated in the report, as follows:

First. Central authority, giving unity and uniformity to the methods of the various assessors throughout the State.

Second. The collection and distribution of statistics on the subject of taxation, which has never before been done or attempted in New Jersey.

Third. Throwing light upon the methods adopted by many assessors in the various taxing districts.

Fourth. Showing the amount of exemptions that are claimed in the State of New Jersey from taxation.

Fifth. The increasing and enlarging the ratables of New Jersey more than fifty millions of dollars in one year.

Sixth. The equalization of taxes between taxing districts.

Seventh. A speedy, effective and practical method of settling valuations of individuals or corporations for taxation.

SUMMARY.

Under this head it may be well to state, in addition to the practical results obtained under this act, the main recommendations that are made by the board in this report for legislation.

First. Compelling assessors to obey the law by penalties of removal and forfeiture, with increased pay of the assessors in the townships under 10,000 inhabitants.

Second. By making the time for assessment, its completion, collection of taxes and lien on the property uniform throughout the State of New Jersey in all taxing districts, and giving each taxpayer and each taxing district, ample opportunity to see how the assessments of individuals and taxing districts are made, for the purpose of furnishing evidence for the purpose of an appeal in case of unjust taxation.

Third. Re-drafting the law covering exemptions, and limiting those exemptions to the narrowest possible limits, founded upon good reasons of public policy.

Fourth. Limiting the tax rate beyond which any taxing district may not levy upon the property of individuals or corporations.

Fifth. Requiring all assessors in villages and cities over 5,000 inhabitants, to assess the land and the improvements thereon separately.

Sixth. Giving the State board of taxation power to increase individual assessments.

Seventh. Requiring all incorporated companies in the State of New Jersey, on demand, to file with the State board of taxation a list of their shareholders, with the addresses, and requiring the said corporations to pay the tax of such shares as are held by non-residents of the State of New Jersey, thus increasing the amount of tax derived from invisible personal property.

Eighth. No deduction for debts, except from the assessed value of personal property, mortgages excepted.

POLL TAX.

On the policy of levying a poll tax—its wisdom on grounds of public policy—the sentiment of the State is pretty evenly divided, and for a reason that seems good in each case. The agricultural districts are unanimous in favor of retaining this species of tax, because it lessens the tax on property and because it is collected; while the cities are unanimous that it should be abolished, because it is impossible to collect it except from property-holders, or if collected, except from that class, it costs the taxing district in collection more than the amount realized when so collected. The State Board, on this subject, contents itself with reporting the facts without a decided recommendation.

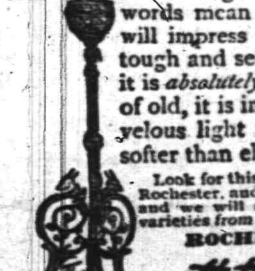
"Seeing is Believing."


And a good lamp must be simple; when it is not simple it is not good. Simple, Beautiful, Good—these words mean much, but to see "The Rochester" will impress the truth more forcibly. All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. Like Aladdin's of old, it is indeed a "wonderful lamp," for its marvelous light is purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light and more cheerful than either.

Look for this stamp—THE ROCHESTER. If the lamp dealer hasn't the genuine Rochester, and the style you want, send to us for our new illustrated catalogue, and we will send you a lamp safely by express—your choice of over 2,000 varieties from the Largest Lamp Store in the World.

THE COLUMBUS BELL,

It Is as Old as the Discovery of the New World.

Originally Owned by the Moors, It Was Captured by the Spaniards, Presented to Columbus and Is Now New Jersey Property.

Perhaps the oldest bell on the continent of America to-day doing sacred service is the bell belonging to the little African Methodist Episcopal church at Haleyville, Cumberland county, N. J. It has a remarkable history, says Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newpaper, and is closely connected with remarkable associations and a remarkable epoch in the world's annals.

It was presented to the little church in 1885, then newly built, by Capt. Elias A. Newall, of the bark Eva H. Fisk, whose home was in the vicinity of the church, who had obtained the bell and its history from the inhabitants of an island in the Caribbean sea, whose ancestors were the buccaneers who pillaged Cartagena and sacked its cathedral nearly two hundred years ago, and this is its history: In January of the year 1492, the war between the Crescent and the Cross culminated in the capture of Granada by Ferdinand and Isabella. The famous mosque of the Alhambra was transformed into a Christian temple, and from its lofty towers, instead of the "Murran of Islam," calling the faithful to prayers, those pious monarchs caused this bell, with several others, to be cast and placed there for calling their meek and lowly followers to matins and vespers.

A few years afterward—in 1502—Queen Isabella presented this bell to Columbus upon his departure to America on his fourth and last voyage. By him it was donated to the pious brothers who established the chapel in which they placed it, which was the beginning of the great cathedral of

THE COLUMBUS BELL.

Cartagena, on the Spanish Main. There it performed its holy mission for near two centuries, or until it was more than two hundred years old—until the great raid and siege of Cartagena by the buccaneers in 1697. In this raid the city was sacked and partially destroyed.

In the division of the spoils this bell—for the buccaneers did not hesitate to pilllage the cathedral—fell to the share of the French ship La Rochelle, and for a short period did duty as a ship's bell for the piratical crew. This sacrilegious duty was of short duration, for, as if by a retributive providence, in the latter part of the same year, during one of the most furious hurricanes that ever swept the seas, the piratical squadron was nearly annihilated. The La Rochelle was totally wrecked on the island of San Andreas. A few of the crew were saved, together with this bell. From the descendants of the survivors Capt. Newall procured the bell and its authenticated history. He brought it to New York and shipped it to his home as a relic whose nearly four centuries of existence had witnessed the most stupendous events in the world's history—the beginning of whose existence was the birthtime of this stupendous epoch.

The bell is small, its weight being but sixty-four pounds; its tone is clear and resonant, and the metal out of which it is cast seems to be a quality of bronze superior to any used in church bells nowadays. Its brightness indicates a large percentage of silver. Its surface has been painted with green paint outside, while the inside is covered with verdigris. Around the upper part of the bell is a band of ornamental chasing. The bell is 11 inches high; top diameter, 8 inches; diameter at mouth, 14¾ inches; thickness of sound bow where clapper strikes, seven-eighths of an inch; length of clapper, 11 inches.

Owing to a small debt on the church the people will not suspend the bell until that shall have been paid, but trusted Alfred Green keeps it in his own dwelling, where he guards it as the apple of his eye.

A Little Deal in Milk.

A presbytery in the west of Scotland is agitated with the problem whether it is lawful to sell milk to a duchess on Sunday. Robert Kelso, a farmer and elder of the Free Kirk of the isles of Arran, was in the habit of carrying on such trade. His minister remonstrated against it as desecration. In the camp of Israel Saturday's supply of manna was always made to serve on Sunday, and there should be no exception in the case of a duchess. The kirk session supported the minister and admonished the elder. The latter refused to submit, appealed to the presbytery, and that body, while praising the zeal of the session, forbade the admonition.

Her Third Set of Teeth.

About two months ago Miss Alice Graham, of Kittanning, Pa., had all her upper teeth drawn. A few days afterward she remarked that she could feel something through the gums. A couple of weeks later it was discovered that an entire new set of natural teeth had grown clear through the gums. The teeth are still growing and she is enjoying the extraordinary novelty of having the third set of several teeth.

LARRY'S INTELLIGENCE.

A Dog Who Is Quite a Musician and a Perfect Dandy.

Larry is a native of Australia. He was born in Melbourne, and I christened him "Larrikin," for he early developed traits common to that class of society in the Australian colonies. Larry has been five times round the world with me, and I believe understands many things nautical, though he does not say so. He is now leading a quiet life in a secluded spot in Surrey, having, like his master, tired of a seafaring existence, and decided that a home on terra firma and a "missus" have their charms. Larry is a very well educated young gentleman. He is quite a musician, and has entertained many a passenger on a long voyage with his songs. If asked: "Sing a song, Larry," he at once sits up on his hind legs and does as he is bid. His range is immense, for when told to sing tenor he pitches his voice in a high key, and if bass is preferred he becomes a very Stantley. Unlike many of his brethren, the piano has rather a soothing effect on him, nor is he averse to singing in general; but he is discriminating, and there are two or three songs that his mistress sings which upset his equanimity. He first accompanies her through half a dozen bars, and then runs out of the room as fast as his legs will carry him. This invariably happens with the same songs. Larry has excellent manners, too. He always comes into the dining-room on his hind legs in the morning, and presents a paw to his master and mistress, and, having walked once round the table in this fashion, demands his breakfast, which awaits him in the corner, but which he would never touch without being told to "take it." There is not much ceremony about this light bread and milk meal, but when dinner time arrives Larry spreads his cloth. He fetches a folded newspaper out of the basket, brings it to the hearthrug, and there most ingeniously unfolds it, and then sits down before it awaiting his plate, or the occasional bone. After his dinner he has his nap, but as the clock strikes four he is off like a shot, for a mile's run to meet his master's train. His greeting when I arrive is always a warm one, and we then tramp home together. One day not long since, poor Larry had a mean trick played him, the author of which he surely does no suspect. The hall clock was put on an hour. At the stroke of four he departed on his errand as usual. For a whole long hour he waited in suspense on the platform, and I shudder to think of all the terrible railway accidents that took shape in his little brain until at last the train steamed into the station. My reception when I did arrive was so overwhelming that I feared poor Larry was going mad, and he could not be suppressed the whole way home. Since Larry has learned to count he never misses meeting that train, and if I am not in it, which rarely happens, I am told he returns home very sad and sorrowful. Larry does not make friends easily, but when he does he is the most faithful little fellow living. The accompanying portrait was taken some time since, but is still a good likeness though perhaps too juvenile-looking.

THRUSH AND SNAIL.

How the Female Finally Managed to Swallow the Tidbit.

"It is, I think, well to record the following observations of the intelligence of the thrush," says John Hoskyns-Abrahall in a letter to Nature. "The first happened on June 28, 1865. I then saw, from the windows that look out on the little lawn north of my house, a thrush steadily 'stepping westward' in front of the hedge that parts the lawn from the public road. The bird seemed to be intentionally making for a gravel path that, after passing almost close to the windows, bends to the northwest, towards the small gate of my front garden. It was bearing something in its bill. On coming to the path it attempted to break this on a stone. It did not succeed. It then tried another stone. This time it succeeded. Thereupon it flew away. On the spot I found a remarkably big stone embedded in the path, and round it were scattered bits of snail shell. The bird had eaten the snail. The second of the observations I would note, and the more striking of the two, happened on June 5, 1890. I then was viewing the gravel path from the westernmost of the four windows. Just beneath me, standing on the path, was a female thrush. She had succeeded in breaking a snail shell. She had the snail in her bill, but, despite vigorous efforts, she could not swallow it. Up hopped a male thrush. Standing before the female, he opened his bill. She dropped the snail into his bill. He chewed the snail. He dropped it back into the female's ready bill. She swallowed it. The pair blithely trotted off side by side toward the small gate. I saw them no more."

BROKE THE SNAIL'S SHELL ON A STONE.

Worn Out.

"I am sorry. I was going to propose a visit to the theater to-night."

The Pie Should Have Been Enough.

"I see that a young wife has been arrested in Woburn for putting paris green into a pie which she had made for her husband."

"Yes, I noticed it. It was very foolish of a young wife to use paris green if she wanted to get rid of her husband."

"Why?"

"The pie itself ought to have been sufficient."—Cape Cod Item.

A Prompt Prayer.

De Binks—One good thing about Minks. Although he's a great borrower, he always pays promptly. He was in only a few moments ago and paid me the ten dollars he owed me.

Not That Kind of a Boy.

A Sunday-school teacher while explaining a chapter in Genesis to a class of boys asked:

"Why did Ham laugh at his father, Noah?"

"Because Noah was drunk."

"You would not laugh at your father if he were to come home drunk, would you?"

"I never get much of a chance. He comes home so late that I'm always asleep."—Texas Siftings.

Worth Thinking Over.

Young Mr. Garter—Is your sister in, Harry?

Little Harry Clasp—Yes. But she isn't going to receive any gentleman after this, unless he comes in a dress suit.

"Why? What brought her to that decision?"

"I guess she must have found out that you didn't have one."—Clothier and Furnisher.

He was dry—he pressed the button,

CAUGHT RED HANDED

"Jack the Slasher" will Slash No More.

HE IS A CRAZY ENGLISHMAN,

And His Aversion for Germans Demanded Blood Once a Week.

His Name is Henry G. Dowd, and He is Well Connected—Admits and Denies the Crimes by Turn—No Doubt but that He is the "Slasher" Who Has Terrorized a Portion of New York the Past Four Weeks—The Tell-Tale Razor—Identified by One of His Victims—Said that He Escaped From an Insane Asylum.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—"Jack the Slasher," that mysterious individual who since December 29 last, has amused himself by cutting the throats of drunken men with a razor, and has been the terror of night travelers in the Fourth Ward, was captured at an early hour yesterday morning red-handed. He inveigled his victim, a drunken man, to an unfrequented street, and then, catching the man around the neck with one hand, with the other he drew a keen razor across his throat. He then slunk away, but an officer who had been watching him for some time, and who had been unable to come up in time to save the drunken man from injury, gave pursuit, and with the aid of other officers soon captured the slasher.

Inspector Byrnes has no doubt that he has the right man, at whose door also is laid the death of John Carson, the Baltimore ex-lawyer, and the dangerous wounding of five other men. The prisoner's name is Henry G. Dowd. He is well connected, so far as his family is concerned, but his habits have long made him a social outcast, and for two years, at least, he has had no other home than the cheap lodging houses on the Bowery afford. He is about 43 years old and is believed to be insane.

Dowd's seventh victim is a man named William Miller, 45 years old, of West Third street, who was walking along James street in a drunken condition. His throat was badly cut and he was taken to the hospital.

Dowd was arraigned in a police court and was from there remanded to the care of Inspector Byrnes.

All these crimes happening in the same locality, with the victims all being cut in the same place, led the police to believe that one man, evidently insane, was their author, and they accordingly took extra precautions to run down the midnight assassin.

Two score of detectives, under the personal supervision of Inspector Byrnes, were placed about the infected district, with orders to keep a strict watch and to follow and arrest any and all suspected persons.

Shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday morning one of these officers, Detective Masterson, was standing on the corner of New Chambers and Roosevelt streets, when he saw a strange man approach him from the opposite side of the street. The stranger had a handkerchief tied around his head, which partially concealed his features.

The man came close to the officer, peered in the latter's face, evidently to ascertain if he was drunk, and then walked away. The officer followed at a respectful distance. The man haunted all the lonely thoroughfares, and when a belated traveler approached, scanned him closely. He finally stood in a dark doorway at the corner of Roosevelt and Oak street, while the officer concealed himself a little further down the street.

Soon a man who, from his staggering condition was evidently intoxicated, came along. The stranger in the doorway immediately joined the drunken man, and, after a moment's conversation, the two walked on together, with the officer, as before, following some distance behind. The stranger led the inebriated man through several streets, and finally into James street, which appeared to be deserted. Here the pair stopped and the officer darted into a doorway. He was not a moment too soon, for the stranger gave furtive glances up and down the street, and then, thinking he was alone with his victim, put one arm around the drunken man's neck and with the other he drew his razor across his throat. The drunken man dropped to the sidewalk without a struggle, while the assassin darted away.

The officer by this time was in close pursuit, and a lively chase followed. Other officers were signalled on the way, and all took part in the pursuit, with the result that at the corner of New Chambers and James street they captured their man.

The man struggled some, but a tap from an officer's long night stick put an end to his resistance. When caught the prisoner had one hand in his overcoat pocket, and in this hand he held a razor covered with blood.

The prisoner was taken to the Oak street police station, which Inspector Byrnes had made his headquarters for the night.

In the meantime an ambulance had been called, and the wounded man was transferred to the hospital. He had an ugly wound in his throat and was in a semi-unconscious condition, but he managed to give his name and address.

At the station house the prisoner was closely questioned by the Inspector. He told very little, and this little was conflicting.

He at first admitted the cutting, which he said he did in self defence, but afterward he contradicted this and said he knew nothing of the affair and that he did not do the cutting. He was then locked up for the night.

After his preliminary examination at the police court Dowd, the name given by the slasher, was taken to Bellevue Hospital, where Clark, the man who was cut on Jan. 9, is being treated for the injuries inflicted by the slasher. Clark positively identified Dowd as the man who assaulted him.

The man was then taken to Police Headquarters, where he made a confession of his crimes, or some of them. He said that the impulse to kill under some circumstances was uncontrollable. He said that he wanted to kill all the Dutchmen, for whom he was seeking all the time.

The reason for this was that a German had once ravished his mother at her home in Brooklyn. The face of the ravisher still haunted him, and when he saw a man who looked like the one he was pursuing he tried to kill him.

"Why did you kill Carson, he wasn't a German?" the inspector asked.

"I couldn't help it," was the reply.

Then seeing his error, he quickly corrected himself, saying he didn't kill Carson at all.

Dowd's room was searched by the police, who found blood-stained clothing therein. The sleeves of the prisoner's shirt were also full of bloodstains. The stains were not new and could not have come from the wound of the victim of yesterday morning. The razor, however, is the strongest link connecting him with the murder of lawyer Carson, of Baltimore, who was found dead on Chrystie street Friday morning with his throat cut. As no weapon was found near the body the police presumed that it was a case of murder. At the autopsy on Carson's body, the physicians found that the wounds had been made with a knife or razor whose edge was slightly ragged. The weapon found on the prisoner has a jagged edge, and the physicians who examined Carson's body, when shown Dowd's razor, said the wounds of Carson had been made with a weapon like the one before them.

Henry G. Dowd, the slasher, is an Englishman by birth, and is one of the children of Patrick M. Dowd, the civil engineer who was engaged in laying out the Central Park. He is well connected on his mother's side, his mother's sister having married Samuel N. Hoyt, brother of the late Jesse Hoyt, the famous millionaire, whose will was vigorously contested by his daughter, Mary Irene Hoyt. All who know the prisoner say they always considered him insane, and it is said that Dowd was once confined in an asylum, from which he escaped.

LYING IN STATE.

Cardinal Manning's Body Viewed by Thousands—The Funeral Thursday.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Not less than 50,000 persons visited yesterday the body of Cardinal Manning lying in state in the Chapelle Ardente in the Cardinal's house at Westminster.

Most of the visitors were working people, and many of them testified by tears to their affection for the departed prelate, an affection apparently which had nothing to do with religion, as it was evident that the large majority had come irrespective of religion.

Among the visitors were leaders of nearly every trade organization in London, and outside they could be heard expressing in earnest tones their appreciation of the dead Cardinal's services to the cause of labor.

Chief Rabbi Nathan M. Adler alluded in his services on Saturday to the breadth and humanity of Cardinal Manning's mind, and especially to his cordial support of the effort to obtain amelioration of the condition of the persecuted Hebrews of Russia.

In most of the churches and chapels there was some mention of the Cardinal as well as of the Duke.

Cardinal Manning's funeral will be held at the Brighton Oratory on Thursday next.

MAY BE REPRIEVED.

Prospect that Dr. Graves Will Not Hang at the Appointed Time.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 18.—Dr. Graves, through his attorneys, has applied to Governor Routt for a reprieve of sixty days on the ground that it will require at least thirty days for the stenographer to prepare a transcript of the case for his appeal to the Supreme Court. The affidavits of Messrs. Wells, Macon and Furman, his counsel, accompany the petition. They are similar to the doctor's affidavit, and besides charge that one of Judge Rising's instructions to the jury is in direct conflict with the decision of the Supreme Court of this State. They also declare that it will be impossible for the Supreme Court to pass on the appeal before the time set for the defendant's execution.

Governor Routt has assured the attorneys that he will grant the reprieve if it becomes apparent that the Supreme Court cannot pass on the case before the day of execution.

Reports from Canyon City state that the doctor is cheerful, has a fair appetite and is a very tractable prisoner.

THE PASSENGERS TERRORIZED.

Brave Work by a Detective Keeps the Gang in Check.

He Overpowers the Leader, Who After Being Bound With the Bell Rope Breaks Loose and Creates More Trouble—Conductor and Trainmen Powerless Before the Weapons of the Drunken Crowd—The Run from Albany to Poughkeepsie a Trip of Terror.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jan. 18.—Three drunken laborers kept the passengers on train No. 6, on the New York Central Railroad, which left Albany at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in a state of nervous terror until the train reached this city.

The men were William Reardon, Albert Burnseen and John Van Noine. They work for P. McArdle, Albany, breaking up old engines, boilers, etc., and have the reputation of being desperate characters.

They climbed up on the platform of the buffet car, and commenced shouting and cursing, and threw down their chisels, drawbars and sledges. Then they entered the car and announced loudly that they proposed to "run this —— —— train."

Chief Detective Humphrey, of the Central road, was in the car and heard the declaration.

"Behave yourselves," he at once said to them.

Burnseen jumped at Humphrey and tried to shove him out of the car, paying no attention to Humphrey's assertion that he was an officer. Reardon also advanced on Humphrey, and the latter jerked himself away from Burnseen and pulled his revolver. Some of the passengers quietly dropped down under the seats.

The sight of the revolver subdued the men, and Humphrey joined his wife and child in a rear car.

When the train got to Hudson the conductor shouted to Humphrey to come back. Humphrey found Reardon and Burnseen, lying on the floor, clinched and lunging at each other with knives. Reardon was on top. They were in the centre of the car, and the other passengers were huddled at either end watching the fight.

Humphrey went up to them. When Reardon saw him he jumped up and started for him with his knife upraised.

"I'll cut your heart out!" he yelled, and the passengers thought he would.

Humphrey grappled with him and threw him on his back before he had an opportunity to use his knife. Then with the bell cord he bound the ruffian.

The other two men were scared into submission and Humphrey again returned to his wife.

Humphrey had not much more than seated himself when the conductor again appeared. He was accompanied by several passengers pale with fright.

"He's cut himself loose," they cried, "and he's coming for you again."

So he had, and he had driven eight or ten men out of the baggage car and was on his way toward Humphrey, flourishing his knife and blaspheming.

Humphrey started to meet him, revolver in hand. But he did not need to use it. He caught Reardon and quickly overpowered him and took away the knife. Then he sat on him until the train reached this city when all three men were handed over to the police and locked up.

AFRAID OF A SCENE.

The Dead Prince's Body Will Not Be Taken to London—The Queen's Health.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—General disappointment was expressed when it became known that the body of the Duke of Clarence and Avondale would not be brought to London, but would be conveyed direct from Sandringham to St. George's Chapel, Windsor.

This is said to have been decided at the instance of the Princess of Wales, who is opposed to having her son's funeral made the occasion of a public parade through the streets of London. It is also intimated that persons near to royalty feared that Socialists or others of extremely radical sentiments might attempt a demonstration that would shock the already overstrained feelings of the royal family.

It is said that the police have been apprehensive of this, and in case of a London general display the utmost precautions would have been taken.

Anxiety is again aroused as to the Queen's health by the news that she will not go to Windsor on the occasion of the interment. The reasons assigned is that the royal physicians consider the weather too inclement for Her Majesty to face the exposure of the weather and the ceremony in her present frame of mind. While the Queen is officially declared to be in good health, it is certain that her physicians are in daily attendance and are constantly consulted by those surrounding her as to her course of action.

In most of the churches and chapels yesterday reference was made to the dead Prince.

Yesterday the body of the Duke, encased in a coffin made of oak grown on his father's estate, was removed from Sandringham Hall to the parish church, where it remains under guard. To-morrow evening it will be taken to London via the Great Eastern Railroad.

On its arrival at the Liverpool street station, it will be placed upon a gun carriage and conducted to the Puddington station of the Great Western Railway, escorted by the Tenth Hussars, of which the Duke was a Major and his father Colonel. The Guards will line the route. Civic and social bodies will follow from one station to the other, after the carriages of the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh and Connaught and the Lord Mayor.

At Windsor military honors will be given. The Grenadiers will convey the remains to the Castle, and mounted cavalry will be on guard outside the Castle until the gun from the tower announces that the funeral is over on Wednesday.

TROUBLE AT COAL CREEK.

The Miners Aggressive and a Big Fight Expected.

the morning 2,000 miners gathered on the hills about the Coal Creek stockade and kept up a constant fire of small arms and held a semi-civilized ghost dance about the two small block houses which contain 200 State troops. The miners came so near the military pickets that an exchange of shots was indulged in. None of the soldiers were hit, and it is thought that the miners retired without injury.

Ever since a soldier accidentally killed a convict the miners have been arrogant and aggressive. They swear that when they get ready they will exterminate the civil guard, State troops and convicts, and forever end convict labor in the mountains of East Tennessee.

A fight is expected at any moment. The soldiers are well fortified, yet the miners outnumber them 100 to 1. The Kentucky miners and those about Jellico are ready to join their Tennessee brothers at a moment's notice.

He thinks Oklahoma will have 400,000 population by the time the next President is inaugurated and that it will then became a State.

MAY DECLARE WAR

Congress Will Promptly Back Up the President.

INSULT ADDED TO INJURY.

Commander Evans' Dispatch Regarding the Balmacedan Refugees.

He Considers the Criticism of the Chilian Foreign Minister as Offensive and Unworthy the Representative of a Serious Government—The Reported Withdrawal of Matta's Impertinent Message Discredited in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Jan 18.—The programme and work of Congress this week will depend almost entirely on the Chilian correspondence.

Within 24 hours of its receipt Congress may declare war. Nearly everything depends on the tone of the President's letter of transmittal, in which, it is presumed, he will embody some recommendations. So patriotic is the feeling among members of Congress that it is reasonable to suppose that suggestions made by the President will be promptly endorsed by Congress.

The correspondence, will, in the line of ordinary procedure, go to the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House, but the situation of affairs has, it is thought by many, assumed such a grave aspect, that both Houses will probably take up the correspondence and give it immediate consideration.

The correspondence itself is said to be of such a nature that it will serve to fan the war-like flame that has warmed up the patriotic feeling of Congressmen. A member of Congress who has assisted the President in preparing some of it is authority for the statement that the Legislative branch of the Government would declare war without delay upon hearing the correspondence read, without even a suggestion from the President.

The following dispatch was received by the Secretary of the Navy last evening:

"VALPARAISO, Chili, Jan. 16.

"Secretary of the Navy, Washington:

"The American Minister informs me that the Chilian Minister of Foreign Affairs has changed his mind about refugees now on the Yorktown, and that they may be taken out of any merchant vessel touching at a Chilian port by local authority.

"Arrangements had been made for all of them to sail to-day, but this change ... ister of Foreign Affairs compels me to keep them, which crowds me very much. Shall I land them at Callao, Peru, or Molendo, Peru? No steamers from here go direct to neutral territory.

"This unexpected act of the Chilian Minister of Foreign Affairs is due, he states, in part to my saluting the Spanish Minister when he came aboard to deliver two refugees. I have requested the American Minister to say to the Minister of Foreign Affairs that I am responsible to my own government, and not to that of Chili, in such matters, and that I consider his criticism offensive and I will not accept it. His action seems unworthy of the representative of a serious government. EVANS."

The repeated statement in Valparaiso dispatches that Minister Montt has been instructed by President Montt to withdraw the offensive circular note of Senor Matta finds no credence here. The persistence of this statement is supposed here to be inspired by the Chilian Government for the purpose of influencing public opinion in this country. It is to be presumed that if Senor Montt had received any such instructions he would not delay, but would rather hasten to make them known to Secretary Blaine and the President. Certainly this Government has no knowledge either official or unofficial of any intention on the part of Chili to retreat from its insulting attitude, to say nothing of granting the apology and indemnity which have been demanded by the United States.

I., in 1656, and David Coryell having been an early French refugee who settled in New Amsterdam in 1663. The deceased has a number of relatives in and about Union county.

Miss Mildred Eytinge, who is to play Sybil in "My Lord in Livery", at the Casino, Thursday evening, is said to far surpass Mrs. Langtry both as a beauty and as an actress. A Bill to Censure, Not Approve.

Assemblyman Ford D. Smith has under consideration the presentation of a bill to the Legislature, which will authorize land owners to kill game on their land from September 1 to March 1. The object of this bill is to extend the hunting season for the farmer on his own land, but he is not empowered to delegate this privilege to any other person. We think such a bill will meet with general approval in the rural districts.—Dover Index.

THE PRESS does not agree with the Index on its latter clause. What would become of the game in a short time if such a law were enacted, and what incentive would there be for game protective societies to stock the State with game birds and protect them—as they have done in times past with success and benefit to all true sportsmen?

—Gentle Willie Murphy, the celebrated base-ball player, now of the Crescents, will act as referee at the polo game at the Crescent rink to-morrow night. The brass band will give a street parade and concert before the game.

MORA QUELLS A MOB.

The Actress Who Appears in Plainfield This Week Puts Rutgers Rowdies to Flight.

A large number of Rutgers college students bought front seats Saturday evening, for the performance of the Mora comedy company in the New Brunswick opera-house, and proceeded to create a disturbance at the opening of the first act. They showered pennies upon the stage, and with their class yells made a racket that caused great confusion among audience and players. To add to the deafening din some of the students blew whistles. The disturbance finally assumed such proportions that the leading actors retired from the stage and ordered the curtain down. The police were called in, and their appearance quieted the hilarious youths somewhat, but when the bluecoats retired in a few minutes the students renewed their noise with redoubled vigor. Several of the actresses were treated to uncomplimentary remarks from the front rows and refused to continue. At length the orderly part of the audience took a hand and hissed the collegians. Policemen were again called in to preserve order, and this time the rioters were completely subdued—for the bright little actress, Mora, accomplished what the bluecoats could not, for she put the noisy students to utter rout. One young man had essayed to flirt with the leading lady, but he received such a stinging rebuke from her lips as to become the butt for the ridicule of his companions and the rest of the audience, and Mora continued her censure of the unmannerly fellows so effectively that the rowdies were abashed and quelled, and slunk shamefaced out of the hall.

All communications, hereafter, respecting the Christian Endeavor Union, should be addressed to William R. Larkin, president of the Seventh-day Baptist Y. P. S. C. E., Dunellen, to whose care the books and property of the paper have been intrusted.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely; it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety, and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B.W. Sperry, Hartford, Ct.

A BRUTAL MURDER.

Hungarians Kill One of Their Number Who Had Beaten Them Wrestling.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 18.—A brutal murder occurred in the town of Maltby yesterday morning. A party of Hungarians were returning from a christening at the time and stopped into a saloon, where some of the men began to wrestle.

All the men had partaken freely of liquor, and when Stephen Hardy and Mike Noticco were worsted by Mike Litheran, there was a great deal of ill-feeling displayed. The defeated men finally left the saloon and, arming themselves with fence pickets, awaited Litheran.

As soon as the latter appeared his countryman attacked him with the sticks and beat the life out of him.

He was found dead on the roadside at daylight. The murderers are in jail.

"Looks like a Ghost!" That's what they say of the pale, thin, weak woman who's "run-down" and overworked. Probably she knows it herself. But there's one thing she can't know, or she wouldn't feel so and look so—and that is, that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is guaranteed to help her.

It's a legitimate medicine, made especially for woman's needs; an invigorating, restorative tonic and a soothing and strengthening nervine, imparting tone and vigor to the whole system.

But it isn't a mere stimulant. It's a remedy, safe and sure, for all the functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses that make women suffer. In "female complaints" of every kind, periodical pains, internal inflammation, ulceration, and kindred ailments, it's guaranteed to benefit or cure, or the money is returned.

No other medicine for women is sold so. Proof that nothing else is "just as good."

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street Plainfield, N. J.

Runaway Street Car Causes a Panic.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 18.—The brake on car 10, of the Orange Grove horse car line, broke while the car was going down Market street last evening. The car was going quite rapidly and was on a down grade when the driver detached the horses and sprang to the ground. Nearly 50 passengers were crowded inside the car, which gained headway every moment, and a panic ensued. Women screamed and men jumped off. At Market street depot the runaway car crashed into another car, and Emile Feyers, an Italian living at Jamaica, L. I., had the lower part of his body badly crushed. The other passengers escaped injury as if by a miracle.

THE BEST IN THE CITY.

These Attractions at the New York Theatres That You Surely Must n't Miss.

Already a number of matinee parties from Plainfield have enjoyed the revival of "Nanon" at the Casino, New York, and others are going to. It was with this opera that Rudolph Aronson scored his first success. The music is of a character to please the public, and the action is spirited throughout. The revival is on a par with the other sumptuous productions at this house; the opera is produced in a splendid manner, and the company is composed of good material. Marie Tempest is seen to greater advantage than ever before, and Drew Donaldson has made a hit as Ninon. There is one notable feature of the Casino company—the chorus girls are all young and shapely. "Nanon" will shortly be succeeded by another former favorite, the second in the series of revivals.

"The Junior Partner", at Herrmann's theatre, has established itself as one of the bright comedy successes of the season. It is drawing large audiences of a distinctively fashionable quality. Their appreciation of its bright and humorous dialogue and amusing complications and situations is made manifest by the uproarious shouts of laughter that prevail continuously throughout the entire performance. On the first souvenir night, to-morrow, the comedy will be played for the fiftieth time. The souvenir which will be presented consists of an exceedingly bright porcelain plaque with a handsome appropriate engraving.

The Broadway theatre is rapidly becoming known as a home for comic opera. Last season "The Merry Monarch" ran many weeks at that house, and its predecessor, "Castles in the Air", had a long and prosperous season. In May last "Wang" was produced there and continued its money-making progress until October. Then "The Merry Monarch" returned, and after a run of twelve weeks it was replaced by the present success, "The Lion Tamer". This opera is the most pretentious effort in that line that Francis Wilson and the peer of all managers, A. H. Canby, have yet made. Like all of their productions, the opera has been greatly improved since the opening night, and as now presented it is likely to hold the boards until the termination of the season.

Without any of the usual puffing, "The Last of the Hogans" continues to draw to Harrigan's theatre audiences that are limited only by the capacity of the auditorium. Theatre parties, make up of fashionable Plainfield people, frequently visit the theatre, and manager Hanley is constantly receiving letters of congratulation on the success of Harrigan's latest effort. The advance sale of seats is the largest in the history of that pretty playhouse.

Hoyt's "Trip to Chinatown" is still packing the Madison Square theatre, where the amusing skit will be continued until the latter part of March, when another of Mr. Hoyt's comedies will probably take its place, although it appears from the great prosperity the play is enjoying that it could be run far into the warm months. The 100th performance of "A Trip to Chinatown" will be commemorated Feb. 12, by the presentation to each lady visitor on that evening of a very elaborate Chinese fan, something not yet seen in the East, which, when opened, will display pictures of all the clever people that have made this amusing play so popular.

Tony Pastor and manager Harry Sanderson have provided a splendid entertainment for this week at their cosy little amusement house. Tony will be seen at every performance. In addition these favorites will appear: The ever popular Maggie Cline, the Irish queen; the lyric actress, Miss Lydia Yeamans, assisted by F. J. Titus, accompanist; the Adonis Four, George B. Gilson, Matthew Carroll, Robert Watson, James A. Carroll, introducing their wonderful burlesque circus; Edwin French, in masterly banjo playing; the Judges, expert and graceful acrobats; Monroe and Mack, laugh provoking comedians; the best trained dogs on earth, Shedman's Kuno-Drome; the Emmets, Irish character vocalists and dancers, Till's Fantoccini, and Miss Alberta Gilbert, vocalist and change artist.

A Fine Series of Lectures.

F. Edwin Elwell, the sculptor, gave a most entertaining and instructive lecture at the Casino Saturday evening. The audience was not as large as the lecture deserved, but it was highly appreciative, and those who heard the lecture will long recall it with pleasure. The views exhibited were very fine, the photographs of Mr. Elwell's wonderful statue of "Little Nell and Dickens" being especially meritorious. Mr. Elwell, like Mr. Fraser, who lectured last week, contributed his services for the good of the cause in which the series is being given, and he felt amply repaid in the congratulations and expressions of appreciation that were showered upon him.

The lectures are for the benefit of the Children's Home. The final lecture by Oscar Fay Adams ought to be liberally patronized.

Frozen to Death Under Unusual Circumstances.

A New Jersey exchange of recent date relates the following story with unabashed confidence: "A farmer raised one thousand bushels of popcorn and stored it in his barn. The barn caught fire and burned down. The corn began to pop and filled a ten-acre field. An old mare in a neighboring pasture who had a defective eyesight saw the corn and thought it was snow and froze to death."

WHEN VANDERBILT WAS A JERSEYMAN.

Col. Stevenson's Reminiscences of His Playmate Cornelius.

Col. John D. Stevenson, of San Francisco, who was ninety-two on New Year's Day, was a playmate of Cornelius Vanderbilt. "Cornelius"—he says—"was a shrewd speculator even when a boy. He used to buy oysters and hire boys to sell them in New York. When he stayed over night in New York he always slept at my father's house. His mother made that a condition whenever he was kept there selling oysters. When he came to bed his pockets were always full of copper coins and shillings. After paying off the boys for peddling oysters, he used to win all their wages back playing at 'shoemaker's loo'.

"I obtained for Cornelius his first employment on a steamer, and thus I think I helped to lay the foundation for the vast fortune which he subsequently acquired. Thomas Gibbons, a rich man of New Jersey, had a steamboat, which he wanted to run from Elizabethtown to New York, and was looking for a captain. One day at a dinner at which I was present he asked several if they could tell him whom to employ to run his steamer. I told him I could find him a man. 'Who is he?'—asked he. 'Cornelius Vanderbilt'—I answered. The next morning I went to see Cornelius about it. In his bare feet he was washing the deck of his little sailboat.

"'How would you like to be captain of a steamboat?'—I asked him.

"'More than anything else in the world'—he replied, and then I told him about Tom Gibbons's offer.

"He asked me to draw up a contract, and said to make it strong, for Gibbons was a hard man and had a bad reputation in the community.

"Cornelius was hired. The little steamer he commanded was commonly called The Mouse Out of the Mountain. Gov. Ogden of New Jersey, who was running a steamer to New York, had heard about Gibbons's purpose of running a steamer between Elizabethtown and New York. He laughed at the idea, and said that out of the mountain of Gibbons's talk nothing more than a mouse would come. For that assertion—says the San Francisco Examiner—the community gave the steamer the name of The Mouse Out of the Mountain, though it was christened the Stoughtenton. On Gibbons's big warehouse he painted a sign of a little mouse crawling out of a shaking mountain. Vanderbilt was subsequently captain of Gibbons's new steamer, the Ballona.

"I have been East since I came to California in 1847. Once I went to Vanderbilt's office and said I wanted to see Mr. Vanderbilt. A boy said he would take any message I might have. I said I had no message; I wanted to see Mr. Vanderbilt. He took my name, and in a short time returned and asked me to tell him on what business I desired to see the Commodore. I turned and left the office, and never again sought to see Cornelius Vanderbilt."

Jersey Silver Mines.

A company was formed last week to operate a silver mine near Absecon, where silver was recently discovered on the property of Mrs. Mary McGlade of Atlantic City, who is one of the richest women in the country. The land is on the line of the Reading railroad above Absecon. The matter was not treated seriously, as it was not thought that the metal existed in any great quantities. Since then experiments have been made and the ore has been assayed. Experts have declared the silver to be of fine quality and to exist in sufficient quantities to warrant the mine being worked. The company has sunk a shaft and is going ahead with the work.

Major E. G. Budd, of Budd's Lake, concerning the silver mining in that section, speaks as follows: "This hill is of peculiar formation for New Jersey, and is an upheaval, almost separate here near the lake—the hills northwest and southeast are gneiss, and contain veins of magnetic iron, and a heavy per cent. of magnetite all through rock. Our outcrop is feld spars and quartz, reddish and green. I have known for years this outcrop was a favorable one, and contains some silver with other metals mixed, and I have found in boulders in this valley silver $25, gold $10 to 2,000 pounds, assays made by experts in New York. Our greatest mineral in these mountains is iron. I have found silver here and in other places, but no developments have ever been made to any depth in our State. I was on the great Comstock lode in 1859, which then showed little; a few years after, at one hundred feet, it paid well. Of course we cannot tell what result may come, but I have always thought if the money spent by our people in the Territories had been used in New Jersey, better results would have been returned for capital and work."

New Sort of Sauce for Bread.

The Courier goes into a bombastic editorial over the death of England's departed prince and incidentally remarks about a man who was "born to no higher destiny than to eat his bread in the sweat of his brow and pursue the even tenor of his way unknown to fame and unblessed of fortune". Poor fellow!

—The Atlantic-Pacific Railway Tunnel company that is driving a tunnel five miles long through the Rocky Mountain mineral backbone of the continent, 60 miles west from Denver in Colorado, for railway and gold and silver mining purposes, closes the year 1891 without a dollar of floating debt or unpaid bills; with exceeding $4,221,000 of fully paid for assets, and is on the direct road to success and profit for all investors. For particulars of this wonderful enterprise, the greatest of its kind, send four cents to Mark M. Pomeroy, President, Rooms 46, World Building, New York City, for a large illustrated 34-page pamphlet telling of the enterprise, and you will also receive free a sample copy of Advance Thought, his red-hot monthly, if you will mention this paper.

TOO BIG A MAJORITY.

With Such a Surplus of Councilmen, the Republicans Are Threatened with Factional Dissension.

The New York Times of this morning contains the following despatch from Plainfield:

"Now that the Republicans have secured such overwhelming control of the Plainfield city council, they begin to realize that there is such a thing as having too big a majority. The council of 1892 consists of nine Republicans and two Democrats. Even before organization these nine were threatened with a factional and serious split. Francis E. Marsh, one of the newly elected councilmen, had served many terms before and felt that he was entitled to the presidency. Some of the hold-over councilmen insisted on electing Stephen A. Ginna to that office, and the younger element of the Republican party demanded recognition of the candiacy of Ernest R. Ackerman. That active young councilman gracefully retired from the contest, but Mr. Marsh kept stubbornly in the race. He relinquished his presidential aspiration only on the assurance that a powerful hold should be given to him on important committees.

"Thus was averted the first threatened split. Now far more serious problems are to come up for councilmanic consideration, and in the way of easy and harmonious disposition of these matters Mr. Marsh will, it is feared, be quite a stumbling block. Mr. Marsh is just as progressive a citizen and faithful a councilman as are his fellow-Republicans, but he has different plans than have some of the others for the disposition of water-works, sewerage and street-railway questions, and bitter controversy is apt to be engendered. As Mr. Marsh has two or three stanch followers, his opposition will be sufficient with the aid of the two Democratic members to foil any attempted movement of the others in which he does not concur. In such case it is probable that he will insist on important concessions.

"A case in point is the approaching appointment of various city officers—for instance, street commissioner. This is a municipal plum of no mean quality or richness, and although the general public expects to see Robert A. Meeker re-appointed Mr. Marsh will do all in his power to defeat him. Mr. Meeker is a young Republican who has excellently filled the office for two years. Hostility on personal reasons exists between him and Mr. Marsh, and the councilman will insist on his being replaced by an older and experienced engineer, George Angleman. Over this matter alone there is likely to be the liveliest kind of a factional fight, and when one considers the many difficult questions that will constantly be cropping up for settlement the prospect is that Plainfield will during the year witness some very extraordinary things in the way of local legislation among the disagreeing councilmen."

A union temperance service of the four churches was held last night in the First Presbyterian church. The Rev. A. J. Cubberly of the New Market Baptist church addressed the audience very ably on the subject of temperance. William G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., attended the services in a body, and the church was so crowded that many had to stand.

A sleighing party of about 15 young people from Bound Brook passed through the borough Saturday night about 9 o'clock on their way to Plainfield. They were in great glee, and were sounding their trumpets in grand style. When about a mile out of town some part of the harness gave way, and the party was suddenly turned from their joyful mood to disgust and dismay. The driver discovered that the neck yoke had also been broken, and it would be impossible for him to proceed on the journey with such a heavy load, and therefore informed the company they must walk to the nearest railroad station if they wished to get home. The much disappointed party tramped back to Dunellen, and took the 10:35 p. m. train for Bound Brook.

Coy Indicted for Whalen's Murder.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Jan. 18.—The grand jury have reported an indictment against William Coy, of Washington, for murder in the first degree. Coy is the man who was arrested on October 13 for the murder of John Whalen. Whalen boarded with Coy, and planned an elopement with Mrs. Coy, who is quite prepossessing. Coy learned of it and killed Whalen in his bedroom on the night of August 29. He smashed Whalen's head with an axe, cut his throat with the same weapon, sawed off his legs and buried the mutilated body in the woods on Washington Mountain, where it was found on October 13 by Selectman Romeroy's dog. Coy afterward confessed the crime, pleading self-defence.

All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. REMAINS THE LEADER.

Hartington's Promotion Will Not Affect His Political Position.

The position of Lord Hartington as leader of the dissidents will remain unaltered on his going into the house of lords, writes the Chicago News' London correspondent. The papers teem with speculation as to whether Mr. Joseph Chamberlain or Sir Henry James will become the virtual head of the party. The question, however, was really settled long ago, during the illness from which the late duke of Devonshire recovered. Under the concurrence of Lord Salisbury, who was then vainly negotiating for the absorption of Lord Hartington by the conservative party, it was determined that Lord Hartington would retain the nominal and actual leadership, Mr. Chamberlain taking the lead in the house of commons. Sir Henry James declined even to place himself in competition with Mr. Chamberlain.

THE NEW DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE.

The old liberals are forming a strong wing of the dissidents, who distrust Mr. Chamberlain's tendency to radicalism. The conservatives continue to be shy toward a politician with whom they have little in common except unionism. But the tory leaders have tested Mr. Chamberlain's willingness and capacity to work in unison with them. Conservative members generally admit his frankness and integrity as a coworker, while the unionists equally recognize his powers as a debater. His less-known qualities as a tactician and his personal courtesy and mental alertness, however, make him the only possible commander of the party in the house of commons.

Lord Hartington, on assuming the dukedom, obtains the garter which Mr. Gladstone obtained for the deceased duke and which is thus inherited in succession. Such an honor is most unusual, but Lord Salisbury, owing the existence of his ministry to Lord Hartington and being unable otherwise to repay his services, is desirous that the new duke shall accept the garter.

The following is an outline of the career of the duke of Devonshire: Born 1833; appointed a lord of the admiralty March, 1863; under secretary for war April, 1863; secretary for war February, 1866, and quitted office July following; was postmaster general from December, 1868, to January, 1871, and Irish secretary from January, 1871, to February, 1874; was Indian secretary from April, 1880, to December, 1882, and secretary for war from latter date till June, 1885.

EVILS OF SMOKING.

What Might Have Been If He Had Never Used the Weed.

He was a pretty old man; that was apparent. His hair was white and his beard was white. He walked with a cane, but, says the Chicago Tribune, he was able to look out for himself and get around reasonably well.

"Most eighty-one," he said, as he took a big black pipe out of his mouth.

"And you've smoked all your life?" asked the young man who had stopped to speak to him.

"Pretty much all," he replied. "I've smoked some sixty-odd years."

"And it hasn't hurt you?"

"Well, I don't know, young man, I don't quite know about that. My wife

"MOST EIGHTY-ONE," HE SAID.

has always told me that it hurt me, an' my father when he was alive used to say it was bad for my health."

"But it doesn't seem to have hurt you?"

"Now don't be too hasty. I ain't just sure about that. I set great store by what my wife an' my father say, and I don't advise any young man to begin smokin'."

"Yes, of course. But you've smoked, and you've lived to a good old age."

"Yes, that's all right. But there's no tellin', young man, how old I'd a' been now if I hadn't smoked. It's a bad habit that I sort o' worked into before I knew it."

Planted by Franklin.

On the old Boston and New Haven turnpike in the southern part of New London county, Conn., is an old milestone, notched and moss-grown, that was set there by Benjamin Franklin. When the highway was laid out Franklin got the job of setting its milestones, and he did it in an original way. He set out from Boston in a comfortable chaise that he had built, and a gang of men followed him with a team that conveyed the stones. Franklin's vehicle had a peculiar machine that marked the miles according to the revolutions of one of its wheels. He drove all the way between Boston and the Elm city. This historic stone is alongside of the John Champion farm in Lyme.

FOR COAST DEFENSE.

The Monterey Nearing Completion at San Francisco.

The Most Powerful Vessel of Its Kind Ever Constructed in the United States—Wherein the Craft Differs from Other War Ships.

The new double-turreted, twin-screw, armored coast defense vessel here illustrated was launched in May last, at the Union iron works, San Francisco, and is now fast nearing completion. She is designed to afford a floating defense of the highest character for the magnificent harbor of San Francisco, while also available for similar service anywhere on the coast, and would probably have been named after the principal city, had not this name been already given to a new cruiser. As it is, she takes the name of the coast town which was the capital of Upper California when the territory was taken possession of by the United States more than forty years ago.

The bids for the construction of this vessel were opened April 3, 1889, the Cramps, the Quintard iron works and the San Francisco Union iron works being competitors, the contract being awarded the latter firm on their bid of $1,628,950, with the provision that $100 will be paid for every unit of horse power over the stipulated amount and $100 deducted for every unit less than this.

The Monterey, says the Scientific American, is of the low freeboard type, presenting but little surface to receive the fire of an enemy's guns, and has a curved steel deck to give her further protection. She is constructed entirely of steel, and has a double bottom throughout, with 110 watertight compartments in her hull that can readily be filled with water, submerging the vessel until only about one foot of her sides shows above water. Her displacement in ordinary condition is 4,000 tons, but in fighting trim it will be 4,486 tons. Her general dimensions are: Length over all, 261 feet; on load water line, 256 feet; extreme breadth, 59 feet; mean draught, 14 feet 6 inches. She will have an armor belt which is thirteen inches thick amidships, diminishing at the bow and stern, the maximum thickness extending over the steam machinery and the ammunition.

The engines of the vessel are designed to give 5,400 indicated horse power, with forced draught, with which it is expected she will show a maximum speed of fifteen or sixteen knots, and be able to carry sufficient coal to travel over 600 miles at this speed, her coal endurance at the rate of nine knots per hour being designed to allow her to cover a distance of about 2,700 miles. She has no sail power, her single military mast being solely for observation and signaling, and to carry machine guns and a search light.

The propelling engines are triple expansion, the cylinders being 27, 41 and 64 inches diameter respectively, and the stroke 30 inches, there being two of these engines, designed to work the twin screws at a speed of 150 revolutions per minute on a steam pressure of 160 pounds per square inch. There are two main steel boilers, 11 feet 2 inches diameter and 10 feet 7 inches long each, and four smaller tubular boilers. The fire room is under pressure to give the forced draught when that is required, and the ventilation throughout is effected by a large blower, doing away with all funnels. The hatches are closed by hydraulic cylinders. The electric light plant consists of three units, each unit embracing an engine, dynamo and combination bed plate, and several search lights.

The armament of the vessel is to be as follows: Two 12-inch breech-loading rifled guns, with 13-inch steel armor protection and steel shields eight inches thick, each firing a projectile weighing 850 pounds, with a powder charge of 425 pounds; two 10-inch breech-loading rifles mounted en barbette, with 11½-inch steel armor protection and steel shields 7½ inches thick, each firing a projectile weighing 500 pounds, with a powder charge of 250 pounds. There are also to be six 6-pounder rapid-firing rifles, four 37-millimeter Hotchkiss revolving cannon, and two 1-pound rapid-firing rifles.

Deepest Lake in the World.

By far the deepest lake known in the world is Lake Baikal, in Siberia. It is in every way comparable with some of the great lakes of America; for, while its area is only 9,000 square miles, making it much smaller than the three largest of our five great lakes and about the exact equal of Lake Erie, in superficial extent, its enormous depth, 4,000 to 5,000 feet, makes the total volume of its waters almost equal to those of Lake Superior. Its level is 1,350 feet above that of the Pacific ocean, but, notwithstanding, its bottom is more than 3,000 feet below it. There are many other deep lakes in the world, but so far Baikal takes the palm. Lake Maggiore is 3,000 feet deep, Lake Como 2,000 and Lago-di-Garda, another Italian lake, nearly 1,900 feet in depth. Lake Constance averages about 1,000 feet and Lakes Superior and Michigan about 800 feet.

Well Provided.

The snail has the greatest number of teeth. It has been proved to possess 30,000 in its mouth, which without glass looks very innocent.

A Notable Conquest.

"Do you love him, Mabel?"

There was an unmistakable ring of triumph in the proud father's voice as he addressed the question to the beautiful, queenly girl who stood with downcast eyes before him.

"Yes," she answered, softly, the rich blood mantling her cheek and brow.

"I have told him," rejoined the father, "that I shall interpose no obstacles in his way. If he can win your affections he has my full and free consent. I may say to you, further, my daughter," he continued, "that in gaining the love of a young man like Harold Billmore, you have made a conquest that gratifies my pride as a father and commends itself to my judgment as a man. He is of good family, upright, honorable, high-minded, the possessor of a competence and in all respects the one whom above all others I should have chosen as the guardian of my only daughter's happiness."

"Yes, papa," she replied, her face lighting up with a proud and happy smile, "he's a corker!"—Chicago Tribune.

A Good Memory.

Harry—So she refused you, did she?

Jack—Yes; and I shall remember what she said as long as I live.

Harry—What did she say?

Jack—She said: "No!"—Puck.

IS HE THE RIPPER?

Various Theories Regarding "Jack the Slasher."

BOTH RELIGIOUS FANATICS.

Many Believe that Maniac Dowd is the Murderer of Old Shakespeare.

The Case of Ameer Ben Ali Recalled—Points of Resemblance Between the Whitechapel Fiend and the New York "Slasher"—Dowd Indicted and If Declared Crazy Will be Sent to Auburn—Statement of Hoyt, the Banker.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Some strange theories are cropping out on the East Side now that the murderous maniac called "Jack the Slasher" has been put under lock and key.

Is Dowd the Slasher, now imprisoned in the Tombs, the man who murdered and mutilated the woman known as "Old Shakespeare," in the East Side Hotel in April last, and was Ameer Ben Ali offered up as a vicarious sacrifice?

It was on the morning of the 24th day of April last that the horribly mutilated body of "Old Shakespeare" was found in a room on the top floor of the East River Hotel. The crime startled New York and puzzled Inspector Byrnes and his men.

Many people believed that the murder was committed by London's orginal "Jack the Ripper." But Inspector Byrnes, after a search of several days, arrested an Algerian named Ben Ali, alias Frenchy. From the very beginning there was not one word of direct evidence showing that Frenchy did the murder. But the detectives wove together a mass of circumstantial evidence against their prisoner.

He protested his innocence, and his counsel worked hard to counteract the strong pressure brought by the Police Department, but the odds were too great, and the jury found him guilty of murder in the second degree. He was sentenced to life imprisonment, and is now in Sing Sing suffering for a crime which, in the opinion of many, he never committed.

The detention and capture of Henry G. Dowd, the murderous crank who was caught, razor in hand, early Sunday morning after he had cut the throat of William Miller, a German, who was drunk at the time, has rekindled interest in the murder of "Old Shakespeare."

Many of the men and women who dwell on the East Side openly express their opinion that the man who butchered the helpless old woman last April and the man who in less than a month has hacked the throats of seven drunkards, are one and the same individual, and they say furthermore that Henry J. Dowd is that man.

The advocates of this new and startling theory go even further, and state that there are good reasons to believe that Dowd and London's Jack the Ripper are one and the same.

According to the London polics the terror of the Whitechapel district was a religious fanatic who imagined it to be his duty to kill and mutilate all abandoned women.

Dowd is also a religious fanatic. His little room in the lodging house at No. 54 New Chambers street was littered with blood stained tracts when the detectives made their examination.

When brought before Inspector Byrnes at Police Headquarters a few hours after his capture he talked in a wild strain about the evils of intemperance.

Dowd was indicted yesterday by the grand jury of assault in the first degree. If found irresponsible on his trial he will be sent to Auburn.

The police denounce unsparingly the conduct of the wealthy relatives of their prisoner in supplying him with money and letting him run at large when they knew he was crazy.

Samuel N. Hoyt, the banker, who married an aunt of Dowd's, was seen this morning. He appeared a trifle worried, but professed that he had nothing to do with the man.

"Dowd's mother," said Mr. Hoyt, "was a sister of my wife. Both are now dead. The man was always a ne'er-do-well and good for nothing, and he never had any sympathy from me.

"The statement that I paid his rent through a man named White is absolutely untrue. I do not even know the man White, and I never gave Dowd a penny for any purpose.

"The last time I saw him was two years ago. He appeared to be insane then. He should never have been permitted to get out of the asylum and go about cutting people's throats. Some one is to blame for this, I cannot say whom. I had no interest in the fellow."

REVOLT AT DEER ISLAND.

Unruly Convicts Rebel and Threaten to Kill the Officers.

BOSTON, Jan. 19.—A report was circulated here yesterday that a serious revolt had occurred among the prisoners confined at the Deer Island institution, and that they threatened to kill the officials of the prison.

This morning the rumor is confirmed, but the officials at the island decline to give further particulars of the uprising, except that some 125 unruly convicts are now locked up in their cells for disobeying orders. Passes to the island are denied to reporters, and the whole affair seems to be wrapped up in considerable mystery.

It is stated that the trouble among the Deer Island prisoners has been brewing for some time.

The men claim that they are brutally treated by the officials, and on several occasions they have complained to the commissioners. Several weeks ago the commissioners listened to the grievances of the prisoners, and then promised to put a stop to all harsh treatment on the island.

The men declare that affairs have been growing worse on the island for the past week, and, as a result, when they were set to their different tasks yesterday 125 prisoners refused to obey orders and set up a howl.

The noise was kept up all the morning and up to the time of the arrival of the officials from the Board of Directors of the Public Institutions. The disturbing element was then quieted with promises of better treatment.

MORE EFFICIENT SERVICE.

New Milk Delivery Trains Through Several New York Counties.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—On April 1, 1892, the New York, Ontario and Western Railway Company will establish a complete milk train service. This has been rendered necessary in order to properly take care of and develop the new territory opened up north of Norwich, and to render more efficient the service from the old section south, covering Orange, Sullivan and Delaware counties. The rates of freight from the region north of Norwich will be the same as south; that is, 32 cents per can of for quarts on milk and 42 cents per can of forty quarts on cream.

The milk train service over the entire district, both main line and branches, will be as shown on the time-table issued by the road.

Refrigerator milk cars will be run from all stations and the service will be performed by the milk train crew. The refrigerator cars are best in the service; they are used by the company in summer and warmed in winter.

The Company will, if desired, erect and rent, at a nominal figure, creameries at favorable points along its line to responsible parties who will agree to run and ship milk and cream from the same.

Farmers having milk they desire to ship, will be furnished with marks on application.

It will be seen on the new time table that the milk train starts later and that the empty cans are returned earlier than ever before.

Many Drowned During a Ceremony.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 19.—A disastrous drowning accident is reported from Tiflis. The priests of the Armenian Church were performing the solemn ceremony of blessing the waters. A large throng was in attendance. The procession, headed by the priests, left the cathedral and marched to the River Kura, where a temporary bridge had been erected. The structure collapsed under the weight of the passing multitude, and numbers fell into the river. A panic arose and the crowd, in a mad rush for safety, pushed many more into the stream. A large number were drowned and others crushed to death.

Insurance Rates Will be Advanced.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 19.—The local Board of Fire Underwriters met yesterday and passed a resolution that on and after March 1 the rates will be advanced 25 per cent. This is caused by the fact that the volunteer fire department is in a demoralized condition owing to the fact that all of its members are desirous of going out of service, and that a paid fire department will have to be organized.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Ten commissioned officers of the Tenth Hussars have been chosen as pallbearers for the Duke of Clarence. He was 70 years old and was one of the most prominent and wealthy physicians in the Eastern States. Several discoveries in medical science and surgery gave him a world wide reputation. During his life time he gave $275,000 to the Wesleyan University and also gave several other large sums to similar institutions.

CHILI WILL START IT

A Move to Blockade the Straits of Magellan.

THE FLEET SAILS TO-MORROW.

Admiral Walker's Squadron Will Have to Fight to Get Into the Pacific.

GREATEST EXCITEMENT CREATED.

Evident that Chili Will Not Wait for the United States to Declare War.

A Dispatch from Commander Evans Which Has Thrown the Washington Authorities Into a Flutter—Fears for Admiral Walker—Montt Advises His Government of the Warlike Feeling of This Country and of the Preparations for Fight—He Urges Immediate Apology.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—A long dispatch was received yesterday afternoon at the Navy Department from Commander Evans, and the code decipherers were hard at work on it until long after the close of the department.

The dispatch was a hundred words in cipher, which would make at least three hundred words when translated.

To Blockade the Straits.

Captain Evans has reported to the department that four of the best cruisers in the Chilian navy will leave Valparaiso on January 20 for the Straits of Magellan, with a torpedo boat beside. From another officer comes the additional information that the captain of one of the English ships of war in those waters said that the Chilian commander informed him that the fleet was going "on a special mission. You may be astonished before long," he said.

This news is interpreted to mean that Admiral Walker's fleet may be halted there and directed to turn back or risk a fight.

This is the most serious indication of Chili's hostile intentions that the Navy Department has received.

Naval officers say it can only mean one thing, which is that Chili intends opening the ball herself.

The vessels to go are the Esmeralda, the Almirante Cochrane, the Pinto, a new unarmored cruiser, whose sailing rate is 19 knots, and the Condell, the famous fast torpedo boat that blew up the Blanco Encalado.

Admiral Walker in his flagship, the Chicago, arrived at Montevideo Jan. 11. He was immediately informed of what might await him and warned to make ready for it. For the first time there is real alarm here at the threatened danger to Admiral Walker.

His squadron is not equipped with torpedoes, and the Chicago might be blown up in spite of the utmost vigilance.

It would be a daring and plucky attempt, but so was the successful attempt on the Blanco Encalada.

Captain Evans also informs the department that he is taking the most extreme precautions on account of what he has been told for the safety of the Yorktown. He does not intend to be blown out of the water if he can help it.

War Feeling Running High.

Senor Montt late last night sent to the Minister of Foreign Affairs a dispatch of several hundred words, advising Periera of the determination of the United States and the warlike feeling which pervades every department of the Government and Congress, and strongly urging him to make some definite advances which might serve to allay the bitter feeling at Washington.

The Minister has not until now realized the full extent of the war feeling at Washington, and forcibly tells Pereira that the fullness of our preparations is a matter of surprise to him.

HAVANA, Jan. 19.—The eighth game of the chess match resulted in a brilliant victory for Tschigorin, who won after twenty-three moves. The Russian played a two knights' defense. The score is now: Steinitz 3, Tschigorin 5, drawn 3.

LEGISLATIVE PROCEEDINGS.

Work of Congress, New York and New Jersey Legislatures.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—There would have been difficulty in maintaining a quorum yesterday if the point had been insisted upon.

Senators Carlisle, Hiscock and Aldrich were away upon the investigation into the operations of the tariff. Mr. Voorhees and several other Senators were also absent from the capital. Moreover, the special order of the day, the ancient Weyl and La Abra claims against Mexico, was one in which only a limited number of Senators took interest. The La Abra case was first taken up and occupied the entire day after the morning hour.

Most of the day's session in the House was consumed by the reading of the bill prepared by the Joint Committee on Printing to regulate the printing and distribution of public documents. The bill went over until to-day.

A number of bills were introduced on the call of States and Territories. One by Mr. Harter, of Ohio, is intended to increase the volume of currency and take the silver question out of the campaign this year, and one by Mr. W. A. Taylor, of Ohio, is to regulate the manner of designating United States depositories.

The memorial of the National League for the Protection of American Institutions proposing an amendment to the Constitution forbidding any State to aid any institution under the control of any religious or sectarian body was presented by Mr. Springer.

NEW YORK'S SOLONS.

Cases of the Senators in Contempt—Assembly Matters.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 19.—In the Senate last night the names of the three suspended Senators—Erwin, O'Connor and Saxton—were omitted from the roll calls. Before the session Senator Roesch, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, announced that his committee, to which was referred the cases of contempt, would meet and act upon the question to-day.

Senators Saxton and O'Connor, of the Senators in contempt, were not present when the session opened.

Senator Parker presented with the report of the Commission on Electrical Punishment an additional number of reasons why newspaper representatives should not be permitted to witness executions.

Gov. Flower sent a memorial notice of the death of the Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, recommending a memorial session of the Legislature and suitable action on his death.

During the introduction of bills Senator Aspinwall offered a resolution that the three Senators accused of contempt be declared purged. The resolution, after considerable discussion, in which the Senator accused the Speaker of gag law and unfair treatment, was tabled.

A large number of bills were introduced after which the Senate adjourned until this morning.

In the Assembly the McClelland Enumeration bill came over from the Senate and was referred to the Ways and Means Committee without comment by any one.

A message was received from the Governor announcing the death of Chief Justice Ruger.

The Speaker appointed as the committee on the part of the Assembly to take action, Mr. Sulzer, Mr. Guenther, Mr. Shields, Mr. Husted and Mr. Stranahan. As a further token of respect, the House adjourned till to-day, after a large number of bills had been presented.

NEW JERSEY LEGISLATURE.

Important Bills in the Assembly—Nominations Sent to the Senate.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 19.—The House of Assembly devoted much of its time last night to hearing eulogies on the character of Hon. W. D. Campbell, of Monmouth County, who died last year, a few weeks after the adjournment, and John H. Huyler, of Bergen, who died later.

The standing committees were announced by Speaker Berger.

The principal bills introduced were those by Hardin, Democrat, appropriating $4,000 to the Labor Bureau for current expenses, and one which gives power to the Vice-Chancellor to commit for contempt of court.

Cole, Republican, introduced a bill making it unlawful for any judge or court to institute or entertain contempt proceedings on account of any matter published concerning such judge, except it be contrary or indirect interference with some order or judgment in the course of a judicial proceeding.

The Governor sent the name of C. H. Ivins to the Senate to be prosecutor of Monmouth County. He has been filling the office for two years; also Robert Clymer, to be law judge of Gloucester.

NEW GRAVES TALE

Alleged Startling Disclosures of a Witness.

CLAIMS HE SENT THE WHISKEY.

While Intoxicated the Man is Said to Have Made a Remarkable Statement.

Reputed Corroboration of the Story by Persons Who Heard the Man Talk—Startling Developments to be Given the Public Shortly—Letters that Will Prove Mrs. Larimer's Testimony—A Sensation Caused by the Report.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 19.—The friends of Dr. Graves claim startling disclosures will be given the public shortly. Detective Keith and three operatives have been diligently striving to determine who sent the bottle of whiskey, on the theory that it contained pure liquor when mailed and the stuff was doctored in Denver.

It is held that an affidavit has been signed by several persons who were in Herb Rootheroy's saloon on Seventeenth street, between Champ and South streets, a few days ago, when one of the witnesses against Graves became intoxicated and talked freely. He spoke of his acquaintance with all parties in the case, and as the minutes sped by his volubility increased.

He had plenty of listeners, for the topic was uppermost in the public mind, and every word was eagerly listened to. He did not meet with any interruption, and as the effect of his potations became more apparent, he grew bolder in his assertions, until he startled his audience with the statement that he himself had bought the whiskey and mailed it to the Denver address.

The story has created a great sensation here and, although doubted by some, is claimed to be correct by people who were in the saloon.

The affidavits have not been made public. A couple of letters are expected to-day from Montana which the defence claim will corroborate the statement of Mrs. Larimer that bad feeling existed between Mrs. Barnaby and the Worrels, and several more individuals are also sleuthing for criminal evidence.

TROUBLE OVER A CORPSE.

The Hard Time of a Wife to Obtain Her Husband's Body.

WINSTED, Conn., Jan. 19.—A week ago A. M. Peck died in Morris, Litchfield County. His wife, living in New Haven, sent for the body, but Peck's relatives in Morris determined that he should be buried there.

Mrs. Peck, attempting to take her husband's body to New Haven, was met by the refusal of Town Clerk Randall to grant the required permit. Mrs. Peck therefore procured a writ of injunction restraining the relatives of Peck from interfering with the removal of the body, and on Friday followed it up with a mandamus to compel Randall to issue the permit.

Yesterday the case came before Judge Roraback in the Court of Common Pleas, and he rendered a decision ordering Clerk Randall to issue a permit for removal. Peck's body will be buried in New Haven.

Prominent Erie Official Dead.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—W. F. Turrell, Assistant Superintendent of Motive Power of the Erie Lines, is dead at the Imperial Hotel of pneumonia. He began his railroad career with the Pennsylvania Company, subsequently becoming master mechanic of the Bee line, retaining the same position after the consolidation of that road with the Big Four. He was placed in charge of the Erie shops at Huntington, Ind., about a year and a half ago, and in January, 1891, was made assistant superintendent of motive power. Owing to the continued illness of Mr. Ross Vails, superintendent of motive power, he has practically performed the duties of that position during the past year.

McGonegal Gets a Stay.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 18.—Dr. Henry G. McGonegal, of New York, who was convicted of causing the death of Annie Goodwin, the pretty cigarette girl, by malpractice and sentenced to fourteen years in State prison, was granted a stay by Justice Dykman, of the Supreme Court here, pending an appeal to the Court of Appeals.

A Murderer Dying.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 19.—Patrick Flannagan, under sentence of death by hanging May 2, is in so advanced a stage of consumption that it is doubtful if he survives the week. He has received the last sacraments of the Catholic Church. His weight is reduced to less than seventy-five pounds.

Must Now Go to the Poorhouse.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—Masked robbers entered the house of aged Edward Brophy and wife, at Modena, near Contesville, Pa., and compelled the old couple, who were known to be prejudiced against banks, to give up all their savings for years. Brophy and wife must go to the almshouse now.

Helpless Old Man Cremated.

HARMONTON, N. J., Jan. 19.—A lamp exploded during the evening in the house of Thomas Harrold, resulting in the destruction of the building and the burning to death of Mr. Harrold, who was too feeble to leave the house.

Missed Her Footing and Drowned.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan 19.—Mrs. Fitzgerald, wife of a canal boat captain, was drowned at Bordentown during the night. She attempted to board a canal boat, and in the darkness missed her footing and fell overboard.

TRYING HER FOR MURDER.

Mrs. Cerro's Fatal Quarrel With Frank Lombardo in Elizabeth.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 19.—Mrs. Anne Cerro was placed on trial here yesterday for murder, in stabbing to death Frank Lombardo on the night of October 31.

Lombardo and the Cerros were tenants in the same house. Both were Italians, and kept cheap lodging houses.

Lombardo, it is said, boasted to Michael Cerro of intimacy with his wife, and thus caused her to become his deadly enemy. He afterward reduced the rates for lodgers from 15 to 10 cents a night, and this added fuel to the flame.

The night he was killed Lombardo came home intoxicated and met Mrs. Cerro in the yard. She says he made an assault on her, and that she stabbed him with a stiletto. The weapon was thrown into the Elizabeth River and has not been found. Seven witnesses testified yesterday for the State. It is thought the woman will be convicted of manslaughter only.

Newark's 43d Small-Pox Case.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 19.—The forty-third case of small-pox was reported to the Board of Health of this city last evening. It was that of an Italian girl named Ferra, 8 years old. The premises have long been occupied as lodging houses, and were patronized by thirty or forty Italians nightly. Fears are entertained that the disease will spread still more.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—A regular meeting of the Camera club will be held in their rooms this evening.

—Councilmen Bird, Gallup and Weber were absent from last night's council meeting.

—Mora will give a different play at Music Hall every night this week. "Fogg's Ferry" will be given to-night.

—A very enjoyable event will be the free organ recital of Mr. MacClymont at the First Baptist church to-night.

—The Boys' Mission band held its regular meeting in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church this afternoon at 4.

—All members of the young men's auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. are requested to be present at the meeting this evening.

—The Y. P. S. C. E. of Trinity Reformed church will meet to-night at 8, in the reading room of the church, for the purpose of forming a literary circle. A full attendance is desired.

—A Plainfield boy was killed by cigarette smoking last week, and a Staten Island boy was crazed by the same pernicious habit. There is a law against selling them to minors, but it isn't enforced. —Elizabeth Journal.

—John McIntyre yesterday furnished bail in the county court at Elizabeth for the trial of Michael Higgins, who has been indicted for misdemeanor in securing money by "first" mortgage on property already covered by mortgage.

—A search is being made for the big dog belonging to Schorb the saloon keeper. It has shown symptoms of madness during the past day or two, and has bitten a number of other dogs. Until all these animals are killed, the people of this good city of Mayor Gilbert's, will be in danger of a terrible fate.

—Music Hall was comfortably filled, last evening, in spite of the storm, upon the occasion of the debut of Mora in Plainfield. She proved herself a most charming and pretty little actress, who at once captured the approval of the ladies present and so enslaved the men that they will all be there every night this week.

—The case of H. C. Staver & Co., vs Rowland D. V. Parker of Fanwood, has been settled. The manufacturing company sued Parker for $100, balance due on a machine they had sold to him. He claimed that the machine was defective, and refused to pay. In the suit and negotiations the Stavers were represented by Bert Reed, brother of Charles A. Reed, and Parker by George Demeza of Jackson & Codington's office.

A Pleasant Evening.

A few evenings ago there was a pleasant gathering of friends at the hospitable residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. G. Hockridge, 41 East Fifth street, brought there by unique invitations in Japanese characters and sent to them from Yokohoma, some weeks previous. The event was to commemorate the safe return of Mr. Hockridge from a four months' trip to Japan and China in the interest of the well-known New York firm, Arnold, Constable & Co., who selected him as a trusted employe to visit the above-mentioned foreign countries to contract for mattings, rugs, skins, etc. While there, Mr. Hockridge caused to be sent to a few of his many friends in this city the invitations above alluded to; and they at the appointed time assembled together to listen to their host's description of life and manners in far-away Japan and to assist in devouring the elegant repast set before them by their kind and agreeable hostess, the menu of which consisted, among other choice viands, of preserved fruits, pickles, tea, etc., brought direct from Japan by Mr. Hockridge. Included in the drinkables was the famous Japanese drink "Sake"—insidious and lasting.

Among the many beautiful and costly specimens of Japanese ware and workmanship brought back and scattered about the rooms of Mr. Hockridge's cosy home, are an ebony cabinet, lacquer stand, ivory panel, various kinds of pottery, a small image of Buddha in a shrine, used for worship in private residences, chimes of bronze bells, silk pictures called "Kakemono", photographs of interesting scenes and places, etc., all of which are highly prized by Mr. and Mrs. Hockridge and their interesting family of children, Fred, Jessie, Nellie, Mabel and Walter. An interesting and amusing feature of the evening's pleasure was the reception of the guests by the Tycoon, represented in full costume by the host's friend, Walter C. Longmire. He did the honors to perfection.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Judge Bartine is ill, and in consequence the court at Somerville was adjourned to-day.

The physicians announce that John H. Jackson is suffering from cirrhosis of the liver. He is still confined to his bed and is very ill.

Precentor Horace J. Martin of the Congregational church, has proven himself thoroughly satisfactory and popular in that trying position. To every one who can fill such a place, there are ninety-nine who can't. Mr. Martin is the one in a thousand.

Happy and content is a home with "The Rochester;" a lamp with the light of the morning. Sold on Rochester Lamp Co., 42 Park Place, N. Y.

AN INTERESTING MEETING.

Marechal Booth-Clibborn Tells Plainfield People of the Work of the Salvation Army in France.

The weather was very wet and disagreeable, last night, but nevertheless standing room only was to be had in the First Baptist church, long before the Marechal arrived. The audience was a thoroughly representative one, and included large numbers of the most earnest and active Christian people in the city. The Marechal and her secretary arrived a little after 8, and after they had ascended to the platform the Revs. Richards, Lewis, Rodman, Yerkes and Schenck also went up and occupied seats beside them. Dr. Yerkes opened the meeting by announcing the hymn beginning "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name". The Rev. Mr. Schenck followed with the reading of a portion of Scripture, after which Dr. Rodman offered prayer. In the absence of A. M. Powell, who is at Washington, Dr. Lewis introduced Mrs. Booth-Clibborn as one who had been imprisoned for the crime of preaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ in Switzerland.

Mrs. Clibborn is a tall and graceful woman, with a sweet English face. It was a pleasure to hear her speak, as her voice is clear and sweet, with a delightful English accent. She spoke in part as follows:

"I think I may ask you to pardon us for the lateness of our arrival after the hour fixed upon for this meeting, because I have been fighting a severe cold, and, it being just at the close of three months meetings in America, I am excessively tired. But in the Salvation Army we are taught to go on and do our best, even if that best is not what we should desire. So I must ask you to pardon me.

"Now I tell you frankly before beginning to speak that this evening is all too short a time, and even two evenings, for me to give you anything like a correct, however brief, outline of our battles, our struggles and our victories with infidelity and sin and our persecution in Switzerland. I am rather embarassed to know which country to choose—France or Switzerland. There is great and widespread interest in both countries, and generally people ask to hear about both. I must be contented to give a little sketch —for it can be nothing more—of France.

"It was 10 years ago that my beloved mother—now in Heaven—gave me up for the evangelization of France. I had heard a great deal about France, and its history had interested me as a child more than that of any other country. It seemed to me that this people, so capable of enthusiasm, so capable of rising to a sublime self-forgetfulness and self-sacrifice for their country, for an ideal, or for one man, such as we have seen in the first Napoleon,—it seemed to me that people capable of that enthusiasm if won for the Gospel and Jesus Christ would be a mighty power. After 10 years' association with these people—with the masses of infidels, Catholics, dead-formalists,—have only confirmed my conviction. My father said if the missionaries raised on French soil could only be multiplied France is safe, and not only France, but other nations, for they will make the first missionaries in the world."

Continuing, Mrs. Clibborn described the starting of the work as most discouraging. "Who"—she asked—"in my audience knows what a real fight is with the enemy, knows what it is to sing 'We will fight for Jesus', or 'Onward Christian Soldiers', in a hand-to-hand fight with the enemy who is combatting every single step of territory with you, that is doing his utmost to put you down?"

She sketched in graphic language the first few evenings they worked in Paris, the interruptions, the jeering and the abuse they received, and then how by faithful persistent work they secured the respect and attention of the people who came to the meetings until finally the audience itself would defend the leaders of the meeting against interruption. This was among the masses, and when converts began to be made among them, the Marechal turned her attention to the cultivated and intellectual classes and met with more success than she had dared to hope for. A meeting was held at 4 in the afternoon, and to that 500 or 600 people came, including men of reputation, high in standing and authority, scoffers, agnostics and infidels. Many of these became interested and some converted. At the close of one of the meetings one gentleman gave her $20 and said "I wish you had a hall in every town. If you could resuscitate faith we would be saved as a nation. We have lost faith, and you have been trying to resuscitate faith". Continuing, Mrs. Clibborn said: "France is starving for faith. They are hungry for the word. What they want is not eloquence; they have enough of that. When I speak of dark France I do not mean intellectually. Its soul is starving. Spiritual night is upon her. There are towns upon towns that I could mention to you without one spark of spiritual life". The Marechal spoke of the poverty of most of the converts that had been made thus far, and yet notwithstanding, they had furnished $10,000 in collections for the work. She also gratefully spoke of their "best friend in France", a gentleman of wealth, who had simplified his household, sold his carriages and horses, and devoted his income to the work of spreading the gospel. In moving language she spoke of the great need of the Gospel in France, and in closing said: "I do not want to sit down before telling you that we have now 500 missionaries. Besides these there are 30 ministers and colporteurs working in connection with the churches and doing good work with the army. We have 28,000 papers thrust upon the public's attention weekly. In this way we reach thousands of people who never come to our meetings. The law forbids us to hold open-air meetings; therefore we have instituted branch work among the cafes and saloons. We visit 20 saloons in one evening, ask the proprietors if we can sing, and then sing some sweet song like 'Prodigal Child, Come Home'. Perhaps 40 or 50 people will take out their cigars and hear, the singing through. They are pleased and ask us if we won't have a drink or a cigar. We tell them we do not care for that, but want to speak to them, and after 10 or 15 minutes leave."

The Marechal's secretary spoke for a few minutes; and in sweetest tones, with just a shade of French accent, urged the people to give liberally for the support and extension of the work that was doing so much for her beloved land.

There is reason to believe that the collection was a large one. It was announced that there was one amount of $100, another of $50, and another of $25.

OPPOSED TO LEGISLATION.

Plainfield's Councilmen Resolve to Fight Water-works, Electric Lights and Street Cars Bills.

The only other business besides the passage of the new liquor-license ordinance at last night's meeting of the Plainfield common council was the unanimous adoption of the following resolution, presented by Mr. See:

Resolved, That the Hon. Frederick C. Marsh, member of the Senate, and the Hon. Mr. Kyte, member of the Assembly, of New Jersey, are respectfully requested to send to the president of the common council of the city of Plainfield a copy of any bills that may in any way affect the public interest of our city. Also Resolved, That we especially request our senator and assemblyman above named to use their best efforts not to allow any such bills to pass, whether as originals or as supplements, relative to the introduction of water, electric lights, street cars, or any bills affecting the control of our streets, or the rights of our city government, until time has been given to the city authorities to consider and report back to them. The city clerk is hereby instructed to send a copy of these resolutions at once to the gentlemen above named, and the president of the common council is respectfully requested to report any such communication as may come under the above head by calling a special meeting, should he deem it expedient for the welfare of our city to do so.

ON A MURDER JURY.

Councilman Weber's Vote May Decide Whether Annie Cervi Shall Live or Hang.

The trial of Annie Cervi, the Italian woman, who is charged with the murder of Frank Lombardo, began in the circuit court at Elizabeth yesterday morning. The court room was literally packed with people, many of them being from the Italian colony in Peterstown, the scene of the tragedy.

The prisoner was brought into court by warden Dodd and county detective Keron. She had the appearance of realizing her awful position, and with sad and pale face sat gazing upon the floor, slightly swaying her body.

The counsel for the prisoner are Hon. Foster M. Voorhees and Hon. John T. Dunn.

The crime for which Mrs. Cervi is on trial was committed Sunday, Nov. 1. The body of Lombardo, with a stiletto wound in the breast, was found at daylight lying on the sidewalk on High street.

It was first suspected that Michael Cervi, the husband of the prisoner, was the murderer, and both he and Annie were arrested. The investigation the following day showed that Annie had inflicted the fatal wound. Her husband was held and is also indicted as an accessory, the trials to take place separately.

Yesterday's session was largely occupied in the empaneling of the jurors. One of those selected was councilman H. A. Weber of this city. The trial is on to-day.

The prosecution expects to close its case to-day, and the defence will open to-morrow.

For a Post-Office and a Canal.

Mr. Bergen (N. J.) introduced in the House at Washington yesterday a bill for a public building at Bridgeton, N. J., and Mr. Buchanan introduced one authorizing the survey for a ship canal, from the Delaware river to the Atlantic coast or Raritan Bay, as the engineers may deem advisable.

—Mrs. Edward Ryder is still in bed at her home, 22 Central avenue, as a result of the peculiar accident that happened to her one week ago to-day. She was on her knees brushing up some crumbs, when a tendon or ligament connected with the right knee cap, gave way.

Overloaded and disordered stomachs and bowels don't need a dose of physic. That, with its violence, only upsets them the more. They need a dose or two of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. That cleanses and regulates them mildly and gently, but thoroughly and effectively.

They're the original little Liver Pills, these tiny, sugar-coated anti-bilious granules—the smallest and the easiest to take. One little Pellet for a laxative—three for a cathartic. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Biliousness Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels are prevented, relieved, and cured.

Put up in sealed vials—a perfect vest-pocket remedy, always convenient, fresh, and reliable.

They're the cheapest pills you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You pay only for the good you get.

Can you ask more?

A MAIL STEAMSHIP LOST.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—News has just reached here that the Pacific Mail steamship John Elder, on its way from Valparaiso to Liverpool, was wrecked on Caranza Rock, in the straits of Magellan. All on board were saved, but the vessel and all the mails were lost.

The rescued crew and passengers are now on a vessel bound for Santiago de Chile, and as it is suspected that some of them are Chilean refugees the Chilean authorities are jubilant at the prospects of capturing the refugees when they land.

HAS CHILE BACKED DOWN?

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—No information can be had to verify or deny the rumor that the Yorktown has been fired on by the Chileans. It is now asserted that Chile is anxious to back down and has sent a message to England asking that country to intercede. Meanwhile, warlike preparations in the Navy Department continue.

Atlantic City's License Fees.

The Atlantic City common council last night reduced the license fee from $500 to $350. For saloons with concert gardens attached it has been reduced from $800 to $700. For the past six months this question has been discussed in the council.

—Every member of the short-hand class of the Y. M. C. A. is requested to be present at this evening's session.

It is sweet to live, but oh! how bitter—to be troubled with a cough, day and night. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, however, is a sure remedy. 25 cents.

"I cannot sing to-night! My throat is sore." "Of course you haven't tried Salvation Oil?" "No." "Then get it, and you will sing like the birds."

—The prices for Music Hall, this week, are 15, 25 and 35 cents. The latter is for the best reserved seat in the house. Chairs in the private boxes are 50 cents each.

I have used Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills for Dyspepsia, etc., and have been cured by them. I cheerfully recommend them to all who suffer from the same.—STEPHEN BURHANS, sexton Wayne street Reformed church, Jersey City.

Destructive Fire at Cortland, N. Y.

CORTLAND, N. Y., Jan. 19.—Fire early in the morning on Main street, near Groton avenue, destroyed a considerable portion of the business section. John Day, grocer, in whose store the fire originated, was burned out as were also the following: Mrs. Darby, hair dresser; Miss Miller, dressmaker; Miss Miner, hair dresser; Mrs. Pomeroy, dry goods; Mrs. Van Hoesen, dry goods; G. I. Pruden, photographer; Dr. F. Fenner, dentist; W. Wescott, photographer. The cause of the fire is unknown. The loss aggregates $60,000, fully insured.

Pleaded Guilty, But Got 20 Years.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 19.—Jeremiah Doyle, the fifth and last of the young toughs convicted of outraging a young Polish girl, was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment at Auburn. Doyle expected a lighter sentence in view of his plea of guilty.

I have been a sufferer from catarrh for 20 years. I found immediate relief in the use of Ely's Cream Balm. Since using it I have not suffered a moment from headache, sore throat or loss of sleep, from which I previously suffered, caused by catarrh. I consider your Balm a valuable remedy.—E. G. Vassar, 48 Warren St., New York.

Ely's Cream Balm is worth its weight in gold as a cure for catarrh. One bottle cured me.—S. A. Lovell, Franklin, Pa.

HE KISSED HER IN CHURCH.

This Mr. Dill Did, and Stepped From the Pulpit to Do It—On Account of This and Similar Demonstrations Miss Thompson Thought Proper to Break Off with the Young Pastor—Mr. Dill May Join the Salvationists.

The trial of the Rev. A. C. Dill, the former pastor of the Presbyterian church at Stirling, accused of immoral conversations, improper conduct, and untruthfulness, was resumed yesterday before the Presbytery at Morristown. Two witnesses testified for the prosecution, and in the afternoon the defence of the young pastor was begun. The sessions are secret.

The whole morning was consumed in talking bout the accounts of the trial that have been published in the newspapers. The Presbytery has made every effort to keep the proceedings secret, and the conclusion was forced upon them that there must be a traitor among them. Stenographer McMasters was singled out first, and affidavits were read declaring that he had offered his notes of the trial to different New York papers. When he denied the charge suspicion was fixed on lawyer Conklin, pastor Dill's adviser, and the sergeant-at-arms was called upon to testify to a number of proceedings that gave ground for the suspicion. Then it was suggested that different witnesses had violated their pledge of secrecy. In the end a committee of three was appointed to investigate the way THE PRESS and other newspapers got the news.

This committee, it was said last night armed with the authority of the Presbytery, is to call upon different editors and reporters to-day and demand of them from what source they obtained their information. They'll find out a lot.

When the trial finally got under way, elder Nelson Hughson of the Mount Freedom church told how pastor Dill had become engaged to marry his stepdaughter, Miss Lucy Thompson, and how the engagement was broken.

Miss Thompson accompanied her stepfather to Morristown yesterday, and was ready to go on the witness stand. She is 25 years of age, with dark hair and eyes and a rosy complexion. When Mr. Dill was pastor of the Mount Freedom church before he went to Stirling she was one of his congregation. After the two became engaged, he not only continued his alleged flirtations with the other young women of his congregation, but his demonstrations of affection for Miss Thompson became so offensive to her that she could stand it no longer. One Sunday morning she went into church after the greater part of the congregation had arrived and the service was about to begin. The young pastor was in the pulpit, but when he saw his betrothed enter he stepped down, walked up the aisle to where she was, and kissed her before the whole congregation.

On numerous other occasions before that he had used the privilege of their relation to kiss her in public. Miss Thompson returned the engagement ring, along with all other presents he had bestowed upon her, and announced that the engagement was at an end.

After Mr. Dill went to Stirling he wrote two letters to Miss Thompson, telling her he was willing to renew the engagement. If she was unwilling, he asked of her to deny that they had ever been engaged, and he would do the same thing. Miss Thompson has the two letters in her possession, and is ready to produce them in evidence.

Elder Hughson testified that while at Mount Freedom Mr. Dill had made a practice of calling on young women of his congregation at unseasonable hours. He repeated also an immoral and degrading statement that he said the young minister had made to him in the course of a conversation.

The Rev. William Hollinshed testified to the truth of affidavits as printed in the papers last week.

The defence, as outlined yesterday, will attempt to show, first, that many of the charges are due to the animus which H. G. Torrey has against Mr. Dill. Besides denying the alleged conversations in toto, in some cases an attempt will be made to establish an alibi for Mr. Dill, and evidence will be advanced to show that many of the witnesses continued their cordial relations with the pastor and even took pains to praise him after the alleged conversations took place. The witnesses put on the stand yesterday by the defence all testified to Mr. Dill's good character. They were: Elder S. D. Youngs and Elder Frank M. Merchant of Mt. Freedom; David E. Striker, Jacob Drake, Henry Wright, R. S. Bowman, Andrew G. Orr, all of Mt. Freedom; Richard King of Morristown, and J. C. Pumpelly of New York.

Mr. Pumpelly, who for some years has been one of Mr. Dill's most intimate friends, said last night:

"I am trying to persuade Mr. Dill to resign from the Presbytery and get away from all this. I want him to go to New York and join the Salvation Army. I think his ability is just suited to that work, and he would make a great name for himself."

The accused pastor was as cheerful as ever yesterday. He wore a small bunch of violets in the buttonhole of his blue frock coat.

"I am the happiest man of the lot"—he said to a reporter. "There is an almost continual smile on my countenance. I rejoice in my tribulations, and I thank God for this fiery attack. It gives me an opportunity to show the strength of my character."

The regular winter meeting of the Presbytery will be held to-morrow morning at Morristown, and the defence of Mr. Dill will continue at 1½ o'clock in the afternoon.

A SON OF OLD HARRY.

He Strove for an Errorless Life, But the Burning Red Mark on His Heel Led Him Astray.

When W. J. Leonard, the veteran newspaper man of this city, was a student at college, one of his warmest friends among his classmates was Albion W. Tourgee, who has since become famous for the books he has written. Readers of "A Fool's Errand", "Bricks Without Straw", "Figs and Thistles", "Hot Plowshares", and other admirable stories from Judge Tourgee's pen, will be glad to learn that he has just produced another volume; and those who have never before read any of the productions of his genius will on reading this become steadfast admirers of his works.

The title of Judge Tourgee's new novel is in itself an attractive one—"The Son of Old Harry". The book is published by Robert Bonner's Sons, of New York. It is excellently illustrated by Warren B. Davis.

The story is one of great fascination and intense power, and works marvelously upon human sentiment and feeling. Indeed, it may truthfully be said that nothing more original and more true to life and nature has ever appeared in America than this story of the Kentucky blue-grass region and its horses and horse-loving people. No reader of his novels needs to be told that Judge Tourgee loves a horse. His horses are something more than mere incidents or furniture; they are actual characters, and so linked with the personality and fortunes of his people that they are essential to the action and development of the novel. In "A Son of Old Harry" he has given a free rein to his pen in dealing with a subject so near to his heart. It contains the best that he has to give on the subject. The sweet and pure love history, which forms the ground work, and the thrilling incidents of the war in Kentucky, which form an important part, give the novel immense interest.

The Son of Old Harry is John Hubert Goodwin, whose thrilling life-story is so graphically told, from his childhood to his declining days. His only heritage from his famous ancestor in England is the great red spur, a birthmark, on his heel, and possessing that he cannot avoid horsemanship any more than his father, a Son of Theophilus, can avoid preaching. It was his native instinct which discovered in the scrawny young colt in his father's pasture the qualities that marked the horse for a wonderful race. It was through him and this horse that the tide of bankruptcy was turned, the mortgage on the farm paid off, and the Goodwins set on the road to fortune. It was through the same blooded stock that relentless fate finally pinned him to his last earthly bed.

Kincaid, the "king" of that western town, tried desperate means to prevent the fiery Son of Abdallah, ridden by the equally fiery Son of Old Harry, from defeating sturdy old Gray Eagle, and the story of that Great Race on the turnpike is a most thrilling bit of realism. The time of that Great Race was a stirring one, crowded with exciting events, but it all is charmingly tempered by the sweet and tender loveliness of that youthful betrothal by which dainty, golden-haired little Deely Kincaid, the fairy daughter of the harsh and unprincipled "king", pledges her heart's fondest and truest devotion to "Jack", "forever and ever". Nothing more touching or tearful, nor yet more beautiful, has ever been penned than the picture of this girlish woman whose life was so strange a blending of pathetic romance and overwhelming sadness.

What an adventurous career was that of Old Harry's son! Try as he would to be a calm and prosaic disciple of Theophilus, the old red scar was always burning on his heel, and urging him to reckless deeds. Besides the Great Race, there were two other famous trotting events, won by his gawky Henlopen, who broke the record after that most amusing incident, the countrified trial of speed along the Bay Road. These races were intensely exciting, and in reading of them one's enthusiasm is extraordinarily aroused. Poor Henlopen! He broke the record, but at what a cost! The scene of his death is a most pathetic one, and as the noble horse breathes his last one feels that one of his warmest friends has departed.

No less interesting is the incident of the call "out of the East", when through the magic bonds of Masonic brotherhood so much nobility of character in the stanch and sturdy blacksmith and the village doctor is developed.

It was just like Hubert to give that vast sum he received for Henlopen to be used in defence of his country, but he was not satisfied with that: he must needs go to war at the head of a company himself, and right nobly does he serve his part.

What a heart-ache there is, though, in his breast, at the stupendous sorrow that comes over him, in the midst of his martial glories and public honors, through the loss of his beloved Deely! He feels that all the sunshine has gone from life, and it is with a leaden heart and the courage of desperation that he leads his brave men into the very thick of the flying bullets and screaming shells. That charge of his cavalry the overwhelming force of Confederates at the bridge was magnificent, but when the night shadows fell he lay senseless among the dead and dying; his horse returned to the ranks riderless. Through the night air, from the lips of the half-conscious soldier, issued the plaintive whip-poor-will call, which in years gone by had summoned that great old Son of Abdallah to his side. The gallant horse heard the quavering notes over in the camp of the enemy, and broke away, and crashed past the sentries, and found his old master on the field and carried him proudly into the Union lines and saved him from death. Faithful creature!—who could read that story and not love the horse as one of man's best friends.

The war is over, and Goodman is married to Kitty Parker, the black-eyed lass who loved him so dearly and sought him out in the army hospital when others thought him dead. But the marriage is not a happy one, for her full-surrendered heart yearns for his love, and that he buried when his Deely disappeared.

He learns that Deely still lives, that she is married to another, that she wanders helplessly about moaning piteously always, in the hopelessness of insanity, the one cry "Jack! Jack! Forever and ever!" Oh, the pathos of it—the heart-rending agony! He deserts his wife, seeks out Deely, and flees with her to a hidden garden-spot of the boundless West, where he nurses her back to reason and to life. Is it a vision of the night—that strange appearance of his wife in that dim-lighted chamber the night that Deely is her own sweet self again, and that saves Old Harry's son from suicide! That is one of the problems made clear in the final chapter, and is not to be here revealed; but certain it is that when Kitty died she had fully and freely forgiven her troubled and erring Hubert. How overwhelmed is the stricken man to find that Deely knew all before her death, and what a delicious disclosure to his weary mind is the revelation that his fair, sweet nurse and adopted daughter is his daughter in truth—one of whom he had never before known, a lovely girl with Kitty's eyes. Poor "Jack"!—he suffered much, and one can forgive his errors on account of the evil influences of that terrible wound in his head: for he was a brave and great man, and never was there a nobler thing than his devotion to the one whose love had so blessed his youth and who had pledged herself to him, so completely, so confidingly, trustingly, "forever and ever". He fully deserved, after so much unrest and remorse, the blessed peace that was his at last.

The story is undoubtedly a masterpiece of modern fiction. Its characters, including people and horses, are all strong and lifelike, and each one is in itself a study. The book is more than captivating: it is replete with solemn lessons of life, duty and happiness, and at times it carries one away from earthly realms into the borders of the Beyond. Having grown to appreciate that the sons of Theophilus are small-account, though goody-goody men, and that the sons of Old Harry are after all the sort that make the world brighter, better and stronger, it is refreshing to find [and one wishes that there might be disclosed to him what the future results of that sweet girl's life will be] that on the soft white heel of that dainty girlish foot is the red, fateful mark of Old Harry's offspring.

BAR ROOMS TO CLOSE AT 11.

A New Ordinance Adopted Governing Local Liquor Licenses.

The Plainfield common council occupied nearly two hours last night in considering and adopting the new liquor license ordinance, which consists of twenty-four long sections, and into which are consolidated all the operative features of the old ordinance of which this takes the place. The most important change is the fixing of the closing hour for bar rooms at 11 p. m. instead of 12. Mr. Frazee alone opposed this. He said that after the local saloons were closed men could go over the brook and find places open till 2 or 3 in the morning. After each section had been adopted by unanimous vote, the ordinance was ordered engrossed and advertised preparatory to third reading and final passage.

The license fee was left at $700 for all-the-year-round places, and $400 for summer hotels.

What Caused the Barr Tragedy.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 19.—The report of the inquest on the death of Geo. E. Barr, late proprietor of the Hotel Warwick, filed by Judge Bosworth, states that Barr committed suicide after killing his wife, and that the mutual affection existing between a certain boarder at the hotel and Mrs. Barr was what caused the tragedy.

HOW TO CURE FURS.

Valuable Hints Furnished by an Old Trapper.

How to Secure the Best Ventilated, Least Tainted, Dryest and Whitest Skins Possible Without the Use of Chemicals.

First catch the animal, writes William Bell, in the Youth's Companion. After its death take the skin off as soon as possible unless the creature was drowned. In that case wait till the fur is dry.

Hold the animal up by the hind legs. Stretch them apart and make a cut from each hind foot along the top or back of the leg to near and under the tail. Leave the tail uncut with the back of the skin.

Work the fingers under the skin around and over the back near the tail. Pull this out of the skin by placing a split stick on the tail, while the other hand holds the body.

After the tail fur is pulled off the inner stump, pull the skin off whole from the hind legs toward the head. Do not cut down the belly. On coming to the fore legs work around them with the fingers and pull them out of the skin.

Then work the skin off to the tip of the nose. Cut this off so it will hold on or over the end of the board, to keep the skin stretched properly.

At the beginning cut carefully around all the natural openings of the skin, so as to save all the fur and not tear the skin. Work off the hide with the fingers, using the knife as little as possible. Thus you will keep the skin white.

To STRETCH THE SKIN: The best way is to use a board. Cut it a little longer than the stretched skin is from the tip of the nose to the tip of the hind leg. Make the board as wide as can well be pushed into the skin. The board should be not more than three-eighths of an inch thick in the middle, and tapered to a thin edge at each side.

Most of the small animals are one-third head, or one-third forward of the fore legs. Make the board tapering slightly, narrowing from the hind end to the fore legs. Then cut it in the shape of a tapering flatiron to the tip of the nose.

Pull the skin on the board fur inside. Then take off all grease and flesh possible. Make two "swords," or strips of wood as long as the board. Run one under the skin down the middle of the back, and the other down the belly side. Thus the skin is raised from the board and stretched.

Catch the under lip on the end of the belly sword, so as to draw it well up to the nose. Pull the hind feet back tight and tack them in place to the edge of the board. Pull at the roots of the tail with one hand and at the same time rub the skin backwards with the other, so as to stretch it without tearing. Tack it to the sword, and tack the edge of the belly side likewise.

To CURE THE SKIN: Hang the skin up by the nose in the shade. It should not be near a fire nor any other object. Fresh air should be all around it.

These directions carefully followed will give the best-ventilated, least-tainted, dryest and whitest skin possible, of any given kind. No chemicals being used, the peltry will bring the highest market price.

These directions are for animals from the size of the beaver down, except as to otter tails, which must be split open, spread out and tacked on a board to prevent tainting. Fold the skin of the otter's fore legs across the chest and tie so that they will dry flat.

The illustrations show some forms of boards and swords commonly used. Fig. 1 is a plan of a board for the skin of a muskrat or other short animal. Fig. 2 represents the "sword" or strip of wood which goes with it. Fig. 3 is the board needed for the skin of a mink or other slim animal, and Fig. 4 is the sword which must accompany it.

Fig. 5 is an end view or section of the board and swords, with the skin stretched upon them.

Is the Earth Hollow?

The orthodox Icelander believes that the earth has an opening through it from pole to pole; in other words, that it is the exact counterpart of a gigantic bead. According to their ideas, all waters which flow to the north are drawn thitherwards by a suction created by the oceans tumbling downward through the hollow which they firmly believe exists. Their authority for this curious belief is the "Utama Saga," a semi-sacred work written early in the fourteenth century. If this ancient volume is to be relied upon, one Bjorn Liefson, a fisherman, who was driven northward by a fierce gale about the year 1391, is the only human being who has ever seen the spot where the waters of all oceans plunge downward and are not seen again until they have passed entirely through the earth and again appear, bubbling and frothing like a mammoth spring, at the south pole. Symmes, an American Arctic explorer, is said to have entertained a notion somewhat similar.

Results of Buying a Rat-Trap.

A citizen of Troy, Ala., recently invested twenty-five cents in a rat-trap. Within one week he had caught forty rats, one calf and one old setting hen. Now the owner of the calf has sued the trap-setter for heavy damages, and the owner of the old setting hen has broken off an engagement of marriage between his daughter and the trap-setter.

A SAGACIOUS BABOON.

How His Master Utilized the Beast at All Hours of the Day.

An extraordinary instance of sagacity and docility in a South African tamed ape, or baboon, represented in the illustration, from a photograph of the actual incident, has constantly been witnessed at Uitenhage, on the Cape Colony government railway to Port Elizabeth, South Africa. It is related in the following account by Mr. J. M. Thornton, of Sandilli House, Uitenhage, superintending engineer of the railway: "The ape, or monkey, or baboon to which reference is made, was the property of a signalman employed on the railway, who had lost both legs, and was crippled of one arm, by a train running over him. The signalman's cabin adjoins the railway workshops, of which I am the superintending engineer; so that I had many opportunities of seeing the part the monkey played in connection with the working of the signals. This baboon was about the size of an average child nine or ten years of age. To raise or lower the signals it placed its hind feet on the bottom of the lever, and with its fore paws seized the handle; then, by repeated jerks, caused the lever to move over. There are six levers, working signals which control trains proceeding in four different directions. The signalman had trained this animal so well that it knew which lever to pull over when it heard the sound of the whistle of the engine of an approaching train. The ape sometimes made mistakes, but I believe out of pure mischief, to aggravate its master, who for each offense administered a severe castigation. There is no doubt that he governed this beast with a rod of iron, and taught it to obey him more from fear than from love or attachment."

THE OLDEST POSTMASTER.

A Man Who Has Served the Government Sixty-Three Years.

Below is presented the portrait of a man who has the honor of being the oldest postmaster in the United States and probably in the world—Roswell Beardsley, of North Lansing, Tompkins county, N. Y. Appointed in 1828, during the administration of John Quincy Adams, and when this republic was yet in its infancy, and the recent discoveries in modern science unthought of, he assumed at the age of a little less than nineteen years the duties of a responsible position that he has continued to hold through all the vast changes, party animosities and political convulsions of sixty-three years.

ROSWELL BEARDSLEY.

In his beautiful home, with its luxuriant furnishings and pleasant surroundings, he passes much of his time, where his friends, whose name is legion, are thrice welcomed and hospitably received.

"So firm he strode across the room,
So stately was his air,
You scarce had guessed that eighty years
Had whitened through his hair."

A perfect gentleman of the old school; a millionaire and splendid financier; a lover of books; a friend of science and education, and a believer in the broad principles of humanity—schools, colleges, universities, churches and benevolent societies alike receive liberal benefits from his bountiful hand. The cut is reproduced from a recent photograph, presented by Mr. Beardsley with his autograph as a souvenir to a Detroit Free Press correspondent.

Politeness Made Him a Canon.

Canon Duckworth, of Westminster Abbey, is said to owe his place in ecclesiastical life and his favor in royal eyes to a slight act of courtesy to the princess of Wales. The scene of his graceful gallantry was at Oxford, a number of years ago, when the princess, on her way with the prince and a party of friends to embark in a barge on the river, became separated from the others and stood at the river side alone and irresolute. A young man who happened to be near by saw her dilemma and, stepping forward, assisted her to embark. The prince, who arrived a moment later, thanked him. Dean Liddell, who was in the royal train, noted his gallantry, and within a few years that youth was a favorite with royalty and well on his way to preferment in the church. Now he is canon of Westminster.

And Still They Kick.

Madagascar people work twenty-five days in a year and make enough then to support them in idleness the rest of the time.

A Different Girl.

Little Augusta (of bygone years)—No, sir; I've grown up, now—I'm Gussie.—Puck.

Did Not Hurt All the Time.

Awkward Barber—Does this razor hurt you, sir?

Patient Customer—Only when it gets under the skin.—Good News.

A Scapegoat.

"What is the matter, dearest?"

"Somefin awful's happened, mamma."

"Well, what is it, sweetheart?"

"My d-doll-baby got away fwom me and bwoked a plate out in the pantwy."—Harper's Young People.

Suitable.

Pastor—"And what would you like to give your pastor for a Christmas present?" Rollo (who loves his pastor)—"A phonograph." Pastor—"A phonograph! Why a phonograph?" Rollo—"Because papa said you like to hear yourself talk."—Jury.

Horrible.

Reginald—Why, Chappie, what's the matter—are you ill?

Chappie—I just had an awful nightmare, old fel. I dweampt I was a waitah, bah Jove, and had to wear a dwess-suit in the daytime.—Life.

The Reason Why.

She—Dear me, Walter, these are terrible things you tell me about Arthur! How do you happen to know so much of him?

He (a rival of Arthur's for her hand)—Why, Daisy, I'm his best friend.—Harper's Bazar.

A Foregone Conclusion.

Miss Merveilleux (summing up)—Arthur is very poor and I fear he has extravagant tastes, while Henry is as steady as he is rich.

Miss Redingote—Then, of course, you'll marry Arthur?—Philadelphia Press.

Taking It Cheerfully.

Landlady—Wouldn't you like a cup of coffee, Mr. Snoberly? It is nice and fresh.

Mr. Snoberly—Yes, madam, when I'm through with my steak. Business first, you know.—Texas Siftings.

SIX CITIES ASPIRE

Contest for the National Democratic Convention.

WILL BE SETTLED TO-MORROW.

Believed that New York Will Make a Strenuous Effort for the Prize.

The Arrival of the Tammany Men Makes the Situation Assume a New Aspect--Chicago, Cincinnati and Indianapolis Also in the Fight to Stay--Brice, Gorman and Hill Now Said to Favor the Windy City.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The last of the delegations to press the claims of six cities for the location of the Democratic National Convention upon the members of the National Committee reached here last night.

It consists of about 50 Tammany braves headed by Richard Croker, the head of that organization.

The aspirants for the honor of entertaining the convention are New York, Cincinnati, Minneapolis and St. Paul, Indianapolis, Kansas City and Milwaukee.

There are about 20 members of the committee in Washington this morning, and they are in great demand by the members of the several delegations.

Every boomer thinks his city is sure to be chosen, but no one can tell what the result will be, or make a decent approximation of the vote on the first ballot.

It is reported that Senator and Chairman Brice is working for Cincinnati, and under the supposition that New York did not really want the Convention. There was a feeling that the contest lay between Cincinnati and Indianapolis, but the appearance of Croker and his Tammany braves put a new phase on the situation, and it is the impression this morning that New York will make a strenuous fight for the Convention.

The National Committee will meet at noon to-morrow. The advocates of the several cities, it is expected, will be heard in public, and the Committee will go into executive session to vote. Milwaukee will be represented by Mayor Somers, Judge Donnelly and Senator Vilas, Indianapolis by Senator Turpie, Kansas City by Gov. Francis J. Pratner and Senator Vest.

The rumor is now current that although Chicago is not an open competitor for the Convention, forces are at work which will succeed in inducing a majority of the Committee to vote for holding the Convention there. These forces are said to include Messrs. Brice, Gorman and Hill.

The Pilgrimage of Their Lives.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—General John Palmer, Commander-in-Chief of the G. A. R., is in Washington. He says the old soldiers will make the coming encampment in Washington the pilgrimage of their lives. Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Kansas, and all the big States will, he says, turn out as they never did before. The Michigan people, General Palmer says, have told him that their posts will turn out more men than they did to the Detroit encampment, right at home. General Palmer thinks Illinois will send 20,000 men.

Heir to Two Millions.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20.—Information has just been received by Joseph Healey of Swedesboro, N. J., that by the death of an uncle in England, of whom he was a namesake, he has fallen heir to a fortune of nearly $2,000,000. Mr. Healey is quite wealthy, and was formerly engaged in wool importation and manufacturing in Manchester, England, and was the owner of several vessels. He is said to be a second cousin of the Duke of Marlborough.

Merchants Burned Out in Scranton.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 20.—Fire in the morning in the Williams block, Lackawanna avenue, partially destroyed the building and totally destroyed the stock of the following merchants: J. D. Knight, commission house, W. A. Gallagher, fruit warehouse, and Gelbert's bakery. The total loss aggregates $12,000, insurance $9,000. Frank Shull, of Crystal House Co., was overcome by smoke, and his condition is critical.

Strike of Granite Cutters.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 20.—One hundred granite cutters employed on the Government Post Office building here, struck during the afternoon, because one of their number had been discharged for a faulty piece of work. The strikers claim that the blame rests upon the foreman who was furnished by the supervising architect of the Treasury. They will not return to work unless their fellow workman is reinstated.

Annual Meeting Lehigh Valley Company.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20.—At the annual meeting of the Lehigh Valley railroad company here President Elisha P. Wilber and the old Board of Directors were re-elected. The annual report presented to the meeting showed the gross earnings for the year to have been $18,910,360; operating expenses, including rental of leased lines, $13,075,909, leaving a net revenue of $5,934,351.

Catholic Church Burned.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 20.—St. Thomas' Roman Catholic Church in Fairfield, together with the parochial school and convent attached, were burned last evening. It is supposed that the fire was incendiary. No one was injured, but several nuns narrowly escaped with their lives. The buildings were only recently erected. Loss $100,000.

Senator Gorman Re-elected.

Public Printing Bill Defeated in the House--Senate Doings.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The galleries of the House were filled yesterday by persons anxious to hear the discussion of the President's message on the Chilian question, should it come up. The interest in this matter is deep and widespread and until it comes up in Congress, or is otherwise disposed of, the attendance upon the session of the House will be, it is expected, unusually large. Before the House was called to order a number of ex-soldiers were on the floor discussing the matter, but members kept silence when approached by reporters.

The bill to regulate the Public Printing came up as unfinished business, and after being attacked by Messrs. O'Neill, Chipman, Bankhead, and others, and being defended by Mr. Richardson, it was laid on the table by a vote of 135 to 102, thus disposing of the measure. Mr. Richardson said a rough estimate fixed upon $400,000 or $500,000 as the amount that would be saved each year by the bill.

Mr. Springer then moved to adjourn but his motion was defeated, only to be carried when made by Mr. McCreary of Kentucky five minutes later.

The Senate with an average attendance of twenty-five members during the greater part of the day discussed the La Abra claim till an adjournment. During the morning hour public building bills, most of which went through the Senate but failed to pass the House, were passed by the Senate appropriating about $800,000.

LONDON'S EPIDEMIC.

The Grip Spreading Rapidly--Death Rate Causes Alarm.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Influenza in this metropolis has reached the proportions of an epidemic, which is rapidly spreading and increasing in violence. The total number of cases reported daily is going up by leaps and bounds, and the advance in the death rate is becoming a cause of alarm.

The law courts are hampered in their operations by the epidemic. Many cases before the courts have been postponed in consequence. Business classes were not so much affected on account of their more active life, but the complaint is beginning to make its appearance among them.

The disease is extending to the provinces. In Suffolkshire all the schools have been closed.

Mr. Gladstone has declared his intention of coming home to attend the funerals of the Duke of Clarence and Cardinal Manning, but, as he has only just recovered from an attack of the influenza, he has been advised by his doctors and urged by his friends to remain abroad until the epidemic is over.

IN BROMPTON ORATORY.

Sixty Thousand Have Looked Upon the Face of the Dead Cardinal.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The body of the late Cardinal Manning was removed from the Chapelle Ardente of the Archiepiscopal residence last night and taken to the Brompton Oratory, where the funeral services will be held.

The body was inclosed in a coffin and conveyed in a plain hearse with the least possible ceremony.

A number of children from the adjacent Catholic orphanages lined the streets with lighted candles in their hands. The priests received the body on its arrival at the Oratory and vespers were sung.

The number of people who have viewed the remains of the Cardinal as they lay in state since Saturday is estimated at sixty thousand.

Leper Tsang Dong Back in New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Tsang Dong, the leprous Chinese who started for his native land some timesago, has returned to this city and is again isolated by the Health authorities on North Brothers Island. The authorities released him some time ago on his promise that he would go to China. He started and had nearly made his way across the continent when he was ejected from the train on which he was a passenger. Thereafter he was not allowed on trains though he made many attempts to board them. He then decided to return to New York and Mott street which place he reached last Saturday. Tsang Dong looked as if he had tramped most of the way back to this city.

Frederick Hamilton's Record.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Jan. 20.—Frederick L. Hamilton, who was arrested in New York city for attempted robbery, was until recently a lawyer in Warrensburg, this county. He got into trouble several times here by uttering false checks on a local bank. Each time, however, the matter was settled by his friends. He was next heard from in Troy, where he pursued the same course. Here again his friends came to his rescue, and when Hamilton left Troy it is understood he deserted his wife.

The Pope's Condition Improved.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Dr. Ceccarelli, who is in attendance on Pope Leo, states that so far the illness of the Pope has not been attended by danger. The attack of influenza is a slight one.

THE CHILIAN AFFAIR

Its Phases Discussed at the Cabinet Meeting.

MR. BLAINE HAD TO WITHDRAW.

Rumor That He Did Not Leave on Account of Illness as Reported.

Has the Secretary of State Had a Falling Out With the President--The Special Message Cannot Now Be Transmitted Until Next Week--Admiral Walker Ordered to Valparaiso--Gherardi Will Have Full Charge of the United States Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Every member of the Cabinet except Secretary Foster was present at the beginning of the meeting yesterday.

Secretary Blaine came in a trifle late. He had with him a memorandum of dispatches which he has received in the last two days, and he read them over to his associates.

They related to the withdrawal of the offensive circular of Minister Matta. The Secretary stated that the proposals made by the Chilian Government were altogether inadequate.

The United States insists upon the withdrawal of the offensive dispatch, and has demanded that its withdrawal be made as general in its character as the original dispatch.

The Chilian Government is willing to do nothing further than cancel it without explanation.

The Secretary had hardly finished his reading before he was taken ill and had to leave the meeting.

After his withdrawal the President went over with the others the rough notes of his message to Congress, which he had jotted down in his usual way before embodying it in permanent form. The members approved, but as the Secretary of State was absent action was deferred.

The illness of Secretary Blaine will result in delaying the transmission of the Chilian correspondence to Congress, probably until next week. When he left the White House the Cabinet was discussing the message of the President to accompany the correspondence, as the President desires, of course, that what he has to say, his recommendations, etc., shall have the concurrence and approval of the members of the Cabinet.

But no conclusion had been reached when Mr. Blaine was compelled to leave, and as he was the official most interested in the matter, the further discussion was without result. The next Cabinet meeting will not occur until Friday, and as the conclusion of the members, whatever it is, will have to be put in shape after the adjournment, the message will not be ready for transmission before Saturday, and as Congress, in all, probability, will not be in session that day, the week will have passed before an opportunity to get it before Congress will have presented itself.

The rumors that the delay in sending in the message and correspondence was due to the expected offer of arbitration by a friendly power, or the receipt of advices that a more friendly spirit prevails in Chilian official circles, are untrue. Neither of these occurred.

The order issued by the Secretary of the Navy to Admiral Gherardi to proceed to the South Atlantic station, stopping at Bahia in Brazil for further instructions confirms the earlier despatches.

Admiral Walker will sail at once for Valparaiso, and, in accordance with the dispatches sent him yesterday, will doubtless go by way of Cape Horn instead of attempting the passage of the Straits of Magellan with the Chilian fleet blocking the way.

By the time the Chicago, Atlanta, and Bennington reach Chilian waters they will have the Boston, Charleston and Yorktown to keep them company, with the Baltimore near at hand. Admiral Gherardi, with the Philadelphia, Kearsage and Concord, will reach Valparaiso in three weeks, and we shall have ten of the finest vessels in the navy at the seat of action.

Admiral Gherardi, as senior in command, will have charge of operations and Admiral Walker will be second in command. With this fleet in Chilian waters the United States will be in a position to keep the Chilian fleet fully engaged until our land forces can be brought into action.

WAS BLAINE ANGRY?

Rumor that He Did Not Retire on Account of Illness.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The report is persistently circulated this morning that Mr. Blaine's sudden departure from the Cabinet meeting yesterday and his failure to attend the State dinner last night is the result of a direct conflict between the President and the Secretary of State growing out of the Chilian situation.

The fact is noted that Mr. Blaine did not send his regrets to the White House until the hour set for the dinner had arrived, in face of the fact that he assured his friends that he was [illegible]

A United States Senator expresses the opinion that from his knowledge of the very delicate and critical situation of affairs and from the fact that Mr. Blaine has all along been in favor of a peace policy he is inclined to believe that there is a serious misunderstanding between the President and the Secretary of State.

REFUTING THE CHARGES.

Rev. Mr. Shober Stands a Good Chance of Reinstatement.

BARRYTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 20.—Rev Francis E. Shober, who left this place a week ago under a cloud, having been deposed from the ministry by Bishop Potter for alleged drunkenness, has returned and was received with open arms by the people of the church to which he formerly ministered.

His friends have been busy during his absence collecting evidence to refute the charges made against Mr. Shober.

The Rev. Dr. Henry L. Zeigenfuss, Archdeacon of the Poughkeepsie diocese, is among those who are working in behalf of the deposed rector.

Dr. Parker, of Poughkeepsie, one of the physicians who attended Mr Shober, is said to have admitted that the statements made to him of Mr. Shober's drinking habits had much to do with his assent to the diagnosis of delirium tremens.

It is also said to be generally believed in Poughkeepsie that Mrs. Shober will begin a suit for divorce, which will be bitterly contested by her husband.

Dr. Ziegenfuss is reported as saying that Bishop Potter acted hastily in the matter.

He has secured a certificate from his family physician in Salisbury, N. C., to the effect that since a boy any slight sickness has always been accompanied by delirium.

It was thought that the delirium tremens were brought on by excessive drink, but as he can prove to the contrary and as Archdeacon Harry L. Ziegenfuss has espoused his cause, it is supposed that Bishop Potter will undoubtedly reinstate him.

EIGHT WERE KILLED.

A Sled Load of Young People and a Train in Collision.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 20.—A Missouri Pacific railroad train ran into a sleighing party of 21 persons at Foerstelville, six miles west of this city last night, and killed eight. At that place there is a steep hill which has been used by persons in the neighborhood during the prevailing cold snap as a sort of tobaggan slide The road down the hill leads across the railroad tracks.

A disaster or a serious accident has been predicted at this spot, but the young folks only laughed at the prophets and kept up their dangerous sport. Last evening there was a party of 21 on a sled who had been indulging in the sport for some time, but finally their merry-making came to an abrupt and sad end. As their sled, a pair of bobs connected by a long plank struck the railroad tracks, a Wabash train dashed into it, killing eight of its occupants and maiming many others. Not one of the party, it is said, escaped uninjured.

Medical Students Steal a Corpse.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 20.—Miss Emma Cossell, who had been ill for 10 years with a disease that baffled medical skill, died Dec. 10. She was not buried until Sunday last, however, the family fearing a burking expedition. Last night at midnight Sexton Speer found that the grave had been disturbed, and with relatives of the dead woman followed wagon tracks to the Central College of Physicians and Surgeons. The police were then called in, and the faculty of the college permitted an investigation, which disclosed the body stripped and ready for dissection. The discovery has caused a sensation, and several warrants have been issued.

Strong Evidence Against Mercier.

QUEBEC, Jan. 20.—Before the Royal commission named to investigate malfeasance in office against ex-Premier Mercier and his late colleagues, it was in evidence that Mercier made a contract last year with a stationer named Tanglais to provide all the stationery required by the public departments. So far Tanglais has been paid $85,000 and has supplied $11,000 worth of stationery. Cashier Webb of the Union Bank swore that $25,000 of the proceeds of Tanglais check from the government was placed to Mercier's credit, and $24,000 to the credit of Ernest Pacaud, Mercier's friend and party organizer.

Tallest Man in the World Dead.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 20.—"Col." Pickett Nelson, who claimed to be the tallest man on earth, is dead here. He had been ill for three weeks with typhoid fever. His body measures eight feet five inches in length. In life he claimed to be eight feet one inch tall and to weigh 387 pounds. It was alleged at his late home that after death his frame relaxed and became four inches longer than it had been. A part of the front of the house will have to be torn out to remove the body for burial as the doors and windows are too small to permit of the removal of the coffin.

BELLIGERENT GAULS

Row in the French Chamber of Deputies.

SUSPENSION OF THE SESSION.

Members Pummel Each Other, and Several Challenges Result.

The Trouble Arose Over the Motion to Prosecute a Newspaper for Attacks Upon the Cabinet--Minister of the Interior Sends His Man to Grass--A Grist of Duels Arranged--One Member Has Two on His Hands.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—The Chamber of Deputies was the scene of tumultuous encounters and fisticuffs yesterday in which even a member of the Cabinet, Minister Constans, took part, and the session at length became so disorderly that it was suspended in order to allow the various members who had been engaged in pummelling each other to arrange for the duels which usually follow such occasions.

The fracas began with a motion by Boulangist Deputy Laur, supported by his fellow Boulangist, Lessene, who desired to ask that action be instituted against a newspaper, "Intransigeant," for alleged attacks upon the Cabinet.

The Cabinet did not take kindly to this pretended championship of their cause by the Boulangists, and Premier De Freycinet refused the interpellation. M. Laur objected to having his motion shelved in that way, and he became very noisy on the subject, indulging in personal reflections on M. Constans and others.

Minister of the Interior Constans got excited and struck Laur in the face. Thereupon a great tumult arose, the majority of the Deputies loudly cheering Constans.

Then followed a sort of melee, with personal reprisals here and there for harsh and derisive epithets.

M. Delpech, a supporter of the Ministry, boxed the ears of Castelin, one of the most aggressive of the Boulangists, and Dunsateil, another Boulangist, quarreled with Delpech.

The result is the arrangement of a duelling match between Delpech and Castelin, after which Delpech, if he is safe and sound, will have to be shot at by Dunsateil, who is the second of Castelin in the latter's proposed duel.

Another cause for a duel was given by a blow which a journalist named Dumontenle gave to Boulangist Deputy Bordeau.

The happy thought of suspending the session put an end to the disorder.

Hoyt-Donaldson Contest.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 20.—The Hoyt-Donaldson contested election case was continued last night before the Senate Committee. One witness, R. Simon Blood, county clerk of Montgomery county, was examined, and testified as to yellow ballots attached to certain returns from Amsterdam, Canajoharie and other places in his county, also that many ballots were not of the regulation size and as to the misspelling of Donaldson's name. Chairman Roesch announced that the hearing would adjourn until to-morrow evening when the cross examination of Blood will be held.

Italian Bankers Decamp.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 20.—Joseph Niechia and D. Calandra, two Italian bankers doing a large business with their countrymen at 315 Market street, have decamped and their whereabouts are unknown. They were money changers and agents for the Berkley Heights Improvement company and have offices at 52 Broadway, New York. They were last seen Monday morning and since that time the doors of their offices have been closed. The amount of money in their charge is not known, but it is thought to be large.

Narrowly Escaped Lynching.

ROXBOUT, N. Y., Jan. 20.—Melvin Law, an ex-convict, 50 years old, was jailed here yesterday charged with indecent assault upon a 9-year-old child at Phœnica, Catskill Mountains. The prisoner, who had sought refuge in a house, jumped from a second story window when the officers sought to arrest him and tried to escape. Their pointed revolvers, however, brought him to bay, and he was taken prisoner. The officers with difficulty prevented the populace from lynching him.

The Trestle Gave Way.

RANKIN, Pa., Jan. 20.—A shifting engine at the Carrie Furnace ran into an abutment of the Pittsburg, McKeesport & Youghiogheny Railroad trestle in the morning and dislodged it. A freight train passed over the trestle a moment later, and the span gave way, precipitating eight cars to the bottom. Brakeman A. C. Carruthers was killed instantly, and Brakeman Charles Hoss fatally injured. The cars were completely demolished.

It was a marriage in which the parties signed a marriage contract. Miss Fuller is at present in Philadelphia.

Rogers of this city has been notified that he, with two brothers and two sisters, are the direct heirs to the $3,000,000 estate of the late John Rogers, their uncle of Glasgow, Scotland. The sisters are in Maine, one brother in California and another in Texas.

"No baking powder is gaining public favor so rapidly as Cleveland's."

One reason is people like to know what they are eating, and the composition of Cleveland's baking powder is given on every label.

So many baking powders containing ammonia or alum are widely advertised as "absolutely pure," the best way is to refuse any brand the composition of which is concealed.

THE OBSEQUIES TO-DAY.

Prince Albert's Funeral Will Be of a Simple and Quiet Nature.

LONDON, Jan. 20. — Preparations for the funeral at Windsor of the Duke of Clarence and Avondale was completed last evening. There is much disappointment at the fact that there will not be a funeral procession through London, but the Queen is opposed to it, and that settled the matter.

Much laughter at the expense of a news agency has been caused by the story cabled to the United States to the effect that the military funeral and procession through London was abandoned for fear that the famous guards and other soldiers might catch cold by standing for hours in the cold.

Prince Henry of Battenberg and Prince Christian arrived from Cowes this morning, in order to take part in the funeral ceremonies. They were joined at Portsmouth, by the Duke of Connaught, and all three proceeded to Windsor. Every train arriving at the latter place is laden with wreaths of flowers to be placed upon the tomb of the dead Prince; there is not room for one-sixteenth part of them.

The charger ridden by the Duke of Clarence while with his regiment, the Tenth Hussars, has arrived at Windsor and will be led in the procession, behind the body, with the dead rider's boots turned backwards in the stirrups.

The funeral will be of a quiet and simple nature. Only the altar of St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle, will be draped in black, the rest of the building, inside and out, will be plain as usual.

Stephen A. Ginna of Plainfield and Robert W. Rice of North Plainfield are serving on the United States grand jury at Trenton. This appointment of Plainfielders is the result of an emphatic protest made by Plainfield lawyers, who complained that in selecting the United States grand jury Plainfield had always been slighted.

His Old Friends Come Miles to See Him.

There are a thousand commuters in this city alone who remember with esteem William F. Rand, the veteran conductor, who now resides at 343 Ferry street, Easton. He had two visitors last week who had come two thousand miles to see him. One was F. B. Eldred, superintendent of the Lake Superior terminal and transfer railway, living at West Superior, Wis. Mr. Eldred was formerly a conductor on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and had not seen Mr. Rand for fifteen years. The other visitor was Ed. Ligle, a conductor on the St. Paul and Duluth railroad. Mr. Rand, who is an invalid, was delighted to meet his friends, who came so many miles to take him by the hand.

MRS. BOOTH-CLIBBORN CONFUTED.

The Rev. Mr. Koechli Says She Was Arrested for Making a Disturbance, and Not for Preaching the Gospel.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS:—In your report about the excellent meeting in the First Baptist church, yesterday evening I read:

Dr. Lewis introduced Mrs. Booth-Clibborn as one who had been imprisoned for the crime of preaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ in Switzerland.

Not having had the opportunity to be present myself, I take your statement as correct, and have not the slightest doubt that the venerable Doctor spoke in good faith. Even so I will question the fact that Mrs. Booth-Clibborn may be under the impression of having been a martyr for the attempt to preach the Gospel of our blessed Redeemer in Switzerland. But for the sake of the truth I venture to say that this is not correct.

Being a native of Switzerland myself, and having lived there at the time that Mrs. Booth-Clibborn says she was imprisoned, I know something about it. I wish to say that in the time mentioned nobody was imprisoned simply for preaching the Gospel. The proof for this is the fact that representatives of different denominations—Methodists, Baptists, Plymouth Brethren, etc.,—preached the Gospel, and had churches from one end of the country to the other, without molestation. But every canton has its own laws and regulations about public demonstrations and the disturbance of public order, and it was for violation of such ordinances that Salvationists were imprisoned.

If Mrs. Booth-Clibborn and her helpers would have come to Switzerland as they came to Plainfield, you may rest assured that they not only would have been at liberty to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ, but they would have had the protection of the law and authorities.

F. KOECHLI.

The Only Road to Travel.

Are you going to Cincinnati, Louisville, Richmond or Old Point Comfort? If so travel only in a solid train of vestibule cars—composite car, day coach, dining car and Pullman sleepers—lighted with electricity and individual reading-lamps provided for every section in the drawing room and sleeping cars when desired.

Such is a description of the F. F. V. vestibule limited, which runs daily between Cincinnati, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York via the Chesapeake & Ohio route.

A vestibule sleeping car attached to the F. F. V. runs between Louisville, Lexington and Washington, and a vestibule sleeping car also runs between Cincinnati, Richmond and Old Point Comfort, through the most picturesque regions of America. For locations and tickets apply at C. & O. ticket office, 362 Broadway, New York, or address F. McConnell, passenger agent, who will call. Tickets may be secured at all Pennsylvania railroad offices. Ask for tickets via C. & O. Route and the F. F. V. limited.

The train is perfect in every respect; the sleeping and drawing room cars are of the most luxurious pattern; the service in the dining car is equal to that of any first-class hotel, and the dining car runs through with the train, not being cut off at a way station.

The scenery in the canons of New river, among the barriers of the Alleghanies, and through the Shenandoah and Piedmont valleys, is bold, grand and beautiful, and of infinite variety. The battlefields of Bull Run, Manassas and Culpeper add interest to the route.

The F. F. V. is Pullman built throughout. It is the most complete vestibule train running between the East and West, and is the only complete vestibule train with through dining car between Cincinnati and New York via the National capital.

All of nature's varied moods are within the compass of the C. & O.—the pastoral scenes of Kentucky; the calm, smooth Ohio; the mountain-encircled Kanawha, with its foaming cataract; the canon-walled and turbulent New river; the placid and picturesque Greenbrier; the fierce and passionate barriers of the Alleghanies; the Blue Ridge, with its peculiar blue haze and far-reaching fertile valleys, and the plains of Manassas, where were fought the fiercest battles of the Nation's war, are all presented in strong contrast to the traveler, who looks upon them as he speeds by in the Fast-Flying Virginian—"F. F. V."

THE CHILEAN QUESTION.

Excitement Allayed, But the Navy Department Getting Ready for Service If Necessary.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Nothing new transpired in the Chilean situation this morning, as no dispatches had been received. Secretary Tracy had nothing to give out, and at the State Department all was quiet as the grave.

Secretary Blaine was at his home, and sent work to the press that he was all right. The President's message will not go to Congress to-day, and probably not this week.

This fact has somewhat allayed excitement in Washington, and is responsible also for the belief, now finding many supporters, that Chile will at the last moment make a full apology.

The statement was made that some sort of peaceful propositions from Chile have been informally submitted for the consideration of the President and Secretary Blaine, but this is not by any means definite.

The Navy Department is going ahead with its preparations as if war were a certainty, and Secretary Tracy was almost overwhelmed with callers.

Much favorable comment is being made on Mr. Blaine's attitude in the matter, and his conciliatory course is strongly contrasted with the President's. The delicate nature of foreign intervention is fully appreciated, and talk of intercession by England arouses remembrance of how England treated Portugal.

The affair between England and Portugal was over a question as to the right of an English ship to ascend a river in Mashonaland, where the English had always claimed the right of free navigation. The Portuguese fired upon the ship—a wholly unwarranted act, as the sequel proved. What did England do? Proceed to declare war upon Portugal? No. Why not? Because Portugal was then in a state of political unrest, a revolution threatening to break out at any moment. England preferred to wait till things were settled, and then discuss the affair. But the row was not confined to Mashonaland. It spread to Lisbon. The English merchants there were attacked in the streets. The English Legation was mobbed. The English flag was insulted and torn. According to the logic of the people in this country who want to see Chile wiped off the map because some sailors got into a fight in Valparaiso, all these affronts could be avenged only by making the Portuguese Government get down on its knees at once or flooding the gutters of Lisbon with blood. England, however, kept her temper till the dangers of a revolution were over, and then she found the Portuguese Government not only willing to listen to reason, but very appreciative of the consideration shown in the trying crisis. This is held up as a lesson for the war party in the United States, and to show that England is, after all, less of a bully than some of her enemies would like to make her out.

It's All the Same.

Hon. Thos. F. Lane, of Summit, took a run down to Lakewood the other day and had a talk with President Cleveland, which he prints in the Summit Record of Saturday. The ex-president expressed his gratification at the increase in Democratic majorities in New Jersey of late years, adding: "The State's sturdy loyalty to the Democratic candidates made me ready to lend a willing ear at all times to its demands and you know they were very numerous during my term as president. But during the entire four years, it was my invariable experience, that some for office would base their plea on the fact that they were 'McPherson men', and others on the fact that they were 'Abbett men', but I don't remember any instance in which any Jerseyman asked me for an office because he was a Democrat."

Plainfield's Red Men Amateurs at Somerville.

The amateur dramatic troupe of Miantonomo Tribe, Improved Order of Red men, rendered a musical and literary entertainment last evening under the auspices of the Somerville Methodist church, in Somerset hall, to a small but appreciative audience. The various selections were so well rendered that the troupe was requested to repeat the entertainment at an early date.

An eruption, no matter how slight, warns you and every one who sees it that your blood isn't pure. If you're wise, you'll heed the warning. You'll look about for a remedy.

And this is what you'll find: plenty of medicines advertised to purify the blood, but just one that's guaranteed—and that is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It's a medicine that does what is promised for it—that's the reason. It rouses every organ into healthy action, purifies and enriches the blood, and through it cleanses and renews the entire system. All Blood, Skin and Scalp Diseases, from a common eruption to the worst Scrofula are cured by it. For Tetter, Salt-rheum, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Enlarged Glands, Tumors, and Swellings, it's an unequaled remedy.

If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back. You pay only for the good you get.

Mr. Vincent's Third Lecture.

At Assembly hall, last evening, Mr. Vincent delivered his third lecture on American Literature, taking for his subject Nathaniel Hawthorne.

The lecture—or more properly "study"—abounded in word-pictures; at every turn the audience was brought face to face with the author of the "Scarlet Letter". At the beginning of this study Mr. Vincent quoted a German philosopher who said that this rule was universally true, that the person of genius was inclined to melancholy and was very simple and plain in his manners and character. By showing these traits to be true of Hawthorne, the lecturer conclusively proved that Hawthorne was a genius and one of the three or four American writers who can be placed on a level with those of other countries.

Mr. Vincent had the closest attention of the audience during the evening to this the best lecture he has so far delivered. His next lecture will be on Emerson, at Assembly hall, the 21st inst., at 8.

"Alas! Alas!" the dude exclaims "in my slender ankle I've got pains." "Don't fret," said ma, for whom he had sent, "I have some Salvation Oil."

"My time is up," said the doctor to the patient, whom he found using Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, and he was correct, for his cough had been cured.

PASTOR DILL HOPEFUL.

He Wears a Sprig of Lilies and a Bright and Hopeful Smile.

A refreshing change came over the nature of the proceedings yesterday afternoon when the trial of the Rev. A. C. Dill, accused of immoral behavior, was resumed before the Presbytery in Morristown. The testimony of the witnesses was all in parson Dill's favor, and not a little was accomplished towards counteracting the many hard things said about his conduct on the previous days of the trial.

Much of the testimony was about the arrest of Mr. Cooper, the demented old man who took Ada Leonard into the church on a week-day night. The witnesses for the prosecution alleged that Mr. Dill had advised Ada Leonard to go with Cooper and then had laid the trap for his arrest.

Miss Lillie Cozine and Miss Georgie Cozine, her sister, both testified that old Mr. Cooper had annoyed them constantly with his advances. He had written a letter asking Lillie Cozine to go to the chapel with him on a week-day night. The girls both denied that Mr. Dill had advised them to have anything to do with Mr. Cooper. They also testified that his conduct towards them had always been irreproachable.

Constable James A. Havey of Stirling testified that Dill had no connection whatever with Cooper's arrest. A number of the girls had complained to him about Mr. Cooper's behavior, and Lillie Cozine had shown him Mr. Cooper's letter.

On the night in question, just after he had finished his supper, a messenger came from Mrs. Leonard asking him to come to her house. Mrs. Leonard said that Mr. Cooper had asked her daughter to go to the chapel with him that night and Mrs. Leonard thought that something ought to be done about Mr. Cooper. The constable advised Mrs. Leonard to let her daughter go with Mr. Cooper, assuring her that he and policeman Conkling of Morristown, who was then in Stirling, would be on hand at the chapel to protect her in case that should be necessary. After they arrested Mr. Cooper in the church they took him to the Morristown jail without seeing Mr. Dill, or receiving any word from him whatever.

Alfred Laessig testified that after Mr. Cooper's arrest he went to notify Mr. Dill, who was at a prayer meeting in Millington. He had received no previous instructions from the pastor. His motive was to get Mr. Dill to go to Mr. Cooper's family and to Ada Leonard, who was considerably overcome, for the purpose of comforting them. When Mr. Dill reached Stirling, Mr. Cooper had already been taken to Morristown. The minister told Laessig that he would go to Mrs. Leonard's and to Mr. Cooper's family and do all he could to comfort them. He expressed his sorrow that the trouble had occurred, and he said he would do what he could to get Mr. Cooper out.

Ada Leonard, who went with Mr. Cooper to the church, is a sweet-looking young girl, 17 years old, with dark hair. Elder Joel Bebout is the presbyter who gave testimony against Mr. Dill on the opening day of this trial. After Miss Leonard had testified yesterday about the Cooper incident, and said that Mr. Dill was not at all concerned in it, elder Bebout said to her:

"When you went with Mr. Cooper to the church that night, Miss Leonard, did n't you think you were doing wrong? Did n't you have any idea what Mr. Cooper's intentions were?"

"No, Mr. Bebout"—the young girl replied.—"If you or Mr. Torrey at that time had asked me to go to church with you I would have gone without any hesitation. But now if you asked me I'd be frightened out of my wits."

This was greeted with laughter, and presbyter Bebout asked no more questions.

Mrs. Augustus Leonard, Miss Leonard's mother, corroborated her daughter's statement that Mr. Dill had no part in the so-called Cooper conspiracy. She said that if she had not been ill at the time Mr. Cooper would never have been arrested. She is a large, powerful woman, and she said she would have given him a piece of her mind. She said that Mr. Dill had never been guilty of the slightest breach of conduct as long as she had known him.

"Did Mr. Dill ever pass the night at your house?"—the prosecuting counsel asked.

"Yes: he stayed one night at my house, but it was because the White Cap boys had taken the nuts off the wheels of his wagon and he could n't get home."

Mr. Dill wore a spray of lilies of the valley in his buttonhole yesterday. He and his counsel appeared jubilant over the testimony brought out by the witnesses. The opinion seems to be gaining ground that the accused pastor will be acquitted, but with a reprimand.

House and Barn Burned—Man Missing.

Information comes from Warrenville that Mr. Renoux is still missing, and that his barn and house were burned to the ground last Thursday morning at 10. The barn was found afire first, then the upper part of the house burst out in flames; a shower of dry leaves dropped down from the garret, and a lot of brush and a large oil can were discovered there. It all had a very suspicious look. No one was home at the time.

I have used Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills for Dyspepsia, etc., and have been cured by them. I cheerfully recommend them to all who suffer from the same.—STEPHEN BURHANS, sexton Wayne street Reformed church, Jersey City.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

F. W. RUNYON, City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 19, 1892.

AN ORDINANCE

To License Inns and Taverns and to Regulate and Prohibit the sale of Spirituous and Fermented Liquors.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. All applications for license to keep an inn and tavern within said city shall be in writing, addressed to the Common Council, shall be signed by the person or persons desiring such license, shall state the purpose for which a license is asked, and the place wherein such business is proposed to be carried on, and a certificate shall be annexed thereto, signed by at least ten reputable citizens and freeholders of said city (three of whom shall reside within one thousand feet of the place proposed for license, and all of whom shall be residents of the same ward in which the business is to be carried on), who have not within one year theretofore signed any similar certificate, stating that the applicant is known to them to be of good repute for honesty and temperance, and provided with at least two spare rooms with beds, bedding and furniture more than are necessary for the use of applicant's family.

Sec. 2. Before any person or persons shall receive a license to keep an inn or tavern within said city, such person or persons shall become bound by recognizance in writing to the "Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield" in the sum of one hundred dollars as principal, with two sufficient sureties, being freeholders within said city, in the sum of fifty dollars each, to be taken before the City Judge in or out of court, with condition following, to wit: The condition of this recognizance is such that whereas, the above bounden A. B. is licensed by the Common Council of said city of Plainfield to keep an inn and tavern within said city until the first day of March next ensuing the date hereof, if therefore the said A. B. during the continuance of the said license shall not keep a disorderly inn and tavern, nor game himself, nor suffer any person to game in said inn and tavern for money or the value of money, nor violate the laws made concerning inns and taverns, but shall during the said term in all things respecting him as an innholder and tavern-keeper, use and maintain good order and rule, and find and provide good, wholesome and sufficient lodging, diet and entertainment for man, and stabling and provender for horse, and observe the directions of the law relating to inns and taverns, then this recognizance to be void, or else to remain in full force and virtue.

Sec. 3. Every inn and tavern-keeper licensed under the provisions of the foregoing sections, shall be liable to the same conditions, requirements and restrictions as are imposed upon inn and tavern-keepers under the general law of the State; provided, that no such license shall be taken or construed as authorizing the sale, by such inn and tavern-keeper, of any spirituous or fermented liquors.

Sec. 4. That license may be granted to any person duly licensed to keep an inn and tavern in said city to sell spirituous and fermented liquors in his inn and tavern; all applications for such license shall be in writing addressed to the Common Council, signed by the applicant, setting forth the purpose for which such license is asked, and the inn and tavern wherein such business is purposed to be carried on, and such application shall have a certificate annexed thereto, signed by at least ten reputable citizens and freeholders of said city (three of whom reside within one thousand feet of the said inn and tavern), and all of whom shall be residents of the same ward in which the business is to be carried on, stating that the applicant is known to them to be of good repute for honesty and temperance, and thereupon the said Common Council may, in their discretion, grant such license; provided, that the said certificate may be signed by the same citizens and freeholders as have already signed the certificate required to be annexed to his application for license to keep an inn and tavern; and provided further, that before any license is granted to sell spirituous and fermented liquors as provided for by the ordinance, the Clerk of the Common Council shall have caused or shall cause to be inserted in each official newspaper in the city, within ten days after such application was or is made, a notice in the following form, with the blank spaces properly filled in, to wit:

Plainfield, N. J. ....18..

Notice is hereby given that.................. has applied to the Common Council of the City of Plainfield for a license to sell spirituous and fermented liquors at No..............street, which application is signed by.................. ....citizens and freeholders: All persons knowing of any reasons why such license should not be granted, are requested to make known the same in writing, to the City Clerk, on or before the.....day of....., 18.., and the expense of publishing such notice shall be added to the fee required to be paid and shall be paid by the applicant for such license, before receiving such license; and all communications which may be received by the City Clerk in response to any such request, shall be by him immediately delivered to the Committee on Licenses of the Common Council, if there be such committee, or if not, to the Common Council.

Sec. 5. That saloon-keepers and persons other than inn and tavern-keepers may, in the discretion of the Common Council, be licensed under this ordinance to sell spirituous and fermented liquors within said city. All applications for such license shall be in writing, and made as required by the next preceding section in the case of inn and tavern-keepers, and the owner of the place proposed for license (if the applicant be not the owner) must be one of the signers to the certificate required to be annexed to the application. Such certificate shall be signed only by reputable citizens and freeholders of said city, who have not within one year theretofore signed any similar certificate. In every certificate annexed to applications for license to sell spirituous and fermented liquors within said city, whether by inn and tavern-keepers, saloon-keepers or other persons, every freeholder recommending the granting of such license shall clearly designate the street in which he lives, and in what part thereof he lives, and also the location and nature of, and his interest in, the real property by virtue of the ownership of which he shall sign such certificate; and further, the signature of every freeholder to every such certificate shall be witnessed by some reputable person, whose affidavit, setting forth the fact that he saw said freeholder sign said certificate, shall be attached to said certificate before being presented to the Council; and no license whatever shall be granted unless the application therefor and the certificate thereto annexed shall be in compliance with all the requirements under this ordinance. No person shall be deemed competent to sign the certificate first referred to in this section who shall, within one year theretofore, have signed a certificate annexed to any application for license to keep an inn and tavern, or to sell spirituous and fermented liquors therein, and no woman, and no man who from illiteracy is unable to read and write the English language, shall be deemed competent to sign any of the certificates required by this ordinance, or any part thereof, except in the case of the owner of the place proposed for license when under this ordinance such owner's signature is made necessary, nor shall any woman be deemed competent to receive a license under this ordinance.

Sec. 6 That before receiving any license provided in the last preceding section, the person licensed shall become bound by recognizance in writing to the inhabitants of the City of Plainfield in the sum of two hundred dollars as principal, with two sufficient sureties in the sum of one hundred dollars each, conditioned as follows, to wit: The condition of this recognizance is such that whereas the above bounden A. B. is licensed to sell spirituous and fermented liquors at .... on .... street, in the City of Plainfield, until the first day of March next ensuing the date hereof, if therefore the said A. B. during the continuance of said license shall not keep a disorderly house, nor game himself, nor suffer any person to game in said house for money or the value of money, nor violate any of the provisions of this ordinance, or the ordinances of said city made or to be made concerning the business whereunto the said A. B. is licensed as aforesaid, but shall in all things during the continuance of said license keep and maintain good order and rule in his said place of business, and in all things comply with and observe the provisions of the ordinances of said city now made and to be made concerning such business, then this recognizance to be void, else to be and remain in full force and virtue.

Sec. 7. Licenses to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors in any quantity from one quart to five gallons may be granted under this ordinance, upon the applicant presenting to the Common Council written application therefor, signed by such applicant and setting forth the purpose for which such license is asked, and the place in which the applicant proposes to conduct his business, accompanied by a certificate recommending the applicant to be a fit and suitable person to be licensed, signed by at least five freeholders in and residents of the city of Plainfield, three of whom reside in the same ward in which said proposed place of business is situated and within one thousand feet of said proposed place of business of said applicant; but no such license shall be taken or construed to authorize any such licensed person to suffer or permit any of said liquors, sold under and in pursuance of such license, to be drunk on or about the premises where sold; and no person not licensed under this section shall sell, furnish or supply any spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors to persons or families in dwellings, under a penalty of a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding sixty days, either or both, for each and every offense. That every licensed person engaged in furnishing or supplying liquors to persons or families in dwellings, shall carry with him while so engaged the license for inspection, under the penalty of five dollars for every neglect so to do; and when the licensee shall find it necessary in the prosecution of his business to use more than one vehicle for the delivery of spirituous, vinous, malt and brewed liquors, or any of them theretofore ordered from such licensee at his place of business, the city clerk shall issue to such licensee a certificate for every additional vehicle, which certificate shall be carried by the driver of such vehicle for inspection, under the penalty of five dollars for every neglect so to do. The city clerk shall demand such evidence as he may deem necessary before issuing any certificate. That the loan of any certificate aforesaid to any person not authorized to use the same, shall subject the offender to the penalty of a revocation of the license under which the certificate is issued.

Sec. 8. If any person licensed under this ordinance shall be convicted of being drunk in his own licensed place of business, such person may be fined in any sum not exceeding twenty dollars; and such conviction shall be sufficient cause for the revocation of such license by the Common Council.

Sec. 9. No person or persons licensed under this ordinance shall permit any drunkenness, riot or other disorderly conduct in his, her or their licensed place of business, or on his, her, or their premises; and any person offending against the provisions of this section shall, upon conviction thereof before the City Judge be fined, for the first offense, in any sum not exceeding twenty dollars, and for each subsequent offense in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars.

Sec. 10. Every person licensed under this ordinance shall, within one month from date of the license, put up or fix a sign on the front of the place licensed, with his, her or the firm's (if it be a firm) name thereon; and shall keep such sign up during the whole period of the licence; and shall also cause the said license to be properly framed and hung up to public view in the public room of the place licensed.

Sec. 11. If any person or persons not licensed according to the provisions of this ordinance shall expose for sale, sell or dispose of, or cause or permit to be exposed for sale, sold or disposed of, directly or indirectly, within said city, any spirituous or fermented liquors, or any composition of which spirituous or fermented liquors shall form a part (except such as shall be compounded and intended for use as medicine) such person or persons shall be deemed guilty of an offense, and upon conviction thereof before the City Judge shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisoned for any term not exceeding sixty days, either or both, at the discretion of the Court; provided, that said prosecution shall be begun within six months from the date of the commission of such offense; and provided further, that nothing in this ordinance shall be construed to apply to druggists filling prescriptions from practicing physicians, or to prohibit any person from selling metheglin, currant or other native wine made by the seller.

Sec. 12. No person or persons licensed under this ordinance shall carry on the business or trade for which such license was granted in any other place than that designated in said license, nor shall such license be assigned or transferred, nor shall such licensed person or persons assume to give authority or permission to any other person or persons to carry on such licensed business, but such license as to any and all other persons and places than those named therein shall be void, and any person or persons who in disregard of the prohibitions of this section shall carry on any such business under a license so assigned or transferred, or under an authority or permission thus given, shall be liable to the same penalties as may be inflicted upon persons selling without license.

Sec. 13. No person or persons licensed under this ordinance shall, between the hours of eleven o'clock at night and six o'clock the following morning or upon the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, sell or offer, or expose for sale or furnish, or permit to be sold, offered or exposed for sale or furnished to any person or persons, any spirituous or fermented liquors of any kind or any composition thereof, or at any time sell, offer or expose for sale, or furnish or permit to be offered or exposed for sale, sold or furnished any of such liquors or any compound thereof, to any minor, intoxicated or weak-minded person, nor shall such licensed person or persons at any time incite, encourage or permit any game or device to be played, practiced or carried on within such licensed place, or in any shed, out-house or other place in the occupancy of such licensed person (billiards or nine-pins, if named in such license, alone excepted), or any betting or gaming for money or anything of any value whatever: and any person convicted of a violation of any of the provisions of this section shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisoned for any term not exceeding sixty days, either or both, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 14. All prosecutions under this ordinance shall be by affidavit or information filed before the City Judge, and in all cases where said prosecution shall be for the offering for sale, selling or exposing for sale or otherwise disposing of any spirituous or fermented liquors, it shall be sufficient in such affidavit or information to describe such liquors as spirituous or fermented liquors, as the case may be, without specifying particularly the kind or description thereof, and evidence may be given upon the trial of the sale, offering for sale or otherwise disposing of any particular kind of liquor included in the general description so given. All such information shall be brought by the Corporation Counsel in the name of "The Treasurer of the City of Plainfield." And whenever a fine shall be imposed and collected for violation of any of the provisions of this ordinance, one-half of such fine shall be paid to the person making the complaint upon which the conviction for such violation shall have been had, and the other half thereof shall be paid to the City Treasurer for the use of the city.

Sec. 15. In all cases of the prosecution of any person licensed under this ordinance for any offense against any of the provisions thereof, it shall be the duty of the Judge, upon conviction of such licensed person, to declare his recognizance forfeited.

Sec. 16. All licenses under this ordinance shall be granted by resolution of the Common Council, be made out by the City Clerk, signed by the Mayor, issued under the common seal of the city, attested by the City Clerk, and shall continue in force until the first day of March next after the date of such license, and no longer provided, that any person duly licensed to keep an inn and tavern may be granted license to sell spirituous and fermented liquors in his said inn and tavern for the six months beginning May first and ending November first of the year in which said license is granted, and such license shall expire on the said first day of November, and at all licenses shall be subject to be revoked any time by resolution of the Common Council for a violation or neglect of any of the provisions of this ordinance, or of any other ordinance which the Common Council may pass relative to the business authorized by such license, and it shall be the duty of the City Clerk to furnish immediately to the person or persons whose license shall be so revoked a copy of such resolution, and any person acting under such license, after notice of the revocation thereof, shall be liable to all the penalties imposed by this ordinance as fully as though no such license had ever been issued. Before receiving such license, the applicant shall be required to sign in duplicate a stipulation to be written, printed or stamped, both on the face of said license and on the stub to which the same is attached as follows: "I hereby agree to be bound by and to conform to all the ordinances of the City of Plainfield, under which this license is granted, under penalty of forfeiture of this license."

Sec. 17. Before receiving a license issued under this ordinance, the licensed person or persons shall pay the following fees: To the Mayor and City Clerk each one dollar, and in addition the following fees, viz: For each license to an inn and tavern-keeper to sell spirituous or fermented liquors, the sum of seven hundred dollars ($700) when said license is to expire on the first day of March, following, and the sum of four hundred dollars when said license is to expire on the first day of November following, provided that persons licensed to keep an inn and tavern without the privilege of selling spirituous and fermented liquors, shall not be required to pay any fees except those to the Mayor and City Clerk. For each license to a person other than an inn and tavern-keeper to sell spirituous and fermented liquors, the sum of seven hundred dollars ($700). For each other place licensed to sell spirituous and fermented liquors, in quantities as provided in section seven (7) of this ordinance, the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250) provided, that all license fees under this ordinance, other than those to the Mayor and City Clerk, shall be paid to the City Treasurer and his receipt shown to the Mayor before such license shall issue; and provided further, that no such license shall be of any validity whatever until such license fees are in fact paid to the City Treasurer; and on failure to pay any such fees within twenty days from the time the Common Council shall have granted any such application for license the said action of said Common Council shall no longer authorize the issuance of a license under said application to the person failing to pay as aforesaid, unless the Common Council at the first meeting following the expiration of said twenty days shall so direct.

Sec. 18. The City Clerk shall keep a correct list of all licenses issued under this ordinance in a book to be provided for that purpose, in which shall be entered the name of the licensed person or persons, the business for which said license has been given, and the names of the freeholders and citizens certifying to the application for such license; which book shall, at all reasonable times, be open to the inspection of any citizen of said city desiring to examine the same.

Sec. 19. No person licensed under this ordinance shall keep open or cause or permit to be kept open his bar room or room in which spirituous or fermented liquors are customarily sold or permit persons to congregate therein between the hours of eleven o'clock at night and six o'clock of the following morning, and any person convicted of violating this section shall be liable to a fine of one hundred dollars or imprisonment for a term not exceeding sixty days or both.

Sec. 20. That no person licensed to sell spirituous or fermented liquors shall suffer or permit in his bar-room or any other room in which spirituous or fermented liquors are sold by him, or in any adjoining room connected therewith, any musical performance of any kind, vocal or instrumental, or both, or any mechanical music, or any acting, dancing, juggling, slight of hand, boxing, wrestling, or any similar performance, show or exhibition.

Sec. 21. Every person licensed to sell spirituous or fermented liquors shall so arrange the doors, windows and partitions of his bar-room or saloon that a full and unobstructed view of the interior thereof, including the bar, may be had from the street through the doors or windows, or both, between the hours of 11 p. m. each and every Saturday and 6 a. m. the following Monday. And no window, blind, screen, partition, curtain or other article shall be so left or placed as to prevent between the hours named the full and unobstructed view from the street of the interior of said saloon or barroom.

Sec 22. No person licensed to sell spirituous or fermented liquors shall at any time sell or dispose of spirituous or fermented liquors from any bar that cannot, between the hours named in Section 21, be plainly seen from the streets.

Sec. 23. Every violation of any of the provisions of the three next preceding sections of this ordinance shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding sixty days or both, at the discretion of the court.

Sec. 24. That all ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith be and the same are hereby repealed. Provided that no offense committed and no liability or penalty incurred previous to the time when this ordinance shall go into effect, shall be discharged or affected by anything in this ordinance contained; and all proceedings and prosecution for such offenses, liabilities and penalties shall be instituted or proceeded with as the case may be in all respects as if the ordinance had not been adopted.

EACH PART HAS TWO PLAYERS.

So the Park Club Entertainment Is Bound to be a Go.

The final details of the amateur dramatic entertainment to be given Thursday evening have now been completed, and everything has been carefully arranged so as to insure a very complete and thoroughly enjoyable performance. As a precaution in case of illness on the part of any of the performers, and to prevent the grip from interfering in such an emergency with the success of the entertainment, each character has been studied by two persons, so that even a very general attack of the prevailing malady has been provided against.

The programme, as arranged, is the most extensive one that has ever been presented here by amateur actors, including, as it does, three plays and two musical interludes, all of which will be given in rapid succession, without any intermissions or waits.

One of the musical features will be banjo solos by George W. Gregory of New York, who is considered one of the cleverest players of that instrument in the metropolis. The other musical numbers on the programme will consist of comic songs by Evert Jansen Wendell of New York, who also stands at the head of amateur entertainers in this line.

The incidental music and the selections during the evening will be conducted by Louis J. Cornu, orchestra-leader of the Standard theatre, New York, who will bring his own musicians. In all, twenty persons will be brought from the city to assist in the performance, in its various branches, in addition to the local players, by whom the concluding play will be acted.

The Park club members are confident of an artistic success in this, their first entertainment, while the large advance sale of tickets already guarantees a financial success as well. A few tickets are still on public sale at Reynolds's pharmacy.

GOOD WALT WHITMAN.

The Aged Poet Trembling on the Verge of the Grave.

His Abandonment of Ordinary Forms of Poetic Expression and Creation of a New Meter—His Contributions to Literature.

With the new year the life of Walt Whitman, the beloved poet of the new era of literature, trembles upon the verge of the grave, and it is too evident that his "Last Words" given to the press a few months ago will be indeed the last message that the public will ever receive from him. He has traveled two mile stones past the three score and ten span allotted to man's life, and upon his last birth anniversary, May 31, he expressed his weariness of age and physical suffering, and his longing to enter into that rest whither have preceded him Lowell, Bryant, Longfellow, Emerson and the other friends and companions of his youth and early manhood.

Although his death, which cannot be far distant as he is suffering from a complication of diseases and a third shock of paralysis, will be deeply mourned by those who know him personally and correctly understand his writings, the majority of his contemporaries will not comprehend that in him poetic literature loses a master singer, says the Chicago Graphic.

Like Longfellow in "Hiawatha," Whitman abandoned ordinary forms of poetic expression and created a new meter. This meter, however, bears no resemblance to any other in literature, and is a compromise between rythmical prose and true verse, having a wonderful vigor and expressiveness and giving a clear idea of the images in the author's mind, untrammeled by conventionality. Everywhere he was assailed by ridicule. Parodies of his productions were printed in newspapers upon both sides of the Atlantic, and even now there are many eminent critics who abuse Whitman's style and consider it rather a literary monstrosity than the production of a great mind striving to give original thought, vim and expression.

The dramatic quality of many of Whitman's shorter poems is remarkable, and his imagination that of a Dore. They are not written merely to please by the beauty they present to the mind or the music to the ear, but to stir the depths of human emotion, to inspire to noble thinking and living. It is for this reason that Whitman is the poet of man rather than nature. His themes are moral, social and political problems of the age, and upon them he speaks fearlessly, caring nothing for the mock modesty of the over-squeamish, nor the hatred and opposition of the fanatic.

His "Leaves of Grass" is the work which is his best exponent, and Emerson considered it the greatest work in our literature. It was condemned by the Massachusetts authorities on account of its plain speaking upon many subjects, and is comparatively little known in America; but in England is widely read and admired.

Walter Whitman was born May 31, 1819, in West Hills, L. I., and in his early manhood was engaged in the newspaper business in Huntington, L. I., and in New Orleans. He traveled extensively in the United States and Canada on foot, and recorded the impressions that he received in his various journeys. His brother was wounded on the battlefield, and Whitman joined him in camp in 1862, and remained as a volunteer army nurse until the close of the war, undergoing fatigue, night-watching and privations that rendered him an invalid for the remainder of his life. His disposition is sweet, his tastes simple, and few men have been so well beloved by his personal friends and relatives. The most noted men of two hemispheres have visited him at his home in Camden, and he has been aptly called "the Merlin of the modern Table Round of the literature."

A Lady Who Enjoys Voting.

Mrs. Helen M. Warren, wife of Senator Warren, of Wyoming, has voted for twenty years. She says that it is no more trouble to perform this duty at the polls than it would be to enter a theater or a church. She is authority, too, for the statement that in Wyoming, where the Australian ballot system is used, the women make fewer mistakes than the men. Neither do they aspire to office, but are willing to elect men if they are good men. Husband and wife disagree politically sometime, but no serious disadvantages have arisen from it. Women have served on the jury in Wyoming, but not recently. They have had one woman justice of the peace and several county superintendents. At the time of the statehood celebration women had prominent places on the programme, one lady orator won well-deserved laurels and two companies of girl guards escorted the car of state in the procession.

Sunday Callers Not Welcome.

A man in Lincoln county, Me., who dislikes too much company, has removed the elevated walk by which his front door was reached and goes in by way of a ladder at the back, drawing in the ladder after him. He has also posted this sign: "No callers wanted on the Sabbath. It is the Lord's day—a day of rest."

COLUMBUS MONUMENT.

A Work of Exquisite Beauty Designed for the Chicago Fair.

The design of a monument to Columbus has, by the request of Harlow N. Higinbotham, of Chicago, been drawn up by M. Godebski, the celebrated Parisian sculptor, and sent to the world's fair authorities in Chicago. The design, says the Chicago Graphic, provides for a quadrangular terrace at each angle of which a lamp post may be placed. The monument proper is approached by four long steps and consists of a pedestal with suitable medallions and inscriptions.

Bas-reliefs illustrating the principal events in the life of the great navigator adorn the sides of the pedestal. These bas-reliefs commemorate the entrance of Columbus and his son Diego into Spain upon that mission that was fraught with such stupendous consequences to future ages; the interview of Columbus with Ferdinand and Isabella and the unfolding of his design to them and to the court; Columbus' return to Europe and the triumphal cortege that accompanied him to the court of the Spanish king.

The principal front of the base shows the prow of a vessel terminated by a figure holding in each hand a torch to light the discoverer upon his way, and above and back of the ship's prow is a group showing Columbus and his companions discovering the new land. The principal group, as well as the three statues, is on a pylone which rises in the middle of the monument and serves as a pedestal for Columbus. This pedestal is crowned with an entablature ornamented by modillions and the real column rests on a slightly raised circular stylobate decorated with encarpus. This is canulle at least one-third of the way up, whence it is ornamented by emblems formed of anchors and crowns, intermingled with olive branches, and terminates with a top piece that supports four eagles, each holding in its claws an American shield and bearing on their outspread wings a globe on which sits Genius holding a crown above the head of Columbus. Lastly, an American flag held by eagle's talons fronts the principal part of the monument and floats over the column.

The total height of the monument, not including the terrace—that is to say, reckoning from the base to the summit—will be 98 feet. All the architectural work will be executed in clear white marble and all the decorative parts will be in bronze, with the American shields enameled in their heraldic colors, the same being true as regards the flag and the globe supported by the gilded eagles.

MAGIC AT HOME.

An Amazing Illustration of a Familiar Law of Mechanics.

Our illustration supplies without the need of explanation the solution of the problem, how to balance a pencil on its point.

You have merely to dig the blade of a half open penknife into the pencil a little above the point, and to open or close the blade, little by little, till you find that the balance is obtained. The combination of pencil and penknife thus placing itself in equilibrium is an illustration of a familiar law of mechanics; the center of gravity of the combination falls below the point of support

BALANCING A PENCIL ON ITS POINT.

(the finger, edge of table or the like), and thus stable equilibrium is obtained.

By varying the degrees of opening the penknife, you impart corresponding degrees of inclination to the pencil. When the center of gravity of the two combined falls in the same line as the axis of the pencil, the latter will assume a perpendicular position.

Various Measurements.

The foot is named from the length of that member in a full-grown man. It was a standard of measurement used by the ancient Egyptians. The cubit, Latin cubitus, an elbow, is a Roman standard of length from the point of the elbow to the end of the middle finger. Fathom is from the old Aryan root, fat, to extend, and denotes the distance from tip to tip when the arms of an average-sized man are fully extended. The palm was a measure of length used by the Romans. Its length was about 8¼ inches.

FIGHT FOR THE PLUM

National Democratic Convention Battle Under Way.

CLAIMS TO BE HEARD TO-NIGHT.

The National Committee Now Holding an Executive Session.

Who Will Present the Advantages of the Contesting Cities—The Day for Holding the Convention to be Settled First—Milwaukee's Claim—Kansas City Confident of Winning on the First Ballot—What New York Agrees to Do—June 21 Reported as the Date.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Shortly after noon, Senator Brice, as Chairman, called the National Democratic Committee to order at the Arlington Hotel. The full committee consists of forty-eight members, but of these but forty-four were present or represented by proxy, the States of North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, and the Territory of Utah not being represented at the meeting.

Immediately after the meeting had been called to order, Commissioner Ross, representing the District of Columbia, delivered the address of welcome. This was briefly responded to by Mr. Brice, after which the committee went into executive session. It is understood that the question as to who shall represent Pennsylvania on the committee is now being discussed.

At 3 o'clock the committee will adjourn to partake of a luncheon provided by the local Democratic reception committee. It will reassemble at 5 o'clock. Until that hour little or no business of a public character will be transacted. It is probable then if the committee in the meantime has selected the day for holding the National Convention that the claims of the various cities will be presented.

The claims of the several cities will be presented as follows: Cincinnati—W. M. Ramsay, L. E. Neal and J. F. Follett; Kansas City—Gov. Francis, Senator Vest and G. F. Putnam; Indianapolis—Senator Turpie and Chas L. Jewett; St. Paul—D. W. Lawler, Ansel Oppenheim and Thos. Wilson; Detroit—Ex-Congressmen Chipman and Whiting; Milwaukee—Gov. Peck and two others yet to be selected; New York—Bourke Cochran and one to be selected; Chicago—Congressman Cable; San Francisco—M. F. Tarpey.

It is reported that the National Committee will call the National Convention to meet on June 21, just two weeks later than the Republican Convention on June 7.

The supporters of the Cream City claim that among all the other delegations, Milwaukee stands second in their choice for the Convention. "There is one good reason," said one of their members this morning, "why we should get the Convention. Since 1878, and up to within a few years ago, Wisconsin has been a solid Republican State, but now the Democratic party claim as their reward a majority of the Congressional delegation as well as the Governor and other State officers. We think the Democratic party should recognize our victory by sending the Convention to Milwaukee which would tend not only to convert more citizens to Democratic principles, but hold in line those already converted.

The Kansas City delegation are quite cheerful as to the result of the committee's selection. The members assert that Kansas City will receive enough votes on the first ballot to lead all their competitors.

"Instead of losing our strength," said a member of the delegation, "we have received several accessions to-day, and hope to receive many votes which are as yet uncommitted before the committee takes a vote."

The New York delegation will present the following to the National Committee:

"The citizens of New York agree to furnish a convention hall capable of accommodating 20,000 persons, with perfect acoustics, together with ample accommodations for committees, and to defray all the expenses of the procuring of the same.

"To furnish a complete and perfect telegraphic system to the convention and to all of its committees free of any cost to the members thereof.

"To furnish a complete stenographic service to the convention and to its committees, and to provide all necessary printing for the proper and convenient discharge of the business of the convention.

"They guarantee ample accommodations for 100,000 visitors without exposing either delegates or those who may attend the convention to the inconvenience of sleeping upon cots or in crowded rooms.

"They guarantee that the hotel proprietors will make no advance whatever in prices during the holding of the convention."

Suit Against General Banks.

BOSTON, Jan. 21.—Proceedings will shortly be begun in the United States courts against General Banks to recover the amount of the deficit which was alleged in regard to the accounts of his office when he held the position of United States Marshal several years ago. There will be no criminal stage whatever to the litigation. It will, in all probability, be an action of contract in which the Government will endeavor to hold the General responsible for the amount that fell below par in his accounts. The sum is stated to be between $3,000 and $4,000.

Tennessee Trying to Sell the Mines.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 21.—Negotiations are pending for the sale of the three mines at Coal Creek, Briceville and Oliver Springs, where the recent uprising of the miners occurred and where the militia of Tennessee is encamped. The State is trying to get out of the trouble by selling the mines to the Tennessee Coal & Iron company. If this is done the convict question will be forever settled and there will be no war, since free labor will work the mines.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

The Senators in Contempt Censured—Enumeration Bill Signed.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 21.—The Judiciary Committee of the Senate handed down the following report in the cases of Senators O'Connor, Saxton and Erwin, accused of contempt:

The offense in the instances under consideration was both deliberate and defiant, as shown by the acts and language of the Senators, and when committed by Senators of long service here and experience in public affairs, who took part in framing the very rule they violated, it cannot but be regarded as an affront to the dignity of the Senate, which deserves and should receive deliberate censure. A breach of order recognized in the Manual if persisted in by a Senator becomes a contempt beyond all question.

Therefore your committee submit the following resolutions:

Resolved—That Mr. Senator Erwin, Mr. Senator Saxton and Mr. Senator O'Connor, for refusing to vote on a pending question, after their respective requests to be excused therefrom had been denied by the Senate, and for which said refusal they were rightfully declared in contempt, be and each of them is hereby declared censured, and further, that the suspension heretofore ordered against the said Senators, and each of them, be continued until the opening of the session of the Senate on the morning of Thursday, the 21st inst.

Senator Mullin said that everything had been rushed so that he hardly had time to dissent and he desired that the Senate give him until Thursday at 11 o'clock to present a minority report. This was granted.

Upon motion of Mr. Roesch the report was adopted.

Upon the question Senator Coggeshall made a long speech, in which he said that it was an unprecedented, unwarranted, arbitrary, brutal use of power. He voted no. The vote on adoption of the report was 17 ayes and 9 noes.

The Enumeration bill was passed in the Assembly by a vote of 68 to 55.

Gov. Flower in the afternoon signed the Enumeration bill, and it is now a law. By its provisions the Secretary of State is to appoint before Feb. 8 one enumerator for each election district of the State. The blanks are to be printed and sent to the enumerators so that they can begin work on Feb. 16, and work is to be completed by the 29th of the month. Returns are to be made to the Secretary of State by March 2, and as soon as practicable the report is to be forwarded to the Legislature in completed form. Enumerators are to receive one cent per capita for their work and $2.50 per day while preparing their report.

GOV. BULKELEY RECOGNIZED.

Connecticut's Senate at Last Hears a Communication from Him.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 21.—There were only four Republicans besides Speaker Paige in the House at 1 o'clock in the afternoon when it was called to order. In pursuance of the rules when there was no quorum, the Speaker adjourned the House for a week.

The Senate met at 1 o'clock and for the first time since it was organized, recognized Gov. Bulkeley. The Governor sent a communication to the Senate calling their attention to the fact that there are only four Judges on the Superior Court bench, and asking them to act on his reappointment of Judges Fenn and Sanford.

Clerk Comstock read the communication and a lively debate followed, Senators Cleveland, Clark, Holden and Starkweather participating. This lasted an hour and a-half. The Democrats wanted to lay the communication on the table.

This is the first time that a communication from Gov. Bulkeley has been read to the present Senate, the Clerk usually throwing them in the waste basket as soon as they were received. The communication was finally laid on the table.

The New Breakwater.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—The plans for the new harbor of refuge which it is proposed to construct in Delaware Bay, have been prepared by the United States engineers in this city and forwarded to Washington. The new breakwater will be located two miles north of and two miles out from the present breakwater, and will be one and a-half miles in length, to which a number of isolated piers will extend a distance of half a mile. These will be built to catch the ice coming from the Delaware river and bay, and will serve the same purpose as those at Marcus Hook and Newcastle. The new structure will afford a safe anchorage for from six hundred to eight hundred ships of the largest size. Its cost is estimated at from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000.

A Life and Death Council.

TOPEKA, [illegible] suspicion that there was an organized conspiracy to kill Judge Botkin, Attorney Plumb, Sheriff Dunn and two or three others has been substantiated. In Haskell, Grant, Stevens and Seward counties there is a society, members of which are bound by oath to carry out the mandates of a so-called council of life and death on pain of losing his own life. Judge Botkin is said to have one of their cipher letters, in which his name is mentioned.

OUR LITTLE TROUBLE

No Change in the Chilian Situation To-Day.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

It Will Surely be Transmitted to Congress Next Monday.

The Delay Not Due to Any Overtures for Peace—Reported That England Has Offered to Act as Mediator in the Difficulty—A Prominent Bay State Man Says This Country Would Have More Trouble in Whipping Chili Than is Anticipated—Walker and Gherardi Not Ordered to Valparaiso.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—There was a long conference at the White House in the afternoon in regard to the Chilian message in which the President and Secretaries Blaine, Tracy and Elkins engaged. John W. Foster was also called into consultation. The conference lasted over two hours.

Both the President and the Secretary of State realize that the document which is to accompany the Chilian correspondence is likely to be of more importance than any communication that has gone from the Executive Mansion to the legislative branch of the Government in the last quarter of a century. Although the message is complete in outline and in general substance it will not leave the President's hands until every word and phrase has been carefully reviewed with an eye to its possible effect not only upon the pending controversy, but also upon the general foreign policy of the United States as subjects to interpretation in the future.

It is now determined that the message will go in on Monday.

The message itself will contain about 5,000 words, and the correspondence attached with the testimony taken by Judge-Advocate-General Remey will swell the volume of the papers to 165,000 words.

The correspondence is already in type and will be given in full to the press on Monday.

The delay until Monday is not due to any change in the situation or to any new developments leading to a hope of peaceful overtures from the government at Santiago.

The time has passed when the peaceful assurances of Minister Montt can serve to defer action on the part of the United States. No communication will have any weight with the Administration except one which shall come directly from Santiago, and which shall convey the unqualified assurance of the government there that an apology will be tendered and reparation given in accordance with the President's demand. Nothing of this sort has yet arrived, and there is no indication that any such thing is contemplated.

The conditions of the controversy stand as they are. Chili must either apologize or fight. The delay in sending in the message and the rumors of arbitration which were afloat last night have served to create a quieter feeling in certain circles, but as a matter of fact, we are no nearer a peaceful solution of the Chilian question than we were a week ago, and the President's utterances will not be modified by anything that has occurred since a message was first determined upon.

OFFERS TO MEDIATE.

A Report That England Wants to Settle the Chilian Embroglio.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—A close friend of the President says that England has offered to act as mediator between the United States and Chili in order to prevent war.

For the past two months Sir Julian Pauncefote has been loading the cables to London with information regarding the temper of the American people, the preparations for war which are being made in the United States, etc., which has been transmitted to British Minister Kennedy at Santiago, and by him given to President Montt.

The latter has received more information about the United States from English sources than he has from his Minister here.

It is expected that the President's message will be a surprise, inasmuch as he will inform Congress of the efforts of England to act as a mediator, and will ask that these good offices be accepted so far as this country is concerned.

This explains the frequent conferences which Sir Julian Pauncefote has had with Secretary Blaine and Minister Montt.

The President's message is awaited with great interest, especially since these new facts have leaked out.

IT WOULD BE A LONG WAR.

What a Prominent Massachusetts Man Thinks of the Matter.

BOSTON, Jan. 21.—In an interview had to-day with Robert Burnett, a prominent member of the Democratic State Committee who spent two years in Chili, he said:

"Twenty thousand soldiers landing on the Chilian coast would amount to comparatively nothing. It would take at least 50,000 soldiers to produce any effect whatever on Chili. United States warships can bombard Valparaiso but that is all they can do.

"The Chilians are very rash. There is no race in the world so hot headed, and it is very difficult to imagine what will become of this affair. I feel quite sure that if war was declared it would be a long time before we secured a victory. I have no doubt that it would come in time, but not before a good many men were killed and this country put to great expense."

Not Ordered to Valparaiso.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Commodore Ramsey, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, says it is not true, as reported by certain irresponsible persons, that Rear-Admirals Gherardi and Walker have been ordered to Valparaiso, and that the first named has been ordered to assume command of the American fleet in the South Pacific.

PRINCE ALBERT'S FUNERAL.

The Duke of Clarence and Avondale Laid to Rest.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The funeral services over the dead Prince were commenced in Sandringham parish church yesterday morning and were there attended only by members of the royal family and the household of the Prince of Wales. The prayers for the dead were said, psalms were recited and a hymn was sung.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies at Sandringham, the coffin was conveyed to Wolferton Station where a special train was in waiting to convey the body to Windsor.

The route from Sandringham church to Wolferton depot was lined with crowds of people from the neighborhood and from London; the male portion of this concourse respectfully raised their hats as the body passed.

It would be difficult to imagine a more simple funeral service in connection with royalty than that witnessed at Sandringham. The road to the station was lined, not by troops or police, but by the school children of the neighborhood, who wore large black crape rosettes upon their left arms, and who presented a most neat and attractive appearance in spite of the badge of mourning they carried.

The body was taken to the station upon a gun carriage, like that of any officer of the army, and the Prince of Wales, accompanied by the Duke of Fife, walked the whole distance, two miles, between the little church and the railroad depot, directly behind the coffin.

The other mourners followed the funeral cortege in carriages. As the body passed on its way to the station, the school children, tenants, servants and villagers fell into line behind it and accompanied the remains to the spot where they were embarked upon the train.

The funeral cars passed the outskirts of London at 2 o'clock, p. m., the request for privacy, made by the royal family, being everywhere respected in the most praiseworthy degree.

While the train was conveying the body of the Duke to Windsor minute guns were fired from the war ships and forts throughout Great Britain and Ireland, their dull, constant booming announcing far and wide that the remains of the unfortunate young Prince were on their way to their last resting place.

As the coffin was taken out of the train and placed upon the gun carriage in waiting, a combined military band played the dead march, and the procession started toward St. George's Chapel.

The coffin was covered with the Union Jack, and upon it was placed the busby of the late Duke, together with his sword and sash. The dead Prince's charger, covered with sable trappings, was led behind the gun carriages, in the stirrups were the dead man's military riding boots, toes turned back.

When Canon J. Neale Dalton cast earth on the coffin the Princesses sobbed bitterly. They also were unable to restrain their expressions of grief during the Lord's Prayer, which concluded the services.

The Prince of Wales knelt at the head of the coffin while the prayer was being said. His face was buried in his hands, and his heaving shoulders showed how he was struggling to repress the agony of sorrow.

When the prayer was finished the Prince arose, looking comparatively calm, and placed on the coffin a small white wreath, which up to that time he had held in his hand.

Some surprise was expressed among people along the route over the fact that the Duke of Fife walked in the procession on the left of the Prince of Wales and in advance of the Princes of the royal house, brothers of the Prince of Wales.

The significance of this is said to be that the Duchess of Fife comes next in succession to Prince George, and that the Prince of Wales wished to give this public recognition of the fact.

Pennsylvania Press Association.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 21.—At the annual meeting of the State Editorial Association the following officers were elected: P. G. Meek, of Bellefonte, president; H. L. Taggert, of Philadelphia, R. G. McKee, of Freeport, and W. B. Givin, of Columbia, vice-presidents; R. H. Thomas, of Mechanicsburg, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Wolfe, of Shippensburg, corresponding secretary. An executive committee of seven was also elected. This committee will make arrangements for the association's next summer excursion.

Col. Ballou Speaks for Graves.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 21.—Department Commander Child, of the G. A. R., was tendered a banquet last night at which Col. Ballou spoke at some length regarding the Graves trial. He scored the press for the part it had taken in the case, and asked the comrades of the G. A. R. to see to it that the convicted man had the full measure of justice. Col. Ballou was heartily cheered.

TROUBLE IN BRAZIL

Daring Attempt at Revolution in Rio Janeiro.

POLITICAL PRISONERS ARISE.

They Overcome the Guards, Capture Two Forts and Hurrah for Fonseca.

The Fortresses Then Shelled by President Peixotto's Gunboats and Stormed by a Land Force—The Rebels Forced to Surrender After a Desperate Fight—Their Leader Prefers Death to Capture and Kills Himself—A British Ship Fired On.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 21.—This city has just passed through an exciting attempt at revolution. Two hundred prisoners, confined in the Fortress of Santa Cruz at the mouth of the harbor, broke out in mutiny Tuesday night. A number of them were persons arrested for misconduct in connection with the recent political disturbances, and these were mostly partisans of the deposed dictator General da Fonseca. Others were ordinary offenders, including however, many bright and dangerous enemies of society.

They formed a conspiracy, and at an appointed hour in the evening, made a dash on the guards and soldiers stationed about the prison. These were taken completely by surprise. Not anticipating any trouble they were keeping watch in their usual careless fashion, when suddenly the prisoners rushed upon and disarmed them.

The prisoners then, numbering about two hundred, seized all the arms and ammunition in the soldiers' quarters, which was sufficient in quantity to equip them all for effective service. They followed the leadership of one man, who directed their operations. Before the news of the rising had spread, the prisoners advanced rapidly upon the two forts, Pico and Lage, that guard the harbor.

The men garrisoning the forts were not on the alert, as they did not imagine that danger was possible, and the prisoners quickly captured the two places along with all the provisions and munitions of war.

After establishing a vigilant guard against attack, the prisoners met and elected as leader the man who had been foremost in their stroke for liberty.

The leader announced that their object was the restoration of Gen. da Fonseca to power, and he made a formal demand to that effect upon the authorities.

The latter simply clapped his messenger into jail, and proceeded to gather troops and notify the navy for an attack on the forts.

The insurgents began an irregular cannonade with the artillery in the forts, hoping, apparently, to compel the authorities to come to terms.

President Peixotto personally directed that the insurgents should be first summoned to surrender, and the forts then carried by assault at any cost. The firing from the forts inflicted little or no damage, owing to the unskillfulness of the gunners.

The mutineers, refusing to surrender, preparations were made yesterday to carry the forts by storm. The gunboats began a heavy bombardment of Fort Lage, and soon rendered the place untenable.

The mutineers in that fortress, seeing no escape and being unable to stand the storm of shells from the gunboats, threw down their arms.

Fort Pico was carried by storm, but when the troops reached the fortress they met with but slight resistance, the mutineers being panic-stricken.

When the troops entered the fort, they found the leader of the munity lying dead. He had taken his own life because he feared the vengeance of the authorities. The fortress prison of Santa Cruz where the mutiny began was held by a portion of the mutineers who yielded after half an hour's bombardment. During the time the forts were in possession of the mutineers the latter fired upon the British steamship Sorangi. The prisoners were placed, after recapture, under a strong guard, and the surviving ringleaders were loaded with manacles. The sound of the firing caused great consternation in Rio Janeiro.

The government is trying to ascertain whether the outbreak was entirely spontaneous, or prompted by persons outside the prison, who desire to effect a revolution. The rebels will be summarily dealt with.

Opened the Road By Force.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 21.—With the aid of the police the officials of the Pittsburg, Allegheny & Manchester Electric line were enabled to open up their road in the morning after an almost complete suspension of traffic since last Friday. Ten cars were started with armed officers on the front and rear of each car. Along the route of the various lines extra police were stationed to prevent trouble, while guards surrounded the car sheds and kept the strikers off the company's property. The company is determined to run its cars at any cost.

New Jersey Agriculturists.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 21.—The New Jersey State Agricultural Society which operates the State Fair at Waverly, held their annual meeting here and after the transaction of routine business re-elected all the former officers. The following gentlemen were added to the Board of Directors: Nelson Pidcock, Gottfried Krueger, John B. Allen and A. B. Sargeant.

Mrs. Blaine's Alimony Sanctioned.

DEADWOOD, S. D., Jan. 21.—In the case of Mary Nevius Blaine vs. James G. Blaine, jr., an order has been made by Judge Thomas giving temporary alimony at $600 and attorney's fees at $400. The former sum granted by the court a month ago was $300 for alimony and $300 for fees. This has been cut down upon the defendant pleading poverty.

AS TO FREE COINAGE.

House Committee Fixes a Day for Taking a Committee Vote.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Three weeks from yesterday at 11 o'clock a. m. the House Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures will by the terms of a resolution agreed upon in committee vote upon the question of reporting to the House a bill for the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

This decision was reached unanimously and after a meeting free from dispute. The anti-silver men realized that they were in a minority on the committee, and the free silver men, confident of their strength, were disposed to meet the other side half way in an amicable agreement that would bring the matter before the House within a reasonable length of time.

The proceedings in committee indicate that it is very likely that the committee will report to the House a bill as indicated, with a recommendation that it do pass.

Inauguration of Gov. Boies.

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 21.—The second inauguration of Gov. Boies took place in the afternoon in the hall of the House of Representatives in the presence of a large and distinguished assemblage. The ceremonies were extremely simple. The Governor in his inaugural address said that the prohibitory laws of the State had failed of their purpose and were productive of crime. He insisted that the people had repudiated them and he therefore urged their immediate repeal.

ELOPED WITH THE PLUMBER.

JOHN DARSH'S PRETTY DAUGHTER FLEES WITH HANDSOME HARRY.

Her Ambitious Parents Wanted Her to Wed a Wealthy Wild-western Cousin, But She Loved the Basso of the Presbyterian Choir, and Is Now His Bride.

John Darsh, hardware dealer, at Westfield, and Josephine, his wife, have a daughter Emma, age 20. About a year ago a distant relative, a wealthy wild-westerner, somewhat of the cowboy stripe, visited them. Mrs. Darsh was ambitious for her daughter to marry the westerner, and a month ago he made his second visit to Westfield, with the avowed intention of marrying the girl.

She had another notion in her head, however, and to all entreaties of mother and would-be lover, was deaf; the other notion was the basso who stood beside her in the Presbyterian church choir, Harry Nagle Taylor, a young plumber in Westfield.

It culminated last night in Miss Sarah's driving down to Cranford. Young Taylor went on the train. They met at the Presbyterian parsonage and were quietly married. A telegram to the mother told of a letter of explanation in the bureau drawer which would explain all.

The happy couple sped away as fast as steam could carry them. The would-be groom was seen rushing wildly about the town at a late hour last night, with a fierceness in his eye that forboded trouble.

The groom is a handsome, sturdy young fellow, and his hosts of friends feel like giving him a glorious send-off for the pluck displayed in his efforts to get the young lady. He is well connected, his uncle being the manager of the great clothing house of Rogers, Peet & Co., and his brother the manager of the New York branch of the Corbin Lock company.

CANKER KENNEY HAD AN AXE.

But Schneider Got It Away and Cut Open His Face With Chunks of Plaster.

A trail of blood led from Pruden's alley to judge Codington's office this morning, and crimson drops in the snow led away from the judge's office again and over to the station-house. Bill Kenney, sometimes known as "canker", and Jacob Schneider had had a fight, and they and a horde of witnesses were seeking justice.

Kenney was a pretty-looking thing as he stood before the bar. His face had severe gashes in it and was smeared with blood, and the blood kept dripping from an open cut in his chin and from cuts on his hands. His garments were sadly disarranged, and altogether he looked quite disreputable.

Schneider is a much bigger man than he, and when Kenney went to the Pruden alley tenement and picked up an axe to "do up" Schneider, the German speedily got the best of the Irishman and threw him out. In the struggle considerable plaster was knocked off the walls, and when Schneider threw these sharp-edged fragments out doors they hit Kenney and cut him up. Schneider said he only threw out the plaster to get rid of it and had no intention of hitting Kenney, but that worthy looked as though he had been through the first stages of a sausage mill.

Mame Warren and Fan Stevens, two lady residents of the tenement, testified against Schneider, and Mrs. Schneider gave evidence in her husband's favor. Kenney did n't say much, but gesticulated violently for the entertainment of the spectators, when the Schneiders were testifying.

Judge Codington adjudged both Kenney and Schneider deserving of punishment. Kenney was sent to jail for 15 days, and Schneider for 30.

Mrs. Schneider is a deserving, hard-working woman, whatever her husband may be, and is an earnest Salvation army member. She grieved greatly over the trouble her husband's temper had got him into. She said he had just been converted and was trying to lead a good life but that in their poverty they were helpless against the obstacles thrown in their way. The tearful woman thought the judgment against Schneider unfair, as Kenney had attacked him first, and she did not hesitate to impeach the accuracy of the witnesses who had sworn in Kenney's favor.

Their Eye is on Him.

In sounding the feelings of the Prohibition party, in reference to their candidate for the presidency in the coming election, THE PRESS finds that almost universally the leaders name W. Jennings Demorest, of New York city, as being their choice. Mr. Demorest is a gentleman very closely identified with the party; faithful, earnest and sincere in the cause, and has given to it of his means perhaps more largely than any one man. So that the feeling seems to be that he would make as strong as, if not a stronger run than anyone else who could be named. This feeling being so general, shows that he has more than an ordinary show in the convention.

Notes from the Pond Tool Works.

A pleasant birthday party occurred Saturday evening at the residence of Richard Higham, the boss blacksmith at the works, 340 West Third street, in commemoration of the twenty-first birthday anniversary of his oldest son, James. Twenty-five sat down to a fine supper, and the balance of the evening was spent in singing, dancing and reciting. John Brooks acted as chairman of the evening, while Stephen Higham presided at the piano and John Crowley and Earnest Higham accompanied with their violins. The Paterson friends who were unable to attend by sickness missed a rare treat.

A rumor is afloat that Bryan H. Marston is soon to wed a Brooklyn lady. Congratulations, my boy!

The Mayor ought to appoint Ed. Schimer as a regular policeman. He is a good, steady man, and has made a good special.

Harry Foose, one of the shop's apprentices, is confined to his bed with a severe attack of rheumatism. The other boys miss him for his company.

The young mechanics of the shops have started a dancing academy in Welsh's hall. Now, Jack, teach them how to dance.

James Penny is confined to the house with illness.

How about that sidewalk under the railroad at Grant avenue? Whose business is it?

LATHE HAND.

Railway Mail Clerks Wanted.

The list of eligibles for the position of railway mail clerk for the State of New Jersey having been exhausted, a special examination will be held by the civil service commission at Trenton Jan. 28. Those who wish to compete should apply at once to the civil service commission, Washington, D. C., for blanks upon which to make formal application. None but legal residents of New Jersey will be examined. Applicants must be not less than eighteen nor more than thirty-five years of age.

An attractive face is the one that belongs to a thoroughly healthy woman. That's what you'll have, that's what you'll be—if you'll take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The painful disorders and diseases that afflict womankind make themselves seen as well as felt. Dull eyes, a blotched or sallow face, and a wasted form follow them.

Cure all these ailments and weaknesses, regulate and promote the proper functions, quiet your nerves, build up your health and strength—with the "Favorite Prescription." It does all these things, and more. The system is invigorated, the blood enriched, digestion improved, melancholy and nervousness dispelled.

For ulcerations, displacements, bearing-down sensations, periodical pains, everything that's known as a "female complaint," it's an unfailing remedy—the only one, among all medicines for women, that's guaranteed. If it fails to benefit or cure, in any case, you have your money back.

BIG FIRE IN UNION SQUARE.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Fire in Union Square this noon that caused great excitement, destroyed the bric-a-brac store of Schneider, Campbell & Co., and greatly damaged Brentano's. Tiffany's and Mrs. Lynch's buildings were saved with difficulty. Several alarms were sent out before the fire was under control. Broadway cars and traffic were blocked during the fire.

A Woman Wants to Know.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The Plainfield common council at a special meeting on the 19th inst., did, in the main, a very wise thing, namely, in the repealing of all ordinances of an ambiguous nature and in the manner in which they disposed of the subject generally so that it may be understood by every citizen. The most striking point is, however, the prohibiting of women from the privileges granted to men. If a saloon should be the proper thing to run in our city, why should not we have the softening influence of the women? If it is a good thing for the public, why should not they have a chance with their brothers and husbands? If it is a good thing financially, why should the dear, good common council be down on us who helped to elect them by our influence? Won't you please, Mr. Editor, give us some light on this subject? We are anxious to know, and have no one to appeal to but the press.

A WOMAN CONSTITUENT.

I have been a sufferer from catarrh for 20 years. I found immediate relief in the use of Ely's Cream Balm. Since using it I have not suffered a moment from headache, sore throat or loss of sleep, from which I previously suffered, caused by catarrh. I consider your Balm a valuable remedy.—R. G. Vassar, 56 Warren St., New York.

PRAISE FOR ENGINEER DUNHAM.

Dr. Ripley and Robert Meeker Address the State Road Convention at Trenton.

Robert A. Meeker, street commissioner of Plainfield, read a paper on "The Need of Engineering Skill in Permanent Road Building", before the State road convention at Trenton this afternoon, and was listened to with great attention and interest. Dr. Chauncey B. Ripley of Westfield addressed the convention on "Suggestions from Experience and Observation in Road Building", in which F. A. Dunham of this city was warmly praised for his work as county road engineer. David Bowden, Mr. Dunham's right-hand man, also made a short address. Judge Joshua Forsythe of Burlington county stirred up some excitement by an address supporting a resolution to have the laws henceforth printed in a pamphlet form and not in the newspapers. The committee on resolutions reported the original resolution back to the board. It was then that Judge Forsythe jumped on what he called the long-existing and prevailing extravagance of the State Government. The main points of his argument were that the laws as printed in the newspapers were of no use, as the type was fine and the arrangement bad. Persons seeking information on some particular law—he said—were obliged to wade through the entire batch of laws because of the lack of an index. He favored the laws being printed in pamphlet form, with index, and distributed to the county clerk's office in each county. This could be done at much less expense than at present. The surplus between the cost of the books and the cost of the printing in the newspapers should be expended upon the roads of the State. It cost New Jersey $80,000 each year to pay for the publication of laws in newspapers. Many obscure papers are kept alive this way by patronage given in consideration of political service. Judge Forsythe was applauded several times during his address. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

Dr. Ripley's address was one of such general and local interest and importance that it is herewith given in full:

Gentlemen of the Convention:—New Jersey has first place in the cause of improved roads. Much meaning attaches to this declaration, for the interest in road reform has reached every State in the Union. Ours is the pioneer State. The Legislature of New Jersey was the first to pass an act for the general improvement of public roads. The governor promptly approved the bill, and, in 1888, our State entered upon a new era. Union county, the first to avail herself of the provisions of this excellent act, has been put forward fifty years on the dial of progress and prosperity. There is a real-estate boom in every city and township of the county, and land is worth, and is selling for, from ten to fifty per cent. more than it had sold for in the two previous decades. It goes without saying, that the improved roads in Union county have paid for themselves already. All along the line of these county roads, new and costly improvements are in progress, and in an hour's ride through the county of Union over the Central railroad a hundred new houses may be seen from the car windows. I stake my reputation as a prophet, that Westfield, the place of my residence, will, in three years, double its population, and that the price of lands will be a hundred per cent. greater than before the passage of the Road Act in 1888.

"Liberty and Prosperity" is the motto of the State of New Jersey. It is high time fellow citizens, that these sonorous words take on new significance; that a State lying between the two great cities of the continent, New York and Philadelphia, available in either direction for suburban residences to its very center; being the great highway by the shortest routes to the capital of the Nation, to great cities of the West, and to the shores of the Pacific Ocean, the road bed of nearly every great trunk line of railway leading West from New York city; a state, rich in the fertility of her soil in every quarter; grand and picturesque in her Northern scenery alike with her cottage lined Ocean shore fast becoming more and more popular every year as summer resorts. It is high time, I say, that such a motto, "Liberty and Prosperity", of such a State as ours, should be amplified and verified. The closing years of the nineteenth century should develop the progress and prosperity of our State in a manner worthy the energies and experiences of a hundred years. The year 1892 is a good year to bestir ourselves, and the month of January is none too early to turn on the lights, subject ourselves and the century's work to a searching examination in order that we may determine what we have to show for it all and where we and our institutions really stand relatively to the men and institutions of the past. Wherein have we distinguished ourselves?

To be sure, Jersey Lightning, Princeton Presbyterianism, and Jersey Justice are proverbial; and they have been, from a period wayback, beyond which the memory of man extendeth not. No one has ever challenged the supremacy of New Jersey in those regards. She stands today, as she stood a century and more ago, when the foundations of Nassau Hall were laid, and the battle of Princeton was fought; the force of her specialties is unimpaired. To-day, after the lapse of so many years, her lightning is still the most ardent of distilled spirits; the Presbyterianism of Princeton is the most orthodox and cerulean; and there is nothing this side of sheol, so terrible to mortal man, as Jersey Justice.

Last year, on this platform, I had the honor of addressing the State Board of Agriculture on the subject of Improved Roads. I then and there urged upon that body the present importance of following up the good beginning already made, by providing an improved road for every quarter of the State, first, as a general, substantial and needed improvement, than which nothing in my humble judgment could be more beneficial and satisfactory to the farmers in particular and the taxpayers generally. I urged it, secondly, as an object lesson, likely to serve best in making the people of the whole State familiar with the construction and advantages of good roads, and so, in a short time, enlist their support in the common cause. Such a recommendation involved, of course, application to the legislature, and also to the executive. The legislature of New Jersey, heretofore, has been in sympathy with us, and its members untrammelled by politics. We believe the same is still true, and that we may well proceed with confidence on the score. Governor Abbett appeared before the board of agriculture last year and has again been present at their annual meeting this year, and suggested in his address, on both occasions, his own approval of State appropriations for the further improvement of our public roads. What more do we need? The battle is far more than half won when we have the legislative and executive departments with us. We want, now, an organization to formulate and present a plan for accomplishing what we need, and what we may have, by the asking. The board of agriculture, though urged by me last year to act, in procuring the necessary legislation, did not; but, through the sagacity and energy of their secretary, Franklin Dye, it has brought us here, today, and we are now organized in convention to accomplish that which might have been done long ago, and which ought now to be done; that which we are all, I believe, in earnest to do: give New Jersey good roads, in every part of the State. In perusing an excellent publication, "Special Consular Reports: Streets and Highways in Foreign Countries", I find that only in darkest Africa, on the lonely isle of St. Helena and a few other benighted spots on the face of the earth, is there an absence of interest in the matter of public roads. Everywhere else, our American consuls report interest in public roads; and generally, an interest commensurate with the degree and age of the civilization. The leaven of New Jersey has reached nearly every State of the Union; and those who have become known as active in promoting our system and carrying it into effect practically, have been flooded with applications for copies of our road act, for reports, for circulars and information, from Maine to Texas and from Michigan to Florida. The requisition from the Department of State at Washington for the consular reports to which I have already referred, is traceable to the improvement of roads under the New Jersey act. Many have come from other States to examine the roads of Union county, and our engineer, F. A. Dunham, has, by reason of their fame, secured contracts for building similar roads a thousand miles away. As I said last year, I would, as a citizen of New Jersey, have a good road from Newark to Camden and from Cape May to Sussex. As a citizen of the United States, I would have a good national road from Lake Superior to the Gulf of Mexico and another from Boston to San Francisco.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

Last year, I promised myself and others, to introduce a resolution, or in some other way to present for consideration to the State board of agriculture, the subject of cart and wagon tire and the comparative length of fore and rear axles on vehicles of heavy draft. This year I promised to do the same thing, and submit, with your permission, a short paper on this most important subject, urging prompt legislation in the matter.

The regulation of the width of tire and length of axles by law is no new thing. It has been done, I am informed, in many of the States of the Union. Such requirements are made by the laws of France, and from rules and practice prevailing there, where all concede are to be found the best roads in the world, I formulate the following:

1. On all freight and market carts the tire should be from 4 to 6 inches.

2. On all four-wheeled freight and other vehicles for heavy lading, the width of tire should be from 4 to 6 inches.

3. The fore axle of the latter class of vehicles should be 10 or 14 inches shorter than the rear axle according as the tire is 4 or 6 inches wide, so that the hind wheels run in a line an inch outside of the surface rolled by the fore wheels.

The benefits for the use of wheels and axles constructed under such rules, is too apparent to need much argument.

The carts and wagons become rollers. The cart with 6-inch tire rolls a foot in width whenever on the road, and when loaded is a heavy roller. The wagon rolls from 16 inches to 24 inches.

One can hardly estimate the benefit to any fairly good road, of the constant rolling which the wheels of even one wagon would do. But when the number of wagons and wheels is multiplied and we have the wheels of an entire township, county or State as so many rollers constantly rolling, packing, levelling, our roads, day in and day out, ten hours a day, six days in a week, four weeks in a month, twelve months in a year, crushing and imbedding every loose foreign particle that may fall upon the surface of a road, every loose particle that may work up, it is easy to see that our roads will become almost as smooth and free from any resistance as a billiard table.

An act, permissive, but general, might be passed, constituting the board of chosen freeholders of any county, a board for framing and enforcing rules and requirements for tire and axles on such board becoming satisfied by petition or otherwise, that it would be in the public interest for the county to avail itself of the law. Let penalties be enforced on the score of trespass, as a means of securing compliance.

PASTOR DILL WILL TESTIFY.

When His Friends Have Ended Their Evidence He Will Take the Stand In His Own Defence.

The Rev. Arthur Cushing Dill, who is on trial before the Presbytery at Morristown, used to preach in Mount Freedom, and a prominent Plainfielder who used to know him there tells some queer and unprintable stories about him. An elderly woman of that place summed up her ideas about him as follows:

"There ain't nothin' the matter with Mr. Dill's theology, but he do have some queer Fifth avenue notions."

Inquiry brought out that among certain innovations which the young pastor introduced in Mount Freedom was the dividing of their noonday meals into courses and the covering of their honest old brick fireplaces with glazed paper in imitation of tiling.

Pastor Dill and his counsel, lawyer A. C. Smith, wore flowers in their buttonholes yesterday. Mr. Dill's affability and light-heartedness shows no signs of waning. Miss Mattie Cooper's affidavit, printed recently, accuses Mr. Dill of being a party to Mr. Cooper's arrest and of hypocritical conduct after it occurred. Miss Cooper when questioned by the committee yesterday admitted that she had nothing against Mr. Dill until she was persuaded by certain persons in Stirling that he was the cause of her father's arrest.

Mr. Dill is accused of saying that the cause of his fainting fit in the Rev. Dr. White's study was that Dr. White had said that Mr. Dill was crazy and unfit for the ministry and that every member of the Presbytery knew of it. Dr. White denied that he made such a statement. The talk in his study was concerning charges made against Mr. Dill by old Mr. Cooper before Dr. White knew he had become insane.

William Morrison of Mt. Freedom testified that Pastor Dill had found him drunk on the road, and taken him into the house and cared for him. Mr. Dill, he said, was the sole cause of his reform and salvation.

"Aunty" Catherine Boyle, the old spinster who deeded her house to the young parson, testified that she was not deceived by Mr. Dill. She meant that he should have a part of her property, and the church should have part of it. It was agreed between her and Mr. Dill that she should be allowed to live in her house until she died.

Mrs. Doney, Mr. Dill's housekeeper at Mount Freedom, testified that Mr. Dill had been in her house for a considerable time and had always appeared to her to be a praiseworthy man. Mrs. Turner of Millington, besides testifying to Mr. Dill's good character, repeated a remark Mr. Niehuitz, one of Mr. Dill's prosecutors, had made to her at an entertainment at Millington. It was a case, she intimated, of the pot calling the kettle black.

Mr. E. C. Badcock of Chatham Four Corners, N. Y., testified that he had been converted under Mr. Dill's moral influence and he knew only good of Mr. Dill. William F. Hughson, a brother of elder Nelson Hughson, who gave testimony against Mr. Dill in regard to the engagement between the pastor and his stepdaughter and in other matters, had the highest opinion of Mr. Dill's character. He spoke of his brother's testimony to take exception to certain portions of it.

J. E. Hunter, an old farmer of Stirling, who braved the cold in a thin striped flannel blazer, gave testimony against the character of some of the witnesses for the prosecution, besides speaking high words of praise for Mr. Dill. Other witnesses who took the stand and testified to the pastor's good character were: James H. Carroll of Mt. Freedom, Peter Nelson and O. E. Mosher of Stirling, George Crampton of Rockaway, Mr. and Mrs. Crutzley and Miss Crutzley of Millington, Miss Laura Compton, Mr. and Mrs. Turner of Millington, John Barnes, Mrs. Carr of Mt. Freedom, George Pruden of Green Village, George Bowers of Mt. Bethel, N. J., Mrs. John W. Babbitt of Morristown, and Mrs. Speer of Stirling.

The trial was adjourned yesterday to be resumed next Monday morning at 9:30, when Mr. Dill will take the stand in his own defence.

Gives His Life to God's Work.

Joseph A. Goodhue, of 19 Craig place, left Plainfield, yesterday afternoon, for New York city, where he will enter upon the work of a missionary under the direction of the New York city mission.

In the departure of Mr. Goodhue from Plainfield, the city loses one of her most active Christian young men, and one whose place it will be hard to fill. When he felt himself called to this work, he at once resigned the good business position he held as bookkeeper for the Plainfield Beef company, and sacrificing all the many pleasant associations here in his home he begins his labor of love in the poverty and sin-stricken districts of the metropolis.

Mr. Goodhue leaves with the best wishes of a host of friends, that God will abundantly bless him, in his new field.

A Superb Publication.

The most notable periodical publication in the agricultural world is The American Agriculturist for January, celebrating the beginning of its second half century. It is a superb number of 108 pages, each 9x12 inches in size, embellished with no less than 143 original illustrations. Opening with a brief sketch of the magazine and portraits of its editors and contributors, the leading article is by James B. Dodge, the government statistician, on A Half Century's Progress in Agriculture. Occupying several pages, this article is itself a monument to the wonderful development of our greatest industry, and illustrations of implements in use only fifty years ago show the marvelous progress in farm machinery. Pomology has more than kept pace with general farming, as President Berckmans of the American Pomological Society shows in an able resume. T. V. Munson contributes a superbly illustrated article showing the improvement of American grapes, in which he has made astonishing progress with purely native hybrids. There are beautiful illustrated articles on the improvement of the various breeds of horses, cattle, sheep, swine and poultry, and also concerning cattle growing as a business. Floriculture shows wonderful improvement, the articles describing American grown flowering bulbs, plant culture under glass, orcharding in the Northwest, and the like. The hen business has jumped into national prominence, the progress of artificial incubation being most marked. Beautifully pictured articles of much practical and commercial value are given concerning sugar in tropical America, and all sorts of farming in other parts of the world, including greetings from the secretaries of agriculture of various foreign nations. The working farmer will be specially interested in the present situation of American agriculture, its relation to the world's food supply and its apparently brilliant future, as described by C. Wood Davis, who tells, in detail, why higher prices must prevail for farm lands and products. A statistical review is given of the past and present crops and live stock of the United States; prices and values, including the first publication of census figures. This is supplemented by a directory of the live stock record associations of this country and Europe. The editorials are notable for their trenchant consideration of the evil of speculation in "futures" or the selling of fictitious grain, cotton and hog products. The family features are rich in reminiscenses, Clarissa Potter describing the good old time in New England, Jessie Benton Fremont giving an historical episode of the Far West, Frank G. Carpenter describing the washerwomen of the world, and Katharine Lee Bates the women's colleges of the country. The boys and girls are well remembered, not the least interesting thing for them being a novel puzzle contest with $175 in prizes. The Orange Judd Co., publishers, 52 and 54 Lafayette Place, New York; price 15c per copy, $1.50 per year.

STIMULATE THE BLOOD.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS are the great blood purifier. They are a purgative and blood tonic, they act equally on the bowels, the kidneys, and the skin, thus cleansing the system by the natural outlet of the body—they may be called the purgative sudorific and diuretic medicine. They stimulate the blood so as to enable nature to throw off all morbid humors, and cure disease, no matter by what name it may be called. One or two of them taken every night will prove an infallible remedy.

Sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar coated.

STATUE OF RED JACKET.

Buffalo, N. Y., Honors a Famous Indian Chieftain.

The Great Historical Figure Recently Erected — A Monument of Interest to the Nation at Large — The Public Unveiling.

After years of effort the Buffalo monument to the great Indian orator, Red Jacket, has been completed. The movement began with the Buffalo Historical society a number of years ago. In 1884 the bones of Red Jacket and those of a number of other chiefs were taken up, mostly from the old burying ground in South Buffalo, and reinterred at Forest Lawn. Later the pedestal for a monument was put in place. The effort to secure funds for a statue was for a long time unavailing. Finally a design, including a statue and many emblematic features, the joint production of Eugene Kelly, the sculptor, and Gen. Ely S. Parker, of New York—the latter a full-blooded Seneca Indian—was approved by the society. Mrs. Harriet Maxwell Converse, a member of the society much interested in Indian matters, was in a fair way to raise the amount needed when another lady, Mrs. Huyler, of New York, settled the matter by giving $10,000 for a statue. New plans were adopted and Mr. Hamilton, of Cleveland, O., was given the contract, which has been satisfactorily carried out, and the completed monument now stands at Forest Lawn.

The pedestal is of gray Rhode Island granite, and is 14½ feet high. It is hexagonal, symbolizing Red Jacket's connection with the Six Nations. It bears this inscription:

MONUMENT AND BRONZE STATUE OF RED JACKET.

RED JACKET.
SA-GO-YA-WAT-HA.
He Keeps Them Awake.
DIED AT BUFFALO CREEK,
JANUARY 20, 1830.
AGED 78 YEARS.
"When I am gone and my warnings are no longer heeded the craft and avarice of the white man will prevail. My heart fails me when I think of my people so soon to be scattered and forgotten."
ERECTED BY THE BUFFALO HISTORICAL SOCIETY.
1890.

The statue is of American bronze, heroic size, 11½ feet high. The sculptor worked from a photograph of a painting by Isaac Weir, and those who have seen Red Jacket and the statue declare the latter a faithful representation. The attitude is a striking one. The figure stands with the right arm extended in a demonstrative way, while the left holds a trailing blanket to its side, the hand holding a tomahawk. Feature and demeanor are said to be reproduced naturally. It is a commanding memorial and fitly illustrates the fearlessness and humanity of the great old chief. The tomahawk is an exact copy of the one on exhibition in the rooms of the Buffalo historical society, which was presented to Red Jacket by Gen. Washington. A large medal on the breast of the statue is a copy of a silver medal also presented to him by Gen. Washington. It is probable that a public ceremony of unveiling will be held in the spring, when a grand rally of Indians can be made a feature of the occasion.

Building Superstitions.

In remote times a sacrifice of some kind was always offered at the completion of a building, either public or private. Sacrifices were not only offered at the completion of structures of all kinds—the foundations themselves were usually laid in blood, whether the structure was a castle, bridge, cottage or church. Originally—tracing the subject back to heathenish times—the sacrifice was offered to the god under whose protection the building was placed; in Christian times the bloody rite was retained, but was given another signification. In those days it was generally believed that no edifice would stand unless the corner stone was laid in mortar mixed with blood. Usually the blood was obtained by sacrificing a dog, a pig, a wolf, a black cock or a goat, and not unfrequently some malefactor's blood was poured out to make the ceremony more impressive.

Novel Fishing Line.

A Pennsylvania barber has just completed a novel fishing line, which occupied five years in making, and is composed entirely of human hair of every color and shade, nicely woven together. Every time he operated on the glossy locks of a female customer he begged a few silken threads. The line, which is over one hundred feet long, is an unusually strong one.

FAILING RAPIDLY.

The Last Days of the Author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

The gifted authoress of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," now eighty years of age, is said to be failing rapidly. A gentleman who recently visited her home in Hartford tells a New York Mail and Express reporter that she has failed very much of late and her mind is so clouded that she cannot talk consecutively on any subject. She is not confined to her room and does not require a physician's care, but her friends are apprehensive that the end is not far off. A great many letters still come to her, but these she does not see. She is constantly under surveillance. Her last days are made as pleasant as wealth and kind friends can make them, but she seems to know nothing of what is going on about her, and, indeed, is almost as helpless as a child.

All the world is familiar with her literary work, but it is not generally known that her first venture as a writer was in the shape of an epitaph placed on a slab over the grave of a pet cat. It was written when she was eight years of age. It seems that poor puss, of whom the child was very fond, had a fit and acted so badly that her father shot it. There was a flood of tears, of course, and then came the cat's funeral. The next day the future great authoress wrote these lines:

Her lies poor kit,
Who had a fit
And acted queer.
Killed with a gun,
Her race is run,
And she lies here!

There is not much sentiment expressed, but the facts seem to be all straight. For days after the funeral the child visited the grave and wept copiously at the untimely end of puss.

Mrs. Stowe's books still sell well. And she will go down into history with the great distinction of having done as much as, if not more than, any one single person to break the shackles and make millions of men and women free. She needs no other monument.

MICHIGAN'S BUILDING.

Home of the Wolverine State at the World's Columbian Exposition.

Michigan promises to set the pace for other states by the beauty of its state building. Chief Burnham has just approved the design of Pond & Pond, of Chicago, architects for the Michigan state board.

The sketch is a very artistic design in the classic style, but treated with the freedom the subject demands. The structure is 80x120 feet and two stories in height. A main porch leads to the grand entrance. The visitor passes through an arched vestibule. On one side of the vestibule is the office of the secretary and clerk of the state board, on the other the checkroom and post office. Like all the state buildings, the Michigan headquarters will be used largely as a clubhouse for the reception and entertainment of visitors to the exposition from the state. With this in view the architects have arranged the lower floor for reception rooms, committee rooms and other apartments for the comfort of visitors.

A Lot of Queer People.

William Harman, a resident of Titusville, Pa., committed suicide a few days ago from a melancholy conviction that he was his own grandfather. Here is the singular letter that he left: "I married a widow that had a grown-up daughter. My father visited our house very often, fell in love with my stepdaughter and married her. So my father became my son-in-law and my stepdaughter my mother, because she was my father's wife. Some time afterward my wife had a son; he was my father's brother-in-law and my uncle, for he was the brother of my stepmother. My father's wife—that is my stepdaughter—had also a son; he was, of course, my brother and in the meantime my grandchild, for he was the son of my daughter. My wife was my grandmother, because she was my mother's mother. I was my wife's husband and grandchild at the same time. And as the husband of a person's grandmother is his grandfather I was my own grandfather."

Safe from Vipers.

A physician who spent some time in the countries bordering on the gulf of Mexico found a curious body of men among the natives called Curados de Calebra, or the safe from vipers. Having been inoculated with the poison of the serpents they were proof against their venomous bites. The inoculation was made with a venom tooth of a viper and the bulb of a native plant called mano del sapo (toad's hand). The preventive inoculation has been an old custom among the natives of that region.

Anxious to Know.

"Have you fixed up my will?" said the sick man to Lawyer Quillins.

"Yes."

"Everything as tight as you can make it?"

"Entirely so."

"Well, now, I want to ask you something—not professionally, but as a plain, everyday man. Who do you honestly think stands the best show for getting the property?"—Washington Star.

A Fatal Error.

Ringway—What's the matter, old man? You look troubled.

Featherstone—I have made the mistake of my life. You know I have a rich maiden aunt who lives in the country, and I sent her up a folding-bed for Christmas.

Ringway—Well, wasn't she pleased with it?

Featherstone (sorrowfully)—No. The old lady is very angry. She says there's no chance for a man to get under it.—Brooklyn Life.

The Way to Work It.

Hotel Clerk (to wild-eyed man who wants a room)—I am sorry, sir, but our house is full to overflowing already.

Wild-Eyed Man (producing old valise)—I'm going to stay here, anyhow, if I have to sleep in a chair. Here's my—

Hotel Clerk (looking at it with blanched face)—Front! Show the gentleman to parlor A, first floor. Oblige me, my dear sir, by taking your baggage with you.—Chicago Tribune.

Love's Labor Lost.

Public-Spirited Citizen—I am taking up a collection for a monument to Eli Whitney, the inventor of the cotton gin. Can you——

Indignant Old Lady—Fer the land's sake! They'll be raisin' money next to build a monument to the inventor of peach brandy! You git out o' here!—Chicago Tribune.

Managing Pa.

Agent—See here, my little man, what beautiful things I have in my wagon. I'm selling bicycles. Ask your father if he doesn't want to get one for you.

Farmer's Boy—What's the price?

Agent—Fifty dollars.

Boy—Phew! I say. You tell pa that's a new machine for plantin' potatoes and maybe he'll buy one.—Good News.

More Power Needed.

Minister—I think we should have congregational singing.

Organist—Then we must have a new organ.

"Why so?"

"This instrument isn't powerful enough to drown 'em out."—N. Y. Weekly.

A Last Resource.

First Washington Correspondent—News is frightfully scarce.

Second Correspondent — Yes. I'll start the report that Mrs. General Logan is to be married again and you can deny it.—Judge.

WINDY CITY GETS IT

National Democratic Convention Goes to Chicago.

JUNE 21 CHOSEN AS THE DATE.

Much Surprise Expressed at the Outcome of the Contest.

Fifteen Ballots Taken By the Democratic Committee in Executive Session—Chicago Got Twenty-seven Votes on the Last Ballot—Demonstration After the Vote Was Announced.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The National Democratic Committee yesterday decided, after casting fifteen ballots, to hold the next National Democratic Convention at Chicago, on June 21. The vote on the last ballot was:

Chicago, 27; Milwaukee, 18; Kansas City, 2; St. Paul, 1; Detroit, 1.

After the National Committee had been called to order by Chairman Brice, and the address of welcome had been made by Commissioner Ross, it went into executive session, and the Montana contest was decided in favor of C. A. Broadwater, with A. W. Lyman as proxy. Mr. Richardson was recognized as the representative from Iowa, and Mr. Harrity was substituted for Mr. Kerr to represent Pennsylvania.

June 21 was selected as the date to hold the convention.

A recess was then taken until 4 o'clock, at which time the committee reassembled, and the presentation of the claims of the various cities was begun.

Cincinnati was presented by Mr. Ramsay and Mr. Follett, Detroit by ex-Congressman Mayburn and Representative Chipman, and Indianapolis by Senator Turpie and Charles L. Jewett.

Kansas City was presented by Mr. Putnam and Senator Vest. The latter's allusion to Milwaukee produced the utmost enthusiasm.

Milwaukee was presented by Gov. Peck, whose speech sparkled with wit and humor from beginning to end. Mayor Summers of Milwaukee followed Gov. Peck.

Comptroller Meyers of New York city came next in behalf of New York city while Congressman Fellows followed for the same place. Mr. Breslin for the Hotel Keepers presented New York from a hotel man's point of view.

M. F. Tarpy presented the claim of San Francisco, and St. Paul was presented by R. W. Lander and ex-Representative Wilson.

A recess was then taken until 9 o'clock when the committee immediately began to ballot, as follows:

First, Chicago, 1; Milwaukee, 8; Kansas City 13; Indianapolis, 2; New York, 5; Cincinnati, 3; San Francisco, 8; Detroit, 2; St. Paul, 7.

Second, Milwaukee, 10; Chicago, 2; Kansas City, 12; Indianapolis, 3; New York, 4; Cincinnati, 1; San Francisco, 8; Detroit, 2; St. Paul, 7.

Third, Cincinnati, 3; Detroit, 1; Indianapolis, 2; Kansas City, 5; Milwaukee, 10; New York, 1; St. Paul, 9; Chicago, 3; San Francisco, 15.

Fourth, Milwaukee, 8; Chicago, 3; Detroit, 3; Indianapolis, 7; St. Paul, 13; San Francisco, 2; Kansas City, 9; Cincinnati, 6; New York, 1.

Fifth, Indianapolis, 2; Milwaukee, 10; Detroit, 1; New York, 4; Cincinnati, 11; San Francisco, 0; St. Paul, 10; Kansas City, 10; Chicago, 3.

Sixth, Cincinnati, 2; Milwaukee, 8; Detroit, 19; Indianapolis, 3; Kansas City, 6; New York, 3; St. Paul, 6; Chicago, 2.

Seventh, Milwaukee, 9; Detroit, 1; New York, 3; Chicago, 3; Indianapolis, 1; Kansas City, 7; Cincinnati, 2. St. Paul, 4; Des Moines, 17.

Eighth, Detroit, 1; Cincinnati, 1; New York, 1; Chicago, 3; St. Paul, 5; Milwaukee, 9; Indianapolis, 21; Kansas City, 5.

Ninth, Cincinnati, 1; Chicago, 4; Kansas City, 6; New York, 10; Milwaukee, 20; St. Paul, 6; Detroit, 1; Indianapolis, 5.

Tenth, Chicago, 15; St. Paul, 0; New York, 1; Detroit, 0; Kansas City, 3; Milwaukee, 22.

Eleventh, Detroit, 1; Cincinnati, 1; New York, 10; Chicago, 4; St. Paul, 6; Milwaukee, 23; Indianapolis, 1; Kansas City, 6.

Twelfth, Milwaukee, 20; Chicago, 17; Kansas City, 3; St. Paul, 0; Detroit, 1; Indianapolis, 1; New York, 1.

Thirteenth, Milwaukee, 21; Chicago, 17, Indianapolis, 1; New York, 0; Detroit, 1; Cincinnati, 0; St. Paul, 5; Kansas City, 4.

Fourteenth, Cincinnati, 0; New York, 0; Chicago, 22; Milwaukee, 21; Kansas City, 2; St. Paul, 3; Detroit, 1.

Fifteenth, Chicago, 27; Milwaukee, 18; Kansas City, 2; St. Paul, 1; Detroit, 1.

When on the 15th ballot it was announced that Chicago had twenty-seven votes and the Convention, the crowd in the corridors were fairly struck dumb. That a city which had not even asked for the Convention should be selected was inexplicable. The Milwaukee, St. Paul and Detroit delegations went out on the sidewalk and cheered for Cleveland.

Resolutions thanking the Hon. William Dickson, the resident member of the Committee, and the local reception committee for their excellent care and attention to the National Committee, were adopted and at 11:45 p. m., the committee adjourned.

Ready to Fight Any Middleweight.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22.—Alex Greggains has received a message from Arthur Lumley, of New York, asking him if he would meet Jack Dempsey for $6,000 at the Olympic Club, New Orleans. Greggains has replied, stating that he is ready to fight Dempsey or any middleweight in the business.

Warren Knocked Out.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 22.—Tommy Warren, of Los Angeles, Cal., and George Siddons, of Chicago, fought for a purse of $1,500, of which $300 went to the loser, before the Metropolitan Athletic Club last night. Warren was knocked out in the ninth round.

MR. BLAINE'S HEALTH.

Conflicting Stories as to the Secretary's Physical Condition.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Many conflicting stories are in circulation as to Secretary Blaine's physical condition and the reasons for his sudden withdrawal from the Cabinet meeting on Tuesday.

One of Mr. Blaine's closest Congressional friends said:

"Mr. Blaine is in very poor health, but he refuses to recognize the fact. He has good days and bad days and will not listen to suggestions from his friends. He may have some chronic trouble. He is careless as to what he eats, selecting the richest food on all occasions. In consequence he shows decided symptoms of the natural results from an aggravated attack of Bright's disease of the kidneys. His personal friends advise his retirement from public life, and they are doing everything in their power to discourage the idea of his becoming a Presidential nominee.

"Sometimes he seems disposed to yield to friendly suggestions, and several times has been on the eve of making a formal announcement that under no circumstances will he accept the nomination. Then some of his political admirers get around him and persuade him to remain silent until after the next Republican convention. In the meantime the anti-Harrison element in the Republican party in Congress has been advised of Mr. Blaine's real condition and they are now looking over the political field for a candidate to take his place."

Another friend of Mr. Blaine, who is familiar with his physical condition, confirms the above statement, and adds that one of the most painful symptoms of his malady is Mr. Blaine's inability to express himself consecutively and orally. On the other hand he can sit down and write his views as brilliantly as ever. Because of this misfortune he refrains from attending public meetings and banquets.

Contrary to the advice of his physician Mr. Blaine insists upon eating rich food and during the past year he has changed his doctor several times because they insisted upon it that he should know his true condition when he refused to follow their advice and instructions.

The same authority says that Mr. Blaine is losing his boasted faculty of remembering names and faces. He now fails to remember some of his closest friends and cannot recall their names.

At his last diplomatic reception one of his personal friends and official associates met him and addressed him familiarly. Mr. Blaine looked at him in blank amazement, while at the same time he nervously patted his hands together in an abstracted sort of way until Gail Hamilton, a cousin of Mrs. Blaine, who accompanied him, recalled the gentleman's name. Explanations followed, but the gentleman in question naturally commented upon the circumstance with his friends afterward.

A MOTHER'S CRIME.

Leaves Her Infant in a Hall, Where it is Found Dead.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 22.—Mrs. Reilly, of 89 Sheffield street, brought a year-and-a-half-old baby to the police station on Tuesday night and said she had found it in her hall.

The captain of the police found that it was Mrs. Riley's daughter's child, and sent the woman home.

Early this morning the child died from exposure, and the mother of the child, Mrs. Lusetta Travis, has been arrested.

The story connected with the affair is a sad one.

A few months ago Mrs. Travis went to the police station with the baby, and said she had no place to stay as her mother had turned her out of the house. She was kept in a cell for two days and then her husband, who is dying of consumption, came after her.

He is unable to work, but Mrs. Reilly thinks he is and for that reason will not keep her daughter and baby.

Tuesday evening Mrs. Travis thought she would make her mother take care of the child, so placed it in the cold hall, where it was not found for several hours.

Captured His Eloping Daughter.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 22.—Miss Bessie Chaffee, the young daughter of Carl Chaffee, the millionaire citizen of Springville, who eloped with Charles Stowell, was found by her father yesterday at a farm house about 10 miles from their home. Miss Chaffee was taken to her home. The couple claim to be married, and as soon as Mr. Chaffee can have the marriage annulled, the girl will be returned to the convent at Rochester.

Operation on Gov. Russell.

BOSTON, Jan. 22.—Governor Russell intends to have a surgical operation performed on his throat to-morrow. Something on the vocal cords needs removing. The case will probably involve tracheotomy, but the operation will not in any sense be dangerous. As a result the Governor will not be able to make public speeches for three or four weeks. It is understood, however, that he has accepted an invitation to attend the opening of the fair which the Ladies' Aid Association will give early in February for the benefit of the Soldiers' Home.

GARZA'S REBELLION

Plotters Against Diaz Gaining in Numbers.

THE MOVEMENT SPREADING.

American Troops Making Active Search for Revolutionists.

Garza Said to be in Mexico, and Not Thought to be in Hiding—He is Waiting to Strike a Heavy Blow at the Forces of President Diaz—The Mexican Authorities, Although Decrying the Uprising, Secretly Alarmed.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 22.—Private advices received here yesterday from the lower part of the Rio Grande border are to the effect that the excitement there over the Garza revolutionary movement instead of decreasing is spreading among the people and that the plotters against the administration of President Diaz are gaining in numbers rapidly. At Roma and Rio Grande city there are many prominent Mexican and American residents who do not hesitate to boldly declare their sympathy for the cause of the revolutionists.

Captain Francis H. Hardie, with his troop, started out again yesterday for the purpose of making a search of several suspicious ranches located north of the Texan and Mexican National railway. He is also heading for the reported rendezvous of a large band of the revolutionists, numbering it is claimed, three hundred men, located on the Nueces river.

Captain George A. Chase, in command of Troop D, Third cavalry, has left Palito Blanco ranche, the home of the father-in-law of Garza, and is also moving toward the Nuces.

An order was issued by Gen. David Stanley yesterday that Troop D work under orders from Fort McIntosh instead of Fort Ringgold, as it has been doing heretofore.

It is confidently believed that Garza has not been idle during the long search that has been made for him. It is believed, also, that he has not been in hiding.

It is the prevailing opinion that he is Mexico, and that he will show up in the course of a few weeks with an armed following that will cause President Diaz great anxiety and alarm.

Those who are acquainted with the personal characteristics of Garza assert that he is not the man to give up early, especially since there never was brighter prospect of success than at present. The spark of revolutionary spirit has been kindled, and Garza will not permit it to die out as long as he can influence the excitable and restless Mexicans with personal appeals and inflammatory literature censuring President Diaz and his policy of government.

In the meantime the United States troops and Federal authorities will continue to exercise their utmost vigilance, while the Mexican government is anxiously awaiting the expected revolt to be started on a formidable basis.

Invitations for Graves' Execution.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 22.—The bailiff of the Supreme Court received a large letter yesterday from Canon City. When asked what it contained he smiled knowingly and said he was not permitted to answer. From those in a position to know the information was obtained that the letter contained invitations to the Graves execution. The time for the death watch to be established is drawing so near that the warden could delay the matter no longer. The bailiff is forbidden by law to tell who the witnesses will be. The information has caused a sensation in Denver.

Lumber Output for 1891.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Jan. 22.—The annual lumber statement shows that the quantity of lumber rafted at the boom was 262,071,394 feet, and that the shipments for the year exceeded those of any preceding year by 25,080,000 feet. In fact, the output of lumber in 1891 was the largest on record, with the exception of 1887. It is stated by the operators that there will be a decreased production this year of at least 50,000,000 feet, which will warrant an increase in the price of at least 50 cents per 1,000 feet.

Husband and Wife Buried Together.

NYACK, N. Y., Jan. 22.—David Dorcas, aged 92 years, died at Closter, N. J., of grip, and arrangements were made for his funeral yesterday afternoon. Yesterday morning his wife, also aged 92, died of the same disease, and was buried with her husband to-day. The old couple were well known and much esteemed.

Gibson Chosen U. S. Senator.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan 22.—United States Senator Charles H. Gibson, appointed by Gov. Jackson to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Wilson, was elected yesterday by the almost unanimous vote of his party (Democratic).

NATIONAL LEGISLATORS.

Proceedings in the Branches of Congress Yesterday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—At no time during the day were there more than 30 Senators present, except, perhaps, for a brief period during Mr. Stanford's speech in favor of his land loan scheme, and the Senate went into executive session and adjourned with scarcely six Senators in attendance.

The La Abra case still holds the floor, and bids fair to continue to do so through the coming week.

The proceedings in the House were enlivened by two or three passages-at-arms, one between the Speaker pro tem. and Mr. Reed, and another between Mr. Simpson, of Kansas, and Mr. Pickler, of North Dakota.

A laugh was raised in both of these cases, Mr. Simpson being especially successful in scoring a point at the expense of Mr. Pickler and the Republican party. A bill was passed appropriating $15,000 to complete the allotment in severalty of land to the Cheyenne and Arrapahoe Indians in Oklahoma, so that the remaining lands would be ready for occupation.

The proposed code of rules for the 52d Congress was presented by Mr. Catchings and will be taken up for consideration Monday. The portraits of ex-Speakers Galusha A. Grow and Samuel J. Randall, painted for the State of Pennsylvania, were presented to the House by Representative C. W. Stone. Speeches were made by Representatives Wright, McAleer and Brosius, of Pennsylvania, Holman, of Indiana, and Henderson, of Iowa, after which the portraits were formally accepted.

During a part of the proceedings ex-Speaker Grow occupied a seat with the Speaker pro tem. Adjourned until Monday.

ANOTHER FALSITY NAILED.

Minister Montt Denies the Latest Story Concerning Mr. Egan.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The adjournment of the Senate and House until Monday next settles definitely the question whether the Chilian correspondence and the accompanying message of the President would go to Congress this week. Unless there are some new developments in the situation before Monday the correspondence will in all probability be sent in on that day.

It has all been prepared for transmission to Congress and can be sent at the President's pleasure. There have been no new developments this morning. Messrs. Blaine, Tracy and Montt have no news for publication.

A rumor that gained some credence last night was that Minister Montt had received a dispatch from his government instructing him to request the United States to recall Mr. Egan, compliance with the request to be followed by a promise on the part of Chili of apology for the Baltimore affair. Senor Montt when asked about the rumor greeted the question with a laugh and said he has received no such dispatch.

THE REFUGEE MATTER.

A Cablegram to Grace & Co. Throws New Light on the Subject.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—W. R. Grace & Co. yesterday received a cablegram from their house in Valparaiso, Chili, stating that the Chilian government were not officially notified of the transfer of the refugees until after they were on board the Yorktown, and that upon receiving from Commander Evans the official notification of his intention to transfer the refugees to merchant steamers, the Commander of the Marine District merely answered officially that they would have to take whatever risks in the matter which might apply to them as refugees from justice.

It would seem that the Captain of the Yorktown did not understand the whole position and that the Chilian government is desirous of complying in every consistent way with the rights and desires of the United States.

Thinks The Chilians Misrepresented.

BOSTON, Jan. 22.—Col. H. M. Fisher, who represents the Chilian Government here, says that he knows that a letter is on its way from Chili to the United States Government which will satisfy the latter and lead to a settlement of all difficulties. Col. Fisher thinks the Chilian people have been misrepresented, and says they really merit our esteem and friendship.

Believed to Have Been Murdered.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., Jan. 22.—Midst surroundings which suggest a battle for life and murder, the body of George Markart of Calicoon was found in Calicoon creek. This belief is strengthened by the knife-wounds which the body bears, and by facts ascertained about his relationship with his brother-in-law, Adam Heidt, who is suspected of the crime. Heidt, who is slightly deranged, frequently threatened to take Markart's life because he believed Markart to exercise a potent spell over his cattle causing their death. A coroner's jury is now investigating the case.

Believed to Be in Brazil.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—Thomas N. and Frank H. Allison, the missing conveyancers who disappeared from Manayunk, a suburb of this city, some ten days ago, are said to have gone to Brazil. Several questionable transactions have come to light and the liabilities of the firm are now estimated at $100,000. While creditors have not obtained possession of the books they are endeavoring to obtain further information.

Boston Chamber of Commerce Dinner.

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—At the Vendome last evening the Boston Chamber of Commerce tendered a banquet to 400 members and guests in commemoration of the opening of their new building. Many prominent men from all parts of the country were present. President Burnham presided and speeches were made by Gov. Russell and Mayor Matthews. A letter of regret was read from President Harrison.

MUST HAVE BLOOD

Duel-Seeking Laur, of the French Chamber.

M. CONSTANS REFUSES TO FIGHT.

Imposing Scenes at the Funeral of Cardinal Manning in London.

Thousands Follow the Body to the Grave—The Route Lined With Mourners of All Denominations—Princess May Cannot Marry for Five Years—The Grip Making Awful Ravages in Paris—The Czar Takes Action Regarding Embezzlement of Funds Raised for the Relief of Famine Sufferers.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—M. Laur, the Boulangist member of the Chamber of Deputies, who was struck by M. Constans, Minister of the Interior, during the stormy scene in the Chamber on Tuesday, declined to heed the advice of M. Rochefort, the Boulangise leader, and decided to seek revenge for the blow inflicted upon him by the Minister.

Accordingly he chose seconds, who waited upon M. Constans last night as the bearers of a challenge to fight a duel.

According to the code governing personal combats the challenged party has always the right to select the weapons to be used, but in this case M. Laur took it upon himself to choose not only the weapons, which he wanted to be pistols, but the other details of the proposed duel. He wanted to exchange three shots with M. Constans at a distance of 20 paces.

When the representatives of the bloodthirsty member of the Chamber of Deputies arrived at the residence of Mr. Constans they were politely informed that M. Constans refused to receive them. The messenger added that M. Constans had instructed him to inform them that he would not fight. He had been waiting too long, and he did not intend to be all his life at the disposal of M. Laur.

When the seconds informed M. Laur of the result of their errand the latter immediately wrote a letter to M. Constans, repeating the insulting language he had used in the Chamber of Deputies, and which led to the attack upon him by the Minister.

MANNING'S FUNERAL.

Thousands Follow the Remains of the Late Cardinal to the Grave.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The funeral of the late Cardinal Manning was held yesterday morning from Brompton Oratory. The church was packed to the doors, and outside a huge multitude gathered.

The funeral procession will long be remembered in this city as being one of the solemnly magnificent witnessed by the present generation. It was headed by five hundred priests in full canonical robes; after the priests came fourteen bishops in the most ecclesiastical robing. These fourteen bishops were eventually grandly grouped about the front of the high main altar, presenting a most striking picture. Behind them were a number of canons, in the richest mourning vestments, and behind, around and in front of them was a host of choristers.

The Bishop of Clifton, the Hon. Wm. Clifford, officiated at the requiem mass, assisted by the usual number of deacons and sub-deacons.

The Bishop of Newport and Menevia, the Right Rev. John C. Hedley, preached the sermon.

At the conclusion of the religious services in the oratory, the casket containing Cardinal Manning's body was removed in a plain hearse, and an immense procession was formed and followed the remains to Kensal Green Cemetery, five miles distant.

Men and women, old and young, rich and poor, joined in this notable journey to the tomb of the Prince of the Church.

In addition to this imposing procession of the people, the route to the cemetery was lined by tens upon tens of thousands of people. Every hat was raised as the hearse slowly passed on its way to Kensal Green, and on all sides were heard words of praise and sympathy for the distinguished priest. Catholics and Protestants alike wore mourning for Cardinal Manning, and there was no need to glance at and analyze that monster procession in order to come to the conclusion that the deceased prelate was a real and true friend of mankind, and that his loss was felt on all sides, irrespective of religious opinions.

CANNOT MARRY FOR FIVE YEARS

An Old English Law Governing the Case of Princess May of Teck.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—It is not generally known that by the provisions of an old statute any princess who shall be betrothed to an English prince royal in the direct line of succession to the throne shall not, in the event of the death of her affianced husband, be allowed to contract another marriage within five years of the demise of the prince.

This provision adds further gloom to the already dismal surroundings of Princess May of Teck, and it is possible that, as some solace to her in her deep trouble, she will be raised to the rank of "Royal Highness" by the Queen.

Embezzling Russian Famine Funds.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 22.—The extensive embezzlements of famine relief money by public officials have reached the ears of the Czar, and His Majesty has appointed officers who possess his personal confidence to distribute parts of the funds. The Mayor of Moscow has been ordered to proceed to the eastern provinces of Russia and spend 15,000,000 roubles in the purchase of corn. The Mayor is also authorized to confiscate corn when it is not offered for sale at a reasonable price.

Cleveland's Baking Powder

Does not contain ammonia: Costs no more than ammonia powders; It goes farther; It is pure and wholesome.

You should use it.

The Grip in Paris.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—The hospitals in this city are crowded with patients suffering from influenza. The disease prevails in a most dangerous form throughout the city, and the municipal authorities and Assistance Publique are making arrangements to convert available vacant buildings into hospitals. M. De Freycinet, Minister of War, will be asked to allow the barracks on the outskirts of the city to be used as infirmaries. There is a great increase in the number of deaths.

SHE WAS A SLAVER.

A Stowaway's Story of Atrocities in the Pacific Ocean.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22.—A remarkable story is told by a stowaway named James White who has reached this city from Honolulu. He shipped on a small trading schooner last May in Australia for a trip among Pacific Ocean Islands.

The schooner had a crew of fifteen men and was under the command of a man named Captain Colton. White became suspicious when he learned that there were several guns on board, but was informed that they would be traded to Islanders.

The schooner, on its first landing, abducted five young girls, and was pursued by natives in canoes, six or eight natives being killed, and the rest being devoured by sharks.

The vessel then touched at another island some weeks later, and a fight was had in which one of the schooner's crew was killed.

A lot of sandal wood was seized at still another island, but the schooner was chased by a French war vessel which, however, did not get within reach.

White then decided to leave the vessel, and deserted at the first opportunity.

Flint Glass Factories to Shut Down.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 22.—It was learned this morning that twenty-one flint glass factories had decided to shut down for an indefinite period. This action will throw out of employment 2,500 men and boys. The cause assigned is over-production and inability to make a satisfactory agreement on freight rates. Ten factories have closed and the fires will be extinguished in the other eleven by the end of the week.

Mr. Mills' Successor.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The resignation of the Chairmanship of the House Committee of Inter-State and Foreign Commerce by Representative Mills of Texas, will promote to that position Representative Wise of Virginia, whose name follows that of Mr. Mills on the committee. His position on the committee does not necessitate making him chairman, but Speaker Cris has decided to give him the appointment.

Strikers Return to Work.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 22.—The iron founders of the Baldwin Iron Works and Fleck's foundry, who went out on strike about three weeks ago for shorter hours, have returned to work at the old hours. The machinists are still out but their places are being rapidly filled by men from other cities.

Will Result in a New Railroad.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 22.—The Lehigh Valley Railroad, after several years of effort, has succeeded in determining the route by which they will enter this city with a branch from their main line at Pittston, and have selected a terminal site. It is also stated that the Pennsylvania Railroad will be interested with the Lehigh people in this undertaking, which may ultimately result in the building of a line across the northwestern portion of the State from Scranton to the Poughkeepsie bridge.

American Protective Tariff League.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The annual meeting of the American Protective Tariff League was held here yesterday. The general report of the organization showed that the League had distributed nearly 21,000,000 pages of tariff literature during the last fiscal year. Hon. Cornelius Bliss was elected president, Mr. Wilbur F. Wakeman, general secretary and Chester Griswold, treasurer.

Young Field Says He is Ill.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—E. M. Field complained yesterday, for the first time to Warden Dunlap at Ludlow Street Jail, that he was sick. "I don't know how I feel," he said. "I have pains all over my head and body." He is still being attended to by "Old Faithful," the name the jail people have given his nurse, who was an old domestic in the Field family.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—A grand army badge picked up on the street this morning, is awaiting an owner at this office.

—One of Gazelle's hose carriage horses ran away on Park avenue this afternoon, but did no damage.

—Read what the United Tea and Coffee Growers' association have to say on California dried fruits, etc., to-day.

—"Starving On Husks" will be the theme of discourse at the Seventh-day Baptist church to-morrow morning at 10:30. A cordial welcome is extended to the reader.

—At Demarest's to-morrow will be displayed a full line of fresh vegetables and fruits. If you have never been in this store it will pay you to look at his fresh stock of groceries.

—A class in English branches for Scandinavians will be organized at the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-morrow evening. A membership in the association, which costs only $2 a year, entitles the holder to the privileges of this class.

—Edsall says he will guarantee that there is no house selling as large a line of muslins and double-width sheetings in first-class regular goods, as he is offering. He urges his patrons to buy now while the assortment is complete.

—A number of attractive specialties may be found to-day and to-morrow at the store of R. W. Rice & Co. Among them are fresh ripe tomatoes, oyster plant, sweet potatoes, celery, lettuce, radishes and rhubarb. This store is famous for the freshness and excellence of its vegetables in winter.

—Monday will be a great holiday during the present year. Washington's Birthday comes on Monday and so does Memorial Day. The Fourth of July is also billed for a Monday, and Labor Day will be celebrated on a Monday. Christmas is down on the calendar for Sunday and will therefore be celebrated on Monday.

—If you have not seen Mora at Music Hall yet, go to-night. If you have seen her, you will go every night without being told. She is a talented, most versatile and wonderfully clever actress in all roles from comedy to pathos. She is everything from soubrette to tragedienne, and a star in all parts. Her support is capable and her plays are well staged.

—Music forms some of the most attractive features of the Sunday services at the Park Avenue Baptist church. The large choir, composed of members of Plainfield's Choral society, renders the service specially attractive to the young people, Sunday evenings. Next Sunday the choir will be assisted by a talented young lady from the Quaker City; better happen around that way. Seats free at all services.

—The Plainfield polo team went to New York, last night, and defeated that city's team by a score of 3 to 1 after a hard fight of 40 minutes. The fine work of Whiting of the Plainfields, excited the admiration and applause of the 2,000 people present in the Coliseum. Plainfield made 18 fine stops, or the game would have resulted differently. New York made 12. The referee was Kellogg, and the timekeeper, Hanson. To-night the same teams meet in this city at the Crescent ring. There will also be roller skating for all. The band has been engaged and has promised not to again disappoint the public.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac W. Rushmore will give a reception at their spacious home, 133 West Seventh street, to a large number of invited guests, Thursday evening, Feb. 4, from 8 until 11. Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Rushmore, nee Murray; and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rushmore, nee Ackerman, will also receive on that occasion.

Last evening, at their beautiful residence on Netherwood avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Voehl, jr., tendered a reception to their charming young friend, Miss Sarah E. Smith, of Peapack, Somerset county. The evening was delightfully spent in singing, speaking and playing games. Last and long to be remembered was the manner in which the hostess proved her capability by spreading a bountiful repast. The invited guests arrived home early, with many well wishes to the host and hostess.

Conductor William F. Rand, whom so many of Plainfield's commuters knew and kindly remember, has been ill with the grip at his home, 343 Ferry street, Easton. The attack has aggravated the incurable disease he is laid up with, and as his whole family are now down with the grip, he is discouraged and almost hopeless. THE PRESS feels sure there are a number of "Billy's" old friends in this city who would join in doing something to bring brightness into his life again, although he is not a solicitor of charity. He contracted his illness in their service. Standing and walking in the jarring, swaying cars day after day, and year after year, has brought on an affection of the kidneys.

I have used Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills for Dyspepsia, etc., and have been cured by them. I cheerfully recommend them to all who suffer from the same.—STEPHEN BURHANS, sexton Wayne street Reformed church, Jersey City.

COMEDY AT THE CASINO.

LEADING AMATEURS PRESENT THREE CHARMING PLAYS.

Local Talent Wins Histrionic Triumph in Company with Metropolitan Stars—Notable Individual Achievements Combine to Form a Gratifying Social and Artistic Success

SELDOM has a Plainfield audience been so enthusiastic over a dramatic performance as was that which thronged the Casino last evening to enjoy the amateur theatricals given under the auspices of the Park Club of North Plainfield. The affair was distinctively an artistic triumph, as well as a notable social success, and the Park Club members were showered with congratulations, while to the individual players of the evening the audience accorded volumes of deserving praise.

"A Game of Cards", a one-act comedietta from the French, was the first play presented. The Chevalier de Rochferrier was an impoverished nobleman who was dependent on the bounty of his friend M. Mercier, a retired dry-goods merchant. Mercier had a daughter, Rosa, who was betrothed to Anatole, son of the Chevalier, and the wedding day was fixed for the time when Anatole should receive his degree M. D. as a student of medicine. The happy day arrives, but the poor nobleman and the rich merchant have a furious quarrel over their game of piquet, and the nobleman prepares with his son to leave the house in high dudgeon. Anatole and Rosa have an amusing little tiff over their parents' quarrel, but speedily make up again, and Anatole tries his anæsthetic cure-all on the old man, and puts him to sleep with chloroform. While the Chevalier is slumbering Anatole has the room rearranged just as it was before the quarrel and destroys all evidence of the preparations for departure. Mercier redistributes the cards and gives the Chevalier a most beautiful hand, and when the nobleman awakens they persuade him that he fell asleep over the game and that the quarrel was all a dream. When the curtain goes down all is serene, and the young people's hearts are happy, for the notary who is to witness the marriage contract is due.

The dialogue and action abounded in humor, and the production was satisfactory in every respect. Evert Jansen Wendell made a superb Chevalier, and clearly carried off the honors of the evening. He gave a most finished and perfect impersonation.

Harry S. Blake was seen to better advantage as Mercier than in his former appearance here as the villain in "Esmeralda", and shared with his fellow-players a full meed of applause. John Frederick Cook as Anatole made a sufficiently ardent lover, dutiful son, and clever young fellow generally. He could not be blamed for his devotion to Rosa, for Miss Alice G. Cleather, who assumed that role, was very sweet and unaffectedly charming.

In the one-act comedy sketch entitled "My Lord in Livery" there was more depth of plot than in either of the other performances, and it was altogether a delightful production. The entire cast were members of the Footlight Club of New York, and they added not a little to their previous histrionic triumphs. Sybil, daughter of Sir George Amberley, and Laura and Rose, her friends, are alone at the country seat of Sir George. Lord Thirimere, of H. M. S. Phlegethon, wagers his messmate, who is Sybil's favorite cousin, that in half an hour after meeting Sybil he will receive a ring from her finger and will be given permission to kiss her hand. The frolicsome cousin warns Sybil of the lark, and tells them that his lordship will appear in the disguise of a new footman. The three girls plan to defeat the plot by disguising themselves as cook, lady's maid and housemaid. The new footman comes, and meets them in their assumed characters. They discover that he is not his lordship after all, but plain 'Arry 'Opkins, as he announced. Just after they make the discovery and throw off their own disguise his lordship really comes along, bribes 'Opkins, and takes his place. The butler and the girls see the difference, and fancy his lordship a burglar. They stand the strain of his mysterious allusions to the silver and other valuables as long as possible and then throw themselves on his mercy. He sees in the burglar idea a way of getting the ring from Sybil's finger, and he secures the kiss in return for restoring the other jewels that the girls had showered upon him. Of course he fell in love with Sybil: none could have resisted her, for as impersonated by Miss Mildred Eytinge she was a most bewitching young woman. Added to the charms of Miss Eytinge's beauty were her sparkling vivacity of manner, the graciousness of her smile, the soft glance and mischievous twinkle of her eye, the mellow richness of her voice. She led the other players with irresistible humor through a maze of comedy, of plot and counterplot.

"My Lord in Livery" furnished abundant opportunity for high class acting, and each of the participants developed admirably every opportunity. Even the minor part of Robert, the page and youthful hero, was infused with life and humor by John A. Wilson; and as Spigott, the shaky-nerved butler, James S. Cushman, jr., was admirable. John Reginald Blake made a clever Cockney 'Opkins, and Joseph G. Lamb's Lord Thirimere was declared by his feminine admirers to be just too sweet for anything. Mrs. Louise Leigh Jackson as Laura and Miss Blanche Gregory as Rose were indispensable additions to the cast, and entered heartily into the spirit of fun, frolic and dilemma that pervaded the play. Altogether it was a most deliciously funny production. The master hand of Miss Robina Vokes, who arranged the play, was visible all through.

The placing of the farce "The Belle of the Kitchen" directly after "My Lord in Livery" was somewhat unfortunate, for it seemed too like an anti-climax. "The Belle of the Kitchen" is low comedy, and savors of amateur pantomime and the variety stage. There is no especial plot. The kitchen belle, Penelope, sings songs sweetly, looks lovely, and is courted by several lovers and harassed by the minx. The lovers get into all sorts of predicaments, and there is rollicking fun all through. But there is not nearly the chance for artistic work that "My Lord in Livery" affords, and surrounded by their cramped possibilities the kitchen players necessarily suffered by comparison. The personality of Mrs. William L. Saunders made the part of Penelope worth a great deal more than its lines merited; she is capable of making the meanest role a brilliant one. Her friends regretted to have her scope so limited. Miss Maude Agnes Bowers appeared as Mrs. Croaker, the dreaded minx, and once more proved her capabilities, though the part of a cross old woman is by no means the most congenial for her. A. Eustace Fordon as Tosser the soldier and Harry Sargent as Pitcher the policeman were entertaining enough in their way, but the audience might have been spared some of their antique side-jokes. William L. Saunders appeared as Walker Chalks, the milkman, whose honest heart, rugged simplicity and faithful love for Penelope won him much favor from the audience.

The musical interludes by George W. Gregory, banjoist, and by Evert Jansen Wendell as comic singer, were relished, but the entertainment would have been a finished one without the interpolations. Mr. Gregory is, however, a skillful banjoist, and Mr. Wendell is an excellent entertainer. The songs sung were the familiar ones of "The Bold Fisherman", "L'arnin' McFadden to Waltz" and "Oh, Fred, Tell Them to Stop!"

The plays were ably directed by Messrs. Wendell, Blake and Fordon. The excellence of the stage settings was due to J. Parker Mason and George C. Evans. Charles J. Fisk furnished the properties, and Mr. Saunders was the capable manager. The orchestral music, directed by Louis J. Cornu of the Standard theatre, was greatly enjoyed. Mr. Wendell appeared by courtesy of the Amateur Dramatic club of New York, and Mr. Cook by courtesy of the Elizabeth Dramatic club.

Considerable dissatisfaction was manifest over the misunderstanding concerning the hour of opening the doors. The tickets read "Doors open at 7:30", but as the Casino hour had always been 7 o'clock no attention was paid to the notice. From 7 to 7:30 a large number of people in evening dress were obliged to shiver in the cold outside the closed doors, and when they finally gained admittance they were surprised to find many of the best seats occupied by those who had been favored as Country Club members and had slipped in through the club-house. Park Club members were greatly vexed that Country Club members had thus been allowed to steal a march on them.

Floral testimonials of appreciation were showered upon the feminine participants in the plays during the evening.

—The boy choir will sing at the young men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. rooms Sunday afternoon at 4:15. There will also be solo singing.

Get rid of it, if you have Catarrh. Don't merely relieve it for a time with poisonous, irritating snuffs and strong caustic solutions. While you seem to be getting help, you may be getting harm. Stopped in this way, it's usually only driven to the lungs. You're worse off than ever.

But you can get rid of it completely, with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. That's been proved over and over again, in thousands of the most hopeless cases. By its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, Catarrh in the Head and all Catarrhal affections are perfectly and permanently cured.

Some physicians will tell you that Catarrh can't be cured. They mean that they can't cure it. Dr. Sage's Remedy can. And to prove that they believe it, the proprietors of this medicine will pay $500 for an incurable case of Catarrh. They don't see one often, but they'll pay the money when they do.

CLARENCE BOWEN'S MARRIAGE.

The License Has Been Issued and He Departs for Chicago Soon.

The simple announcement that Clarence Bowen, of Brooklyn, son of the editor of the New York Independent, and brother of Henry E. Bowen of this city, had secured a marriage license in Chicago on Wednesday appears to have excited no end of speculation in society as to his apparent haste.

Mr. Bowen is to be wedded to Miss Roxanna Wentworth, daughter of the late "Long John" Wentworth, editor, politician and many times millionaire, in that city on next Thursday at noon, in the New England Congregational church. A reporter who called at Mr. Bowen's residence last night was told that if a marriage license had been obtained it was taken out as one of the preliminaries and had no other significance.

Mr. Bowen will start for Chicago on Wednesday next in the parlor car Wanderer, which has been engaged for the occasion. He will be accompanied by Messrs. James M. Varnum, Lispenard Stewart and William E. D. Stokes, of New York; William A. Reed, Arthur M. Hatch, A. Sibley Carhart and Franklin Davis Bowen, of Brooklyn, who, with Messrs. Walker, Blatchford and Isham, of Chicago, will serve as ushers. Herbert Walcott Bowen, who for many summer seasons has been a resident of the Hotel Netherwood, will act as best man.

OBITUARY.

James Lowrie.

James Lowrie died at his late residence on North avenue, Dunellen, last evening, at the age of 86. He had been a resident of Dunellen the past 18 years.

Mr. Lowrie was born near Bannockburn, Scotland, July 13, 1806, and while a mere boy learned the trade of carpet weaving. About 60 years ago he came to this country in the interests of a carpet company, and set up the first Brussels carpet loom, and wove the first Brussels carpet, made in this country. He never returned to see the home of his birth, but made America his adopted country.

He leaves a wife, who had been married to him for over 62 years. Until about three years ago Mr. Lowrie enjoyed very good health, and followed up his old trade, but of late he had been very feeble and unable to leave his room. His greatest trouble was heart disease. Arrangements have not as yet been made as to the time of the funeral, but he will be buried at Worcester, Mass., where the family has a burial plot.

Cease your coughing and enjoy refreshing slumber, which Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will insure you.

"Are you going to the races?" "Yes, and bet on the winning horse." "Not the handsome Abdullah, he is lame. Didn't you know?" "I'll whisper in your ear—he'll win. They're using Salvation Oil."

END OF THE ELKWOOD.

Creditors Close Up the Saloon, and Will Sell Out J. B. Miller at Auction—Miller Disappears.

Ever since THE PRESS refused to publish the advertisement of Joseph Brengle Miller's "Elkwood" because of the character which the place had developed, Miller's business has been dwindling steadily away, although extensively advertised in the other Plainfield papers. To-day the place is closed altogether, constable W. B. Mattox having seized the entire property to satisfy the demands of creditors, one of whom Ruppert the brewer, alone has a claim of $700, on chattel mortgage. Mr. Mattox took complete possession, locked up the saloon, and put the key in his pocket. He will sell out the entire property at auction. The dead advertisement of the Elkwood will be found booming along in the columns of the Courier and News to-night just the same.

Miller left the city on the 12:56 p. m. train, Wednesday. He has never returned. With him was a young Plainfielder who is built to be a high roller but who has nothing to be a sport with except such money as he can coax from his mother, one of the most estimable women of this city. She is a widow, and is compelled by force of circumstances to keep a boarding house. This young man came home last night with his head cut open. He could n't tell where Miller was.

A Unique Entertainment.

The lecture which is to be given at Seminary hall, to-morrow evening, by Frederick Keppel, promises much that is novel and entertaining, even though it comes in the midst of a winter so full of pleasant entertainments as is Plainfield's present season. Although a comparatively new topic to many, yet the subject of "Famous Etchers and Etchings", is one which at once inlists the interest of all lovers of art, and suggests a treat not to be slighted.

No other branch of art has commanded of late more critical attention from connoisseurs than that of etching, and the work of skillful etchers, is growing in importance and excellence.

To have the opportunity of listening to one who is so thoroughly versed in this beautiful branch of art, will be at once delightful and instructive, and the mere suggestion of "Personal Recollections" in these days of hero-worship, is enough to awaken pleasant anticipations of a fascinating talk upon a fascinating topic.

The fact that Mr. Keppel illustrates his lecture with some superb lantern pictures upon a screen—consisting not only of many masterpieces of the artists of whom he talks, but also of portraits of the artists themselves—will give his audience the sense of almost a personal interview with these "Apostles of Beauty," such as alone could be provided by so striking and attractive an accompaniment.

Bob Meeker's Speech.

At the State road convention at Trenton, yesterday, Robert A. Meeker, of this city, spoke on the topic "Need of Engineering Skill in Permanent Road Building". He is a civil engineer, but said he did not come before the convention in that capacity, but as a road builder. He had been engaged in that capacity for two years past, and gave his experience. He said the dirt from the side of a road should not be thrown on the centre, as it was dead dirt. It should be disposed of in deep holes or otherwise, and gravel or rock put in the centre of the road. But this must have a good foundation or it will make it worse than at the beginning.

Ever Watchful of His State's Interests.

[From The Somerville Messenger.]

Senator McPherson, as ever, is watchful of New Jersey's interests at Washington, that is her real interests, such as the milking of the treasury in the form of appropriations. The other day, when a bold and bad Missouri Senator objected to a particular bill increasing the appropriation for a Hoboken post-office from $100,000 to $110,000, our Senator very plainly informed him that New Jersey, as one of the original 13 States, was as good as anybody else, and if she could not get what she wanted he would watch all appropriation bills, and see that no other States could get any more.

Pastor Dill, Puppy Dogs, and Heaven.

[From The Newark Evening News]

The sayings of Mr. Dill are cropping up at Morristown, and one that caused a sniff of disgust among the Presbytery and a broad grin among those not in the inner circle, was an alleged utterance of the accused pastor upon his sentiment for a little dog. This is the alleged utterance:

"I love that puppy dog as a brother. When I go to heaven I expect first to see that puppy dog coming down the shining shore to meet me in a silken robe and with a halo, wagging his tail."

PLAINFIELD HAS A COCK FIGHT.

Trenton Birds Soundly Thrashed by the Pyle Muffs of the City of Culture.

For several years past the owners and breeders of a strain of pyle muff game fowls in this city have been trying to arrange a main with some of the other strains, merely to try their birds to see if they were as good as they thought they were.

Until a few weeks ago they were unsuccessful. None of the Long Island or Jersey breeders were willing to try conclusions with the King Charles Pyles. It looked as if no one in the country would accept the flat, and the Sporting Blacksmith and Old Hat, whose knowledge of chickens was inherited from their great grandparents, began to despair of ever getting a chance to prove whether their chickens were as good as they boasted they were, when a Trenton man accepted the oft-repeated challenge, and a main was promptly arranged.

The main was fought Wednesday night in the reception room of a road house not many miles from the Clifton race track. About 250 persons witnessed the sport. It was the usual mixed crowd. There were lawyers, doctors, actors, Princeton students, base-ball players, prize fighters, professional gamblers, saloon keepers, farmers, and in fact almost all sorts and conditions of men, and many of them were from Plainfield. A better betting crowd never sat around a pit. The wagering was heavy throughout. Before a bird had been weighed, the odds were 50 to 40 that the pyle muffs or Plainfield birds would win the main.

These odds were accepted by Trenton men only. Not a man from Northern New Jersey or Long Island or New York would wager a dollar against the doughty pyle muffs. They knew by experience what those birds could do, although it is nearly three years since one of that strain had been in the pit.

There were thirteen pairs shown, only nine pairs of which were matched. The battles were for $25 a side, with $250 wagered on the main.

It was several minutes after 10 when the familiar figure of Old Clack entered the pit with a pyle muff that weighed five pounds.

A few minutes later the Trenton handler entered the pit carrying a beautiful Irish gray that tipped the scale at 5 pounds. Before a pass had been made about $200 had been wagered with odds in favor of the pyle.

The battle was what is known in sporting circles as a rattling good one. Both birds fought fast and furious. It was even during the first twenty minutes. A change then set in. The pyle was slowly but sorely getting the better of his antagonist. After they had fought half an hour the pyle had a decided advantage.

The Irish gray began to show signs of quitting, and amid the jeers of all present he ran away after he received a severe brain blow. The battle lasted 35 minutes.

The second fight was between a pair of bantams. They were a pair of brass backs, and weighed 3 pounds 12 ounces each. It was of a lively give-and-take order and lasted but five minutes. A heavy throat blow put an end to the Plainfield chanticleer's chance of winning.

The third battle was also won by Trenton. It was a 4-pound 6-ounce pyle against a white hackle black red of the same weight. It lasted twenty minutes. The pyle was literally cut to pieces.

A black hackle was pitted against a pyle muff in the fourth battle. They weighed 4 pounds 8 ounces each. It took the pyle precisely five minutes to kill the Trenton bird. Another victory was scored by the pyles in the fifth battle.

Another Irish gray represented Trenton. He weighed 4 pounds 5 ounces, just one ounce less than the Plainfield bird, a pyle muff.

This battle lasted but two minutes. The pyle was a good and sure hitter and brained the Trenton rooster.

The sixth battle was also captured by a doughty pyle muff. He weighed 4 pounds 9 ounces, an ounce more than the Trenton fowl, a blue gray. The latter was cut off in his prime by a brain blow when the fight had lasted but six minutes.

Trenton managed to stem the tide of victory by winning the seventh battle, but they sent a quitter against a pyle and lost the eighth battle, which gave the main to Plainfield and the pyle muffs.

The ninth battle was fought, and was a terrific one. It was won by Plainfield in twenty-five minutes. The main created intense excitement, and feeling was high on both sides.

A Sensation in Church.

It is said that Editor Rittenhouse, of the Hackettstown Gazette, never makes a practice of attending divine service very regularly, but when he does he invariably assists in singing, providing the choir selects some old, familiar piece, of the "Old Hundred" order. A few Sunday evenings ago while perambulating one of the principal streets of the town, in a somewhat dejected and despondent mood, he unconsciously entered one of the leading churches while the congregation were singing old "Coronation". He, of course, as was his usual custom, attuned his mellifluous voice and struck in; but being somewhat absent-minded, created quite a sensation by changing the verse as follows:

Let every kindred, every tribe,
On this terrestrial ball,
Put down their dollar and subscribe,
And we'll receipt for all.

He hasn't been to church since.

Ely's Cream Balm is worth its weight in gold as a cure for catarrh. One bottle cured me.—S. A. Lovell, Franklin, Pa.

THE STOCKHOLDERS CHEERED.

Because of the Reading Railroad's Splendid Showing Last Year as a Result of President McLeod's Administration of That Great Property.

Corporation meetings are not usually demonstrative. On the contrary, as a rule, such gatherings are characterized by cold-blooded and business-like reticence. It must, therefore, have been peculiarly gratifying to president McLeod, of the Reading railroad, when, at the annual meeting of that corporation the other day, the stockholders applauded the unexpectedly favorable report of his administration of their great property during the past year.

The results accomplished and the gains achieved in every department of the company's business during a year when other railroads have barely succeeded in holding their own, have scarcely a parallel in railway history, and constitute a most emphatic endorsement of the integrity and ability of the road's present management.

As compared with 1890, the business of the railroad itself for 1891 shows an increase in net earnings of $1,669,216.44, and an increase in profits of $1,510,038 82, while the Coal and Iron company's operations exhibit an increase of $633,823.94 in net earnings, and a total gain over the previous year of $640,423.67, making a total gain, for the two companies, of $2,150,462.49.

The net amount set aside as profits for 1891 is considerably more than double that of 1890. Out of this there will be paid the full interest, 5 per cent., on the first preference income bonds, and 4½ per cent. on the second preferences. That the management did not strain a point to pay the full 5 per cent. on the latter securities is evidence that Mr. McLeod will not descend to questionable methods in order to make a good showing.

Many interesting facts are to be gleaned from the president's report. From it we learn that the Reading company is one of the greatest land owners in the Union, its vast estates, comprising coal, iron, ore and timber lands, aggregating upwards of 194,000 acres. The company owns at least 50 per cent. of all the anthracite coal remaining unmined in Pennsylvania. The Reading is also a landlord on a very large scale, owning 2,764 dwelling houses, built upon its lands, and for the most part occupied by miners and other employes.

To operate the mines there is employed a force 24,754 men and boys, and it will surprise most people outside of the "region" to learn that of this number only 9,709 are foreign born. 2,600 horses and mules, 18 locomotives and 7,275 mine cars are in use underground to move the coal from the chambers to the breakers. Among the commodities used at the mines annually are 2,000 tons of blasting powder, 140 tons of dynamite, and for horse feed 250,000 bushels of grain and 6,200 tons of hay.

There are 16,783 men on the railroad's rolls; these added to the army employed about the collieries make a total of 41,537, to whom were paid for wages during the year $18,237,262.70. It may be estimated that fully 200,000 persons depend directly for support upon the earnings of the Reading's employes. For supplies of various kinds the company disburses millions of dollars annually, and the re-distribution of these vast sums among the population in general is suggestive of the interdependent relations existing between this corporation and the communities in which it operates.

Altogether, the report is most gratifying, not alone to the holders of Reading securities, but also to the public at large, as demonstrating the complete financial as well as physical rehabilitation of a great and important property.

Dunellen Dots.

A surprise party was given to Mr. and Mrs. David Runyon last evening. A number of out-of-town guests were present.

The dime sociable at Geo. Giles's last night was well attended.

While turning down the wick in a kerosene lamp, last Wednesday evening, Miss Sadie Giles turned it too far, and the lighted wick fell into the oil. Robert Giddis happened to be present at the time, and prevented an explosion by throwing the lamp out.

This is an Array of Talent.

The next concert of the Melopoia, which is to be given on the 23rd of February, will introduce to the music-lovers of Plainfield an unequalled array of professional talent. THE PRESS is permitted to disclose the coming of the following:

Signor Galassi, the famous baritone; Miss Blauvelt, a soprano star whose rapid rise above the many brilliant planets who had for years occupied the firmament all to themselves, has created the greatest sensation in musical circles since the dawn of Gerster; the Rubenstein trio; Adolph Hartdegen the 'cello soloist, and Otto Schill the viola soloist, of the Beethoven string quartette; and W. Ward Stephens a pupil of Pachman, and a pianist well-known to the Plainfield public.

Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. A Good Cause Gains by an Enjoyable Tea.

The Ladies' Christian Work society of Trinity Reformed church, gave a tea at the home of Mrs. D. Snediker, 110 Grove street, last evening. It was well attended but deserved the presence of every member of the church and congregation. Everyone had a most pleasant time, and a good sum of money was realized. There was a bountiful supply of supper.

The features of the evening were the singing of Miss Staats of Elizabeth, a niece of Mrs. Snediker; instrumental music by Miss Snediker, and singing by Fred S. Cutter.

—What do the people think now of James L. Slevin, of this city, and other members of the grand jury that indicted THE PRESS for telling truths about the Miller saloon on Second street.

And a good lamp must be simple; when it is not simple it is not good. Simple, Beautiful, Good—these words mean much, but to see "The Rochester" will impress the truth more forcibly. All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. IN THE EVENT OF WAR.

General O. O. Howard Discusses a Probable Plan of Defense.

A Careful Discussion of Possibilities—The Consequences of a War With Chili or With Italy—A Great Loss of Property Inevitable.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

Yes, indeed, I am willing to answer those three questions which you submit, and deem of present importance.

1. Is there a possibility of war with any foreign nation?

The question is a general one, though it is direct and can be answered affirmatively or negatively. It would be a glorious morn, if the dawn of the twentieth century could show written on the sky of promise a negative answer like this: "The millenium has come, peace and good will reign upon the earth; there is no longer the possibility of war betwen nations, for the will of the Lord is everywhere done, and will everywhere be done from henceforth forever more!" Certainly then, as the greater includes the less, there would never be the possibility of war between the United States and any other nation, great or small.

But whenever I ascend either hill or mountain where the field of vision has any reasonable expanse, I cannot discover even an approximate negative to the question; on the contrary, I cannot refrain from formulating the answer: Yes! Yes! there is a possibility of war between nations. Here and there the possibility becomes a probability, and even on our own continent, much as we hate it, too often there is the deplorable fact of actual war.

As in Honduras, Guatemala, the states of Columbia, Brazil, Argentine Republic, Peru and Chili, it is war and rumors of war continually. We are hardly settled down to the comforts of peace and hope for the future, saying to ourselves: "The days of peace have at last come," when there arises some new outbreak, local or national, or international.

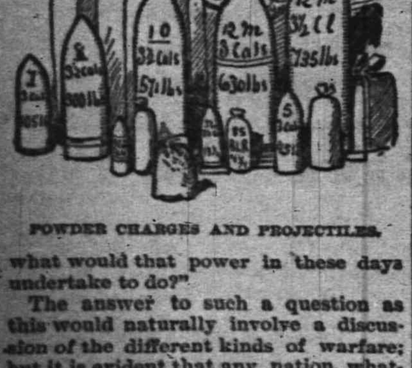
Just at present the United States is at peace and has been at peace, so far as other nations are concerned, for over a quarter of a century, and public men pray, promise and hope that there may never be war between the United States and any other government.

Still war or peace does not rest upon the will of one party or one nation alone. Take our difficulty, not yet settled, that arose from the massacre of the Italians in New Orleans, and the demand for redress which immediately followed from Italy. There is negotiation, there is a disposition to do right by parties in power. Doubtless the rulers of both nations are acting conscientiously, and everybody hopes, and everybody believes that there will be a peaceful settlement of all the questions involved.

But, my friends ask me, is such a thing as war with Chili likely to occur? Is it probable? My answer is: No; certainly not. Still it is within the range of possibility.

Is a fire likely to occur on Governor's island? Is it probable? I think not. Yet it is within the range of possibility, and on that account a fairly good fire department has been organized with proper machinery and a proper force to man it, and the essential rules to bring it into the field and govern it when necessary.

You ask a second question; "Should here be a war with any foreign power,



POWDER CHARGES AND PROJECTILES.

what would that power in these days undertake to do?"

The answer to such a question as this would naturally involve a discussion of the different kinds of warfare; but it is evident that any nation, whatever, in order to carry on a war against the United States must be aggressive; and a war, in the main, would be offensive, or, at best, offensive in the outset and then defensive. These terms, the meaning of which is evident, will apply to both land movements and naval operations.

We may premise that a small nation on the west coast of America, for example, before beginning an aggressive war would seek to make some close alliance with some other more powerful nation both offensive and defensive. The struggle would appear so one-sided against a solid nation of sixty millions of people without such preparation for reinforcement and reserve, that reasonable statesmen in the small aggressive nation would beforehand clearly discern the futility of the struggle with insufficient means.

Yet, suppose for the moment that passion and pride had blinded their eyes, and that an unaccountable public opinion on the part of their people had pressed them to adopt insane measures, what could the said small nation do?

First, it would discontinue intercourse, political and commercial. It might confiscate the property of all United States citizens within her boundaries. It might imprison sailors; catch up all vessels within the limits of her jurisdiction, and confiscate their cargoes. It might send forth its well-equipped national naval marine; run down and seize American vessels on the high seas. It could aggravate this work by issuing "letters of marque" and authorizing fast steamers to help themselves to merchant ships which are owned and sailed by United States firms.

The officials of the small nation could keep up this sort of warfare for some time, carefully avoiding direct battle with our naval squadrons, their success depending more upon the fleetness of their steamers and ships than upon their ability to succeed in direct naval engagements.

We can conceive that a small navy on the Pacific coast could make a very large disturbance. It could run into small harbors like that of San Diego; take possession and hold on to the city and the water, standing on the defensive; and it could fortify and garrison the coast city thus seized, or make the effort; and it might even attempt several anchorages off the coast, say, of San Francisco, for its ironclads, and so put that city and Oakland under contribution. As before intimated, by naval operations alone a very small nation, recognized by other nations in its belligerent or war rights, could effect an incalculable amount of damage to a great nation like the United States.

The seal catching could be stopped and the enormous Alaska trade rendered of no value. The lumber business carried on so extensively from the Puget sound could be interrupted and seriously impaired, if not destroyed. The growing trade of wheat and other cereals between the Pacific coast and the Hawaiian islands, China and Japan could be checked, diminished and perhaps destroyed.

The wonderful fishery business—salmon catching on the lower Columbia, for example, which now employs hundreds of vessels and thousands of men—could be alarmingly restricted by hostile squadrons. Behold such enemies just outside the channels and bars and rivers! Would not investors in that business be likely to withdraw their capital?

These small suggestions are enough to enable thinking men to see the immense damage that a single spark of actual war coming from any nation, however small, could effect. No man or set of men could calculate the immense conflagration that might result from a fanatical or malicious kindling.

Your third question is the most important, viz.: "How could the United States meet any aggression from abroad?"

We will consider aggression, in illustration, from the Pacific coast alone. On the Atlantic the conditions would be the same, though, of course, on a larger scale.

A country situated on the sea should have three lines of defense when receiving an attack from the sea; first, the navy itself; second, forts, torpedoes and harbor-defense vessels fixed and movable; and after a foreign enemy shall have established himself in a harbor, then the third is the army proper, with a base in the interior. In our case we are partially supplied with the first line of defense; still our navy is not large enough to protect our vast commerce; therefore, it alone could not be considered as an absolute check to an enemy moving against our coast.

In the second line we have some good guns of old pattern mounted at principal harbors, as at San Francisco and San Diego; a number of sub-marine mines that could be placed in position to shut out an enemy and close the openings to the harbors; they would just now be mines that would explode on contact with the vessels, and not by electricity. Soon, however, we look forward to a complete system of electric cables.

Again, we have for sudden use all the tugs, small yachts and harbor boats, which, by a great sacrifice of life and property, giving each a long spar in front and some dynamite, can be used to protect the entrance to the harbor. These means with other aids readily suggested to inventive brains might keep out an enemy from our Pacific coast harbors; that is, from San Diego, San Francisco, Columbia river and Puget sound.

But assuming that these should not be enough, should an army attack fail, and further, that one harbor, San Diego, for instance, should come into full possession of the enemy; then a field army would have to be equipped and organized in order to regain that harbor and somehow checkmate the enemy, who, doubtless, enemy-like, would be attempting to act from this location as a base to extend his power.

Of our present regular army probably not more than ten thousand troops would be available, the others being required in the posts they now occupy to protect the people from local troubles or foreign attacks. The states would be speedily called upon by the president to furnish such number of men as would give us a larger army than the hostile one landed or probably landed by our opponent. There would be from a few states well drilled militia, but they would be unaccustomed to campaigning and field service. From other states we would only expect raw levies.

At first, then, we would have to suffer the greatest loss of valuable lives, while operating to confine the enemy within as close limits as possible; perhaps falling back before him, until, by equipping and drilling these forces, we should be in sufficient strength to give him battle with reasonable hope of success. Even if we were defeated in one or more engagements our case would give no dire discouragement; for, the recruiting and increasing of our army, and training of the people at a great distance, which is possible on account of the size of our country, would make it certain that we eventually would drive any hostile force that could probably be landed on our shores. Our unprepared condition, however, is so great that it must cost many precious lives and millions of dollars in money that could be saved if we had, as we hope to soon have, the requisite preparation.

Surely we have made great strides in the last five or ten years toward this preparation so far as our first line, the navy, is concerned; and also are making fair progress in the second line; for example, in the superb sets of breach-loading mortars that cover a wide field of approach and far out; the splendid breach-loading cannon of largest range and greatest penetrating power; in the swift and sure torpedo boats; the formidable floating batteries; and seacoast guns which spring up like magic, do their work and then run to instant safety.

The final means of defense of our country, the movable military army, is in just the same condition as to numbers as it was twenty years ago; and the large number of trained soldiers that came out of the war of the rebellion, who were then available, have passed away or are too old and infirm to take part in any future military operations; so that we must begin, should a war come, at the threshold and go very slowly in order to prepare an effective army and mobilize it.

I assumed San Diego a point to be attacked merely because it is the southernmost harbor of California, and is almost entirely defenseless, giving ingress to quite a rich country. However, any attack on the Pacific coast would probably only use such a harbor as that for a coaling station from which to send a force upon the larger and more valuable harbor of San Francisco; even if the first attack was not aimed directly at that city.

Should the attack come on the Puget sound or the Columbia river the conditions would be the same; except that, in many respects, this would be more favorable to the assailant than an attack upon either of the other two points, there being such a quantity of food and of transports by horses always to be found in the northwest.

A hostile army overrunning Washington and Oregon would be very hard to defeat, on account of the protection of the mountainous country surrounding these states. There are great distances across arid plains for us who would hasten succor to compass; and the fact that within themselves they have almost no organized military power that could keep any considerable force from taking possession is a strong argument to hasten every reasonable provision against such possibilities as any thoughtful man cannot help contemplating.

The few candid suggestions that have just been made in answer to your last question are such as I think every man, every citizen I mean, should consider, and such as should be canvassed before the public, and therefore before the nations of the world.

If one should say that we are thus letting our enemies see our condition, or helping them to methods, the answer is very direct and simple. They, our enemies, already know more than we dream; they have sketches of our forts and of our harbors; and they know within reasonable limits about how much force we have on hand, and how soon we could be made ready for service. They are watching our growing navy, and they understand that, though we are a peace-loving people, we are indomitable in war.

Certainly we should not confine ourselves to a simple defensive attitude, because, in case of an outbreak, there will be blows to give as well as blows to take. Any small nation would find its own commerce soon destroyed, its own seaboard blockaded, its own harbors seized and fortified, and, doubtless before long, a column like that of Gen. Taylor or of Gen. Scott, in the Mexican war, walking step by step from city to city, from siege to siege, from battle to battle, till it set down at the capital, complete master of the said small nation.

Still it is the earnest purpose of every good citizen, and certainly of every patriotic soldier, to prevent war by having such a preparation in all our three lines of defense that there will be no temptation to the folly, the fanaticism, the pride or the ambition of any greedy people on the globe to attack our cities or to overrun our domain.

CHILI BLAMES EGAN

His Recall Demanded From Secretary Blaine.

FALSE REPORTS ARE ALLEGED.

Suspension of Communication Between the Two Countries Likely.

The Chilian Government Charges that Egan Has Tried to Foment War—He Has Been Instructed to Ascertain Chili's Intention in the Affair—No Word From Him Yet Received—The Message to be Sent to Congress Monday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The formal request made by Minister Montt for the recall of Minister Egan did not occasion much surprise as the action had been expected for some time. It is said that the Chilian Government bases its request for the recall of Mr. Egan upon the allegations that the American Minister had been guilty of making reports to Washington that were deliberately false and of engaging in intrigues for the purpose of creating trouble between the United States and Chili.

"The publication of the correspondence with Chili," said a gentleman who is acquainted with it, "will conclusively disprove the assertions of the Chilian Government. Mr. Egan has kept this Government fully advised of the progress of events in Chili since his arrival there; but he has done so without partisan bias. The members of the United States Government who are familiar with his conduct, fully approve it, and President Harrison and Secretary Blaine are fully in accord in the estimation with which Mr. Egan is held.

"This action on the part of the Chilian Government, which is the first official indication of their dissatisfaction with Minister Egan, will have a tendency to precipitate a crisis in the relations of the two countries. It is taken in official circles to indicate that Chili does not intend to make reparation or apology for the Baltimore incident unless it can attach conditions which will preserve the pride of the government of that country, and enable it to retain the respect and support of the people who would resent an unqualified apology.

"This incident, under the conditions prevailing, comes perilously near a suspension of communication between the two countries, and the developments of the next day or two will be awaited with much interest."

The Administration awaits a report from Minister Egan as to the intentions of the Chilian Government.

The Minister has been instructed to call upon the Cabinet at Santiago for an immediate categorical answer to the question whether Chili has any intention of making a favorable response to the demands of the United States, either now or at some future time. An answer to the demand is expected hourly but nothing has yet been received.

The Cabinet would not be surprised if Minister Montt, finding himself set aside in the negotiations, should conclude to withdraw from the country. The action of the administration was taken with this possibility fully in view.

The time for diplomatic subterfuges has passed and there will will be no more delay for any cause unless the Chilian Government states definitely and at once its intention to satisfy fully the demands of the United States. The message, which will go in Monday, will be so complete in its treatment of the question at issue that a perusal of the correspondence accompanying it will, according to the statement of a Cabinet Minister, be altogether unnecessary. The message will cover the history of the case from the beginning, and will be as clear as it is complete.

Says there is No Animosity.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Dispatches sent from here declaring that there is great animosity in Chili against the United States have no foundation in fact. Everything is quiet. President Montt is about to leave the capital for the baths. The Chilian squadron has sailed from Valparaiso for the usual evolutions at sea. Private dispatches from Valparaiso partially confirm the above and say that nothing unusual seems to be going on, but it is evident that the fleet is prepared for any emergency. It is kept in a high state of efficiency.

Killed by School Boys.

LIMA, Ohio, Jan. 23.—Frank Laughlin, a 12-year-old boy, was killed here while attempting to defend his sister, who teaches school in McDonald Township, Hardin County. Miss Laughlin was chastening Bert Smith, John Stevenson, Charles and William Spurlock, aged 14 to 17 years, when they turned on her and were using her very roughly. Her brother went to her defence. The boys turned on him and beat him with clubs and their fists until they inflicted injuries which resulted in his death. Miss Laughlin was badly injured. The unruly boys were all arrested and are confined in the jail at Kenton.

Why Shirk Was Removed.

READING, Pa., Jan. 23.—Levi S. Shirk, for many years postmaster at Morgantown, this county, has been removed from his office by the authorities. Some time ago charges were brought against him and an investigation was made. It was alleged he had made uncomplimentary remarks about Postmaster-General Wanamaker and President Harrison, and that the Administration was adversely criticised. Samuel Dechley, an old soldier, has been appointed in Shirk's place.

THE INDIANAPOLIS FIRE.

Twenty Lost Their Lives—Institute Officials Blamed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 23.—Nineteen dead bodies removed from the ruins and the death of a child from injuries received, is the record of the loss of life caused by the fire that destroyed the Indiana Surgical Institute early Friday morning.

The victims were cripples or persons undergoing operations, and the scenes at the conflagration were terrible.

Many pairs of braces were unearthed in the ruin, showing that some of the unfortunates in their effort to escape had unloosened their braces and thrown them away.

The police took possession of the trunks and many valuables that were left in some rooms undestroyed. The patients nearly all had considerable money with them, which was left in the rooms in the haste to fly. Four or five pocket-books were found by the officers. In some of the books was as much as $150. All of these valuables were turned over to the officers of the institution.

The loss on building and contents is estimated at $35,000; covered by $52,000 insurance.

There were 316 inmates all told in the building, which was a labyrinthian affair, many of the windows being grated so as to prevent the juvenile inmates from falling out. These gratings were responsible for the loss of more than one life.

FOUND IN A HOVEL.

The Daughter of General Pattison Reduced to the Most Abject Poverty.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Jan. 23.—In an old woodshed not fit for the habitation of a beast, and in a bed of miserable rags, a woman 62 years old was found yesterday who is the daughter of the millionaire General Pattison, who was notable in two wars.

She became the wife of Colonel Graham and followed him to the Mexican war. She was the heroine of the famous charge at Chepultepec, rushing forward with the storming party and picking up the fallen flag and waving it at the breastworks.

She charges that her half brother, Governor Pattison, of Pennsylvania, defrauded her of her share of her father's estate, which was valued at nearly $10,000,000. She had $15,000 when she came to Sioux City, but lost it.

For four winters she has lived in absolute destitution in a woodshed in the rear of the residence of a lawyer who has attended to the litigation in which she was interested. This winter she has depended entirely upon the charity of a neighbor, who sent her food.

FIVE KILLED, THREE INJURED.

Awful Wreck on the Atlantic & Pacific in New Mexico.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Jan. 23.—Shortly after 12 o'clock midnight a Raymond and Witcom special going West on the Atlantic & Pacific, and a passenger train coming East collided a few hundred yards east of Blue Water, a station on Atlantic & Pacific Railroad 107 miles west of this place, and five employes of the road were killed and three injured.

The killed are: Engineer Taylor of the regular train, Fireman Keaggey, Engineer Moore of the special, Conductor Moran of the passenger, and Fireman Waverly of the special.

The injured are: R. S. Gordon, baggage master; Tom Collins, baggage master; W. C. Smith, express messenger on the passenger.

The injuries are slight. The passengers were badly shaken up, but none of them on either train sustained serious injuries. A special train bearing officials of the road went out to the scene of the wreck. The blame for the wreck has not yet been located.

Senator Quay Gets a Verdict.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 23.—The jury in the Quay-"Post" libel suit, after being out three hours, returned a verdict of guilty against A. J. Barr, president of the "Post" Publishing Company, and James Mills, writing editor, as charged in the indictments. The maximum penalty is one year's imprisonment and $1,000 fine. The court may reduce this as low as one hour's imprisonment and 6 1-4 cents fine.

Mrs. Blaine's Alimony Not Reduced.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—At the office of Hoadley, Lauterbach & Johnson it is stated that the temporary alimony of Mrs. James G. Blaine jr. has been increased, not reduced, as stated. The alimony, Mr. Johnson said, as well as the counsel fees had, as a matter of fact, been increased, the alimony from $300 to $600 a month and the counsel fees from $300 to $400.

The President's Father-in-Law.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The Rev. Dr. Scott, the President's father-in-law, celebrated his 92d birthday yesterday. He is a remarkably vigorous old gentleman, and received many congratulations on his continued good health. He demonstrated his sound condition by walking several times around the east room at a rapid gait without apparent effort.

SCORES OF DEAD AND INJURED.

Fire Breaks Out and Adds to the Horrow of the Scene.

Three Vessels Arrived at London Report Having Passed Burning Ships—It is Probable That Many Lives Have Been Lost—Great Suffering Reported in Ireland—The French Troops Victorious in Tangiers.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 23.—A Slobodskoj, sixteen miles from Viatka, a frightful accident has just occurred. A large congregation thronged one of the numerous churches for which Slobodskoj is celebrated. While worship was going on, and without any warning, the roof of the church fell in with a tremendous crash. The people were crushed beneath the great beams, and fearful cries went up from the struggling and writhing mass.

Those who were able rushed to the windows and doors for egress, and a number were hurt in the effort to get out. The people of the town hurried to the rescue and aided in extricating the dead and the injured. Meantime fire broke out in the wreck from the fire that had been used to warm the church.

Fortunately the rescuers succeeded in extinguishing the flames without additional loss of life. The number of killed and injured is estimated at sixty-five or seventy.

VESSELS BURNED AT SEA.

Considered Probable That in Each Case Lives Were Lost.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—It is believed that two vessels have recently been burned at sea, and it is considered probable that in both cases every soul on board was lost. Three incoming steamers have reported passing burning vessels supposed to have been laden with petroleum for Europe.

The last vessel to report passing one of the burning ships is the Egyptian Monarch, Capt. Irwin, of the Wilson line. Capt. Irwin says he left New York on Jan. 5, and that at 1 a. m. on Jan. 16, he sighted a wooden ship, apparently of American build, which was on fire and burning furiously as if her cargo were petroleum. A high sea was running and nothing could be done to help the crew.

As reported yesterday, the British steamship Imperial Prince, Captain Cox, which left New York on January 4, arrived at Portland on her way to Leith and reported having passed a burning vessel. This was on the morning of January 16.

It will thus be seen that the Egyptian Monarch and the Imperial Prince on January 16 sighted a burning vessel in the same latitude and longitude about 400 miles southwest of Cape Clear, Ireland. Captain Cox expressed the opinion that all the burned vessel's crew must have perished, as no boats could have lived in the sea then running.

The second vessel reported on fire was seen January 11 in latitude 44 north and longitude 43 west, by the commander of the British steamship City of Dundee, from Norfolk and Newport News January 5. He described her as a large steamer and said she had been abandoned. The City of Dundee's commander did not see any boats, although he made search for them, and came to the conclusion that as there was a heavy sea on all hands had perished or had been picked up by a passing vessel. This burned vessel was seen about 450 miles northwest of the Azores, and about 800 miles southwest of where the Egyptian Monarch and Imperial Prince sighted a burning ship.

French Victorious in Algiers.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—Telegrams from Algiers say that the French detachment sent out to punish the Samory tribe in the French Soudan for acts of violence and outrage, met them on January 11 and had an obstinate battle. The French, although largely outnumbered, compelled the natives to retire with a loss of hundreds killed and wounded. The French loss was six dead and thirty wounded.

Suffering in Ireland.

DUBLIN, Jan. 23.—There is terrible suffering in the mountainous part of northern Ireland owing to the deep snow and the severe cold. Many persons are reported as frostbitten, and cattle have perished in the storms. In Tyrone two girls named Quinn were lost in a snowstorm. A searching party was organized and after a long and difficult search the girls were found frozen to death.

Mutilated By the Cars.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 23.—James Keller, a Lackawanna brakeman, while signalling his engine in the yard here, was run down by the backing engine and dragged two hundred feet, when he was caught by an obstruction and horribly mutilated, death resulting instantly.

THE LATE JUSTICE BRADLEY.

Funeral at Newark, N. J., Monday—Speculation as to His Successor.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The funeral of the late Justice Joseph P. Bradley will take place at Newark, N. J., where he practiced law for years, Monday afternoon. The remains will be taken there Monday morning. The Justices of the Supreme Court and many distinguished Government officers will attend.

Although Justice Bradley had been ailing for a long time, it was only about a week ago that his health became such as to alarm his family and friends. The cold damp weather, together with his 79 years, proved too great a strain for his system to overcome.

Justice Bradley was a self-made man, and was, moreover, the richest man on the bench. His fortune is estimated at $750,000, and he included among his possessions the largest private law and miscellaneous library in Washington.

He was the eldest of the eleven sons of a poor farmer in Berne, N. Y., and received with his father's assistance, only a common school education. He resolved to get a better knowledge of affairs, and by teaching school and doing other work he was enabled to graduate from Rutger's College in the same class with ex-Secretary of State Frelinghuysen.

In the practice of law at Newark, N. J., he made a great reputation as well as a considerable fortune as a raiload lawyer.

For many years he was a director and principal counselor of the New Jersey, Philadelphia and Trenton, and of the Camden and Amboy railroad companies. He was the actuary of the Mutual Benefit Insurance company of Newark from 1857 to 1863, and from 1865 to 1869 he was the president of the New Jersey Mutual Life Insurance company.

In the field of literary effort Judge Bradley also distinguished himself. In 1851 he delivered the annual address before the Historical Society of New Jersey, taking for his subject "The Perils Through Which the Federal Constitution Has Passed, and Which Still Threaten It." In 1865 he delivered a widely quoted address on the life and character of Hon. William L. Dayton, and in June, 1870, he delivered the Centennial address at Rutger's College. Lafayette College, in 1859, conferred upon him the degree of LL.D.

It was in March, 1870, that he was appointed by President Grant a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. He was designated Circuit Justice for the large Southern circuit. On the resignation of Justice Strong he was assigned to the Third Circuit, embracing the States of Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey.

Probably Justice Bradley's most notable act was deciding the memorable Presidential contest of 1876, when the question was submitted to a commission of fifteen, consisting of five Senators, five Representatives and five Associate Justices. Of the latter Justice Bradley was one. Without the latter's vote the commission was tied on Hayes and Tilden, and he gave the casting vote for Hayes.

In early life he was a Whig, and later became a Republican nominee for Congress in the Sixth New Jersey District, but was defeated. He had two sons and two daughters.

Speculations as to his successor are already indulged in by politicians. In many quarters an impression prevails that Attorney General Miller will be selected to fill the vacancy.

McGuire Indicted for Murder.

GOSHEN, N. Y., Jan. 23.—The grand jury has found an indictment against Fred McGuire for murder in the first degree. McGuire's crime was committed on Mrs. Amelie G. Gregory on October 14, near Middletown, N. Y. McGuire pleaded not guilty and was remanded. He will probably be tried during the April term. It is alleged that the indictment was presented on the strength of the testimony of his accomplices, Sarah A. Brown and Warren Brazington, who testified before the grand jury that McGuire is the perpetrator and they accessories only so far in that they had knowledge of the crime and shared in the plunder. They were also remanded.

Fears the Trunk Contained Dynamite.

PORT JEFFERSON, N. Y., Jan. 23.—W. I. Wheeler, secretary of the Port Jefferson Milling company, has gone to Westport, Conn., to make investigation into the case of freight he received Thursday. It contained a metallic trunk and he feared that the trunk contained a dynamite bomb or other infernal machine. The case was way-billed Westport. Mr. Wheeler has been shot at twice, and his barn was burned last fall, the fire being supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

Oklahoma and School Lands.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—There appears to be a question as to whether the Territory of Oklahoma is entitled to select lands in lieu of such of her school sections as were allotted to the Indians. Commissioner Carter, of the General Land Office, in a communication to Secretary Noble, holds that while the law on the subject is at least ambiguous, the Territory cannot be deprived of her school sections without giving her other lands in lieu of them.

Killed By an Explosion.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The premature explosion of a blast at East 85th street killed two persons and seriously injured three others. The killed are James Dooley, aged 40, and James Cox, aged 41; and the injured are Charlotte F. Wilson, aged 31, James Kennedy aged 48, and Tony Rosa, aged 35. The injured are all at the Presbyterian Hospital.

No One Wants the Custom House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The Treasury Department has received no bids for the New York City Custom House property, and Assistant Secretary Crounse says it may be sold at auction. The lack of bids may be due to the requirement that no bid of less than $4,000,000 shall be considered.

THE GRIP'S RAVAGES

Terrible Suffering Among Georgian Bay Lumbermen.

MANY DEATHS IN EACH CAMP.

Medical Aid Scarce—A Number of Men Have Gone Crazy.

Some Camps Deserted by Those Who Have Escaped the Disease and the Sick Left to Shift for Themselves—Miserable Accommodations for the Afflicted—Work of the Scourge on English War Vessels.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Jan. 23.—Stories of the terrible suffering and pitiable condition of the lumbermen in the lumber camps of the Georgian Bay and back Canadian woods districts from the ravages of the grip have been received here and are vouched for by lumber and wood pulp agents who have recently been up there.

L. M. Proctor, of Ogdensburg, has just arrived from Georgian Bay. He says that in a lumber camp of the Emery Lumber Company, of Chicago, nineteen men out of 159 died of grip, and that half of the rest were sick and the balance taking care of them. Other camps are similarly affected.

The suffering of the men is indescribable. Some of them are reported to have gone crazy and taken two or three men to control them. The accommodations are meagre and altogether inadequate to the needs of the sick men. The lodging houses are log cabins or shanties. Medical aid, except of the crudest kind, is hard to secure and the men suffer and get well or die.

Some camps are entirely deserted, and many of the men taken sick are left without care. Agents for wood pulp syndicates have returned and report the back Canadian wood districts in a similar condition. The lumbermen are scared at "the scourge," as they call it, and flee to the large towns or cities where they can secure medical aid.

Many camps are totally deserted with the exception of the stricken and a few noble fellows who are staying to look after their comrades. The deaths have been numerous and the burials take place in the woods under the snow, where many a man whose family does not know where he is now lies sleeping forever.

Fatal Accident to Longshoremen.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Jan. 23.—A fatal accident occurred on board the steamer Victoria which is lying at the dock at the foot of Commerce street, yesterday. Tony Wise and John Smith, two longshoremen, were precipitated to the bottom of the lower hold, a distance of 35 feet, by a hatch cover giving away. Wise was instantly killed and Smith's skull was fractured. Another man, Jas. Garron, was injured internally by the falling hatchway cover. It is thought that Smith and Garron are fatally injured.

Travels of Bank Robbers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—The steamship Alameda, just arrived from Sydney, via Honolulu, brought up Captain Huntley and nine of the crew of the American whaling bark John P. West, which was burned near Honolulu a couple of weeks ago. Advices from the South Sea Islands state that Davis and Bell, alias Bloom and Douglass, have left their yacht Beagle at Tahiti and sailed for Portland, Ore., whence they will proceed to Central America. They are supposed to have stolen $150,000 from a branch of the London and Westminster Bank at Sydney.

Grip on British War Vessels.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Captain Alington, of the British battleship Dreadnaught, reports that the influenza continues to ravage fearfully on his vessel. The ship hospital is crammed with patients, and temporary wards have been erected in the corridors to accommodate the sick. Captain Durnford, of the torpedo depot ship Hecla, reports a similar condition on board his vessel.

Mrs. Barnaby Buried.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 23.—The remains of Mrs. Barnaby, who is supposed to have been murdered by Dr. Graves, were buried in the morning after having lain in the receiving vault at Swan Point for the past nine months. Her son-in-law, John H. Conrad, is in New York with the intention of taking further proceedings in the case.

Market Was Shot Five Times.

CALLICOON, N. Y., Jan. 23.—Examination of the body of George Markert, who was murdered near Kenoza Lake or Tuesday night, shows that Markert was shot five times in the head and that the back part of the head was crushed. The entire Adam Heidt family has been placed under arrest.

It's concealed, but it's there—ammonia in baking powder widely advertised as "absolutely pure;" 'tis easy to detect it;

Boil up a heaping spoonful of the powder in a spoonful of water, and smell the steam.

There's nothing to conceal in Cleveland's baking powder; the composition is stated on every label.

The ingredients are all so wholesome we are glad to have people know what they are.

IRON AND STEEL MANUFACTURE.

Census Statistics for New England—Increase in Value of Products.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The Census Office has issued a bulletin presenting the statistics of manufacture of iron and steel in the New England States.

The bulletin shows that although a decrease has taken place in the number of establishments engaged in the manufacture of iron and steel in 1890 as compared with 1880, due principally to local causes affecting the supply of raw materials, there has been an increase in the value of finished products. In this connection the fact must be noted that the statistics printed are confined to the operations of establishments manufacturing from the ore, forges and bloomaries, rolling mills and manufactures of crude materials for the foundry, machinists and other industries.

In 1870 there were 48 iron and steel establishments in New England, with a capital of $5,589,000, which employed 3,185 hands, to whom $2,138,719 in wages were paid and which consumed materials costing $7,338,150, producing manufactures valued at $10,824,903.

In 1880 the number of establishments had increased to 61, with an invested capital of $11,560,408, the workmen numbering 8,654, and receiving wages amounting to $3,357,911; the cost of materials being $9,518,570, and the value of products amounting to $14,558,627.

In 1890 the number of establishments had decreased to 55, but the total capital invested had increased to $13,415,450. The hands employed, excluding officers and clerks, numbered 6,643, receiving wages amounting to $3,224,318. The cost of materials consumed was $9,286,050, and the value of the products was $15,105,441.

One Lunatic Kills Another.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 23.—O. A. Williams, an inmate of Dixmont Insane Asylum, choked James McAffee, a fellow lunatic, to death early in the morning. He was in the act of choking a demented patient by the name of Brownella, when a guard passed, interfered, and placed him in a straight jacket. Williams was admitted from Washington county on Thursday morning. He was thought to be harmless and was placed in the room with eleven others for the night. Williams said his victims persisted in talking when he wanted to sleep and he wanted to stop it.

Asking Pardon for a Forger.

RONDOUT, N. Y., Jan. 23.—An application has been made to Governor Flower, to pardon Daniel H. Bell, who is now in Dannemora prison, under a sentence for forgery. He was sentenced in 1889, and was upwards of seventy years of age when he was convicted. The charge against him was forging a deed to property in the town of Rochester many years ago, he having become cognizant of the death of its owners, and being familiar with many of their business transactions.

HIS FRIENDS INCLUDED

Among Those Who Suffer Most From Saloon Joe's Explosion.

Everything in the rooms on the upper floors of the Elkwood—Joe Miller's bankrupt saloon in West Second street—was taken possession of this morning by a constable to satisfy a claim of a North avenue cigar maker. But it is rumored that the furniture dealer who sold the goods to Miller on "installments" will replevin them. This same dealer is said to have received very little "on account", and that Miller also owes him for the big mirror behind the bar which used to reflect the faces of Joe and Daisy's customers when they set 'em up.

The levy of yesterday, made under the power of chattel mortgage, was to recover on a protested check of $700 given by Miller to Ruppert, who furnished the beer. There is very little, however, to satisfy the claim. The handsome oak bar the builder wants, as he says it was never paid for. A few dollars were paid on the billiard tables to get them, but nothing more; so they will be seized by the makers. There is then left to sell only some glassware, a few bottles of claret, beer and liqueurs, and about 25 cigars and a few gallons of whiskey. This latter, Beck & Co., the liquor dealers of New York, came out last night to claim. They said the whiskey was never paid for and belonged to them. But they found that the constable had possession and intended to sell everything he could lay his hands on to save what he could for his client, Ruppert. Beck's counsel, C. A. Marsh, had a talk with Ruppert's counsel, W. L. Hetfield, and then advised Beck what it was best for him to do.

It is reported that Beck said the whiskey was obtained from his firm by fraud, and that they will begin proceedings under such a plea to recover what is left of the stuff, even though such proceedings might land Miller in jail.

Miller returned to Plainfield yesterday in time to see his picture in THE PRESS and to read all about what had happened to him. He will not remain long, probably, as his creditors—of which the greatest sufferers are many of his best friends—are making things unpleasantly warm for him.

A Mere Suggestion.

A certain young man, now on trial in New York for the murder of his girl-wife, posed as an Adonis on several occasions in Plainfield and the borough, and more than a few of our dainty butterflies fluttered admiringly around the smouldering flame, without, however, getting scorched. Previous to his arrest for the crimes now alleged against him, he was taken in for running a gambling joint, the Bijou "cafe", at Ocean Grove, but jumped trial somehow and continued on his goodly way.

THE PRESS will be surprised if, in the present trial, the prosecution fails to call to the witness-stand a young society man of this vicinity who was associated in the operation of the Bijou "cafe", and whose serious illness, it is said, alone prevented him from being run in with the rest of the outfit when the dive was pulled. Gossip also tells how he was nursed through this sickness by a pretty burlesque actress whose presence in the gay resort is easier to tell about than it is to account for. And gossip had it further that this young Plainfielder was while ill, kept for a long period under the influence of opium or some other narcotic administered by—whom?

The prosecution in the New York trial is endeavoring to prove that Carlyle W. Harris murdered his young wife by poisoning her with morphine. It seems to THE PRESS that the young Plainfielder spoken of might give valuable hints on this topic if he were properly cornered.

A Skater's Narrow Escape from Drowning.

William Titus had a narrow escape from drowning in Wilson's pond, Washington Valley, last night. He ventured, while skating, too far out on the thin ice near the dam, and fell through. His comrades had hard work to rescue him. He was almost exhausted when hauled out by means of a rail.

Councilman Weber's Jury Acquits.

—The trial of Matthew Kilpatrick for illegal liquor selling was to-day postponed again, to a date to be arranged between counsel.

—A Westfielder named Sofield was injured at Cranford this afternoon while trying to board a moving train. He was picked up unconscious. His injuries are not fatal.

—The new spring stock of elegant Hamburgh embroideries is shown to good advantage on centre tables at Edsall's, and he says that it comprises as fine an assortment as he has ever shown, and the prices are much reduced.

To-Night Her Last Appearance.

Below is a fine portrait of charming Mora, who is capturing the hearts of the large audiences who flock to hear and see her at Music Hall every night. As THE PRESS said yesterday, she is a talented, most versatile and wonderfully clever actress in all roles, from comedy to pathos. She is everything from soubrette to tragedienne, and a star in all parts.

Last night an audience of five hundred enjoyed her "Katy Did". The universal expression of approval and delight, heard everywhere throughout the house, proved how satisfactory were her impersonations and the support of her company. To-night Mora will make her last appearance. The play will be "That Girl Jerrie".

Who Loves the Babies?

Those who are now undertaking the establishment of a Creche or Day Nursery and Kindergarten for the children of working people. We are gradually getting down to the bottom of things, and by providing for the boys, girls and babies work up to a higher standard of results than now exists in our midst. Said a friend: "I feel that in Plainfield we have been working at the wrong end. We began with the men and women. We should have begun with the children."

The W. C. T. U. are now taking the initiative in starting an institution which has lain near the heart of many of us for years, and we feel glad to say that we shall have the co-operation and assistance of the other organized charities doing such effective work in our city.

To start off the enterprise Mrs. W. L. Patton is to give a Twilight Tea and Chat at her residence, Thursday, February 11. She will be assisted by the ladies of the W. C. T. U., by the Y's, and by many other friends.

When the Creche is once under way, it will probably be self supporting, and we need oftener to verify the saying "God helps those who help themselves."

Signed:

MRS. W. L. PATTON, Chairman.

MRS. M. D. TOMLINSON, Pres. W. C. T. U.

To prevent fraud and imposition, the genuine guaranteed medicines are sold only through druggists duly authorized as agents, and always at these long-established prices:—Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery (for the Liver, Blood, and Lungs), $1.00 per bottle; Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription (for woman's weaknesses and ailments), $1.00 per bottle; and Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets (for the Liver), 25 cents per vial.

Miss Johnston Entertains.

The second meeting of the Thursday Evening club was held Thursday night at the winter home, 8 Fifth avenue, of Miss Fannie Taylor-Johnston of this city, when one of the most attractive entertainments since the organization of the club was offered to its members. Miss Johnston's guests sat in the two large drawing rooms, in the second of which was erected a temporary stage, with footlights and full theatrical properties. The interesting programme presented illustrations of life in France in the eighteenth century. First there were the peasant songs, "Cadet et Babet" and "Que donnez vous, ma Belle?" by Mrs. Wheelen and Powers Farr; next came selections from Moliere's "Bourgeois Gentilhomme", in which the parts were taken by Miss Tinie Noel, Miss Josephine Noel, Mme. Castaing, M. Le Maistre, Henry Chauncey, Jr., Alfred de Rouge, Pierre Mali, Henry Cammann, and Charles Mali. Following this came a Gavotte by Corelli. Then "Berger et Bergere", with Miss Weekes and Dr. J Herbert Clairborne; then "Le Duel", with Lawrence Myers as the Challenger; and then a delightful "Menuet de la Cour", danced by Mrs. Charles Wheelen and Alexander M. Hadden, dressed in Louis XV costumes. In the plays the costumes worn were of Louis XIV's time. Lauder's orchestra furnished the music. About 250 members of the club were present

Why Pa Approved.

"I quite approve your present suitor, May,
He keeps good hours in his courting sphere."
"How can he help it, since the other day
He bought a watch at Collier's, papa dear?"

The gay young bicyclist he's in his bed,
Not for him is the spring sun shining;
He has been flung and is sore in body and head,
But Salvation Oil will make him smiling.

"I've got it at last," said the fellow who found his cough subdued by Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

NEWS FROM THE VISITOR.

Preparing to Dedicate the New Park Place Chapel—How the Women Have Furnished It—Other Methodist News of General Interest.

The Rev. C. B. Mitchell's sparkling little Methodist monthly, The Visitor, is issued to-day for January, in a sprightly new-year dress, and as brimful of interesting things as ever. The following extracts are permitted to THE PRESS:

There will be no preaching service in the church Feb. 14, that being the day of dedication at Park place.

Dr. Ketchum preached with great acceptability to our people last Sabbath morning. He is always welcome in our pulpit.

The Sunday-school is constantly growing. Over 400 were present last Sunday afternoon. Superintendent Jackson rejoices.

On Jan. 29 will be held the regular Sunday-school board meeting. All members should plan to be present.

Mrs. Butts, the solo soprano of the choir, has been ill for the past two Sabbaths, and her excellent leading voice has been greatly missed.

John Valiant has been selected by the official board for superintendent of the Park Place Sunday-school. Every one considers the choice an excellent one.

Last Sabbath morning the pastor preached, in exchange, at the First Presbyterian church. He always loves to preach to that intelligent and appreciative people.

The Young Ladies' Mission circle will have a social at the residence of the Misses Smalley, 33 Manning avenue, next Tuesday evening.

The pastor will visit D. H. Mulford at Vineland next month. He expects to leave Plainfield loaded down with love and good wishes for the family who did so much for our church during their long connection with it.

Special services will be held nightly in Park Place chapel following the Sabbath of dedication. It is desirable that those services shall be well attended and that in the opening services of the chapel sinners may be led to Christ. Will you not pray for those meetings, and plan to give your nights to the work?

Mrs. C. C. Cokefair pays for a copy of the Christian Advocate to be sent this year to the city library, and C. H. Rugg does a like service for the Young Men's Christian association.

Miss Edith Katline has not yet fully recovered from her accident in the summer, but with her usual energy prosecutes her school work and engages in such church work as her strength will permit.

Benjamin Dale, of New York city, a professional musician, now leads the Sunday-school music with the cornet. The singing is greatly improved, and his engagement ought to be renewed after the 1st of April.

In all Christian Communions it is not considered the proper thing to receive the elements of the sacrament with a gloved hand. It is only a custom, but based on reverence, and is commendable. Some of our people fail to observe it.

One of our Methodist young men, J. Howard Leggett, is manager of the Central pharmacy on the corner of Park avenue and Front street. He is the kind of a pharmacist you can trust with filling an important prescription.

The Foreign and Home Missionary societies will meet next Tuesday afternoon. The ladies who have recently united with our church will be kindly welcomed to those meetings, and they are urgently invited to become members of the societies.

The many friends of Mrs. Clinton VanVliet will be glad to learn that her health has been greatly improved since their removal to New York city. The family lives in the Pocantico Flats, corner of Broadway and 53d street, and attend the services of St. John's M. E. church.

Mrs. R. R. Fairchild, now of Yonkers, formerly of our church, sent a check to the pastor for that Bible and hymn-book; but when learning that the offer came too late requested the money to be used in some other way for the benefit of the chapel. This kind act is greatly appreciated.

In response to the suggestion made in last month's Visitor, Geo. H. Burgess was the first to respond with the offer to provide a pulpit Bible and hymn-book for the new chapel. He gives in the name of his grandson, George Burgess Yerkes, whose name will be placed on the covers of the books.

F. M. French handed the pastor a sum sufficient to purchase a Bible and hymn-book for the Park place pulpit. When told it had already been provided for he insisted upon the money being used for the chapel in some other way. There have been no less than five responses to the pastor's appeal for the donation of Bible and hymn-book for the new chapel.

We succeeded so well in our Bible and hymn-book proposition that we are now encouraged to ask what individual, society, or Sunday-school class, will supply a nice lectern cloth for Park Place chapel? The first proposal to the pastor will be accepted.

W. W. Youngson, of Drew Seminary, who preached so acceptably for our people several weeks ago, and who, on account of his youth, is known in Pittsburgh, his home, as the "boy preacher", will preach at Monroe Avenue chapel, next Sunday evening [to-morrow].

On January 31 the pastor will exchange pulpits with the Rev. Herbert Welch, pastor of the Methodist church in Bedford Station, N. Y. Mr. Welch, it will be remembered, preached once before for our people, but the evening was inclement and few were present. The church ought to be crowed at both services to hear this very gifted and devoted young minister, and it doubtless will be.

Dr. Hurlbut has a very fine Sunday-school class of adults of both sexes which meets in the Sunday-school parlor. A few more can be accommodated and will be welcomed. It is a rare opportunity for you to receive instruction from one so well qualified by long years of study and preparation.

Dr. Hurlbut is to give four talks to the Monroe Avenue Epworth League and its friends. His subjects are: "How to Study the Bible", "The Four Gospels", "The Temple in Jerusalem", and "The Lands of Old Testament History". The first talk was given Friday evening, and the remaining talks will be given on successive Friday evenings. The doctor should have large audiences on these occasions.

Mrs. Harry D. French, with the two children, Dudley and Edith, have gone to Chicago, where Mr. French will follow in the spring when he has closed out his business in the East. Mr. and Mrs. French have made many friends in church and social circles in this city who will miss them greatly. Mr. French's business requires his return to Chicago, whence he came several years ago.

We expect to have another such great day soon as we had last April when Monroe Avenue chapel was dedicated. On Sunday, February 14, the Park Place chapel will be dedicated by Bishop Ninde. He will preach at 10:30 a. m. A platform mass meeting will be held at 3 in the afternoon, and the Bishop will preach again in the evening and formally dedicate the building. Choirmaster Davis will be in charge of the music.

The amount of money given to the Park Place chapel by the Ladies' Aid society is sufficient to purchase all the chairs, including small chairs for primary department, the three pulpit chairs, table and lectern, the communion table and two altar chairs, the carpet for the pulpit and chancel, a fine Estey chapel organ, with stool, the rugs for doors and vestibules, and still some money left over for brick and mortar. In fact, the good ladies of our church have furnished the new chapel.

LECTURE ON EMERSON.

Bishop Vincent's Nephew Tells About the Master of Transcendental Philosophy.

Leon H. Vincent's last lecture on American literature in the High school course was delivered Thursday evening. Mr. Vincent's subject was Ralph Waldo Emerson. He said:

"No simpler and purer and more harmonious life can be found in the annals of men than that of Emerson. If the thoughtful and well-read persons were asked who in their opinion was the most praiseworthy man in American literature, they would name Emerson. He is the representative man of letters."

The speaker then dwelt on the mystery of Emerson, calling him "Emerson the unique, the indiscribable".

"It is far easier"—he said—"to tell what Emerson was not than what he was. Let us consider, then, what he was not. First, was he a philosopher? If a philosopher is one who has a system of thought and clings to it, devoting his time and attention to that alone, he was a philosopher. Was he a poet? He lacked the spirit and fire and technique for poetry. Verse is the first requisite of a poet, and, as many of Emerson's friends have said, he lacked that. So, as he himself claimed, he was not a poet. Was he a scholar, then? When one has in mind such men as Milton, it is impossible to say that Emerson was a scholar. Quite the reverse. And yet in the same sense that Emerson was not a scholar neither Carlyle nor Shakespeare was one. Was he a theologian? No: Neither a philosopher, nor a poet, nor yet a scholar, nor a theologian: he was neither of these, and yet all of them at the same time.

"Some critic has used the word prophet, in connection with Emerson—literary prophet; but even that does not quite describe him.

"Emerson was always tranquilly certain and absolutely self-poised. He was a lay preacher; an untheological theologian, an unprophetic prophet."

While on the subject of Emerson's ancestors, Mr. Vincent quoted that author himself as asking frequently the question: "How is a man going to escape his ancestors?"

"We cannot"—he continued—"escape them. I do not believe the man who tells me it makes no difference who our ancestors were, if we are Americans. It makes just as much difference with us as with people anywhere else." He then explained the value of good ancestry as shown in the development of skill and deep thought and other things in our own lives.

Mr. Vincent gave an interesting history of Emerson's ancestors, showing, among other things, that they were clergymen for eight generations. Ralph Waldo Emerson—he added—was the second, in point of age, of a number of children. He was born in 1803. He entered Harvard College at fourteen; but it must be remembered that the requirements were not the same then as now.

The lecturer told in detail of Emerson's college life, and afterward of his life as a preacher. Preaching—Mr. Vincent said—Emerson found to be impossible for him. He differed with his congregation on two points: That of administering the Sacrament, and that of public prayer. Emerson did not approve of offering prayer at certain stated times simply because the order of exercises called for it; and the Sacrament, he believed, was intended only for a rite to be observed in Christ's time—not to remain permanently.

So Emerson gave up preaching and became an itinerant lecturer. But a great difficulty confronted him, for he had a great repugnance to standing up before an audience who had paid twenty-five or thirty cents to hear him.

Many touching tributes to Emerson's goodness and unselfishness and humility were paid in this lecture, and among them were quoted the words of one whose opinion is of much weight: "Emerson lived a life nearest to that of Christ of any man I ever knew." The lecturer also quoted a remark of Thomas Carlyle concerning Emerson, who had made a short visit at the home of Carlyle: "I know not what brought that man here, but when he went away I watched him disappear over the hill, not daring to follow him, and he seemed like an angel."

Mr. Vincent spoke quite extensively on the subject of transcendentalism, in which Emerson was a strong believer. "I do not think"—he said in conclusion—"that any words would be more fitting to close this lecture than those of Emerson himself, in the poem beginning 'Spring still makes spring'. He quoted those beautiful and powerful lines, with much spirit.

Everyone who heard this lecture was well pleased, and all regretted that it was the last of the series of this entertaining and instructive speaker.

I have been a sufferer from catarrh for 20 years. I found immediate relief in the use of Ely's Cream Balm. Since using it I have not suffered a moment from headache, sore throat or loss of sleep, from which I previously suffered, caused by catarrh. I consider your Balm a valuable remedy.—R. G. Vassar, 56 Warren St., New York.

Ely's Cream Balm is worth its weight in gold as a cure for catarrh. One bottle cured me.—S. A. Lovell, Franklin, Pa.

Pastor Warnick's Hasty Statement.

Appended to a quotation from this paper concerning the stories recently afloat about his church, the Rev. F. G. Warnick publishes the following, in the editorial columns of his interesting and enterprising religious paper, The Union Motor:

We clip the above from the DAILY PRESS, a paper that has "Truth" for its motto and right as its guide. That which may have sprung from fools or lunatics found no space in the columns of the Press.

There was an entertainment given in a hall in our city, where dancing and fighting were interesting (?) features. We protested against coal being received, by our church, from such a source. The coal was deposited in the cellar without consent of church, deacons or trustees. There was no excitement over the matter until some paper anxious to fill its columns gathered its material from (we won't say lunatics). Then the matter was given to the winds.

We protested, without shame, but in a Christian way. If Republican papers choose to sanction riot and dancing, we do not; nor, if that be the "back-bone" of Republicanism, we have no sympathy with it.

We leave the matter. We have given only the truthful side, and say that newspaper articles shall never close our mouth.

New Jersey Library Association.

A meeting of the New Jersey Library association was held at the New Brunswick public library building yesterday afternoon. Members were present from Trenton, Newark, Jersey City and Plainfield, as well as a number of visitors interested in the library movement. The chairman, Dr. Thompson of Trenton, called the meeting to order. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Several new names were added to the list of members. Prof. Bevier of Rutgers gave a very enthusiastic address on the "Relation of the extension department of the State college to the free library of the State", which was warmly received by all present. At its conclusion Dr. Austin Scott, president of Rutgers, added a few words on the same subject, and invited the club to the university extension lecture on the moon to be given that evening. After a lengthy discussion of the library laws of 1886 and 1890, and the percentage allowed by the State for the formation of free public libraries in cities and townships, a committee was appointed to look into the advisability of printing the laws of the State regarding this object, at the expense of the association. The annual dues having been collected, the meeting then adjourned.

THERE'S a room that is sacred to silence and mold,
Close under the rafters deserted and old—
And gasping among the strange heaps on the floor,
I count its long bead-roll of memories o'er.

Here are chairs that are broken, old chests cast aside,
And a chimney that pierces the roof in its pride;
There's a tow-covered distaff attached to a reel,
And suitably near stands the old spinning-wheel.

Worn schoolbooks, unrivaled some decades ago,
Enclosed in a box, make a curious show;
While a cupboard is filled with quaint rubbish,
pell mell,
Whose use it would take an expert to tell.

A "wagon-chair" rests where the rafters bend
low,
A relic of full half a century ago,
But its seat is filled up with a motley-made pile
Of bonnets and hats that have parted with
"style."

Here a crockery-crate holds a load of its own,
There a bedstead records the long years that have flown,
While thick cobwebs and dust fill each crevice around
Where the past goes to sleep undisturbed by a sound.

Most pathetic of all is the cradle I see,
Which rocked my forefathers before it rocked me—
But they, with the hands that propelled it are gone,
While the oaken-made treasure, uninjured,
lives on.

In a sleep which the cradle was powerless to give,
They rest—but their virtues and memories
live,
I leave it in silence—and safety, I trust—
And the garret well-haloed by cobwebs and dust.

WOMEN AND THE BIG FAIR

Talks with Women Interested in the Exposition.

Mrs. Palmer as An Executor—She Talks of the Wonderful Woman's Building and Tells How the Women Have Designed and Built It.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

The ladies of Washington are intensely interested in the world's fair. We have here representative women from all parts of the United States, and there is scarcely a statesman's wife or a general's daughter who does not expect to visit it, and who is not anxious that her state should have a good representation in it. There is no diversity of opinion as to the part that woman should take in it, and the fair will probably have a better exhibit of woman's work than any national exposition has had in the past. It was from Washington that the movement was started which gave women a representation on the board of managers, and there is in existence here a society called the Isabella Memorial League. This is named after Queen Isabella of Spain, the woman who furnished the funds which enabled Columbus to discover America, and who, more than any man in the world, is entitled to the credit for the opening up of our continent. It is felt here that the Philadelphia centennial gave no adequate idea of what the women of the United States are, and of what they can do, and no effort will be spared in the coming exposition to show how women are now managing all kinds of business in the United States, including steamboat lines and street cars, and how they are engaged in every industry and trade, from typewriting to medicine, and from the law to the raising of fine stock. A part of the exposition will show the inventive genius of women, and it will demonstrate that some of the best patents in the United States have been taken out by her, and the whole exhibit of the woman's department will put the American woman at the head of her sisters all the world over. The work of organizing woman's exhibits is rapidly going on, and the lady managers, a number of whom I have interviewed this week, give me most encouraging stories of their progress.

A CHAT WITH MRS. POTTER PALMER.

I met Mrs. Palmer at the Arlington hotel during her recent visit to Washington. She is one of the brightest women of the United States and one of the most beautiful. Born in Louisville, Ky., she was educated here at Washington, and it was in 1871 that she married the noted Chicago millionaire who at that time had made a fortune in dry goods and had retired to enjoy his wealth.

During her visit abroad in the interests of the fair, she was well received by the most noted people in Europe, and she tells me that Mme. Carnot, the wife of the president of France, is very much interested in the fair, and that the Princess Christian and other English ladies are greatly interested in the advancement shown by American women. Said she:

"I feel confident that the result of our work is going to surprise the people. The interior of the building for the woman's department will be decorated by women, and women will have to do with the architectural decorations of this building, which is to be a very imposing structure. The groups of statuary above the roof line will be executed by women, and the models for this work are now before the committee and the decision will be based entirely upon merit. We want to have the columns which uphold the entrance of the building carved by women, and these columns will be Doric in design and they will be donated by three states. There will be three granite columns from the state of Washington, and there will be an onyx column from Missouri. The wainscoting in one of the departments is now being carved by women, and the paneling of the building throughout is to be made of native wood, and women will superintend or give the directions as to how it shall be put into the structure. I took the plans which Miss Hayden has made, to show the beautiful building which has been given us and how we propose to fill it, with me to Europe and the fact that a young woman of twenty-one was capable of planning such a building and of making the working drawings, was an astonishment to our European sisters."

WHAT MRS. LOGAN SAYS ABOUT THE FAIR.

Mrs. Gen. John A. Logan's name is a household word in connection with numerous enterprises for the practical advancement of women, and her name heads a score of charitable boards and philanthropic societies. She has done a great deal in connection with the world's fair and she has her own ideas as to what part woman should take in it. I found her in her home, Calumet Place, on the hills overlooking Washington the other day and talked with her about the exposition.

"What is the District of Columbia doing for the fair, Mrs. Logan?" I asked.

"The ladies of the District of Columbia and of Washington cannot do much for the reason that we have no local manufactories or business industries here, but the government will make a fine display and there will be something in the way of art and charity. I don't believe you will find anywhere so many charitable institutions as there are in this ten miles square. Mrs. President Harrison has given a bright example to the fashionable world here in devoting her time to the study of painting, and the art circle of Washington is yearly broadening. We have many artists here who will have pictures at the world's fair, and we will show what our schools and universities are doing in intellectual and physical culture among the girls and the boys."

THE COLORED PEOPLE AND THE EXPOSITION.

"By the way, Mrs. Logan," said I, "the colored people seem to think that the lady managers have not treated them right."

"This is not so," replied Mrs. Logan. "The colored women have been placed on the same footing as others in connection with the fair and they have been treated with equal deference. The whole trouble arose from the action of a delegation of colored women who called upon the national committee and demanded that a sum of money be placed at their disposal. This was refused upon the ground that the committee had no individual funds for special classes and they were referred to the state board in accordance with the regulations. Our committee accepted them upon a common footing with white women, and it was to this equality that they took exception. They claim that they should have representative officers upon the board, and my request that the commissioners should give them a special requisition was voted down. I think on the whole, however," concluded Mrs. Logan, "that the ladies are doing very well in connection with the world's fair. It is true we have had annoyances which have kept back the work, but the different states have helped it, and Illinois alone gave eighty thousand dollars towards the woman's building. There is one thing, however, that I would like to say, and that is as to the character of the women who are pushing the world's fair work. They are free from the extreme views of that class usually ranked as strong minded. The combined sentiment of them seems to be the encouragement of talents and of the furthering of woman's interests aside from any association of woman's rights."

MRS. LOCKWOOD'S LECTURES.

A curious feature of the preparation for the world's fair is a set of lectures to be delivered by Mrs. Mary S. Lockwood, one of the national committee, to illustrate the work of women in all parts of the world. The profits of these lectures are to be used to defray the expenses of young women from each state to attend the world's fair who would otherwise be unable to go to Chicago. These women are to be women workers and women who have exhibits, and the young woman to be sent from Washington from the funds is Miss Jenny Stephens, whose artistic merit is well known here, and whose tapestry work is especially beautiful. Mrs. Lockwood's lectures are accompanied by stereoscopic views, and are to be given in the largest cities of the union. I talked with Mrs. Lockwood, last night, about the fair. She said:

"Our idea is not to set up the work of woman in opposition to that of man as many people think. We want our exhibits to be united with that of the men. Harriet Hosmer, for instance, does not go to the world's fair to compete with other women, but with the world at large, irrespective of sex. We want our women to take their places in the ranks of aspirants irrespective of sex, and we think she will be able to hold her own. We are going to send a woman from the District of Columbia to do much of the painting on the walls of the exposition building, and the designs will be the result of competition. The work of the manager is getting on very nicely, and the committees in the various states are working with us. We shall not hold another meeting before April, but the work is going on, and the American woman as shown at Chicago in 1893 will be a type of which the United States may be proud."

SOUTH AMERICAN WOMEN AND THE FAIR.

The vice president of the ladies' organization of the fair is Mrs. Ex-Congressman Wilkins, the wife of one of the proprietors of the Washington Post. Mrs. Wilkins is a rosy cheeked, bright-eyed Ohio woman, who is noted for her popularity here. She was a leading social figure during the administration of President Cleveland, and often received with Mrs. Carlisle while Senator Carlisle was speaker of the house. She is a woman of practical common sense and is devoting a great deal of time to the world's fair. Said she;

"We hope to make the fair a great success; and to show that the woman of the nineteenth century is thoroughly up with, and if anything ahead, of the times. The different states of the union are up and doing, and we are getting efficient aid from every part of the country. We are going to have a fine display from South America and Mexico and the ladies who represent these countries in a social way here as the wives and daughters of the diplomatic representatives are doing a great deal for the fair. Some specimens of woman's work which have already been received from Mexico and South America are surprisingly beautiful and they show artistic taste and marvelous skill. There were last year a number of meetings of the South American women here, and there have been fourteen ladies, each of whom has been in correspondence with her people and has brought out something new and interesting in their manufactures in relation to women. In this way many more and beautiful articles have been collected. Among the ladies who are doing a great deal for the fair in this way are: Madame Romero, wife of the Mexican minister; Mrs. Mendonca, wife of the minister from Brazil; Mrs. Legarra, wife of the Peruvian minister; Mrs. Hubley Ashton, Mrs. Isham Hornsby, Mrs. Lowrie Bell, of Philadelpha, and Mrs. Dickins, wife of Lieut. Dickins of the navy, who has been journeying with her husband in foreign ports, has brought together a most valuable collection of native manufactures. A lady resident of Washington, Miss Schiller, who has devoted herself to the study of Spanish with the intention of making a speciality of translating the native South American publications, has among recent researches in literature discovered many interesting novels and short stories written by the women of several of the smaller republics that show marked talent and a knowledge of men and letters far in advance of what one would give them credit for. The study of the products of these southern climes brings to light many valuable inventions and manufactures that are largely the handiwork of females. As most of the architectual work upon the building is awarded to women whose talents have won them high praise both at home and abroad, the complete whole will be a most gratifying proof of the talent and progress in the high arts towards which the women of our generation are advancing."

OFFERS TO MEDIATE

England's Instructions to Her Minister at Santiago.

THE WAR MUST BE PREVENTED.

Great Excitement in the Chilian Cities Over the Situation.

CORRECT TERMS OF THE ULTIMATUM

The Baltimore Outrage, the Matta Note and Minister Egan's Recall the Subjects.

A Question of Veracity Between Minister Egan and Senor Montt---The Special Message and the Correspondence Go to Congress To-day---The Report that Admiral Gherardi and the Philadelphia Had Sailed for Europe to Head Off the Capitan Pratt Credited but Little---Ex-Senator Henderson, of Missouri, Speaking of the Refugees Helped by Egan, Takes a Stand Against the Proceeding.

VALPARAISO, Jan. 25.—Minister Kennedy, representative of Great Britain at Santiago, it is reported on good authority, has received definite instructions from his government to make an offer to the government of Chili to act as mediator between that country and the United States for the purpose of preventing a war. The Chilian government has returned no answer to this communication as yet.

Both the Chilian and foreign residents in Valparaiso and Santiago are greatly excited over the situation, but no demonstration is reported.

The situation here is considered very grave.

The Special Message.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—It looks more like war between the United States and Chili this morning than at any previous stage of the controversy. The special message of the President, with all the correspondence and with all the testimony as to the outrage on the sailors of the Baltimore, will be sent to Congress this afternoon.

Attorney-General Miller was closeted with the President at the White House all yesterday afternoon, revising the final proofs of the message, and paying especial attention to elucidating the most significant points in the testimony of the sailors and officers of the crew of the Baltimore. Secretary Blaine also gave the more important points of the document a final perusal.

The message and accompanying documents, correspondence, etc., will form a bulky volume. The message, as stated, will comprise, it is believed, not more than 4,000 or 5,000 words. But the State Department's correspondence with Minister Egan and with the Chilian Legation of this city, including the enclosures explanatory of some of the despatches and comprising official correspondence here and in Chili will make nearly, if not quite, 240,000 words. Besides this the correspondence of the Navy Department with its officers, which covers the Itata affair in extenso and the full report of the testimony taken at the examination of the Baltimore's sailors in Vallejo, Cal., is estimated at fully 100,000 words additional.

The last of the testimony taken at Vallejo did not reach the Navy Department until noon Saturday. One of the officials who has read some of the evidence said that it fully bore out all that had been claimed respecting the outbreak against the sailors, as to its premeditation and the animus of the assailants.

The Ultimatum.

The terms of the ultimatum to Chili have not been correctly given in any of the dispatches refering to it. Three subjects are covered by the document. The assault upon the Baltimore's sailors is the first. The Secretary of State directs Mr. Egan to inform the Chilean Government that after a full and careful examination of evidence of that affair, as submitted by the Chilian authorities and as shown in the examination of the Baltimore's sailors, the President feels compelled to stand by the terms of Assistant Secretary Wharton's instructions to Minister Egan October 23, and to insist upon apology and due reparation therefor.

The second subject is the Matta circular note of December 13. This note, the Chilian Government is informed, is offensive to the President and other officers of the United States and that unless it is promptly withdrawn and the language disavowed by the Chilian Government in equally public and general form as that in which it was circulated, Minister Egan will ask for passports and diplomatic relations between the countries will cease.

The third subject is the proposed recall of Minister Egan. Acknowledgement is made of the receipt of Minister Montt's note, stating that Minister Egan is not a persona grata to the government of Chili, and announcing the readiness and desire of that government to receive another representative of the United States at Santiago. Upon this subject the government of Chili is informed that the note cannot now be considered. There are other and weightier matters pending settlement and when they are satisfactorily disposed this government will then consider the request for the recall of Mr. Egan.

The United States Minister was, of course, notified of the note from Senor Montt, and it is said a message has been received from him stating that the members of the Chilian government authorized to speak upon such matters, have verbally assured him that they are satisfied with him, and that similar statements were made to the Ministers from other countries.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—U. S. Gov't Report, Aug. 17, 1889.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

This dispatch raises a question of veracity between Minister Egan and Senor Montt, which subsequent correspondence or events may aid in settling. Certain it is that up to the receipt of Mr. Montt's note the records do not show any indication of dissatisfaction with Minister Egan by the Chilian authorities. When President Jorge Montt announced the formation of his Cabinet on the first instant, Minister Egan expressed his satisfaction, stating that two members of it were his personal friends, and that he expected to find his future relations with all of the members of the Cabinet most pleasant.

THINKS THERE ARE TWO SIDES.

Ex-Senator Henderson Says the United States is Not Wholly Right.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Ex-Senator John B. Henderson, of Missouri, does not think our government is wholly in the right in the Chilian controversy. In discussing the situation this morning, particularly with reference to the right of asylum for refugees, he finds two sides to it.

"The refugees sent to Callao," he says, "are citizens of Chili, who, being guilty of crimes under Chilian law, sought refuge at the house of the United States Minister, Mr. Patrick Egan, in order to escape the punishment due to those crimes.

"These men have not only been sheltered and protected at the house and at the Legation of our Minister resident at Santiago for several months against the protest of the existing government of Chili, which we have acknowledged and with which we claim to be at peace, but they are now finally removed and peaceably transported by land from Santiago to Valparaiso, and there placed on board a war vessel of the United States, to be safely transported by the authority of our government beyond the jurisdiction of the country whose laws they have violated.

"I think myself that after this much of humiliation on the part of Chili the further suggestion that she desires war must be abandoned.

"Suppose that during the late civil war in this country the English or the French Minister at Washington had given shelter and protection to Jefferson Davis, Jacob Thompson, Gen. Early or Gen. Beauregard, how long would the house or the person have been respected? To submit the question is to evoke the answer."

GHERARDI'S MOVEMENTS.

Little Credence Given the Rumor that He is to Head Off the Capitan Pratt.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—From intimations casually let fall to-day at the Navy Department, it would appear that the cruiser Philadelphia, which certainly left Barbadoes a few days ago, did not proceed southward, but is now pointing straight across the Atlantic and will be heard from next in or near the Straits of Gibraltar, her errand there being to look out for the formidable new Chilian war vessel, the Capitan Pratt.

If war is declared with Chili, and that country should order the formidable cruiser home, it is highly probable that she could be captured or crippled by the Philadelphia, because she has a green crew, her heavy guns have not been supplied to her, and her machinery has not been limbered up. When fully equipped and ready for action she would undoubtedly be more than a match for a vessel of the Philadelphia type.

Little credence is given this story, although it is not officially denied.

MRS. WORRELL DENIES.

Says She Never Saw or Had Dealings With Dr. Martin, of San Francisco.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 25.—Mrs. E. S. Worrell has written a letter to the "Journal" through her attorney in which she denies that she ever saw or had any communication with Dr. Martin, who attended Mrs. Barnaby in San Francisco.

The stories regarding the case which have come from San Francisco have not yet been contradicted by Mrs. Worrell, nor has her statement of what occurred there appeared in print, the reason being that those interested in the prosecution of Dr. Graves thought it best to keep quiet until the hearing of the application of Dr. Graves for a new trial, as it is thought that the defense will have the San Francisco people there.

A dispatch from Denver this morning says: Dr. Pfeifer, who is attending Mrs. Graves, says that the lady is rapidly recovering. She is up and about and her mind is becoming stronger daily. She has not yet been told the true state of affairs in regard to her husband and will not for some time.

This May Mean War With Brazil.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Senor Mendonca, the Brazilian Minister, who created quite a scene at the Academy of Music Saturday night by refusing to have his carriage come up in the regular way, but calling it up in violation of police regulations, is much commented upon. He tried to run in ahead of Senator Dolph, and become greatly incensed when the officers in charge made him go out of the way. He went to the station and preferred charges and said he intended to make a diplomatic fuss about it.

GETS HIS RIGHTS NOW

How a Hired Man Comes Into a $75,000 Fstate.

THE QUEER STORY OF A WILL.

Disappearing Mysteriously, it is Found in a Squirrel's Nest by Two Hunters.

Abram Mosher's Relatives Wouldn't Live With Him, Though He Was Wealthy---George Applebee, His Hired Man, Took Care of Mosher and Was Made Sole Legatee to the Estate in a Holographic Will---Disappearance of the Document and Ejectment of the Hired Man by Mosher's Relatives, Who Didn't Believe the Story---They Relinquish Their Claim When the Will Turns Up.

HAMBURG, Conn., Jan. 25.—The finding of the will of Abram Mosher by two hunters at Dark Hollow, three miles east of here, while trying to get at a nest of gray squirrels in the trunk of a hollow tree, has caused a big sensation here and has averted a lawsuit. The hunters found among the leaves and pieces of bark of which the nest was composed some scraps of paper with writing on them, several handkerchiefs, bits of ribbon and numberless fragments of twine.

The pieces of paper proved to be the holographic will of Abram Mosher, a farmer living near Dark Hollow, who died in the early part of last summer. Mosher through inheritance and through thrift and frugality was worth at the time of his death more than $75,000. He was not married and had no direct heirs. During the six years prior to his death he was an almost hopeless paralytic. When he was stricken he tried to get one of his relatives to live with him. All refused, so he got a young man named George Applebee to operate his farm and care for him.

Applebee attended to the wants of Mosher faithfully until he died. A few days before the old man passed away he told Applebee that he had made a will in which he had given him his entire estate, and he asked Applebee to bring him the will, which he would find in the drawer of the bureau in Mosher's bedroom. Applebee did so, and Mosher went over it carefully to see that it read just as he wanted it to.

Applebee carried the will back. He had just reached the bedroom when he heard a cry from Mosher calling him back, and he hurriedly threw the will on a table that stood near an open window. Mosher had taken a sudden turn for the worse. Applebee found him unconscious, and he never rallied. When Applebee went to look for the will it was gone. He searched every nook and cranny, but could get no trace of it.

As soon as Mosher was dead his relatives, children of a second cousin, appeared on the scene and laid claim to the estate. Appiebee told the story of the will and refused to vacate the farm, all the time keeping up a search for the will. He was finally ejected, however, and the cousins took possession. There were persons who had heard Mosher say that he intended to give his property to Applebee, and on the strength of their testimony Applebee was preparing to make a fight when the will was found. When the fragments of the document were placed together it was found complete, though badly stained. The cousins have already relinquished the farm.

Now "Jack the Hugger."

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 25.—A mysterious "Jack the Hugger" has been terrorizing young women in this place ever since last Wednesday evening. Every evening he has concealed himself behhd a hedge in front of Stephen S. Marshall's house on Railroad avenue near the station, and has frightened young women by leaping out and throwing his arms about them as they walked along the street. Miss Mamie Wall has twice been seized by the man, but she broke away from him each time. Other young women who have been seized by the "Hugger" are Miss Lena Garrison, Mrs. Phœbe Odell, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Richard L. Hopkins, Mrs. Harry Nicholls and Mrs. Walcott.

Petition in Favor of Racing.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Jan. 25.—Petitions are being circulated throughout Monmouth County asking the Legislature to enact a law which will allow racing and pool selling to be resumed at the Monmouth Park race track this summer. The petition is numerously signed by farmers, merchants and hotel keepers. The Law and Order League will present counter petitions to the Legislature.

Colonel Coppinger May be Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Col. Coppinger, son-in-law to Secretary Blaine, is now being mentioned by many prominent army officers in connection with the appointment of a successor to Brigadier-General Kautz, recently retired. While Colonel Coppinger has not been recognized as a candidate for the brigadier-generalship, there is a strong probability of his ultimate appointment.

DRIVING OUT AMERICANS.

Evils Discovered in Pennsylvania Coal Fields by Inspector Conkling.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 25.—Inspector John Conkling's report to the Immigration authorities at New York shows a deplorable state of affairs existing in the Pennsylvania coal fields.

When the Inspector was in this vicinity he found that the miners, to a great extent, were composed of the worst elements of Austrians, Hungarians, Slavs and Italians. They receive much smaller wages than the American, Irish or Welsh miners can afford to live on. The bosses prefer the foreigners because their work being cheaper makes the price of mining coal much lower.

The managers of the mines admitted to the inspector that these alien laborers are not law-abiding, but they employ them because they can be better utilized than the English-speaking class. A depression in the wages of the miners is one of the results of the continous importation of Hungarians and Slavs, and in a short time, it is feared, there will be no such individual as an English-speaking miner.

The voter, taxpayer and citizen is being gradually driven from the mines by the unfair competition, and the inspector recommends that the spirit, as well as the letter of the law, as contained in the acts of 1891, should be enforced against the alien miners.

The payment of a percentage of wages to foremen is of frequent occurrence on the part of the laborers, and in every other way the law is violated, the inspector states. The steamship companies, too, aid the bosses in violating the law, the inspector adds, acting through subagents, who ship the men, advancing money for the passage and charging extortionate interest. In other words, their passages are prepaid by the steamship companies.

HER HIDDEN WEALTH.

Mrs. Kingsbury Was Supposed to be Poor, Yet She Hoarded $90,000.

LYNN, Mass., Jan. 25.—How Mrs. Jane Kingsbury managed to hoard the immense sum of money found in her house is a mystery to every one familiar with her manner of living. What her income was no one knows, but it was always thought she lived up to it. She was generally supposed to be poor.

In their search Attorney Cunningham and a Mr. Griswold came across several bank books concealed in a chest in a spare bedroom. They were found in bureau drawers which had not been used to the knowledge of the other persons in the house for years. The books represented deposits amounting to about $30,000. The search was continued and $60,000 in money was found hidden in different places.

Of this sum $14,000 was in gold pieces in denominations ranging from $1 to $50. The balance was in currency. It was all hidden in the bottoms of trunks, bureau drawers and beds.

Years ago Mrs. Kingsbury, who was the wife of Major Kingsbury and mother-in-law of ex-Governor Buckner, of Kentucky, figured in a series of lawsuits in this State and Kentucky. They lasted for twelve years.

Claims the House is Contaminated.

WESTFIELD, N. J., Jan. 25.—The case of baseball manager Coding against several insurance companies is attracting much attention. About two weeks ago his house caught fire. As there was no other water handy, the firemen found it necessary in order to extinguish the flames to draw water from two cesspools. Mr. Coding says he has used pounds upon pounds of fumigators and barrels of disinfectants, but the house seems to be permanently affected. The insurance companies are willing to make a settlement for the fire damage, but this does not satisfy Mr. Coding. The case will be taken into the courts. Mr. Coding values the house at $10,000. Westfield was nearly burned down within the last month on account of its lack of water.

Annie Cervi's Acquittal.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 25.—The acquittal of Annie Cervi, the Italian woman on trial here for the murder of Frank Lombard, meets with general satisfaction. Mrs. Cervi, who is a fine looking woman, 35 years old, is the first woman ever tried for murder in Union County. Frank Lombard's body was found on the street early on the morning of November 1 last. The woman admitted the killing, but claimed that it was done while defending herself from assault. She and her husband Michael, who had been indicted as an accessory, were both discharged from custody.

Elevated Railroad Decision Reversed.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 25.—The Court of Appeals by the unanimous opinion of the Judges of the First Division except one not sitting in the case has decided that no property holder can recover any damages against the elevated railroads if his New York city property has been increased in value by the building of the road, and the holding of most of the Judges in the courts below, that the benefits to property arising from the construction of the elevated railroads could not be considered in fixing the damages, has been reversed.

Probably Made Insane by Grip.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 25.—Policeman William Crehan, whose crazy actions Saturday night created much excitement, is supposed to have been made insane through an attack of grip. He rushed into No. 4 station house shouting "They are after me to hang me. I killed a man." He was placed in a cell, and later his throat was found to be cut. A small knife in his pocket escaped the vigilance of the searchers. He will recover from the wound.

STONED THE CARS

Action of a Howling Mob in Allegheny, Pa.

SEVERAL SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Traffic Suspended Until Police Had Dispersed the Rabble.

Women and Children Took a Hand in the Assault---Obstructions Placed on the Tracks---A Policeman Badly Hurt---Strikers Disclaim Any Responsibility for the Mob's Doings---Serious Trouble Feared if the Strike is Not Ended Soon.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 25.—A howling mob of men, women and children stoned the electric street-cars on Beaver avenue, in lower Allegheny, near the car sheds, last night, and put all sorts of obstructions on the track.

A stone thrown through a window of a car struck a woman in the face, painfully injuring her. Another missile hit Officer Bushy on the back, and still another struck him on the leg. He is seriously hurt.

The crowd became so great that traffic on the road was suspended until the police had dispersed the mob.

This morning everything is quiet and the cars are running again. Extra police continue to control the district, and two officers guard each car.

The strikers disclaim all responsibility for the riotous conduct of the mob, which was made up of women and children and workmen from the mills in that section of the city.

The impression is growing that there will be serious trouble if the strike is not soon ended.

JUSTICE BRADLEY'S FUNERAL.

The Remains to be Interred in Newark, N. J., To-day---Services at Washington.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 25.—The funeral of the late Associate Justice Joseph Bradley will be held from the North German Church in this city at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The remains were brought here last night from Washington. All the members of the Supreme Court, with the exception of Justices Field and Lamar, who are ill, are here, besides many Senators and Representatives.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Funeral services over the remains of the late Associate Justice Bradley were held at his residence in this city at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. At his home for some time before the services began there was a constant stream of people who passed in and out of the library where the casket with his remains rested, and took a last look at the features of the distinguished justice. A number who came could not get in on account of the crowd, but remained in front of the residence until the services were concluded.

Among those who attended the funeral were Chief Justice Fuller and the other associates of the dead Justice, Mrs. Harrison, accompanied by Private Secretary Halford, Vice-President and Mrs. Morton, all the members of the Cabinet except Secretary Blaine, Solicitor-General Taft, a large representation of the local bar, a number of Senators and Representatives and attaches of the Supreme Court.

The services were brief but impressive, and were conducted by Rev. Dr. Bartlett, of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, assisted by Rev. Dr. Hamlin, pastor of the Church of the Covenant.

A choir of four voices sang "Asleep in Jesus," and Dr. Hamlin read the funeral services. The services concluded with the hymn "Nearer My God to Thee."

Because the Girl Wasn't a Boy.

ASSONIA, Conn., Jan. 25.—The only cause that Patrick Reardon, who is under arrest here, gives for attempting to murder his infant child is that the babe was a girl and he wanted a boy. Reardon had three girls already, and the disappointment he felt at the birth of another was great. After the child was born Reardon celebrated by getting drunk. He went home intoxicated, and on finding out the sex of the child, commanded the baby to be thrown out of the window. No one obeyed, and he started to do it himself, when Dr. Louis Cooper interfered. The physician and Reardon had a fierce struggle before the police arrested Reardon.

Set Fire to a Church.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 25.—The chapel of the Union Congregational Church was damaged about $15,000 by fire in the afternoon. The fire was of incendiary origin. James McGunigle, a demented youth of 20 years, was arrested for the crime. He confessed his guilt, and said he was prompted to the deed by the remembrance of a beating administered to him by a former sexton of the church.

Commissioner Powell Here.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Among the passengers who arrived on the steamer Etruria yesterday was Sir George Baden-Powell, the British Behring Sea Commissioner, who will endeavor to bring about an amicable settlement regarding the fisheries troubles. Sir George will probably go to Canada from here to confer with the Canadian authorities, after which he will go to Washington.

Does Not Apply to State Prisons.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jan. 25.—Judge Barnard has denied the motion of James Whorley, an ex-keeper of Sing Sing prison, for a mandamus to compel his reinstatement by Warden Brown, claiming preference on account of being a discharged soldier. The court has decided that the statute does not apply to State prisons.

THE MARKERT MURDER.

Police Confident that They Will Soon Unravel the Mistery.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Jan. 25.—The authorities are confident that they will be able to unravel the mystery of the killing of George Markert. An examination of the body, which, as told Saturday, was found in the Callicoon River, shows that the murder was most atrocious. There are five pistol shot wounds in the head and neck, the skull is fractured, apparently by a blow with a club, and there is a ragged, gaping wound in the neck, where an attempt had been made to cut the victim's throat with a dull knife.

Three persons are under arrest for the murder. They are Adam Heidt, brother of Markert's first wife, and his two sons, Joseph and John Heidt.

The alleged motive for the murder is a bitter enmity on the part of the Heidts toward Markert, growing out of family quarrels about property and the ignorance and superstition of the elder Heidt, who is said not to be of sound mind.

It is said that Adam Heidt has long believed that Markert was possessed of the evil eye, and that he had bewitched Heidt's cows so that they should meet with accidents and at times would refuse to give milk, and that Markert had in other ways injured and damaged him in person and property by his black arts.

The sons are believed to have shared in their father's enmity, and perhaps to some extent in his delusions. It is thought that the sons were the actual perpetrators of the crime.

CHANDLER'S CRITICISM.

His References to New Hampshire Judges Causing Much Comment.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 25.—Senator Chandler's references to New Hampshire Judges in his open letter to Editor J. C. Moore are causing much comment. The Senator said among other things:

"There is much need of fearless comment on many of the past and completed acts of our judges. Some of them ride free on Boston & Maine Railroad passes. Their names are on the list. I think some also ride free on the Concord & Montreal Railroad. The judges' salaries were raised $500 each in 1881 with the one distinct object of keeping them from riding free.

"The judges unconstitutionally appoint the State Board of Equalization, and this judges' board, whose members, except one, Mr. John W. Hill, ride free on the railroads, have undervalued at least 50 per cent. of the railroads for taxation purposes.

They are valued at $20,990,000, when they should be valued at least at $37,785,000. They pay only $288,343 taxes, when they should pay at least $418,759. There is no remedy for the people when the judges impose unjust taxes, except in a popular outcry."

The Senator critizes the official conduct of Chief Justice Doe, says the sentence of Murderer Almy in the latter's absence from court was illegal, and declares that he (the Senator) has returned every railroad pass offered to him for 12 years.

A Schooner Ashore.

HYANNIS, Mass., Jan. 25.—The schooner Annie A. Booth, from New York, ran ashore at the Southwest Grounds, near here, during the afternoon. The deckload of laths was thrown overboard by the crew, and it is thought the vessel may be floated.

Indians Dying of Grip.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—A dispatch from Arizona says that the grip has made its appearance among the Pine Indians. The agent of the principal agency of the Territory reports that over 100 Pimas have died in 10 days. The epidemic is spreading throughout the Panagoes and other adjoining tribes, and whole villages have been depopulated. Unless immediate relief is afforded the agent says the whole tribe of Pima Indians will become extinct.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartman, of Albany, N. Y., are visiting Mrs. Bartman's mother, Mrs. M. Burke of 53 East Sixth street, this city.

Mrs. Carmon Parse will leave Plainfield for Knoxville, Tenn., Wednesday. She goes for her health. Her brother, John H. Honeyman, formerly of this city, is now one of the most prominent merchants in Knoxville.

The Rev. A. I. Martine, pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, exchanged pulpits with the Rev. Cornelius Schenck yesterday morning. Mr. Martine delivered a very able discourse from the text Psalm XCIV-19. He is a scholarly and interesting preacher.

A. B. Casner, of Newton, Sussex county, was the guest of the Rev. Mr. Martin, pastor of the M. E. church of Westfield, Sunday. Mr. Casner is very popular in church circles. He is also leader of the Newton band, and a lover of music. He sang a solo for the Westfield church.

Mr. and Mrs. John Doull Miller are spending several weeks with Mrs. Miller's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Shepard, of East Front street. During their visit here Mr. and Mrs. Miller are the recipients of many social attentions. On February 3 they expect to sail for Europe on the steamship Majestic.

CHANGED HIS BASE.

Genial Tom Keller Accepts a Big Salary to Boom Cartridges for the Biggest Company in the World.

Thomas Hazlewood Keller, of whom this city in particular is proud, but whom the people of the vicinity, the State and almost the whole country, know and hold in high regard, has just sundered the ties that have bound him to his old line of business, and accepted a new position with a salary of something over $4,000 a year, in a more congenial and wider field. The Sportsman's Journal, published in New York and Chicago, has this to say of it and him:

"Mr. Keller has just closed a contract with the United States Cartridge company, of Lowell, Mass., whereby he will represent them on the road, visiting the trade throughout the entire country. With the trap-shooting fraternity he has a large and wide acquaintance, by whom he is better known under the pseudonym of 'Tee Kay'.

"Mr. Keller is thirty-five years of age, about five feet eight inches in height, with ample girth, though not fat. His physique is good and his constitution is like iron. These two attributes have no doubt had much to do with making him what he is, namely, a hustler from away back, whether bent on business or pleasure. When at work he works hard and faithfully, and when at play expends just the same amount of force, entering heartily into whatever form of sport he may be engaged in, be it trap shooting or base-ball. In the latter game he is greatly interested, having managed the team in his resident town for several different seasons. He was at one time a good amateur player, but increasing years and avoirdupois have compelled him to relinquish active participation in the game.

"Mr. Keller first became interested in trap shooting about eleven years ago, at the time of the big New York State shoot at Coney Island. Since then he has done more or less shooting both in the field and at the trap, but has been more prominently before the public for the last seven or eight years, dating from the first large tournaments held by the Middlesex Gun club, of Dunellen, N. J., of which club he was one of the most active members. Here his hustling proclivities were at a premium and he made himself invaluable to the club by his ability to run a big shoot and throw a large number of targets in a given time. He was always to be depended upon to do more than his share of the work, and a Middlesex tournament without 'Tee Kay' would have been like Hamlet with Hamlet left out. The experience he gained here has been at the service of several other clubs and associations whose tournaments he has since managed. Among these was the New York State Sportsmen's association tournament, where he broke the record, throwing more targets during the week than had ever before been thrown in the same number of days. The same energy which characterized his attention to trap shooting was also prominent in his business, that of selling cigars, which up to this time has been a lucrative one. He understands that business thoroughly and his abilities as a salesman would command for him a position at any time. He, however, severs his connection with that trade entirely and only because of the very flattering offer from the United States Cartridge Co. Henceforth he will devote his whole time and best energies to the company's interests. Wherever a word may be spoken in good season, there Thos. Keller is sure to be found advocating the use of Climax shells.

"The United States Cartridge Co. has made no mistake in its choice of a representative. It has secured the services of one of the best men in the country. His tastes and late training admirably fit him for the work required of him, while his untiring energy and push, and his good-natured, politic manner, make him of inestimable value.

"On the other hand, Mr. Keller is to be congratulated on his connection with such a company, noted both for the quality of goods it produces and the liberality with which it pushes them. A notable instance of the latter trait was the tour of the Eastern and Western teams, managed by this company, which venture cost thousands of dollars. Mr. Keller was the press representative of that tour, and went ahead of the private car making all arrangements. The work he did at that time, especially among the newspaper men, securing notices and free advertising by the column, was of great value to the company, and it is likely that his present connection dates from that evidence of his ability.

"Mr. Keller has been somewhat of a writer, the signature of 'Tee Kay' being well known in more than one newspaper editorial room. Mr. Keller is a native New Yorker, but for the past sixteen years has resided at Plainfield, N. J., where he owns a comfortable home. His family consists of a wife and three boys, who will mourn his absence from the home circle, which will no doubt be frequent and long, as he will cover the country from Maine to California and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico."

WILL IT BE WAR?

PRESIDENT HARRISON'S MESSAGE THE FIRST MOVE THAT WAY.

Congress to Act Now—Great Excitement at Washington—Egan Not to be Recalled at Chile's Order, But Chile Must Apologize or Diplomatic Relations Must Cease.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—President Harrison's message on the Chilean situation, accompanied by the documents, correspondence, etc., in the case, was sent to Congress to-day.

The message reviews all of the evidence in the case, and the President says he feels compelled to stand upon the demands of the note of the 21st to Minister Egan.

These demands are that the Chilean Government must apologize and make reparation for the assault upon the Baltimore's sailors on Oct. 16.

That the Matta circular note of Dec. 13 must be withdrawn.

The language must be disavowed with as much publicity as it was circulated or diplomatic relations with Chile will cease.

Mr. Egan's recall will not be considered until these matters are disposed of.

The President, in stating his reasons for making these demands, advised that they be confirmed and enforced by Congress.

There is intense excitement in Washington in anticipation of the developments of the Chilean crisis.

The President confidently expected to have a message from Chile within a few hours, making some sort of reply to the ultimatum in the shape of three demands which the United States Government has made, but as none came the message was sent to Congress.

Assistant Secretary Adee said that if any cable had been sent from Santiago, even late last night, it would not be in Washington and translated before late this afternoon.

A great crowd has been pouring to the Capitol since 9 this morning, and at 11 o'clock every seat was taken. The message will undoubtedly be read to full houses, and amid profound silence.

It will then be referred to the Foreign Affairs committee, and subsequent action will depend entirely upon the contents of the message.

The general excitement was much heightened this morning by the rumor which was persistently circulated since last night that Blaine had died suddenly.

This report was started early last evening, and created the greatest excitement all over the city. It was soon found to be a canard.

The correspondence on which President Harrison's Chilean message is based makes more than one hundred columns of reading matter.

A resume has been prepared, about ten columns in length, which will be given out after the message has been presented to Congress.

ARBITRATION SUGGESTED.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The correspondent of the Times at Santiago to-day telegraphs to that paper that it is understood there that Chile has agreed to submit her entire difference with the United States to arbitration.

Holy Cross Choir Entertainment.

The first of a series of entertainments by Holy Cross church choir in aid of their camping fund will be given in the parish building, Wednesday evening at 8. The programme to be presented will be a most attractive one and consist principally of music, vocal, instrumental, choral and otherwise, and this will be agreeably interspersed with a few things in lighter vein, one of which is to be the playing of a highly humorous farce.

The triumphant success of every entertainment which Holy Cross choir has given renders it unnecessary to guarantee an enjoyable evening to all who attend this performance. The advance sale of tickets has been unexpectedly large, but there are still a few more to be had of the choir members, and there is sure to be enough room in the parish building to accommodate all comers—if they come early.

Strikes at the root—Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That's the reason so many different diseases and disorders yield to it. They all have the same beginning—there's a torpid liver or impure blood. And they all have the same ending—they're cured, by this remedy.

Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness; the most obstinate Skin and Scalp Diseases, such as Salt-rheum, Tetter, Erysipelas, Eczema and kindred ailments; the worst forms of Scrofula—even Consumption (or Lung-scrofula) in its earlier stages; every blood-taint and disorder, no matter how it came—all are cured by it.

It's the only medicine for all such diseases that's so positively certain in its effects that it can be guaranteed. If it fails to benefit or cure, in any case, the money is refunded.

Nothing else can be "just as good." It may be better—for the dealer. But he isn't the one who needs help. Beware of spurious imitations or dilutions, offered at less prices.

OBITUARY.

Lawrence Myers.

The death of Lawrence Myers occurred at his home on East Front street yesterday morning at 6:30, after a lingering illness.

Lawrence Myers was born in Plattsburg, N. Y., April 25, 1833. His business engagements were chiefly in New York city, where he attained prominence first as a banker and afterwards in a responsible position of railroad management. In 1866 he established his home in Plainfield, where he resided ever since, except for a brief period of residence in Colorado, enforced by the illness of his late daughter.

The deceased was honored and influential among all the citizens of this place, and will be specially remembered by many for his zealous and long continued services in behalf of the Crescent Avenue church, of which he was a faithful member. There had been laid upon that church the heavy task of raising a costly house of worship in what was then a sparsely settled neighborhood. By his wise counsels as member of the board of trustees, by most liberal contribution of his own means, and by singular address in encouraging the liberality of others, he helped to carry, and at last to remove, that burden, which had seemed formidable enough to crush a growing enterprise.

He was most cordial and affectionate in his support of those who have successively filled the office of pastor of that church. Their labors were lightened by an unfailing and thoughtful kindness on his part which greatly endeared him to them. It was never natural for him to give public expression to what was deepest in his heart, but those nearest him could discern a tenderness of affection, and a profound sense of the realities of the Christian faith, which had been tested by repeated sorrow, and by the pains of long continued disease. The Christian patience and fortitude displayed in these last days, and the hope and faith humble and strong as those of a little child, remain as a precious memory to those whom he loved.

MR. BRETT AND WIFE BARRED.

The Consistory of the Old Church Thinks the Pastor Was Insulted.

The first charge of the Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage is in trouble. The Belleville Reformed church is one of the oldest in the denomination, having been founded by the Van Rensselaers and other old Dutch families in the seventeenth century.

The Rev. William J. Leggett has been pastor for about three years. Pierre V. A. Brett, brother of W. G. Brett of East Ninth street, this city, has acted as superintendent of the Sunday-school for eight years.

The present difficulty began at a meeting of the Sunday-school teachers before Christmas. Mr. Brett presided, and the matter before the meeting was with reference to investing some of the funds of the school in a building and loan association that eventually a chapel might be built. This was advocated by Mr. Brett and opposed by Mr. Leggett. The pastor thought that the superintendent monopolized the conversation, and said: "Please keep quiet a moment and give some one else a chance to speak." The Sunday-school man resented this, although he said nothing then, but waited until after the meeting and gently remonstrated with the minister for "belittling him in the eyes of his teachers".

Pastor Leggett was not to be mollified, however. On Jan. 11 Mr. Brett received a letter from the consistory stating that it had passed a resolution charging that he had insulted the pastor and calling for an apology before the consistory. Mr. Brett did not apologize and received notice that he and his wife, who is accused of abetting him in his act, are "directed not to speak or lead in prayer in any prayer-meeting of the church or the C. E. society, or to teach in Sabbath-school until further notice."

Last Sunday an attempt was made to elect a superintendent of the Sunday-school. Out of twenty-two teachers twelve attended, and but six of these would vote. Theodore Browe was the only candidate, and was elected. He was not present, and it is thought he will not accept.

Mr. Brett is a member of the firm of G A. Brett, Son & Co., of South street, New York, who have been in the shipping business for over half a century.

The Black Patti Again in Plainfield.

Madame M. Sissieretta Jones, the world-renowned colored Patti, will again appear in Plainfield at Reform Hall, Jan. 28. Another golden opportunity is thus given to the music-loving people of Plainfield, to hear this wonderfully gifted singer, who by her rare gifts has held spellbound immense audiences, and has elicited the encomiums of the better class of Europe and South America.

Madame Jones is the greatest medalist of the nineteenth century. When she appears in public she wears, artistically arranged on her bosom, three thousand dollars worth of medals, diamonds and other jewels, all of which were presented to her, because of her rare talents, by eminent lords, dukes, and governors of Europe and South America.

Appended are some things said of her by the press:

"Has a voice of wonderful soundness and peculiarly sweet intonation and distinctness."—New York Age.

"Madame Jones is especially worthy of commendation. Not only does she possess a voice of great sweetness and power, but her enunciation is perfect, and she well deserves the name The Black Patti."—Daily Chronicle, Demerera.

"In noticing this vocal wonder, we are utterly without words for defining her attainments. Columns of deserving praise may by us be written, and columns of well-earned press comments reproduced; but even such combination does not adequately convey an idea of the prima donna's possibilities."—St. Thomas Tiende.

Readers must hear her to realize fully what a revelation she is professionally.

Brower Decorated the Room and Table.

A writer in Town Topics, telling of recent festivities at her house, has this to say of W. H. Brower, who lives in Plainfield:

"We had the oak dining-room decorated by Brower, the florist, you remember, on Broadway, near Twenty-third street, New York, and it was a picture. Out of deference to the pater familias' well-known proclivities, we used plenty of mistletoe.

"He was in his element!

"But let me give you an idea of the decorations.

"On each side of the room, against the flat panel mirrors, was hung an immense wreath of holly. These were connected by a broad band of scarlet satin ribbon. American Beauty roses, with smilax and ferns, formed the centre piece for the table, while miniature garlands, tied with ribbons, on which were inscribed certain interesting statistics, were placed before each guest."

Factory Burned at Rahway.

Fire broke out at 4 Sunday morning in the second story of H. Rosenbaum's shirt factory, Rahway. The flames spread so rapidly that the firemen were unable to cope with them, and the building and contents were consumed. Loss, $35,000; insurance, $2,000. The fire was caused by the explosion of the night watchman's lamp. The light of the fire was seen plainly in this city, where it was thought to be just outside the local fire limits.

The surprise of Rip VanWinkle when awaking from his long slumber could not have been greater than the consumptive's, upon finding himself entirely relieved by Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. 25c.

BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS.

Interesting Matters Discussed at a Meeting of the New Jersey League.

The Building and Loan Association League of New Jersey met in annual session Thursday in the State House at Trenton. Among those present were delegates from Plainfield. President E Ambler Armstrong, brother of Thomas S. Armstrong of this city, in his address urged that missionary work be done among the associations not in the league. Secretary George Forman in his report stated that there are 274 associations in the State, representing a capital of $23,000,000 and comprising a membership of 71,000. There are eighty-eight associations in the New Jersey league. He suggested the establishment of a building and loan association journal, and urged that efforts be put forth to secure the repealing of the mechanics' lien law passed last year.

Judge Dexter, president of the New York State league, read a paper on association matters and was particularly hard on national building and loan associations. He thought they should be compelled to deposit at least $100,000 with the State authorities before they are allowed to come into the State. He stated that twenty States will, during the coming year, take up the matter of legislating to protect the people from these wild-cat nationals. In April of this year the State presidents and secretaries will meet in Chicago to arrange the details of a national convention which is to be held next year, when a national league will be formed.

At the afternoon session addresses were delivered by C. F. Southard and C. R. Hall of New York and Martin Mulvey of Newark. W. B. Smith of Park Ridge introduced a resolution instructing the legislative committee to secure the passage of a law by the legislature compelling the study of building and loan methods by school children. It was adopted.

The executive committee in their report stated that they had considered the claim of the Society of Chosen Friends as a local society and recommended that they be not admitted to membership in the league.

W. B. Wilson, who represents the Chosen Friends of Newark, criticised the executive committee for reaching a conclusion without giving him a hearing. His society was excluded and the entrance fee returned to him.

All the former officers were re-elected for the year, as follows: President, E. A. Armstrong, Camden; vice-presidents, W. A. Linn, Hackensack, and Wm. G. Nelson; treasurer, W. Harris Livermore, Woodbury; secretary, George Foreman, Newark. W. B. Wilson, of Newark, was expelled from the Association on account of his connection with the so-called Nationals.

A Remarkable Abundance of Good Things.

A stirring tale of love and adventure entitled "Roy the Royalist", by William Westall, is the new and complete novel in Lippincott's Magazine for February. The hero—a dashing young naval officer—prompt and capable alike in friendship, love, and war, after passing through a variety of exciting adventures, meets Bonaparte while a prisoner in France, distinguishes himself in defence of Acre, recovers a concealed treasure, and finally settles in his native Virginia. The story is absorbing and highly dramatic. Julius Chambers talks of "The Managing Editor", Dr. R. S. Huidekoper of "The Hackney Horse", Julian Hawthorne of "Senator Rusk's Crusade"; Henry Clews writes of "The Board of Trade and the Farmer"; Hermann Oelrichs contributes an article on "Swimming"; and Hester Dorsey Richardson gives an interesting article on "Prince Gallitzin, Priest and Pioneer"; while poems, short stories, and an abundance of other good things, conclude the contents of this remarkably interesting number. Price, 25 cents, of any newsdealer or bookseller.

Dunellen Dots.

Funeral services were held over the remains of the late James Lowrie, yesterday afternoon at 2:30, at his late residence. The Rev. A. I. Martine officiated. The remains were taken on the 7:49 express this morning, enroute for Worcester, Mass., where will be their last resting-place.

The Rev. W. C. Kinsey assisted in revival services four nights last week at Rahway.

The young people have enjoyed much skating during the past week on Angleman's pond.

The sociable at the residence of Alvah Gray last Friday night was a great success. A number of out-of-town guests were present.

The Rev. A. I. Martine is a sufferer of the grip, and in consequence no services were held at the Presbyterian church last evening.

Mrs. W. H. Taylor is just recovering from a severe attack of the grip.

Preserve Our Road From This!

The New York Herald says that the report that the Jersey Central is to be leased to the Lackawanna is of course denied with the customary impressiveness, but the rumor keeps on flying about just the same with all the semblance of the real thing. There does not appear to be anything in the laws of the State of New Jersey to hinder such a lease, despite all the talk to the contrary.

—Edsall makes some important announcements in his new advertisement to-day that will be of interest to all who are in need of goods in his line.

Envious New Brunswick.

(From the Home News.)

Plainfield's tax collector has succeeded in gathering in every dollar of the $33,818.79 reported as delinquent for 1890. The common council gave him power to arrest those who refused to pay up. The treasury of New Brunswick would be overflowing were all the delinquents compelled to pay up. The fact is delinquents are a favored class here, as under one subterfuge or another they are allowed to pay when they get "good and ready", to use a common phrase. Every year allowance has to be made for failure to collect taxes, and the tax shirkers are happy in the knowledge that the city is an indulgent creditor.

[From The Tradesman.]

The Home News says:

Plainfield has ordered that all bars in that city shall close at 11 p. m. A similar law in this city could not fail to have a good effect, but there is no danger of such an one being passed.

Well, you see, Plainfield has a Republican council, and that makes a big difference. It makes all the difference between the council controlling the saloons and the saloons controlling the council. If the people of New Brunswick want a similar law to this they can get it by electing a Republican council. They will never get it in any other way.

Enlisting the Services of Plainfield's Ex-Chief.

A delegation from the Law and Order league of Hudson county visited Elizabeth, Saturday, to secure some points as to how the crusade against the Elizabeth and Linden racing corporations and the bookmakers was successfully conducted; more particularly as to the methods used to procure evidence and to identify the bookmakers if they were arrested.

Lawyer Richard V. Lindabury was the man who conducted the prosecutions on behalf of the State, and county detectives John Keron and Philip Breen, formerly chief of police of this city, were the ones who gathered the proof against the race-track men. Their way of working it was for Breen to attend the races and study the features of the bookmakers, who were afterwards indicted as John Doe. When arrested Breen would identify the persons as the ones that he saw transacting business in the betting ring, when they would be compelled to give their right names and the indictments were amended accordingly. It is rumored that lawyer Lindabury, together with detectives Keron and Breen, will be hired to assist in the fight against Guttenberg.

President McLeod Has the Bridge.

President McLeod, of the Reading Railroad company, Saturday confirmed the statement that his company had secured control of the Poughkeepsie bridge. Said he: "The Reading has alone secured the Poughkeepsie bridge. I am not prepared at this moment to discuss the details, but when the real importance of the transaction is fully understood it will be seen that the acquisition is a most valuable one to the Reading company. It gives us just what we have needed—a direct route to New England—and in considering our coal trade alone the importance of the acquisition is incalculable."

—In its January issue, The Housewife, that admirable publication for the home, fully sustains its standard of excellence. There is choice fiction by Rose Terry Cooke, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Judith Spencer and Helen Frazer Lovett. There is much interesting information on the subject of practical dress, an illustrated department of flowers, a children's page, seasonable advice about kitchen and culinary matters, a judicious sprinkling of verse, and a plentiful assortment of miscellany. The Housewife becomes a constant visitor to every home that once receives it. The publisher's address is 81 Warren street, New York. The subscription is only 50 cents a year.

After having expended one thousand dollars for various medicines and with doctors, and growing worse all the while, I considered my case incurable. I was induced to try Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. After their use for six weeks I can eat meat without distress, a thing that has not occurred before for years. I believe I am nearly cured, and yet it seems too good to be true. Have no doubt but that much of the sleeplessness people complain of is caused by indigestion.—J. W. DRAKE, Centre Market, Newark, N. J.

To Outdo "Jekyll and Hyde."

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 25.—Lloyd Osbourne, stepson of Robert Louis Stevenson, who accompanied the famous novelist on the South Sea cruise, has arrived here and says that Mr. Stevenson's health is completely restored. Mr. Stevenson has just completed a novel which Mr. Osbourne says is his greatest. It is called "On the Beach at Falesa," and is shortly to appear in book form. It involves the life of a trader in the South Seas and is ghostly in its ending. It is said that "Jekyll and Hyde" is not to be compared to it for plot and action.

Sunk by La Normandie.

HAVRE, Jan. 25.—The General Transatlantic steamer La Normandie, which sailed from this port Saturday for New York, collided with and sunk the tug which had been towing her. Five persons were drowned and one was seriously injured.

STIMULATE THE BLOOD.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS are the great blood purifier. They are a purgative and blood tonic, they act equally on the bowels, the kidneys, and the skin, thus cleansing the system by the natural outlet of the body—they may be called the purgative sudorific and diuretic medicine. They stimulate the blood so as to enable nature to throw off all morbid humors, and cure disease, no matter by what name it may be called. One or two of them taken every night will prove an infallible remedy.

Three Killed by a Locomotive.

GREENWICH, Conn., Jan. 25.—A sad accident occurred to three young men of this place during the night on the railroad tracks near Chickahoming, a suburb of this town. The three young men, Philip Connell, Michael Doran and Brown Hamilton, were on their way to Chickahoming to attend a dance when they were struck by a locomotive. Doran and Connell were instantly killed, and Hamilton received fatal injuries.

Trouble Likely in Ecuador.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.— Information has been received in this city that trouble is imminent in Ecuador, growing out of the alleged assumption of dictatorial powers of the President. The occasion of the trouble is that as the time approaches for the election of a successor to the present incumbent of the Presidency, his opponents charge that he is endeavoring to continue himself in power by unconstitutional methods.

Worst Winter in Twenty Years.

BOISE CITY, Idaho, Jan. 25.—Thousands of cattle are slowly starving to death in the hills of Southern Idaho. The loss to stockraisers will be tremendous. Every blade of grass upon the ranges is under from twenty-two to sixty inches of snow, and the present winter has not been equaled in severity since 1870.

Mrs. Camp's Suit Settled.

WATERBURY, Conn., Jan. 25.—The suit of Mrs. Sarah M. Camp of this place for $20,000 damages against Laura H. Pearsall, also of Waterbury, for alienating the affections of the former's husband, has just been satisfactorily settled. Mrs. Camp brought two suits in October, 1890, one against her husband for divorce and one against Mrs. Pearsall for alienation of her husbands affections. The divorce suit was tried last June, Mrs. Pearsall being named as co-respondent. The divorce was granted Mrs. Camp, together with $7,000 alimony. The suit for alienation of affections was to have been tried next Tuesday.

The Postmaster Was Not Removed.

MORGANTOWN, Pa., Jan. 25.—The story that Levi Shirk, the postmaster here, had been removed because of uncomplimentary remarks about Postmaster-General Wanamaker and President Harrison is untrue. It seems a petition was received by the Postmaster-General signed by a number of citizens of Morgantown, which stated that Shirk was about to remove from the place and requested the appointment of Samuel Deischley, an old soldier, who lost a leg in battle. On this statement and recommendation Deischley was several days ago appointed to succeed Shirk.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

F. W. RUNYON, City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 19, 1892.

AN ORDINANCE

To License Inns and Taverns and to Regulate and Prohibit the sale of Spirituous and Fermented Liquors.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. All applications for license to keep an inn and tavern within said city shall be in writing, addressed to the Common Council, shall be signed by the person or persons desiring such license, shall state the purpose for which a license is asked, and the place wherein such business is proposed to be carried on, and a certificate shall be annexed thereto, signed by at least ten reputable citizens and freeholders of said city (three of whom shall reside within one thousand feet of the place proposed for license, and all of whom shall be residents of the same ward in which the business is to be carried on), who have not within one year theretofore signed any similar certificate, stating that the applicant is known to them to be of good repute for honesty and temperance, and provided with at least two spare rooms with beds, bedding and furniture more than are necessary for the use of applicant's family.

Sec. 2. Before any person or persons shall receive a license to keep an inn or tavern within said city, such person or persons shall become bound by recognizance in writing to the "Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield" in the sum of one hundred dollars as principal, with two sufficient sureties, being freeholders within said city, in the sum of fifty dollars each, to be taken before the City Judge in or out of court, with condition following, to wit: The condition of this recognizance is such that whereas, the above bounden A. B. is licensed by the Common Council of said city of Plainfield to keep an inn and tavern within said city until the first day of March next ensuing the date hereof, if therefore the said A. B. during the continuance of the said license shall not keep a disorderly inn and tavern, nor game himself, nor suffer any person to game in said inn and tavern for money or the value of money, nor violate the laws made concerning inns and taverns, but shall during the said term in all things respecting him as an innholder and tavern-keeper, use and maintain good order and rule, and find and provide good, wholesome and sufficient lodging, diet and entertainment for man, and stabling and provender for horse, and observe the directions of the law relating to inns and taverns, then this recognizance to be void, or else to remain in full force and virtue.

Sec. 3. Every inn and tavern-keeper licensed under the provisions of the foregoing sections, shall be liable to the same conditions, requirements and restrictions as are imposed upon inn and tavern-keepers under the general law of the State; provided, that no such license shall be taken or construed as authorizing the sale, by such inn and tavern-keeper, of any spirituous or fermented liquors.

Sec. 4. That license may be granted to any person duly licensed to keep an inn and tavern in said city to sell spirituous and fermented liquors in his inn and tavern; all applications for such license shall be in writing addressed to the Common Council, signed by the applicant, setting forth the purpose for which such license is asked, and the inn and tavern wherein such business is purposed to be carried on, and such application shall have a certificate annexed thereto, signed by at least ten reputable citizens and freeholders of said city (three of whom reside within one thousand feet of the said inn and tavern), and all of whom shall be residents of the same ward in which the business is to be carried on, stating that the applicant is known to them to be of good repute for honesty and temperance, and thereupon the said Common Council may, in their discretion, grant such license; provided, that the said certificate may be signed by the same citizens and freeholders as have already signed the certificate required to be annexed to his application for license to keep an inn and tavern; and provided further, that before any license is granted to sell spirituous and fermented liquors as provided for by the ordinance, the Clerk of the Common Council shall have caused or shall cause to be inserted in each official newspaper in the city, within ten days after such application was or is made, a notice in the following form, with the blank spaces properly filled in, to wit:

Plainfield, N. J.............18....

Notice is hereby given that............... has applied to the Common Council of the City of Plainfield for a license to sell spirituous and fermented liquors at No............street, which application is signed by.................................citizens and freeholders. All persons knowing of any reasons why such license should not be granted, are requested to make known the same in writing, to the City Clerk, on or before the....day of...., 18......

The expense of publishing such notice shall be added to the fee required to be paid and shall be paid by the applicant for such license, before receiving such license; and all communications which may be received by the City Clerk in response to any such request, shall be by him immediately delivered to the Committee on Licenses of the Common Council, if there be such committee, or if not, to the Common Council.

Sec. 5. That saloon-keepers and persons other than inn and tavern-keepers may, in the discretion of the Common Council, be licensed under this ordinance to sell spirituous and fermented liquors within said city. All applications for such license shall be in writing, and made as required by the next preceding section in the case of inn and tavern-keepers, and the owner of the place proposed for license (if the applicant be not the owner) must be one of the signers to the certificate required to be annexed to the application. Such certificate shall be signed only by reputable citizens and freeholders of said city, who have not within one year theretofore signed any similar certificate. In every certificate annexed to applications for license to sell spirituous and fermented liquors within said city, whether by inn and tavern-keepers, saloon-keepers or other persons, every freeholder recommending the granting of such license shall clearly designate the street in which he lives, and in what part thereof he lives, and also the location and nature of, and his interest in, the real property by virtue of the ownership of which he shall sign such certificate; and further, the signature of every freeholder to every such certificate shall be witnessed by some reputable person, whose affidavit, setting forth the fact that he saw said freeholder sign said certificate, shall be attached to said certificate before being presented to the Council; and no license whatever shall be granted unless the application therefor and the certificate thereto annexed shall be in compliance with all the requirements under this ordinance. No person shall be deemed competent to sign the certificate first referred to in this section who shall, within one year theretofore, have signed a certificate annexed to any application for license to keep an inn and tavern, or to sell spirituous and fermented liquors therein, and no woman, and no man who from illiteracy is unable to read and write the English language, shall be deemed competent to sign any of the certificates required by this ordinance, or any part thereof, except in the case of the owner of the place proposed for license when under this ordinance such owner's signature is made necessary, nor shall any woman be deemed competent to receive a license under this ordinance.

Sec. 6. That before receiving any license provided in the last preceding section, the person licensed shall become bound by recognizance in writing to the inhabitants of the City of Plainfield in the sum of two hundred dollars as principal, with two sufficient sureties in the sum of one hundred dollars each, conditioned as follows, to wit: The condition of this recognizance is such that whereas the above bounden A. B. is licensed to sell spirituous and fermented liquors at .... on .... street, in the City of Plainfield, until the first day of March next ensuing the date hereof, if therefore the said A. B. during the continuance of said license shall not keep a disorderly house, nor game himself, nor suffer any person to game in said house for money or the value of money, nor violate any of the provisions of this ordinance, or the ordinances of said city made or to be made concerning the business whereunto the said A. B. is licensed as aforesaid, but shall in all things during the continuance of said license keep and maintain good order and rule in his said place of business, and in all things comply with and observe the provisions of the ordinances of said city now made and to be made concerning such business, then this recognizance to be void, else to be and remain in full force and virtue.

Sec. 7. Licenses to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors in any quantity from one quart to five gallons may be granted under this ordinance, upon the applicant presenting to the Common Council written application therefor, signed by such applicant and setting forth the purpose for which such license is asked, and the place in which the applicant proposes to conduct his business, accompanied by a certificate recommending the applicant to be a fit and suitable person to be licensed, signed by at least five freeholders in and residents of the city of Plainfield, three of whom reside in the same ward in which said proposed place of business is situated and within one thousand feet of said proposed place of business of said applicant; but no such license shall be taken or construed to authorize any such licensed person to suffer or permit any of said liquors, sold under and in pursuance of such license, to be drunk on or about the premises where sold; and no person not licensed under this section shall sell, furnish or supply any spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors to persons or families in dwellings, under a penalty of a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding sixty days, either or both, for each and every offense. That every licensed person engaged in furnishing or supplying liquors to persons or families in dwellings, shall carry with him while so engaged the license for inspection, under the penalty of five dollars for every neglect so to do; and when the licensee shall find it necessary in the prosecution of his business to use more than one vehicle for the delivery of spirituous, vinous, malt and brewed liquors, or any of them theretofore ordered from such licensee at his place of business, the city clerk shall issue to such licensee a certificate for every additional vehicle, which certificate shall be carried by the driver of such vehicle for inspection, under the penalty of five dollars for every neglect so to do. The city clerk shall demand such evidence as he may deem necessary before issuing any certificate. That the loan of any certificate aforesaid to any person not authorized to use the same; shall subject the offender to the penalty of a revocation of the license under which the certificate is issued.

Sec. 8. If any person licensed under this ordinance shall be convicted of being drunk in his own licensed place of business, such person may be fined in any sum not exceeding twenty dollars; and such conviction shall be sufficient cause for the revocation of such license by the Common Council.

Sec. 9. No person or persons licensed under this ordinance shall permit any drunkenness, riot or other disorderly conduct in his, her or their licensed place of business, or on his, her or their premises; and any person offending against the provisions of this section shall, upon conviction thereof before the City Judge be fined, for the first offense, in any sum not exceeding twenty dollars, and for each subsequent offense in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars.

Sec. 10. Every person licensed under this ordinance shall, within one month from date of the license, put up or fix a sign on the front of the place licensed, with his, her or the firm's (if it be a firm) name thereon; and shall keep such sign up during the whole period of the licence; and shall also cause the said license to be properly framed and hung up to public view in the public room of the place licensed.

Sec. 11. If any person or persons not licensed according to the provisions of this ordinance shall expose for sale, sell or dispose of, or cause or permit to be exposed for sale, sold or disposed of, directly or indirectly, within said city, any spirituous or fermented liquors, or any composition of which spirituous or fermented liquors shall form a part (except such as shall be compounded and intended for use as medicine) such person or persons shall be deemed guilty of an offense, and upon conviction thereof before the City Judge shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisoned for any term not exceeding sixty days, either or both, at the discretion of the Court; provided, that said prosecution shall be begun within six months from the date of the commission of such offense; and provided further, that nothing in this ordinance shall be construed to apply to druggists filling prescriptions from practicing physicians, or to prohibit any person from selling metheglin, currant or other native wine made by the seller.

Sec. 12. No person or persons licensed under this ordinance shall carry on the business or trade for which such license was granted in any other place than that designated in said license, nor shall such license be assigned or transferred, nor shall such licensed person or persons assume to give authority or permission to any other person or persons to carry on such licensed business, but such license as to any and all other persons and places than those named therein shall be void, and any person or persons who in disregard of the prohibitions of this section shall carry on any such business under a license so assigned or transferred, or under an authority or permission thus given, shall be liable to the same penalties as may be inflicted upon persons selling without license.

Sec. 13. No person or persons licensed under this ordinance shall, between the hours of eleven o'clock at night and six o'clock the following morning or upon the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, sell or offer, or expose for sale or furnish, or permit to be sold, offered or exposed for sale or furnished to any person or persons, any spirituous or fermented liquors of any kind or any composition thereof, or at any time sell, offer or expose for sale, or furnish or permit to be offered or exposed for sale, sold or furnished any of such liquors or any compound thereof, to any minor, intoxicated or weak-minded person, nor shall such licensed person or persons at any time incite, encourage or permit any game or device to be played, practiced or carried on within such licensed place, or in any shed, out-house or other place in the occupancy of such licensed person (billiards or nine-pins, if named in such license, alone excepted), or any betting or gaming for money or anything of any value whatever: and any person convicted of a violation of any of the provisions of this section shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisoned for any term not exceeding sixty days, either or both, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 14. All prosecutions under this ordinance shall be by affidavit or information filed before the City Judge, and in all cases where said prosecution shall be for the offering for sale, selling or exposing for sale or otherwise disposing of any spirituous or fermented liquors, it shall be sufficient in such affidavit or information to describe such liquors as spirituous or fermented liquors, as the case may be, without specifying particularly the kind or description thereof, and evidence may be given upon the trial of the sale, offering for sale or otherwise disposing of any particular kind of liquor included in the general description so given. All such information shall be brought by the Corporation Counsel in the name of "The Treasurer of the City of Plainfield." And whenever a fine shall be imposed and collected for violation of any of the provisions of this ordinance, one-half of such fine shall be paid to the person making the complaint upon which the conviction for such violation shall have been had, and the other half thereof shall be paid to the City Treasurer for the use of the city.

Sec. 15. In all cases of the prosecution of any person licensed under this ordinance for any offense against any of the provisions thereof, it shall be the duty of the Judge, upon conviction of such licensed person, to declare his recognizance forfeited.

Sec. 16. All licenses under this ordinance shall be granted by resolution of the Common Council, be made out by the City Clerk, signed by the Mayor, issued under the common seal of the city, attested by the City Clerk, and shall continue in force until the first day of March next after the date of such license, and no longer provided, that any person duly licensed to keep an inn and tavern may be granted license to sell spirituous and fermented liquors in his said inn and tavern for the six months beginning May first and ending November first of the year in which said license is granted, and such license shall expire on the said first day of November, and at all licenses shall be subject to be revoked any time by resolution of the Common Council for a violation or neglect of any of the provisions of this ordinance, or of any other ordinance which the Common Council may pass relative to the business authorized by such license, and it shall be the duty of the City Clerk to furnish immediately to the person or persons whose license shall be so revoked a copy of such resolution, and any person acting under such license, after notice of the revocation thereof, shall be liable to all the penalties imposed by this ordinance as fully as though no such license had ever been issued. Before receiving such license, the applicant shall be required to sign in duplicate a stipulation to be written, printed or stamped, both on the face of said license and on the stub to which the same is attached as follows: "I hereby agree to be bound by and to conform to all the ordinances of the City of Plainfield, under which this license is granted, under penalty of forfeiture of this license."

Sec. 17. Before receiving a license issued under this ordinance, the licensed person or persons shall pay the following fees: To the Mayor and City Clerk each one dollar, and in addition the following fees, viz: For each license to an inn and tavern-keeper to sell spirituous or fermented liquors, the sum of seven hundred dollars ($700) when said license is to expire on the first day of March, following, and the sum of four hundred dollars when said license is to expire on the first day of November following, provided that persons licensed to keep an inn and tavern without the privilege of selling spirituous and fermented liquors, shall not be required to pay any fees except those to the Mayor and City Clerk. For each license to a person other than an inn and tavern-keeper to sell spirituous and fermented liquors, the sum of seven hundred dollars ($700). For each other place licensed to sell spirituous and fermented liquors, in quantities as provided in section seven (7) of this ordinance, the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250) provided, that all license fees under this ordinance, other than those to the Mayor and City Clerk, shall be paid to the City Treasurer and his receipt shown to the Mayor before such license shall issue; and provided further, that no such license shall be of any validty whatever until such license fees are in fact paid to the City Treasurer, and on failure to pay any such fees within twenty days from the time the Common Council shall have granted any such application for license the said action of said Common Council shall no longer authorize the issuance of a license under said application to the person failing to pay as aforesaid, unless the Common Council at the first meeting following the expiration of said twenty days shall so direct.

Sec. 18. The City Clerk shall keep a correct list of all licenses issued under this ordinance in a book to be provided for that purpose, in which shall be entered the name of the licensed person or persons, the business for which said license has been given, and the names of the freeholders and citizens certifying to the application for such license; which book shall, at all reasonable times, be open to the inspection of any citizen of said city desiring to examine the same.

Sec. 19. No person licensed under this ordinance shall keep open or cause or permit to be kept open his bar room or room in which spirituous or fermented liquors are customarily sold or permit persons to congregate therein between the hours of eleven o'clock at night and six o'clock of the following morning, and any person convicted of violating this section shall be liable to a fine of one hundred dollars or imprisonment for a term not exceeding sixty days or both.

Sec. 20. That no person licensed to sell spirituous or fermented liquors shall suffer or permit in his bar-room or any other room in which spirituous or fermented liquors are sold by him, or in any adjoining room connected therewith, any musical performance of any kind, vocal or instrumental, or both, or any mechanical music, or any acting, dancing, juggling, slight of hand, boxing, wrestling, or any similar performance, show or exhibition.

Sec. 21. Every person licensed to sell spirituous or fermented liquors shall so arrange the doors, windows and partitions of his bar-room or saloon that a full and unobstructed view of the interior thereof, including the bar, may be had from the street through the doors or windows, or both, between the hours of 11 p. m. each and every Saturday and 6 a. m. the following Monday. And no window, blind, screen, partition, curtain or other article shall be so left or placed as to prevent between the hours named the full and unobstructed view from the street of the interior of said saloon or barroom.

Sec. 22. No person licensed to sell spirituous or fermented liquors shall at any time sell or dispose of spirituous or fermented liquors from any bar that cannot, between the hours named in Section 21, be plainly seen from the streets.

Sec. 23. Every violation of any of the provisions of the three next preceding sections of this ordinance shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding sixty days or both, at the discretion of the court.

Sec. 24. That all ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith be and the same are hereby repealed. Provided that no offense committed and no liability or penalty incurred previous to the time when this ordinance shall go into effect, shall be discharged or affected by anything in this ordinance contained; and all proceedings and prosecution for such offenses, liabilities and penalties shall be instituted or proceeded with as the case may be in all respects as if the ordinance had not been adopted.

WHICH IS WHICH?

Young Fipps (to Mr. Gruesome, who is the happy possessor of a fine hound) —I say, Gruey, old boy, which is you? Don't both bark at once!—Jury.

Rough on the Czar.

Snooks—They say the czar will not allow anybody to speak to him or come near him, and he even snubbed the emperor of Germany.

Sturtevant Van Rensellaer—I don't see what excuse he has for superciliousness. He is not related to any of the old Knickerbocker families of New York, is he?—Texas Siftings.

"No—breach of promise!" — Texas Siftings.

Very Simple.

Ardup—I don't mind the draught. It's the bills that come up it!—Chicago Tribune.

And at the soprano grinned,
While the tenor turned as red as fire
And the basso got out of wind.

CHILI BACKS DOWN

She Decides to Accede to Our Ultimatum.

MATTA'S NOTE WITHDRAWN.

The Demand for Minister Egan's Recall Retracted.

ARBITRATION OF THE CASE ASKED.

The Peppery Little Republic Brought to Her Senses at Last.

Chili Proposes to Submit the Difficulty to a Neutral Power or to the United States Supreme Court—Message of the President—The Case Carefully Reviewed—Minister Egan Praised, and Will Not be Recalled—Abstract of the Correspondence—The Hostility of the Chilians to Americans Made Plain—Feeling in Washington—The Refugees Landed at Callao—Secretary Tracy's Opinion.

SANTIAGO, Chili, Jan. 26.—The Chilian Government has sent a reply to the ultimatum of the United States. The reply is, in effect, as follows:

Chili agrees to withdraw the offensive note sent by Senor Matta to all the Chilian Ministers abroad, and acknowledges that its issuance was due to an error of judgment.

Chili also withdraws the request for the withdrawal of United States Minister Egan.

In addition to this the Chilian government, in its answer, proposes that the affair of the attack upon the Baltimore's sailors in Valparaiso be submitted to the arbitration of some neutral nation.

If this proposition is not acceptable to the United States government the Chilian government suggests that the matter be submitted to the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States.

THE SPECIAL MESSAGE.

Abstract of President Harrison's Statement to Congress.

The following is an abstract of President Harrison's message to Congress on the Chilian situation:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In my annual message, delivered to Congress at the beginning of the present session, after a brief statement of the facts then in the possession of this Government touching the assault in the streets of Valparaiso, Chili, upon the sailors of the United States steamship Baltimore, on the evening of the 16th of October last, I said:

"This Government is now awaiting the result of an investigation, which has been conducted by the Criminal Court at Valparaiso. It is reported unofficially that the investigation is about completed, and it is expected that the result will soon be communicated to this Government, together with some adequate and satisfactory response to the note by which the attention of Chili was called to this incident. If these just expectations should be disappointed or further needless delay intervene, I will, by a special message, bring the matter again to the attention of Congress for such action as may be necessary."

In my opinion the time has now come when I should lay before the Congress and the country the correspondence between this Government and the Government of Chili, from the time of the breaking out of the revolution against Balmaceda, together with all other facts in the possession of the Executive Department relating to this matter.

The correspondence is herewith transmitted. I do not deem it necessary in this communication to attempt any full analysis of the correspondence or of the evidence. A brief restatement of the international questions involved and of the reasons why the responses of the Chilian Goverament are unsatisfactory is all that I deem necessary.

Minister Egan Complimented.

It may be as well at the outset to say that, whatever may have been said in this country or in Chili in criticism of Mr. Egan, our Minister at Santiago, the true history of this exciting period in Chilian affairs, from the outbreak of the revolution until this time, discloses no act on the part of Mr. Egan unworthy of his position, or that could justly be the occasion of serious animadversion or criticism. He has, I think, on the whole, borne himself, in very trying circumstances, with dignity, discretion and courage, and has conducted the correspondence with ability, courtesy and fairness.

It is worth while also at the beginning to say that the right of Mr. Egan to give shelter in the Legation to certain adherents of the Balmaceda Government who applied to him for asylum has not been denied by the Chilian authorities, nor has any demand been made for the surrender of these refugees. That there was urgent need of asylum is shown by Mr. Egan's note of August 24, 1891, describing the disorders that prevailed in Santiago, and by the evidence of Capt. Schley as to the pillage and violence that prevailed at Valparaiso.

The correspondence discloses, however, that the request of Mr. Egan for a safe conduct from the country in behalf of the refugees was denied. The precedents cited by him in the correspondence, particularly the case of the revolution in Peru in 1863, did not leave the Chilian Government in a position to deny the right of asylum to political refugees, and seemed to support Mr. Egan's contention that a safe conduct to neutral territory was a necessary and acknowledged incident of the asylum. These refugees have very recently, without formal safe conduct, but by the acquiescence of the authorities, been placed on board the Yorktown and are now being conveyed to Callao, Peru.

This incident might be considered wholly closed but for the disrespect manifested toward this Government by the close and offensive police surveillance of the Legation premises which was maintained during most of the period of the stay of the refugees therein.

The Legation a Veritable Prison.

After the date of my annual message and up to the time of the transfer of the refugees to the Yorktown, the Legation premises seem to have been surrounded by police in uniform, and police agents or detectives in citizens dress, who offensively scrutinized persons entering or leaving the Legation, and on one or more occasions, arrested members of the Minister's family. It appears further that on one occasion at least these police agents invaded the Legation premises, pounding upon its windows and using insulting and threatening language towards persons therein.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—U. S. Gov't Report, Aug. 17, 1889.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

But the most serious incident disclosed in the correspendence is that of the attack upon the sailors of the Baltimore.

We have now received from the Chilian Government an abstract of the conclusions of the Fiscal General upon the testimony taken by the Judge of Crimes in an investigation which was made to extend over nearly three months. I very much regret to be compelled to say that this report does not enable me to modify the conclusion announced in my annual message. I am still of the opinion that our sailors were assaulted, beaten, stabbed and killed, not for anything they or any one of them had done but for what the Government of the United States had done, or was charged with having done, by its civil officers or naval commanders.

Commander Evans, who by my direction recently visited Mr. Egan at Santiago, in his telegram to the Navy Department, described the Legation as "a veritable prison," and states that the police agents, or detectives, were, after his arrival, withdrawn during his stay.

The Nation, Not the Men, Attacked.

If there had been no participation by the police or military in this cruel work and no neglect on their part to extend protection, the case would still be one, in my opinion, when its extent and character are considered, involving international rights.

The communications of the Chilian Government in relation to this cruel and disastrous attack upon our men, as will appear from the correspondence, have not in any degree taken the form of a manly and satisfactory expression of regret, much less of apology.

The event was of so serious a character that if the injuries suffered by our men had been wholly the result of an accident in a Chilian port, the incident was grave enough to have called for some public expression of symyathy and regret from the local authorities.

These incidents conclusively establish that the attack was upon the uniform—the nationality—and not upon the men.

The origin of this feeling is probably found in the refusal of this Government to give recognition to the Congressional party before it had established itself, in the seizure of the Itata for an alleged violation of the neutrality law, in the cable incident and in the charge that Admiral Brown conveyed information to Valparaiso of the landing at Quinteros. It is not my purpose to enter here any defence of the action of this Government in these matters. It is enough for the present purpose to say that if there was any breach of international comity or duty on our part, it should have been made the subject of official complaint through diplomatic channels or of reprisals, for which a full responsibility was assumed.

The Ultimatum of the 21st.

On the 21st inst. I caused to be communicated to the Government of Chili, by the American Minister at Santiago, the conclusions of this government after a full consideration of all the evidence and of every suggestion affecting this matter, and to these conclusions I adhere.

In the same note the attention of the Chilian Government was called to the offensive character of a note addressed by Mr. Matta, its Minister of Foreign Affairs, to Mr. Montt, its Minister at this capital, on the 11th ult.

It was not only undiplomatic but grossly insulting to our naval officers and to the Executive Department, as it directly imputed untruth and insincerity to the reports of the naval officers and to the official communication made by the Executive Department to Congress.

It will be observed that I have notified the Chilian Government that unless this note is at once withdrawn and an apology as public as the offense made, I will terminate diplomatic relations.

Minister Egan Will Not Be Recalled.

The request for the recall of Mr. Egan upon the ground that he was not persona grata, was unaccompanied by any suggestion that could properly be used in support of it, and I infer that the request is based upon official acts of Mr. Egan which have received the approval of this Government.

But, however that may be, I could not consent to consider such a question until it had first been settled whether our correspondence with Chili could be conducted upon a basis of mutual respect.

In submitting these papers to Congress for that grave and patriotic consideration, which the questions involved demand, I desire to say that I am of the opinion that the demand made of Chili by this Government should be adhered to and enforced.

American Citizens Must Be Protected.

If the dignity as well as the prestige and influence of the United States are not to be wholly sacrificed we must protect those who in foreign ports display the flag or wear the colors of this Government against insult, brutality and death, inflicted in resentment of the acts of their Government and not for any fault of their own.

It has been my desire in every way to cultivate friendly and intimate relations with all the governments of this Hemisphere.

We do not covet their territory; we desire their peace and prosperity. We look for no advantage in our relations with them except the increased exchanges of commerce upon a basis of mutual benefit.

We regret every civil contest that disturbs their peace and paralyzes their development, and are always ready to give our good offices for the restoration of peace.

It must, however, be understood that this Government, while exercising the utmost forbearance toward weaker powers, will extend its strong and adequate protection to its citizens, to its officers, and to its humblest sailor, when made the victims of wantonness and cruelty, in resentment not of their personal misconduct, but of the official acts of their Government.

I have as yet received no reply to our note of the 21st inst., but in my opinion, I ought not to delay longer to bring these matters to the attention of Congress for such action as may be deemed appropriate. BENJ. HARRISON.

CORRESPONDENCE IN THE CASE.

The More Important Communications Sent and Received.

The Chilian correspondence sent to Congress from the Department of State forms a volume of several hundred printed pages. It begins with the despatch of Minister Egan of August 15, 1890, notifying the Department of the beginning of the controversy, and continues all through the revolution and the events which follow it.

Events of the Revolution.

It includes the messages of Mr. Egan to this Government notifying it of the various steps taken by Balmaceda and the revolutionists as they came to his knowledge. The Chilian Government asked through Mr. Egan March 8 for a ship to transport $4,000,000 to pay interest on the National debt abroad; but the State Department not giving its consent, a British warship was obtained. On March 23 Mr. Egan notified the State Department that the Chilian Government had 30,000 men, while the revolutionists could not command more than 4,000 or 5,000 men. When the Chilian ports were closed by Balmaceda, Mr. Blaine reserved the right to consider any case that might arise under it; but Mr. Egan obtained assurances that American vessels would not be subjected to inconveniences.

A request from the Chilian Government April 21st, that the United States sell a war vessel received reply the 23d that the United States had no vessel to sell. Mr. Egan's offer to mediate, authorized by the State Department, is detailed in the correspondence as well as the failure to mediate.

The affair of the Itata is also detailed, and September 17th Mr. Egan reports the acting Minister of Foreign Affairs as admitting that the United States could not have taken any other position in regard to that vessel.

Minister Egan Was Neutral.

In reply to charges forwarded to the State Department by D. H. Davis, a citizen of the United States living at Lima, that Mr. Egan had been advising the Chilian Government about the conduct of the war, Mr. Egan replied, making a specific denial and stating that he had preserved cordial relations with the Government, but that he had the assurance that he retained the friendship and confidence of the leaders of the opposition. In support of the latter statement an interview of the Minister of the Interior of the Junta with Consul Merriam is quoted, expressing regret for criticism of Mr. Egan by the Junta organ at Iquique, the "Nacional."

On August 20 Mr. Egan wrote that, hearing of a reported threat to search the Legation for refugees, he had personally notified the Government that he would discuss the question of asylum on a proper basis, but he would shoot any one trying to search the Legation. The President assured him direct that there was no such intention.

The dispatches give at length the particulars of the success of the revolutionists, and tell of the entertainment of refugees (among them Balmaceda and his family), at the American legation. Only the British legation and British war vessels refused asylum to the refugees.

Matta and the Refugees.

Mr. Egan, on Sept. 18, said, in answer to inquiries, that there were thirteen refugees in the legation, none charged with common crimes, but Minister Matta charged that they had abused the right of asylum by conspiring against the order of things. Mr. Egan said that he had asked a safe conduct for them. The espionage over the legation was kept up.

September 30, Minister Matta again refused a safe conduct to the refugees.

October 3 Minister Matta assured Mr. Egan that no disrespect was intended to the Legation and that the police must have misunderstood their orders. He promised an investigation.

The Attack on the Sailors.

The first information of an attack on the sailors of the Balimore was sent October 18th, the attack having occurred on the 16th. In a message of October 19th, Mr. Egan said it was the general impression that the attack was unprovoked and premeditated. He said further that he understood that an attack made on some German sailors some weeks before in which one was killed, was made because the Chilians mistook the Germans for United States sailors.

The message from the President instructing Mr. Egan to inform the Government that the United States had no doubt a prompt and full reparation would be offered if the facts were as reported has been published heretofore. So also has the reply of Minister Matta to the effect that "the United States formulated demands and advanced threats that without being cast back with acrimony, were not acceptable, nor could they be accepted in that case or any other of like nature.

On receipt of this, Nov, 1, Mr. Blaine instructed Mr. Egan to claim the privilege of reading the paper which the American sailors had signed in secret in a language they did not understand and without being accompanied by counsel and to see that no one from the Baltimore testified except in the presence of a friend acting as counsel. This request was denied.

The Baltimore's Men Not Armed.

In a note dated Oct. 30, Senor Matta promised to submit the result of the investigation when completed. A report from the Intendente of Valparaiso said that the police and soldiers only tried to restore peace, and charged that the United States sailors were armed.

In reply to this Capt. Schley said that the fact that the mob so far outnumbered the soldiers and that the sailors had, when arrested, only a few pocket-knives, is a refutation of these statements.

Egan Congratulates President Montt.

Mr. Egan notified the State Department that he called on President Montt, November 9, and congratulated him. He was cordially received and President Montt begged him to convey to the United States his warmest acknowledgements.

Mr. Egan referred to the failure December 4th of an effort to obtain safe conduct for the refugees to go aboard the Baltimore, which was about to sail.

Mr. Blaine having asked Mr. Egan about the advice by the Chilian Minister that a request had been made twenty days before that he (Egan) testify in the Baltimore case, and that he had not done so. Mr. Egan replied that this statement was not correct.

Matta's Impertinent Message.

On December 13 Mr. Egan telegraphed to the Department the message sent by the Minister of Foreign Affairs to Senor Montt at Washington, in which the Minister charged that the statements on which the reports of Secretary Tracy and the message of President Harrison were based, were "erroneous or deliberately incorrect."

[This is the offensive note of Minister Matta, which was published in this paper at the time. Ed.]

In reply to an inquiry of Mr. Egan, Senor Matta affirmed the correctness of this telegram, and said that no "explanation or dissertation could add to its contents.

Indignities to Our Minister.

Pending further instructions, Mr. Egan notified the State Department that he had suspended communication with the Chilian Foreign Office Dec. 17. He reported further that the police and detectives surrounded the United States and Spanish Legations; that several persons had been arrested leaving the latter; that the newspaper attacks continued and that it was proposed to drive out the refugees by burning the Legation.

Mr. Egan reported that the British Minister commended to his government the proposition taken by him.

He reported further the arrest of his son and two gentlemen who called at the Legation Dec. 20-22; their immediate release; the protest of the dean of the diplomatic corps (the Argentine Minister) and the promise that only uniformed police should be maintained about the Legation, a promise which he says was complied with only in part.

January 8 Mr. Blaine asked if what was personally offensive to the President and other officers of the United States in the Matta circular would be withdrawn, whether the refugees would receive safe conduct and whether the Legation was under surveillance. Mr. Egan reported on the 12th that the absence of the President at Valparaiso made it impossible to obtain an immediate answer to the first question, that he had verbal permission for the refugees to leave the country and that the Legation was free from surveillance. An early reply to the first question was promised.

The Ultimatum.

On the 21st inst., Secretary Blaine sent the following telegram to Mr. Egan:

I am directed by the President to say to you that he has given careful attention to all that has been submitted by the government of Chili touching the affair of the assault upon the crew of the U. S. S. Baltimore, and to the evidence of the officers and crew of that vessel, and of some others who witnessed the affray, and that his conclusions upon the whole case are as follows:

First—That the assault is not relieved of the aspect which the early information of the event gave to it, viz: That of an attack upon the uniform of the U. S. Navy, having its origin and motive in a feeling of hostility to this Government and not in any act of the sailors of any of them.

Second—That the public authorities at Valparaiso flagrantly failed in their duty to protect our men, and that some of the police and of the Chilian soldiers and sailors were themselves guilty of unprovoked assaults upon our sailors before and after arrest.

Third—That he is therefor compelled to bring the case back to the position taken by this Government in the note of Mr. Wharton of October 21st last (a copy of which you will deliver with this), and to ask for a suitable apology and for some adequate reparation for the injury done to this Goverment.

You will assure the government of Chili that the President has no disposition to be exacting, or to ask anything which this government would not, under the same circumstances, freely concede. No self-respecting government can consent that persons in its service, whether civil or military, shall be beaten and killed in a foreign territory in resentment of acts done by or imputed to their government without exacting suitable reparation.

On the 23d, Mr. Egan telegraphed acknowledging the receipt of Mr. Blaine's telegram of the 21st.

The translation of a telegram from Pereira, Minister of Foreign Affairs, to Montt, left at the Department on the 18th, is as follows: "Commandant of Yorktown notified naval commandant that he was going to send by mail steamer the refugees he has on board. Having asked instructions, the naval commandant replied to him that the government did not give safe conduct to the refugees. They will understand the contingencies to which they are exposed by embarking in merchant vessels or in mail steamers."

According to the above, Senor Montt presented no despatches from his government about withdrawing the Matta telegram, as indicated in the message of Mr. Egan Jan. 16.

Request for Egan's Recall.

With regard to his being persona non grata, Mr. Egan said that at a diplomatic banquet at the home of the Minister of Foreign Affairs on the 12th inst., Prime Minister Luco told him, with approbation of some of his colleagues, and in the presence of the English Minister and Spanish Minister, that the present Cabinet entertained most cordial feelings for the United States, and for him personally.

In the afternoon of January 21st, Senor Montt delivered to Mr. Blaine a note from the Chilian Government asking for the withdrawal of Minister Egan.

"The desire of the Government of Chili to draw closer its relation with that of the United States is its motive for taking this step," the note concludes.

The last communication is from Senor Montt to Secretary Blaine, of the 23d inst., inclosing the testimony of sailor John M. Talbot, taken at Valparaiso, which Senor Montt declares to have been very different from the state of facts he testified to at the hearing at Vallejo. Talbot was Riggins' immediate companion when the latter received his death wound.

The Naval Correspondence.

The correspondence furnished by the Navy Department includes the full report of the inquiry at Vallejo, Cal., regarding the Baltimore affair, several letters from Admirals McCann and Brown, all showing the hostility entertained by the Chilians towards Americans; messages from Capt. Schley, giving his version of the incidents that have occurred.

FEELING IN WASHINGTON.

Secretary Tracy of Opinion that Chili Can be Easily Whipped.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The message of President Harrison and the report that the Chilian Government agrees to withdraw the Matta note and the request for Egan's withdrawal, and desires to leave the affair of the Baltimore attack to arbitration, are the absorbing topics of conversation this morning. The message has aroused more interest than any public document that has been sent to Congress since the close of the Civil War. Opinions vary as to the ability and wisdom displayed by the President in this important State paper, but those who think it both well-timed and patriotic are in a large majority. What the next step in the famous diplomatic controversy will be it is impossible to say with certainty.

The message will be considered by the Foreign Affairs Committee of each House, and until at least the preliminary meeting is held nothing will be arranged as to the policy to be pursued.

Secretary Tracy said last night:

"The President's message can only be accepted in one way. Chili has insulted and maligned our government as it has never been insulted and maligned before. I believe the common sense of the American people and their love of country will assert itself; that the President will be upheld, and that Chili will be forced to apologize and make the reparation asked for by the President, or take the consequences, which means"—and here Gen. Tracy arose from his seat and paced the floor of his office—"that in 30 days we will be able to whip the entire Chilian navy. We will pounce on her from quarters where she least expects it. It will be a naval fight from beginning to end."

Thinks It an Election Dodge.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—The "Daily Chronicle" says that the fact that both parties in the United States are preparing for a Presidential election may account for the animated words employed in the President's message, no doubt after consultation with Mr. Blaine, who knows the electioneering value of a little bellicose bluster, which involves no greater sacrifice than paper and ink. Mr. Harrison's declaration that the United States does not covet territory ought not to be taken as a pledge, but rather as an ingenious device to allay suspicions not wholly groundless.

Chili Buys a Cruiser.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Authentic information has just been received from England that the Chilian Government has purchased the cruiser now building at Armstrong's works, and Armstrong is forcing work on her. This vessel is described as a high-speed 3,000-ton cruiser, similar to the cruiser Twenty-fifth of May, recently constructed by the same firm for the Argentine Republic.

The Refugees Landed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—A cable message has been received from Captain Evans, of the U. S. cruiser Yorktown, announcing his arrival at Callao, Peru, and the safe landing of the Chilian refugees placed under his charge by Minister Egan at Valparaiso.

Actor Curtis' Trial Commenced.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26.—The trial of Actor Curtis for the murder of Policeman Grant began yesterday. Not a single juryman was obtained, as of the six men called into the jury-box, three were peremptorily excused by the prosecution and three by the defence. A new venire was then ordered and the case went over until to-day.

Rathbun Will be Named.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The Senate Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads has decided to report favorably to the Senate the nomination of Mr. Rathbun as postmaster at Elmira, N. Y. This is the nomination which was opposed by Senator Hill. It will probably be reported to the Senate at the next executive session.

Believed to Have Foundered.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 26.—The schooner John L. Treat, of this place, which left Philadelphia in command of Captain McLure on December 21 last, for Manzilla, Cuba, has not been heard of since, and grave fears are entertained regarding her safety. The vessel is long overdue and it is believed she has foundered.

Col. Smith's Appeal Dismissed.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 26.—Governor Pattison has dismissed the appeal of Col. Wm. B. Smith, of the Third Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, from the action of the court martial, which decided in favor of his dismissal as commander of the regiment for misapplication of the funds of the organization.

The Czar's Uncle Dead.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 26.—Grand Duke Constantine, uncle of the Czar and father of the Queen of Greece, whose critical illness was announced on Saturday, is dead. He was born in 1827, and was renowned as a statesman, admiral and reformer.

IS A DUMMY BURIED

Embezzler Hill Declared to be Alive.

THE GRAVE WILL BE OPENED.

Startling Story Regarding the Late Cashier of the Jamesburg, N. J., Bank.

Alleged that He Has Been Seen in New York—Believed a Wax Figure Was Buried—Circumstances of Hill's Death Recalled—Life Insurance Companies and Local Lodges Interested—Amount of His Defalcation.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 26.—A meeting of the stockholders of the Jamesburg Bank, whose cashier, T. Wilton Hill, has been declared an embezzler for a large amount by Bank Examiner Stone, broke up in great disorder yesterday upon receipt of information, alleged to be reliable, that Hill was not dead, and that a wax figure was placed in the coffin which was believed to contain his body.

Some credence was placed in the story when it became known that no one but Hill's immediate family were present at the interment. A local physician had been called in when Hill was stricken with the grip, and no one was permitted to enter the sick chamber. When Hill's death was announced but little time elapsed before the body was laid in the grave.

The rumor that Hill is still alive has been intensified by the report that he has been seen within the past few days on Fourteenth street, New York, in company with a woman whose name has been closely connected with his defalcation. As Hill's life was insured for $20,000 a few days before he was said to have died, the company's agent in this city was preparing to pay the claim. Now he has announced that this will not be done until satisfactory proof of the death is given. The result of the allegation is that it has been decided to open the grave and ascertain whether it contains Hill's body or a dummy. It is expected that this will be done to-day. The local lodge of the Royal Arcanum is doubly interested in this as some allege that Hill committed suicide. If the coffin really holds Hill's body they may demand that an investigation be made to ascertain if he killed himself.

New Jersey Legislature.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 26.—A bill was introduced in the Senate last night creating a commission to be known as the "State Board of Surveyors." It will consist of five members, three Democrats and two Republicans. This commission will meet twice a year and examine surveyors in the State. Senator Barrett introduced a bill creating the township of Verona out of the present township of Caldwell. In the House the Tramp bill was passed. This provides that persons other than tramps being found drunk and disorderly shall be fined $1 for the benefit of the poor.

Graves' Attorneys at Work.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 26.—The attorneys for Dr. T. Thatcher Graves made a motion for a supersedeas and a writ of error before the Supreme Court yesterday. The court shortly after adjourned until Feb. 1, but the application for a supersedeas may be heard in Chambers before then. The reasons assigned present no new matter. The alleged errors of court, argued below, are recited and particular emphasis is laid on the fact that Judge Rising allowed witnesses to testify to conversation had with Mrs. Barnaby, the poisoned woman. The testimony was admitted to prove a motive on the part of the prisoner.

She Was a Princeton Favorite.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 26.—"Aunt" Clara Voorhees, the oldest colored woman in this part of the State, is dead, in her 97th year. She was known to every graduate of Princeton College for the past 60 years. Here she had lived all her life, and from the time of President Carnahan had always cooked the big dinners on all the big days of the college. Her name was known far and wide, and at the present time few graduates living will not remember the delicacies for the composition of which she was famous.

BOSTON, Jan. 26.—At a meeting of the Republican Clubs of Massachusetts in the afternoon, the following officers were elected: President, John Simpkins; secretary, Alpheus Sanford; treasurer, A. Lithgow Devens. Thirteen vice-presidents and an executive committee of twelve were also elected, and a resolution deprecating war with Chili, if honorably avoidable, and endorsing the Administration's course in the difficulty, was adopted.

Mission Church Dedicated.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Jan. 26.—The Mission Church of the Holy Cross, of which the corner-stone was laid by Bishop Potter last July, was yesterday dedicated with appropriate ceremonies. Rev. W. R. Thomas, D. D., Arch-Deacon of Oregon, officiated in the absence of the Bishop, and Rev. J. O. S. Huntington, of the Order of the Holy Cross, preached the sermon. The services were closed with vespers.

HOLLIDAYSBURG, Pa., Jan. 26.—The appraisers in the estate of the Tyrone Bank, of Tyrone, Pa., which recently failed and assigned its effects, have made a report to the Blair County Court, showing the total resources of the bank as $158,254.78. CHILE'S MESSAGE ON THE WAY.

The Despatch Sent from Santiago Not Yet Received in Washington.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Up to 11 this morning Secretary Blaine had not received the answer from Chile reported in last night's Santiago despatch to have been sent from that country.

It is expected that it will be communicated through Minister Montt, who has not yet called. The delay, however, is explicable because of the amount of time required to translate a cipher despatch into Spanish and then into English; and also by the fact that official calls are not commonly made in Washington before the middle of the day.

Minister Montt said this morning he had received no despatches from Chile.

As Secretary Blaine was entering the White House at noon to-day, to attend the Cabinet meeting, he was asked if any response had been made to the demands upon Chile.

His answer was:—"Not that I know of."

The amount of the verdict was $88,850 which is the full amount that Stokes wanted. The suit was brought for $75,000 with costs and interest, and grew out of the deal affecting the sale of the United Telegraph lines.

Lyman	146	Teel	137

RURAL RAMBLINGS.

A Plainfielder's Novel Scheme for Heating a Country Church and Parsonage, and a Plea for Good Roads in Somerset.

The little Hamlet of Millington lies just over the third range of hills directly back of Plainfield, in the beautiful valley through which flows the Passaic river. This valley is about ten miles long and one mile wide. It is exceedingly fertile, with well-cultivated farms stretching as far as the eye can reach. The village of Millington is situated at the extreme western end of this valley, and while the church and post-office are known by that name still, the populace is widely scattered. It is only on Sundays when the farmers come in to church that the number of people living there can be estimated. Yes: there is one other time, and that is at the fall elections, when Bernards (of which Millington is a part) sends down something like one hundred and ninety majority for the Democratic candidate. Then it is that the population of these little villages is appreciated. There may be a few of the "Grand Old Party" living in Bernards township, but they seem not to increase in numbers. The Millington church and its congregation have grown pas a pas, until it is with pride that the residents point to them.

Some years ago the church was built—in the old-fashioned way; high-backed, long settees formed the seats, and large old-style stoves did the heating; but the old church-going farmers were not satisfied. They wanted something new, something out of the ordinary; and after mature deliberation and long thought they acted.

The old seats were removed and sold to some poorer society. Opera chairs were purchased with deep comfortable seats, high backs and broad arms; under each was the wire rack for the hat. Whether or not these racks are used is as a sealed book, but there are some in the congregation who are as yet ignorant of their being there. The manner of heating next took the attention of the elders and deacons, and as the parsonage was directly across the road they decided to "kill two birds with one stone"; or in other words, to heat both the church and the parsonage with the same heating arrangement. To that end, therefore, they interviewed John F. McIntyre, a resident steam-fitter of this city, and after studying some time he solved the problem.

It was by no means one of Mr. McIntyre's largest jobs, but it was certainly one of the most daring ones he has ever undertaken, and was done in this wise: The steam boiler and furnace were set up in the cellar of the parsonage; thence an iron pipe five inches in diameter was run underground to the church, carrying the steam, which has since, as one of the parishioners told your correspondent, "Kept the church inside at a mighty even temperature". This, while not seeming odd in a city of any size, is in a place the size of Millington a most stupendous undertaking, and upon one going into this sanctuary for the first time one can scarcely tell whether he is in the house of the Lord or has stumbled upon a temple of Thespias. The divine who has had this charge for over twenty years is the Rev. J. C. Gibb, a Scotchman by birth, who came to Millington directly from Scotland. He remained at Millington about six months, and then went home to marry the woman of his choice. He returned immediately, bringing her with him, and they have both remained there ever since. He, by teaching the Gospel, and she by her goodness and sweet gracious manners, have won their way into the hearts of everyone who has ever known them. Mr. Gibb is not an Adonis, and apropos of this I might quote a little instance which occurred when, twenty years ago, he was called to this charge. Some of the people objected to calling him on account of his not being of handsome face, and they were talking the matter over in a meeting when up rose a little German who said: "He is a good preacher and a godly man. If he was handsome we could not keep him, so I say let us call him." The sensible argument settled the whole affair, and Mr. Gibb was called, and to this day there is not a man, woman, or child for miles around who will express any regret that they did so.

My informant upon this subject was a member of the Bernards township road committee, and in commenting upon the difference in ministers of the Gospel he told me this:

For the past two years this committee man has been using his every endeavor to get the roads in Bernards in a passable condition so that as he says Union county cannot claim all the glory of having the only decent roads in the State. It is probable that the legislature this winter will pass a road act so that something can be done to better the roads. They are bad enough, as everyone knows who has occasion to pass over them. This committeeman told me how all last year he had been trying to fix up the roads by offering to buy gravel from the farmers. He mentioned one instance which will only show how he and perhaps other township committees are bothered and hindered when they try to fix up the roads.

A Methodist minister who lived near Millington on a farm, but who did not follow his profession, had on his farm a field of gravel which was not fit to raise even a disturbance on. He was approached by the committee man, who asked him if he would sell at a reasonable figure a quarter of an acre to be used on the township roads. The minister proceeded at once to make a corner in stone, and told him that he would sell what was wanted to the county at the rate of two hundred and eighty dollars per acre. Now what think ye of this? A man who was all the time complaining of the miserable roads, to demand for public good fully five times more for land which was of no earthly use to him than he could ever hope to receive for his most tillable land. This is one of the ways that the hands of the committee on roads are tied. And yet this may be remedied. Let those men who have been sent to Trenton for that purpose pass a law condemning such lands. Then let them appoint men to appraise its value, (a fair one, of course). This being done, let the county purchase these lands and use the gravel to repair the roads. While gravel is not as good as the cracked stone used on the Union county roads, still it answers every purpose. This is one way of solving the road question. Something must be done, and until that is done we will continue to have roads that are a disgrace not only to our county but to our State.

Complaints Against the Central's Ferryboats.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In behalf of many commuters on the Central railroad of New Jersey, I respectfully ask the privilege, through your extensively read columns, of inquiring why it is that the ferryboats of said company have of late discontinued some of their trips? The trips as formerly run were barely sufficient to accommodate the many patrons of this railroad, which now holds a monopoly through a section of New Jersey. The commutation rates and iron-clad conditions exacted on this road should be sufficient to afford the traveling public better ferryboat accommodations. As it is now, a ferryboat is held in the slip until its saloons and deck are packed as closely with human beings as cattle are on the decks of transatlantic tramp steamers. The passengers of almost any one train are sufficient to fill a boat comfortably, and why not start her off with the business men and women whose time is quite as valuable as that of the railroad company? But no—the more trips, the more coal consumed; therefore, the boat is held until packed like sardines in a box.

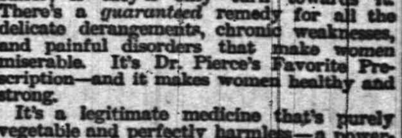
Cleaned Out by the Constable.

By virtue of a chattel mortgage held by Jacob Ruppert the New York brewer, constable W. R. Mattox will auction off at the Elkwood, Saturday morning at ten o'clock, all that is left of Joe Miller's saloon. The property described in the levy is as follows: Ten barrels of liquors and wines, five thousand cigars, lot of tables and chairs, bar and back bar, bar fixtures and glassware, range and cooking utensils, linen, crockery and silverware, bowling alleys, pins and balls, pictures and bric-a-brac, 25 cases of wines and liquors.

The furniture in the rooms upstairs is advertised for sale by auction on the same day at the same place.

These Ladies Will Receive.

Cards have been issued for an afternoon tea to be given by the Benevolent Band of the King's Daughters, at the home of Mrs. H. Augusta Schuyler, 175 Broadway, to-morrow afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock. Among the ladies expected to receive, are: Mrs. Robert L. Livingston, Mrs. Fox, Miss Schipper, Mrs. C. Dewitte Ivins, Mrs. Harry Sandford, Miss Lena Hart, Miss Janes, Miss Day, Miss Bushnell, Miss Cahoone, Miss Worthington, Miss Honnegar, Miss Livingston and Miss Lawrence.



There's light ahead for the women who suffer, if they'll only turn towards it. There's a guaranteed remedy for all the delicate derangements, chronic weaknesses, and painful disorders that make women miserable. It's Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—and it makes women healthy and strong.

It's a legitimate medicine that's purely vegetable and perfectly harmless—a powerful general, as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, renewing and invigorating the entire system. It regulates and promotes all the proper functions of womanhood, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and strength.

For periodical pains, weak back, bearing-down sensations, nervous prostration, and all "female complaints" and irregularities, "Favorite Prescription" is a positive remedy—the only one that's so sure and certain that it can be guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back.

PARSON DILL IN HIS OWN BEHALF.

The Accused Pastor Explains Away Malicious Gossip and Scandal.

Parson Dill testified in his own behalf yesterday before the Presbytery at Morristown. He gave his evidence in a straightforward and convincing way. Everybody now is of the opinion that he will be acquitted.

Upon the question as to the actions of elder Hughson, who testified against him, on a certain night when he stayed late at the elder's house upon the occasion of calling upon Hughson's stepdaughter, Miss Lucy Thompson, he replied that a severe storm caused the members of Hughson's household to ask him to stay till the storm had abated a little. The elder came into the room and abused the dominie.

On the next day the elder came to the dominie's house and begged his pardon. Mr. Hughson, however, said that Dill and Miss Thompson should not marry, as both of them had not much money, and would only fall back upon the elder's pocket. On another occasion the elder said to the dominie that he could marry his stepdaughter if he would agree to pay to the elder half of his salary for the loss of the services of his stepdaughter.

As the reason for his going to Stirling he gave the urgent request of Dr. White and Dr. Hikok, who said that they would have to close the Stirling church unless Dill would go. Pastor Dill said that the trouble with Mr. Torrey originated from his desire to have two girls, who did not enjoy the best reputation but promised to reform, admitted to the church, which was vigorously opposed by Mr. and Mrs. Torrey.

The nights upon which Miss Carrie Newman and Miss Punber stayed at the parson's house were March 21 to 22, 1891. The parson asked Miss Punber to attend a missionary meeting, after which, on account of the bad weather and long distance, the young ladies could not go to their homes and stayed at the house of old Mrs. Boyle, where parson Dill then lived. Elder Newman is a warm friend of the parson, and had no objection to his daughter's stay at Mrs. Boyle's on that night. On the following Sunday elder Joel Bebout, Edwin Bebout and Richard Thomas called on their pastor and took him to task for having barbored the young ladies over night. Richard Thomas spoke in very unkind terms of Miss Newman, and Bebout took it upon himself to charge the young parson with deceiving 70-year-old Miss Boyle, whom, according to Bebout he courted, but did not intend to marry. The charge was too preposterous, the parson said, to be replied to.

In the afternoon the pastor was severely cross-examined by the attorney for the prosecution, but nothing could shake his evidence, and he remained as collected and cool as ever.

The Presbytery often laughed and chuckled, and in many instances did not look and remain quite as dignified as they might have.

All testimony is now in. It will be given to a printer and each member of the Presbytery will receive a copy. On Wednesday, Feb. 3, the meeting of the Presbytery will reconvene, and witnesses of the prosecution will be called in rebuttal; then the prosecution and defense will sum up and the Presbytery will vote. It may take some days to sum up, but the first ballot will decide the fate of the pastor, as a simple majority decides.

Have Your Salary Insured.

A new form of insurance has just been offered by the American Insurance and Casualty company, of which John M. Crane of this city is superintendent. That company is now prepared to issue a policy insuring against loss of salary to employes arising from dismissal from employment, providing such dismissal be caused through no wilful act or negligence on their part, and also against the arbitrary discharge of an employe without cause.

It is believed that there is a large field for this branch of insurance, and that it will prove very attractive to those employed by banks and other financial institutions, as well as to employes in wholesale establishments. It is not, however, the intention of the company at present, to extend this insurance to cover those who are employed as mechanics or engaged in performing manual labor, excepting engineers, firemen and conductors on steam railroads.

The insurance is designed to cover against the well-known causes of loss of situation over which no clerk has any control, among which may be mentioned the following: Fire on the premises, want of capital, dissolution of partnership, transfer or retirement from business, depression of trade, reduction and rearrangement of staff, reduction of several departments, bankruptcy, failure or death of the employer. Personal accident, sickness, unsuitability for one position although qualified to fill another, disagreement and other incidents of frequent occurrence in the financial world tending to cause loss to employes from causes over which they may have no control.

Collision on the Central.

A wrecking train went flying through this city yesterday afternoon to Scranton, Pa., where a freight train and a coal train going at full speed had collided. A brakeman, the engineer of the freight train, and the conductor and fireman of the same, sprang from the engine to save their lives and almost miraculously escaped death through an arch which was formed over their heads when the cars piled up. The road was blocked many hours, and the damage was very heavy.

Gorman's Minstrels.

"The pearl of minstrelsy" this year is said to be the Gorman company who are booked for an appearance to-morrow evening in this city. There are three of the original Gormans, John, James and George, every one of whom has built up for himself independently a reputation as an artist of distinction. They have gathered together the finest company of comedians, vocalists, dancers, musicians and specialists that they ever had, and placed them under the management of Wm. Eversole, a gentleman whose fame is as wide as the nation. This excellent company will present an exposition of minstrelsy that has never been excelled, and which all should see.

Opening of the Ragan Course.

The illustrated lecture has now become an established form of entertainment, which bids fair to rival in popularity some of the best attractions of the playhouse. So steadily has this instructive form of amusement grown in public favor that no less than half a dozen lecturers are now in the field, which, until recently, had been monopolized by one man.

Henry H. Ragan, one of the most popular, perhaps, and certainly one of the most entertaining of them all, begins an attractive series of lectures on travel this evening, in Music Hall. Single seats will be on sale at the box office.

New York Philharmonic Club.

The second subscription concert of the series by the club will take place Thursday evening at the Casino. Signor Campanini, tenor, and Miss May Lyle Smith, flutist, will be the soloists. The doors will be opened at 7:30.

After having expended one thousand dollars for various medicines and with doctors, and growing worse all the while, I considered my case incurable. I was induced to try Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. After their use for six weeks I can eat meat without distress, a thing that has not occurred before for years. I believe I am nearly cured, and yet it seems too good to be true. Have no doubt but that much of the sleeplessness people complain of is caused by indigestion.—J. W. DRAKE, Centre Market, Newark, N. J.

All a Mistake.

It was about 1:30 a. m. Mr. Rampo came stumbling into the sitting-room where Mrs. Rampo, looking stern, forbidding and uncompromising, sat awaiting him. His left eye was frescoed in black and blue, his right cheek was ornamented with a large and imposing knob, some of his hair was missing, one end of his collar, crumpled, limp and forlorn, stuck out appealingly over his shoulder, and he had the general aspect of a man who had gone head-first through a corn-sheller.

"Absalom," exclaimed Mrs. Rampo, "you have been mixed up in a fight!"

Absalom shook his head.

"No, Nanshy," he said, with the slow, deliberate emphasis of one who knew what he was talking about, "I—I wasn't in it, m' dear."—Chicago Tribune.

STIMULATE THE BLOOD.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS are the great blood purifier. They are a purgative and blood tonic, they act equally on the bowels, the kidneys, and the skin, thus cleansing the system by the natural outlet of the body—they may be called the purgative sudorific and diuretic medicine. They stimulate the blood so as to enable nature to throw off all morbid humors, and cure disease, no matter by what name it may be called. One or two of them taken every night will prove an infallible remedy.

Sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar coated.

Creditors Will Receive Little.

MEADVILLE, Pa., Jan. 26.—According to the first report of Hospine & McClintoch, assignees of the Messrs. Delamater, the general creditors of the insolvent bankers will not receive more than eight or ten cents on the dollar.

Smuggled Chinese Captured.

Love Badly Handicapped.

Maude—George, I don't think I ought to marry you, for I don't believe you love me one bit.

George (ardently)—Why, my darling, I am passionately, desperately, madly in love with you. I worship the very—

Maude—You talk well enough, George, but those letters you wrote me when you were away were so cold and distant they froze my heart. One would think you were writing to your washerwoman about her bill.

Sate to Remain.

The fact is not stated, but this little occurrence, reported by the New York Sun, must have taken place in the good old times, when ministers were more eloquent, or congregations more patient, than is the case at present.

A stranger entered the meeting-house in the middle of the service, and took a seat in the back pew. Presently he whispered to the man at his side, evidently one of the old members:

"How long has he been preaching?"

"Thirty or forty years, I think," answered the elderly man. "I don't know exactly."

"I'll stay, then," said the stranger. "He must be nearly done."

Fortunate, Indeed.

A lady attired in garments of mourning searched for rooms and board in the west end of the city the other day.

"Have you any children?"

"No," answered the applicant, with a sigh. "I had a little boy once, but he died last summer."

"How fortunate!" exclaimed the landlady, "for we never take children."—N. Y. Recorder.

The Mean Thing.

Miss Clamwhopper, who wears false tresses, but imagines nobody knows it, calls on her friend, Miss Snobberly.

Miss S.—Has Dobinsky finished your portrait?

Miss C.—I'll have to give him another sitting, so he can get the right color of my hair.

Miss S.—If that's all, why don't you send it to him by a servant?—Texas Siftings.

Gillispon—I had an old boot presented me.

De Palette—Why didn't you ask for the mate?

Gillispon—Because the first one had a foot in it.—Judge.

Didn't Know Anything About It.

Stranger—I believe you are connected with the Twenty-third national bank?

Gentleman—Yes, sir.

Stranger—Will you be kind enough to tell me something about the financial standing of the institution?

Gentleman—Well, really, I'm afraid I can't. I'm simply a director, you know.—Judge.

SHE KNOWS A THING OR TWO.

Spiteful.

She—Are you going to Amy Burr's coming-out ball?

He—Coming-out ball?

She—Yes; her debut.

He—Why, she's been going around for at least three years!

She—I know it, but this is her first ball.

He—Then why not call it the "opening of a chestnut burr?"—Judge.

Plenty of Time.

Railroad conductors are a very sarcastic set of men. A traveler asked one of them:

"Will I have time to get something to eat at the next station?"

"Yes, you will have time enough if you are not going any further on this train."—Texas Siftings.

CUT HER FRIEND'S THROAT.

The Crime of a Tennessee Belle—A Remarkable Story.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 26.—Miss Alice Mitchell, a daughter of one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens, yesterday afternoon attacked her former friend and companion, Miss Freda Ward, of Gold Dust, Tenn., on the streets of the city with a razor, and murdered her in cold blood.

Miss Mitchell and Miss Freda Ward had been fast friends, and whenever the latter visited Memphis she stopped with the Mitchells. Last week Freda and Josie Ward came to the city, but did not go to the Mitchell house as usual. Inquiry on Miss Mitchell's part developed the fact that Miss Josie Ward had forbidden Freda to visit her on the ground that her conduct was, as she termed it, fast.

Yesterday afternoon the Ward sisters with a friend, Miss Cristine Parnell, started afoot for the river to take the steamboat for Gold Dust. They noticed Miss Mitchell, with a friend, in a buggy, apparently following them. On reaching the custom house Miss Mitchell left the buggy in charge of Miss Johnson, and ran after the three girls, who were half a block away. Reaching them, Miss Mitchell ran at Freda Ward and threw her to the ground, at the same time slashing her across the cheek with a razor.

She then cut the girl's throat, severing the wind pipe and cutting into the jugular. Josie Ward at this point attempted to interfere and Miss Mitchell slashed her across the neck with the razor, inflicting, however, only a slight wound. The murderess then darted to where her buggy was in waiting and drove rapidly away.

Miss Mitchell was arrested and taken to the county jail, where she refused for a long time to make any statement regarding her atrocious crime, but at length, after a consultation with her father and a lawyer, she made the following remarkable statement:

"I was in love with Freda. I could not live without her. Long ago we made a compact that if we were ever separated we would kill each other. When I found that Josie had forbidden Freda to have anything more to do with me I saw nothing else to do but to kill her. I took father's razor, but told no one what I was going to do."

The murderess and her victim were each about 19 years old. In talking of Miss Mitchell the Ward girls did not charge her with anything but fast conduct, and she had always borne a good character.

Hero of Belgian Independence Dead.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 26.—Baron Peter Emanuel Felix Chazal, the hero of Belgian independence, is dead at the age of 84. His wife also died about the same time, aged 82. He took part, in 1830, in the war against Holland, and by his bravery and ability rapidly rose in military rank, becoming a general of the liberating army. After the acknowledgement of Belgian independence he was Minister of War, and held other important offices. The death of his son, who was killed in Mexico on the side of Maximilian, was a great blow to him, and caused his retirement from public affairs.

Actor Hanlon to Become an Evangelist.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 26.—William Hanlon, the theatrical manager, announces that his brother, George Hanlon, has decided to abandon the theatrical business for the pulpit. George Hanlon is one of the Hanlon Brothers, acrobats, who earned fame and money in this country and Europe in "Voyage en Suisse." For a year past he has refused to accept his share of the receipts of the Sunday performance by the company in which the brothers are interested. He will enter the ministry and will probably become an Evangelist.

A Bold Robber.

BOSTON, Jan. 26.—At 1.30 p. m., while a man held the attention of the woman cashier in the office of the Sawyer-Mann Electrical Company, in the Hathaway Building, a confederate seized a handful of banknotes from the safe and started for the door. He was intercepted by the clerks and dropped half of his booty, but drawing a revolver he intimidated the clerks and escaped with about $20. The confederate also escaped.

All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. Like Aladdin's of old, it is indeed a "wonderful lamp," for its marvelous light is purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light and more cheerful than either.

NEW YEAR FASHIONS.

Modes That Are Popular for the Month of January.

Velveteen with Fur Trimmings—Hats Worn for Dinner Occasions—A Novel Toilet Set—Cloaks Made in Demi-Train—Gowns at a Press Dinner.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

If you were fortunate enough to have been invited to a very swell New Year dinner, one of the first things that would have struck your attention would have been a very novel and beautiful style of fan.

It is not the landscape fan which you saw last fall, nor is it the feather fan which has waved over the land so long. It is entirely new and it is perfectly exquisite. And since the fan is such an important part of a woman's dress, you may wish to get a fan like it, or some one may give you one as a Valentine present. The ground work is of light blue satin, and the sticks are of mother of pearl, beautifully carved and inlaid with silver. The center piece of the fan is a portrait of Marguerite—she who is famed in song and story:

"Marguerite, my Marguerite."

She is, of course, a beautiful girl, and she is seated upon an old-fashioned chair with the spinning-wheel before her. She is entirely fashioned of Duchess lace and the filmy web of the lace forms the drapery for her gown and the chair itself and even the spinning-wheel. Marguerite's face is of the Duchess lace so spun that when it is put upon the fan the groundwork makes a lovely background for her features and sets them forth properly. Two angel cupids flying aloft are holding the strings, or the threads, of the spinning-wheel, and Marguerite's dainty-arched foot is upon the wheel, while her slender hands guide its threads. It is a most beautiful picture and the sentiment conveyed is most delicate. The artist who conceived the idea said that he meant it to typify the happy combination which is the American girl's boast, namely, the faculty by which she combines the useful and the ornamental, making them her own.

When one is speaking of beautiful ornaments, one must mention the lovely toilet-set which was given to Miss Cornwallis West upon her marriage with Prince Pless. All the articles were of silver beautifully combined with pearl, and in the center of the handle of each or upon the back of each was a tiny monogram done in diamonds. It is, indeed, a princely gift, and one is not surprised to hear that Prince Pless thought it none too good to give to the exquisite lady whom he has chosen for his bride.

It is a season for so many dainty things in dress that it is difficult to turn from the chiffon and the gauze and the airy draperies to the more practical materials for everyday use. Laces and ribbons and feather trimmings engage the attention more than do the more durable braidings and velvets. One is tempted to don the chiffon and the tulle where one formerly wore the linen collar and a stick pin.

Some of the lace fichus are truly beautiful. They are very large and cover the waist so thoroughly that they are almost a waist in themselves. Very beautiful ones are combinations of silk and lace. The silk is laid in tiny side plaits and a heavy frill of the lace is put around the neck and down the front. A collar of silk and lace extends all the way around the neck, fastened at the back, and a band of silk goes round the waist holding the fichu in place.

With a fichu like this it is necessary to wear a blazer or an outside jacket of some sort because such a fichu is not properly finished to do duty all by itself. But there are many which need only to be pinned on the front of the waist with fancy pins, and which are then complete in themselves. The gay little blazer is seen this winter cut in the same way as was the summer blazer, but it is made of different material. Broadcloth blazers, tweed ones, and even tiny leather ones have taken the place of the silk and the flannel ones which were worn in the summer.

The leather blazer is a thing all by itself. It is unique and the only one of its kind, and unless you have seen one you may be sure that you have never seen anything like it.

To give you a rough idea, one may ask you to recall the little zouave jackets which are worn over plain waists. The leather blazer is like one of these zouaves, only it has a very high collar and it is a little longer in the back. The front meets over the bust with a clasp, and the clasp is often a buckle and a strap of leather.

Leather bands round the bottom of the skirt and a leather hat band with a buckle attached are accompaniments to the leather jacket or blazer.

It has until recently been such a ridiculously mild season that fur cloaks and wraps have been very much in the way, and women who have squandered their substance upon seal garments have regretted it.

The narrow band trimmings which are so fashionable have been quite sufficient for the season's mildness. A velvet cloak or a plush one, or, better still, a cloak of velveteen—that most popular of the season's materials—trimmed with narrow bands or with a favorite fur is the most comfortable and stylish thing that a woman can wear.

A beautiful garment of this kind was of very dark green velveteen with large riveted steel buttons upon it arranged in double-breasted fashion. The collar, with its deep revers and large point, was heavily embossed with black braiding and a similar trimming extended round the hem of the skirt and upon the cuffs. A narrow band of mink was used to trim the front of the garment, and ends of the same outlined the braiding upon the collar, cuffs and skirt.

The fashion of making the cloak in a demi-train is growing more prevalent. With a cloak of this style a rather short, tight-fitting plain gown is worn underneath, or a house dress of light material.

An extremely elegant street costume was worn by a woman who is remarkable for her slimness and the pronounced brunette type of her features. Her gown was of dark green broadcloth. The skirt was perfectly plain, with a pointed fullness at the back. It was made so as to just clear the ground. Over the gown was worn a cloak of dark—very dark—maroon velveteen with bands of sable upon it.

Society belles have taken to wearing tiny bonnets to large formal ceremonial balls. At the New Year's ball and the last patriarch's ball there were several of these tiny bonnets, worn by the prettiest of young society women.

They were in each case fashioned of silk of the same color as the gown, and were trimmed with Prince of Wales plumes. The favorite shape was a tight-fitting little silk cap very much on the grandmother pattern, and at the top of the puffed crown the bunch of plumes stood erect.

The fans that were carried were almost completely buried in flowers. Indeed they served the double purpose of fan and bouquet, being a lovely combination of both. Many of the waists seemed to consist entirely of folds of chiffon which were crossed and recrossed into the semblance of a bodice. Great shoulder puffs were in many cases the only sleeves that were worn, and long kid gloves met the puffs at the shoulders. Numerous rosettes and bows were seen upon all of the gowns, and no costume could be voted complete unless it had rosettes and loops and ends galore.

At a dinner given by the New York Press club a short time ago to welcome the lady friends of the newly-elected officers of the club, many pretty costumes were seen. In accordance with the season's fad, at least half of them were of black material; but the black gowns were so glorified by jewels and brightened by jets that their somberness was entirely relieved.

A very pretty black gown had a yoke and sleeves of beaded net with the meshes large and open. The net seemed to be entirely composed of beads, and there was a deep border of the jets done in design.

Another black gown was cut decollete with an edging of black ostrich feathers around the neck. Around the bell-shaped sleeves and the hem of the skirt, which was cut in a demi-train, the dull black of the feathers was relieved by ruby ornaments.

At this dinner, as at other functions of the season, many of the guests wore hats during the entire evening. A beautiful blonde, who was charmingly gowned in a dark blue velvet robe, wore a broad-brimmed, white pearl hat trimmed with white plumes. Another wore a white felt hat with a heavy puffing of white velvet round the edge. Another charming hat was a tiny toque of silver with pink ostrich feathers upon the front of it and narrow pink velvet strings.

A Blank Book.

Tomson—Do think that some people can read the minds of others like a book?

Johnson—Yes. I flatter myself that I can.

Tomson—Indeed. Suppose you try to read mine.

Johnson—Er—there are some books that one cannot read.

Tomson—What kind, pray?

Johnson—Well, blank books, for instance.—Brooklyn Life.

Remedy Worse Than the Disease.

Mistress—Where is the spoon with which you mixed this pudding?

Mistress—Humph! I hope you washed them.

The Detective Umbrella.

Customer—Look here! The first time I used this miserably cheap umbrella I bought of you, the black dye soaked out and dripped all over me.

Dealer—Mien frient, that was our new patent self-detective umbrella. If anyone should steal that, you'd know him by his clothes.—Good News.

His Plea.

"You are charged, sir," said the police magistrate, "with attempting to kiss this woman on the street. Do you plead guilty or not guilty?"

"Your honor," replied the blear-eyed prisoner, taking a good look at the prosecuting witness, "I plead insanity."—Chicago Tribune.

His Pretty Typewriter.

"I used to have the sweetest, prettiest little typewriter in the world," he said, with a sigh.

"What became of her?" inquired his sympathetic friend.

"O, I married her," and he sighed again more profoundly than before.—Detroit Free Press.

The Proper Thing.

First Moth—What do you think we have for breakfast? A brand new dress suit.

The Fallacy of Simile.

Ponsonby—My business is going like clockwork.

Popinjay—Why, if you wind up a clock it goes; if you wind up your business it stops.—Jewelers' Circular.

A Weighty Reason.

Miss Gusher—What a delightful man your friend Mr. Cutlet is. So easy to get acquainted with. He more than meets one half-way.

Mr. Rusher—Merely force of habit, I assure you. He is a retired butcher.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Conciliatory Santiago Dispatch Confirmed.

NOT FAVORABLY REGARDED.

Expressions of Dissatisfaction Heard on Every Side.

PRESIDENT HARRISON'S POSITION.

Stated to Have Expressed Himself as Averse to Arbitration.

The Proposition of the Chilian Government Said to Be Acceptable to Several Cabinet Officers—The Cabinet Meeting Yesterday—Congressman Breckenridge's Resolution in the House—Thought By Many That the Message is Simply a Bluff to Gain Time—Denial By Congressman Trumbull of Certain Statements Attributed to Him Regarding Minister Egan—Other Matters Bearing on the Controversy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The dispatch from Chili referred to in the Santiago dispatch, as published yesterday, was received at the State Department last evening.

The contents of the dispatch have not been officially given out by the State Department officials, but they are substantially as outlined in the Santiago cablegram.

The public incredulity regarding the Santiago dispatches was due to the fact that Monday Mr. Egan had notified the State Department that the Chilian government had asked for two or three days longer in which to make its answer, owing to the absence of President Montt at the springs above Santiago.

It was not until late last night that the fact of the reception of the message became circulated, and the sentiment among public men was one of doubt and uncertainty.

The reply of Chili was the subject of a consultation between the President and Secretary Blaine last evening. The text of the message of Minister Egan, it is expected, will be sent to the Committee on Foreign Affairs in the two Houses of Congress for their information and to aid them in the consideration of the President's message and accompanying documents transmitted yesterday.

The Reply Not Satisfactory.

Inquiry this morning strengthens the impression that the reply of Chili is not satisfactory to the United States Government. Although the answer proposes, it is understood, to withdraw the Matta note, the tenor of the offer is not agreeable. And the proposition said to be contained in the reply to arbitrate the Baltimore affair is taken to mean the whole question, whether or not Chili shall apologize as well as pay indemnity.

The proposition made to Chili is a very simple one for an apology and reparation for the Baltimore outrage, and the unconditional withdrawal of the Matta note.

The offer was made by Chili to withdraw this note, upon the grounds that it had been held that a foreign country could not take cognizance of a message from the President to Congress.

In dealing with a matter of international contention this was not acceptable.

This country wanted the note recalled because it was offensive; not because of any technical objection to it.

They propose now to recall the note not because it is offensive, but because the sending of it was an "error of judgment."

This country is not considering errors of judgment as causes of war, and will probably accept nothing but an unequivocal withdrawal of the note as offensive and improper.

Both the United States and Chili have contended that a question involving national honor cannot be settled by arbitration.

With relation to the suggestion that the matter be referred to the Supreme Court of the United States, Mr. Blaine and the Attorney-General have but recently made a very strong contention that the Supreme Court could not deal with a matter which was the subject of diplomatic dispute.

This was the Behring Sea case—the Sayward case. The petition for a writ of prohibition in this case was taken under consideration by the Court upon the grounds that it was a legal question and not a diplomatic question that was directly presented.

Some Cabinet Officers Approve.

It is stated this morning on high authority that the proposition of Chili to submit the Valparaiso incident to the Supreme Court is acceptable to a certain section of the Cabinet, and that efforts will be made to close the incident in this way.

It is held that the withdrawal of the Matta note is a substantial victory for the administration, and that the United States cannot expect to dictate as to the sentiments of Chilian Government.

A proposal to submit the whole question of the assault at Valparaiso to our own Supreme Court is also held by the same persons to be practically a concession to the demands of the United States.

Proceedings of Congress.

In the Senate proceedings yesterday. Beyond the introduction of a resolution by Mr. George, of Mississippi, to investigate the causes of the existing depression in the cotton States, and the reporting of a bill by Mr. Morrill, of the Finance Committee, to provide for an international bi-metallic agreement, there was no business of importance. A brief executive session was held, but no further developments came out of it.

The apparently interminable La Abra discussion was continued until adjournment, and still holds its place as unfinished business after the morning hour. The absence of Senators from their seats during the discussion elicited some rather pointed remarks from Mr. Morgan, of Alabama. But even the La Abra case gave away to the Chilian question and at 4 o'clock Mr. Morgan, yielding to a hint from Mr. Frye that his attendance was desired at an important meeting of the Committee on Foreign Relations, discontinued his remarks, and the Senate adjourned until to-day.

The session of the House was devoted to the consideration of a resolution introduced by Mr. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, calling upon the President for additional information concerning the Chilian correspondence, which, after remarks in opposition thereto by several members, was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. The new rules were then discussed for three hours. The debate is to be continued to-day.

The Cabinet Meeting.

All of the Ministers of the Cabinet were present at the Cabinet meeting except Secretaries Elkins and Foster, who are out of town.

The session was devoted to the Chilian complications. Secretary Tracy laid before the President and the other gentlemen present several telegrams which reached the department in the morning. They were mainly unimportant in character with the exception of one which stated that the Chilian Government is still adding to its war vessels. According to this dispatch they have arranged for the purchase of a new steel cruiser which is guaranteed to steam twenty-two knots an hour and which is soon to be delivered to them.

The spirit of the meeting was decidedly unfavorable to arbitrating the points in dispute between the two countries. President Harrison himself said that there would no objection to leaving the amount of indemnity to be paid to a Board of Arbitrators, but further than that Chili must deal directly with the United States, so far as a disavowal of Matta's note and an apology is concerned.

Thinks Chili is Working for Time.

Those who have expected war as the outcome of the diplomatic incident, and who look for any sort of trickery on the part of the authorities at Santiago, are disposed to regard the message as a continuance of the dilatory system of international intercourse which has been practiced by Chili in her diplomatic relations with the United States. There are people in Washington occupying important places under the Executive who think Chili is deliberately securing time for the furtherance of her schemes, on the completion of which, it is supposed, she will be able to present a formidable aspect to a contending nation. The naval officers who have studied the Chilians in their own country, and know something of the real feeling of the nation towards the United States, suspect these people, and their suspicion has been communicated to every member of the Cabinet except Mr. Blaine and Mr. Elkins, both of whom still hold out for a diplomatic settlement of the difficulty.

Congressman Trumbull, of Chili, Denies.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The devotion of a column and a half by an afternoon paper to an alleged interview with Congressman Ricardo L. Trumbull, Agent for the Chilian Congressional party, in which the Congressman was reported as saying: "I'll show up that d—d scoundred Egan. He is at the bottom of the whole business," and making other equally undiplomatic statements, induced a United Press correspondent to call on the Congressman. When his attention was called to the statements and their confirmation requested, the Congressman indignantly denied not only the statements, but even the alleged interview with the paper's representative, asserting that he informed the reporter that he would say nothing for publication.

Captain Schley in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Captain W. S. Schley, who commanded the U. S. S. Baltimore at Valparaiso, Chili, at the time of the Chilian assault arrived in Washington yesterday afternoon and immediately repaired to the Navy Department. He kept himself secluded and his presence was known to but few people in the Department. Capt. Schley was closeted with Secretary Tracy all the afternoon, no callers or officials being admitted during the period of the conference. After the conference Capt. Schley called upon Secretary Blaine and subsequently saw the President. It is stated that Capt. Schley will be called before the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Senate while he is here.

Confirmed from London.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—A dispatch from Santiago says that the Chilian Foreign Minister, in accordance with the conclusion arrived at by President Montt and the Cabinet, and after consulting with the Counsel of State, which is merely a formal act, the Council being identical with the President and Cabinet, has answered the American ultimatum in terms that, it is believed, will satisfy the President and the government of America. In view of the disparity between the forces of the two powers, it would seem that Chili had no other resource than to make the sacrifices of dignity necessary to satisfy the powerful nation making the demand.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—U. S. Gov't Report, Aug. 17, 1889.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Why San Francisco is Safe.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 27.—One reason urged why the Chilian war vessels would not visit this port is a lack of coal. There is no place in the entire Pacific ocean where a Chilian cruiser can obtain the requisite amount of coal needed to keep at sea for any length of time. All neutral ports would be closed against cruisers of both belligerents and once the supply of coal on board a war ship ran short, her only salvation would be to reach some port in her own country where she could replenish her bunkers.

Paris Journals on War Prospects.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—The Foreign Editors of the "Journal Des Debats," "Figaro," "Republique," "Siecle," "Gaulois" and "Eclair" have assured a correspondent that they believe that there will be no war between the United States and Chili. These assurances were given previous to the receipt here of the cable message to the effect that Chili had, practically, made a full apology to the United States. The Paris newspapers, however, do not comment on the Chilian troubles.

Ministers Say No Arbitration.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 27.—At the Methodist Episcopal Ministers' meeting yesterday, the Rev. Mr. Glemm offered a resolution in regard to arbitration in the Chilian affair. He said that arbitration had been tried in the Behring Sea trouble with the result of saving the lives of seals, and surely the lives of human beings were as sacred. He hoped all honorable means would be employed to avert war and its attendant horrors. The resolution was defeated by a vote of 12 to 50.

Endorsed by the Iowa Senate.

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 27.—The Senate yesterday unanimously adopted a resolution approving the President's Chilian message.

Against Senator Hoar's Bill.

BOSTON, Jan. 27.—A number of merchants representing the wholesale clothing houses of this city met yesterday in response to a circular which suggested that the clothiers gather and consider what action it would be desirable to take in regard to Senator Hoar's bill concerning the manufacture of clothing. The matter was very fully discussed by the gentlemen present, the sense of their remarks being that the proposed bill would very seriously interfere with the clothing trade. It was finally voted to send a committee to confer with Representatives in Washington in regard to shelving the bill.

$300,000 Oil Fire.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 27.—A fire occurred last evening at the oil works of Berne, Scrymser & Co. at Elizabethport. The flames spread rapidly, and the employes were compelled to flee for their lives. The works were located near the shore, and the burning oil floated out on Staten Island Sound and set fire to the meadows, as well as to the big bridge of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The flames in this direction, however, were checked, and the big bridge escaped with but little damage. The entire plant of the oil works was destroyed. The loss will reach $300,000.

The authorities and citizens will take cognizance of this late affair and will have the principals indicted.

CHOKED EIGHT GIRLS

Schneider, the Vienna Murderer, Confesses.

DESCRIBES THE AWFUL DETAILS

His Victims Were Always Conscious When He Attacked Them.

He Accuses His Wife of Assisting Him in the Horrible Work—He Would Seize a Victim By the Breast With His Left Hand and Strangle Her With the Right—Practice Made Perfect.

VIENNA, Jan. 27.—The trial of Frank Schneider and his wife Rosalie, charged with murdering eight servant girls whom they had decoyed, was continued yesterday.

The skull and hair of Rosalie Kleinrath, one of the murdered girls, and the torn and bloody clothing worn by her at the time of her death, were produced by the prosecution.

The sight of the gruesome objects seemed to unnerve Schneider, and he finally broke down and confessed that he was guilty of murdering Rosalie Kleinrath and the other girls.

Amid the most intense excitement the prisoner described in all its horrible details his method of strangling the girls, who were lured to their death in his house. He said that he had not employed chloroform in any instance. His victims were always conscious when he attacked them, and he was assisted in his horrible work by his wife. She, he declared, used to hold the hands of the struggling girls, while he grasped them by the neck and choked their life out.

At this point the woman interrupted her husband by excitedly shouting: "I am your next victim. I never took part in the crimes."

Medical evidence was produced to show the great strength possessed by Schneider. This testimony was brought out for the purpose of showing that Schneider was so strong that he did not need the assistance of his wife to grip the throats of his victims and choke them to death.

Schneider here volunteered to tell how the murders were committed, and dramatically went through the blood curdling performance. He showed how he used to seize the struggling victims by the breast with his left hand and with his powerful right hand clutched them by the throat and thus strangled the poor creatures.

In concluding his confession Schneider said that he had not killed the first woman he had robbed, because he had not at that time had the prastice in the method of strangling which he afterwards acquired.

General Butler for the Anarchists.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Gen. Benjamin F. Butler delivered the closing argument for the Chicago Anarchists, Fielding and Schwab, in the Supreme Court Chamber yesterday. General Butler, who spoke slowly and feebly for more than an hour, was attentively followed by a crowded court room. He contended that Fielding and Schwab, who are now in Joliet penitentiary for alleged complicity in the Haymarket riots, were illegally sentenced to death without an opportunity to be heard before sentence, and that they had not asked or accepted the commutation to a life sentence by the Governor of Illinois.

Robbed While Being Kissed.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Miss Susie Ray of 149 West Madison street, called on Justice Woodman, yesterday, and after requesting a private interview, blushingly told the Justice that she wanted a warrant for the arrest of Floyd Tyrrell, a Halstead street clothing clerk, on the charge of robbery. When asked to explain how the robbery was committed Miss Ray said that when Mr. Tyrrell left her Sunday evening he placed one of his arms around her neck and while in the act of kissing her abstracted a purse containing $20 from her dress pocket. The warrant was issued and Tyrrell was arrested.

American Loan Association All Right.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 27.—The report that the American Building and Loan Association has failed or has been wound up by order of the State Bank Examiner is without foundation. The examiner in his report filed yesterday found that the Association was solvent and had a real surplus of about $164,000. He criticised some of the investments of the Association but made no recommendations to the Governor whatever.

CASHIER GREEN DISCHARGED.

No Evidence that He Had Taken Any Money National Bank Money.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Jan. 27.—The hearing of Dela Green, late cashier of the Muncy National Bank, charged with having appropriated the $15,000 which mysteriously disappeared from the vaults of the bank, took place here before United States Commissioner Bentley. Bank Examiner Dengler, President Bowman and Teller Bowman were examined, but no evidence in addition to that already published was elicited.

Upon conclusion of the testimony United States District-Attorney Lyon asked that Mr. Green be held for trial, while counsel for the defence insisted on his discharge on the ground that a prima facie case had not been made out against him.

The Commissioner took the latter view of the matter and discharged Mr. Green, stating that it had not been proven that the missing money had been in the bank's strong box during the past three years, nor that Mr. Green had abstracted it or knew anything of its disappearance.

BELIEVED TO BE DEAD.

The Sensational Story Regarding Cashier Hill Discredited.

JAMESBURG, N. J., Jan. 27.—The body of T. Wilton Hill, the late cashier of the Jamesburg National Bank, whose sudden death on Dec. 20 was followed by the revelation that he was a defaulter in a large sum of money, will not be exhumed.

The report that Hill is not dead and that a dummy body was substituted for him is generally discredited here. A number of residents, including three directors of the bank of which Hill was cashier, all declare that Hill is beyond question dead and buried, as they saw him in his coffin and followed his body to the grave.

J. C. Magee, of the directors, declares that the idea of exhuming the body had never been suggested at a board meeting, as all the directors had attended the funeral, and all are satisfied that Hill is dead.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 27.—In the United States District Court, Justice Coxe presiding, the trial of James Muldoon the ex-newspaper man from Toronto, Canada, charged with smuggling Chinamen over the State line from Canada, was concluded. The jury was out about twenty-five minutes when they returned with a verdict of guilty. Muldoon has served a term before for a similar crime. He attempted to escape at Fonda by jumping from a train but was recaptured. Owing to the sickly condition of the convicted man, the President was induced to pardon him. Muldoon soon again engaged himself in the same line of business and was convicted the second time. The sentence of the court was that Muldoon pay a fine of $25 and be imprisoned in the Erie county penitentiary for a period of one year.

OLD MAN'S DARLING

Robert H. Maple's Story of Matrimonial Woes.

HE ADVERTISED FOR A WIFE,

And Obtaining a Satisfactory One, Gave Her His House and Lot.

Then Mrs. Maple, Who Up to This Time Had Been the Idol of Her 68-Year-Old Husband, Sold the House and Launched Into Extravagance—Investigation by Mr. Maple Revealed that His Wife Had a Husband or So Living, and His Suit to Recover His Property is Now Being Tried.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 27.—The trial of the suit of Robert H. Maple against Florence D. Maple is being held before Vice-Chancellor Green. A strange matrimonial story is disclosed.

Robert H. Maple, who lived in Neptune township, Monmouth county, is 68 years of age. In 1888 his wife died, and soon thereafter, in the same year, he inserted the following advertisement in a New York paper:

"A rare chance for a lone woman. A man, 68 years of age, who has lost his family, wants a companion. He has a good home, and will give it to a good, worthy woman if she will be his companion for life. Her age may be from 36 to 50 years. Address R. H. M., Asbury Park, N. J.

Mr. Maple's advertisement elicited a number of advertisements from women, but the one signed Florence D. Dodd secured his most favorable consideration. Correspondence ensued and a meeting was arranged. Mr. Maple found Florence Dodd to be a well preserved and comely woman, who as she stated, had been a widow for five years.

On June 2, 1889, their relations culminated in a marriage, which was performed at Neptune, and four months thereafter Mr. Maple deeded his house and lot to Mrs. Maple.

With the possession of the property, Mrs. Maple adopted a course of conduct very much at variance with that accorded the old man ere his generous gift. She immediately sold the house and lot, bought other property, and launched out into extravagance.

Her excesses soon prompted the old man to find cause for ridding himself of her, and in this he has proved very successful. He discovered that Florence D. Dodd was originally Florence D. Foster, and that in January, 1867, she had married one Julius Worcemer, in Brooklyn. In 1877 she had again married W. C. Dodd in the same city, her first husband Worcemer being then alive. He found further that Dodd had instituted divorce proceedings on this ground and had been granted a decree, no defence having been interposed by the woman.

Maple now asks the aid of the court toward the recovery of his property.

Wouldn't Recognize His Wives.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Charles A. Barnes, who is under examination by the grand jury upon the charges of bigamy, burglary and the abduction of a child from Round Lake last summer, caused quite a scene in the court house yesterday. A number of women who claim to have been married to Barnes were brought to the prisoner's cell for the purpose of identifying him. When Barnes saw them approaching he retired to the far end of the cell, covered his head with a sheet, and said he would not exhibit himself to such a lot of women. He was then forcibly taken from his cell into a private room where he was identified by the half dozen women as their several husbands.

It is suggested, however, that you do not leave the purchase of your seats until too late in the week.

The Coupling Pin Broke.

As a number of cars were being drilled back and forth near the freight-house, at 2 this afternoon, a coupling pin holding two of the cars together broke, and the cars parted. They had been loaded with telegraph poles, which extended the entire length of the two cars. The butt ends were on the rear car, and as the forward car went ahead these ends dropped to the ground. Station agent Haynes immediately got a gang of men to work, and the car, trailing the poles after it, was by ingenious engineering switched over from the fourth track to a sidetrack out of the way, when the polls will be reloaded. Had the pin broken when the train was going at rapid speed a bad wreck must have resulted, as the rear part of the train would have piled up on the poles.

Next Move the Freight House.

The Jersey Central railroad company are about to abandon their pumping station near the North avenue station in this city, and will hereafter use water from the Plainfield Water Supply company's mains for their locomotives and all other purposes which have hitherto been supplied locally. It is earnestly hoped that the abolishment of the pumping station is a step towards the much desired removal of the freight-house.

The North avenue station, which is at present heated by steam from the pumping station, will hereafter be heated by a furnace in the passenger station cellar.

Tee Kay Victor.

The sportsmen and spectators on the grounds of the Plainfield Independent Shooting club yesterday saw some hard shooting. The wind and cold interfered so that the 100-bird shoot was made a 50-bird one, at inanimate blue-rocks. Tee Kay broke 41, C. Smith 37, and Nief Apgar 36. It was an interesting friendly match, with no stakes up. In a live-bird contest Tee Kay was victor, with Smith second, and Nief Apgar and Warren Squires third.

Papers by Mrs. Sterling and Mrs. Cox.

The Women's Branch Alliance of the Unitarian church, at its monthly session yesterday afternoon, listened to a very interesting paper on "The Ethics of Living" prepared by Mrs. W. H. Sterling. Owing to family affliction, the author was unable to be present and her essay was read by another. The same subject will be presented at the next meeting of the Alliance in a paper written by Mrs. Rowland Cox.

Recovering Money Paid on Sunday.

The court at Somerville yesterday decided a North Plainfield lawsuit of some interest. The case was that of Louis Marrott vs. Patrick McCue. The action was brought to recover money paid by Marrott on Sunday on account of the contemplated purchase of McCue's farm in Warren township. On the Wednesday following this Sunday payment the parties met to execute the deed, but as they could not agree to the time the mortgage should run they decided to throw up the bargain. McCue promised to return the part-purchase money the following Saturday, but did not, and suit was begun to recover. Justice Crosley gave judgment against McCue, and an appeal was taken. The defense was that as the money was paid on Sunday it could not be recovered. The court held that though a Sunday contract could not be legal the money in this case ought unquestionably to be returned to Marrott. The judgment of the court below was therefore affirmed. Jackson & Codington were counsel for Marrott, and W. A. Coddington appeared for McCue.

The Bi. Club and the Crescents to Open the Season.

The base-ball probabilities are that the local season will be opened with a game between the Crescent League team and the Bicycle Club team. The Bicycle team will be a strong one, though strictly amateur, and is already booking dates with the amateur teams of Orange, Brooklyn, Bergen Point, Somerville and Westfield. An amateur league will be formed among Plainfield, Somerville, Westfield and Roselle in case Roselle can get good grounds. F. W. Walz has been re-elected captain of the Bicycle team, and R. F. Murray and J. G. McLaughlin will be the managers.

First of the Ice Crop.

The ice is 5 inches thick on Tier's lake, but the Tiers have decided not to cut till it gets thicker. Unless they can get a first-class crop they may decide not to attempt to supply ice next summer. They care most for getting ice suitable and sufficient for freezing their famous ice-cream.

The Coddingtons to-day marked out the ice on their pond near Samptown, and will begin cutting to-morrow. The ice there is 7 inches thick.

Skating is excellent on the ponds and streams about the city.

—The base-ball fever has also invaded the headquarters of the Plainfield Bicycle club. At a meeting held Saturday night it was decided to put a strictly amateur team in the field.

Bills in the New Jersey Legislature.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 27.—A bill has been introduced in the Assembly, providing for the establishment of a board of railroad commissioners. The board is to consist of three members at a salary of $3,000 each. Its functions will be to examine the workings of all the railroads in the State. This board is to have a secretary at a salary of $2,000 and a solicitor at the same salary; also marshal and inspector. This board is to aid the State Board of Assessors. Another bill was introduced, creating a Bureau of Agriculture. This board will consist of only one member and he will receive compensation at the rate of $2,500 a year.

To Contest Florence's Will.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—A telegram from San Francisco states that suit will be begun there in a few days by Miss Florence Hall for a share in the estate of the dead actor, W. J. Florence. Miss Hall claims to be the illegitimate daughter of the dead actor and declares that her mother, who is now dead, showed her checks sent her by Florence for her support. The news is not believed by Florence's friends here.

Harry L. Waldo Dead.

EXETER, N. H., Jan. 27.—Harry L. Waldo, the student at Phillips's Exeter Academy whose spine was broken by a recent accident in the gymnasium, died in the morning. The patient lived beyond the time of record in such accidents. He was a son of Judge Henry L. Waldo of Kansas City, counsel for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway.

Get something smaller than the ordinary pill. And something that's better. That means Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets — they're the smallest and the best; the easiest to take and the easiest in the way they act.

Wonderful things—these tiny, sugar-coated Pellets. They put an end to Sick and Bilious Headaches, Constipation, Indigestion, Dizziness, Bilious Attacks—all the derangements of liver, stomach and bowels. Mildly and gently, but thoroughly and effectively, they cleanse, renovate and regulate the entire system. One little Pellet for a gentle laxative—three for a cathartic.

They're the best Liver Pill ever made, purely vegetable, perfectly harmless—and the cheapest pill you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction or your money is returned. It's a plan peculiar to Dr. Pierce's medicines. You pay only for the good you get. Can you ask more?

Something else, that pays the dealer better, may be offered as "just as good." Perhaps it is, for him—but it can't be, for you.

A Minstrel Show in Distress.

After three weeks of poor houses, light receipts, and steadily increasing liabilities, the W. S. Cleveland minstrel combination disbanded yesterday at Fremont and the sheriff took charge of its property. The company has been in hard luck for several months and the Nebraska circuit proved a Jonah. A part of the troupe is in Omaha almost penniless.

After having expended one thousand dollars for various medicines and with doctors, and growing worse all the while, I considered my case incurable. I was induced to try Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. After their use for six weeks I can eat meat without distress, a thing that has not occurred before for years. I believe I am nearly cured, and yet it seems too good to be true. Have no doubt but that much of the sleeplessness people complain of is caused by indigestion.—J. W. DRAKE, Centre Market, Newark, N. J.

THE CENTRAL'S FLYING DUTCHMAN.

That Great Jersey Locomotive, 385, Will Eclipse Everything Else Ever Run Upon Rails.

Some months ago, when the subject of "fast time" on railroads was being talked of throughout the broad expanse of this country, the directors and officers of the New Jersey Central railroad held a meeting and determined that they would at least endeavor to have built the finest and fastest locomotive in existence. To that end they placed an order with the Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia, with the proviso that if the first engine built came up to their expectations and desires the Baldwin people should receive an order for six more. The result is that on Jan. 5, 1892, the Baldwin Locomotive Works turned out one of the greatest pieces of mechanical skill ever known. To place the credit where it is due, I can only say that S. M. VanClain, the general superintendent of the Baldwin Works, is the sole patentee. He is the originator and designer of this stupendous piece of mechanism—Engine 385. This locomotive is built of five-eighths steel. The driving wheels are 6 feet 6 inches in diameter. From the ground to the top of the smokestack it is considerably over fourteen feet. The engine is filled with four-cylinder compound engines. The boiler is fifty-eight inches in the largest part, with extra large wagon top. In the boiler are two hundred and fifty flues. The fire-box is 11 feet by 3 feet 8 inches, and has a water-grate for hard coal. There are four cylinders—two of high and two of low pressure. The steam passes first into the high-pressure cylinder, thence into the low-pressure cylinder, being used twice, and by the time it is exhausted into the air the elasticity is nearly all gone. All four cylinders can be used at the same time, and this is the secret of the engine starting and getting under way so quickly with a heavy train. The boiler carries 180 pounds of steam, and is tested to 220. The high-pressure cylinders have 13-inch bores, and the low-pressure cylinders have 22-inch bores, each having a 24-inch stroke. The engine is fitted with all the modern appliances, such as the Metropolitan injector, the Nathan lubricator for the air pump, water-scoop under tank, and steam heater with patent adjustable valve to keep the temperature the same throughout the length of the train. The length of the driving rods is 7 feet 6 inches, and the engine carries six tons of coal. The whole weight of engine 385 ready for use is 62½ tons. This engine was brought from Philadelphia January 5 by Charles A. Houston, one of the ablest and most reliable engineers on the Jersey Central. It was at the request of Mr. VanClain, the patentee, that Mr. Houston was placed in charge, Mr. VanClain knowing that if anyone could get the speed out of her it was Mr. Houston. The engine came over from Philadelphia on her first trip empty. The next day she hauled a coal train, then a local passenger train, then she was transferred to an express train, and for the last ten days she has been making the return trip to Philadelphia on one of the fastest runs. As soon as she runs smoothly and her joints get limbered up she will be put on the "Washington Limited", leaving New York each day at 11:30 a. m.

A conversation was had with Mr. Houston last evening, just as he stepped from his engine, and he said: "Yes: I am getting great speed out of her. She is without doubt the finest engine I ever saw; and as soon as I get her working all right she will develop wonderfully high speed. The other morning, on my trip out, I left New York at 10. I ran from Elizabeth to Bound Brook, slowed up at Plainfield, took water at Greenbrook, and stopped at the Bound Brook station, in 17 minutes and 40 seconds. The distance is nearly nineteen miles.

Between Roselle and the top of Westfield hill we were coming along easily, and I took out my watch and held it for six miles. We run it in a trifle over five minutes. The engine is a dandy. She makes a mile a minute over the steepest grades on the Reading road. I have not found the least difficulty in making the time; but on the contrary can't keep from getting ahead of time, which really seems unavoidable with this engine. Since I have had charge of the engine I have made scarcely a trip without some of the railroad officials being in the cab, and last Saturday evening I had on board from Philadelphia to Trenton Junction, besides Mr. VanClain, Mr. Morris, general inspector of the C. B. and Q

"I can safely say that this engine will more than fulfill all that is expected of it."

No better man could be picked out to try the merits of this huge iron monster than this same Charles A. Houston. He has an eagle eye, and a hand like iron. He is brave as a lion, not knowing what danger is, although he never runs needlessly into it. Being a most thorough mechanic, he is able to describe most lucidly the workings of the giant locomotive. Mr. Houston is a resident of Somerville, and has been in the employ of the Jersey Central for many years. During that time he has never had an accident that resulted in any loss of life.

Some years ago, while he was running one of the local trains, and when near Westfield, the driving-rod broke on his side of the cab, and, coming up through the floor, injured his foot severely. That recalls to my mind an incident which happened some years ago, but which will only go to show how careful he is and how thoughtful for the lives of passengers intrusted to his care. This happened during a heavy snowstorm. Mr. Houston was pulling out of Communipaw with five heavily-loaded cars behind him. He saw in the distance, just discernible through the snow, another headlight. That was before the time of interlocking switches, and he thought what if that train should be on the same track as I am. With the words on his lips, he brought his train to a standstill, and began backing up. It was wise he did so, as the other train, through some misunderstanding of orders, was on the same track, and coming swiftly towards him. The engineer of the other train saw the danger just in time, and brought his engine to a stop, not two feet from the other. Mr. Houston had a right to suppose he had a clear track, as he had the signal to go ahead, and it was only owing to his good judgment that an accident was avoided and perhaps a terrible loss of life averted. This is the kind of a man that is running engine 385, and this is the man who is to break the record for fast railroad traveling.

G. WASHINGTON ABBOTT.

A FAMOUS NEWSPAPER BEAT.

One of the Kind THE PRESS Constantly Gives Its Readers.

Readers of THE PRESS are thoroughly familiar with what are known in newspaper parlance as "beats", which are important news articles published in one paper to the exclusion of other papers. All live journals suffer being beaten now and then—as for instance the usually alert New York Sun of yesterday was caught napping and missed the despatch informing the world that Chile had backed down; but an enterprising and wide-awake paper much oftener beats than is beaten by its contemporaries. One of the most famous beats in the history of newspaperdom is described, and its mystery is explained, by Julius Chambers's interesting article on "The Managing Editor", in the February Lippincott's; and as a matter of general interest it is herewith produced:

The mystery of mysteries in the newspaper world for years has been how the Herald scored its great "beat" in 1887 by printing the President's message in full on the morning of the day it was sent to the Senate. True, other papers had brief extracts from the message is their second editions, but a censorious public credited them with stealing the matter from their contemporary.

Some Managing Editors are born with a "nose for news"; others achieve "beats"; but I doubt if many men in that position can boast of having a great news feature literally thrust upon them. The secret has been hinted at but never told by the chief participants. Perhaps there is a moral in it for every Managing Editor, as well as for every reader of a newspaper.

It was at the end of a very dull night. Great events generally occur on dull nights. The Associated Press had received information that the Herald had surreptitiously obtained a complete copy of President Cleveland's message and intended to print it in full in the morning. As the Associated Press was the custodian of the message, which was to have been sent on the following day to every afternoon customer, this announcement naturally filled its local manager in New York with consternation. Where that rumor came from, and how it reached the Associated Press, is still a mystery.

As the "A. P." was the accredited custodian of the message, it would never do to permit its premature publication, if it could be prevented. Bad faith would surely be charged. It must be suppressed at once. The night manager of that news agency took his hat and rushed across the street. A pneumatic tube connects all the offices belonging to the Association, but the gentleman preferred to go in person. He descended by the elevator in the Western Union building, and was soon climbing the iron stairs in the Herald office. A moment later, out of breath, he had demanded an audience with the editor in charge. This is about what occurred:

"I understand that the Herald has obtained the President's message in some underhand way, and intends publishing it to-morrow before it has been delivered to Congress."

"Indeed!"

"Now, you must not do this. The Herald is a member of the Associated Press, and the honor of the Association is pledged not to circulate this message until to-morrow afternoon."

"Well, really,"—said the diplomatic editor, who was intensely mystified and inclined to await developments—"what you may or may not do is of very little consequence to the Herald, and I can assure you you will not influence it in the least."

"But I have it from the very best authority that you already have the message in this office and are setting it up."

"Suppose we have the message: what then?"—and the editor excused himself, and went out, ostensibly to consult with some one, but in reality to catch his breath and consider the situation, for, as may be imagined, somebody had been imposing on the Associated Press agent. The Herald did not have and did not expect to have the message ahead of its circulation by the Association. After a few turns in the Herald's big library-room, the editor decided on a line of policy. He returned to the press agent and informed him that the Herald would not think of changing any of its plans, even though the Association were "beaten".

"Very well"—said the visitor, rising to go—"if that be the case, the only thing we can do is to send out the message to-night, even at the expense of breaking faith with the President. Our customers must be properly served."

This was as the executive editor had hoped. He sent for the foreman of the composing-room, and instructed him to be in readiness to set an extra page at a late hour, as it was expected that the President's message would come in. Sure enough, about one o'clock that night in it came!

The editor hurried it to the composing-room, and subheaded it, sheet by sheet, as it went out. Result, the Herald had a page of the President's message set, read, corrected, and in the form before two o'clock, while the other papers, not being prepared to handle it, coming unannounced as it did at so late an hour, could only use a few disconnected paragraphs from the important document. The Herald, thanks to the editor in charge that night, scored a fine "beat"; but that Associated Press agent probably has congratulated himself for years at having partially defeated the machinations of an enterprising newspaper.

The moral for Managing Editors in this incident is not to believe all you hear, or confess to all you do not know.

Why He Rode.

"Look here," said the president of a southern railway to a man who had often growled at the slowness of the trains, "how is it you are riding? I've heard you say you can make time by walking."

"So I can," was the reply. "That's the trouble. I make so much time that I get tired waiting for the train to come along with my baggage. You don't expect me to carry that, do you?"—Truth.

A Poor Memory.

Radder—What's the matter with you this morning, old chap? I never saw you in such a brown study. Anything troubling you?

Adder—I should say there was. I brought matters to a climax last evening with Miss Bonbon—actually proposed to her—and, failing to make note of her answer at the time, I'm blessed if I can remember now whether she accepted me or not.—Boston Courier.

An Unappreciative Wretch.

"You'll be lonely, dear, I'm afraid, while I'm away," said the wife, who was going on a visit to her mother.

"O, no," he said, cheerfully.

"You'll have nobody to talk to you," she said.

"O, yes," he answered, "there's our parrot."

And she went away so mad that she forgot to ask if her hat was on straight. —N. Y. Press.

His Patience Was Tried.

Gus—Heavings, Gawge! What's the mattah?

Gawge—Mattah! Why, I nevah came so near being offended in my life. The keeper of that cafe called me a liah, and kicked me out. I tell you what—ah—Gus, it wouldn't have taken much moah to have made me weal mad.—Brooklyn Life.

Happier Than a Queen.

Mrs Hiffe—Haven't I told you, once for all, that I don't need anything whatever? Why don't you go?

Peddler (respectfully)—Madam, I vould like to feast mine eyes on der luckiest vomans in der vorldt. You vas better-off as der czarina!—Judge.

Not Quite Explained.

Mrs. Blonde (wildly)—Where did this black hair come from?

Mr. Blonde—I was riding behind a black horse and he switched his tail—"This is fine hair."

"Yes, it was a fine horse. —Demorest's Magazine.

His Explanation.

"Your marriage was the result of love at first sight, wasn't it?"

"Yes," replied the near-sighted friend. "I never will forget that day. Only time in my life I was ever known to for-get my glasses."—Judge.

A Satisfied Boarder.

Mrs. Starvem (effusively) —I hope you will be comfortable here.

New Boarder—Indeed, yes. I'm sure I will be. I just dote on ham and liver and corned beef and prunes.—Good News.

Their Ancestors.

"My ancestors are away above par," announced Mr. Oldfam proudly.

"And mine," said Mrs. O., conclusively, "are away above grand par."—Detroit Free Press.

HE TOOK THE TRAIN AND DEPARTED.

—Harper's Bazar.

The Other Was Weakening.

"Do you think you can support me, George?" she asked an hour after he had proposed.

"Yes, if you'll get on the other knee," he said.—Judge.

Soon Parted.

"My hair," mused Van Smythe, as he carefully consigned his two remaining wisps to their appointed places, "reminds me most painfully of a fool and his money."—Life.

The Last Division.

Teacher—If your mother should wish to give each one an equal amount of meat, and there should be eight in the family, how many pieces would she cut?

Class—Eight.

Teacher—Correct. Now each piece would be one-eighth of the whole, remember that.

Class—Yes'm.

Teacher—Suppose each piece were cut again, what would result?

Smart Boy—Sixteenths.

Teacher—Correct. And if cut again?

Boy—Thirty-seconds.

Teacher—Correct. Now suppose we should cut each of the thirty-two pieces again, what would result?

Little Girl—Hash.—Good News.

A Reporter in Luck.

City Editor (hurriedly) — Anything new about that suicide in the St. Fashion hotel?

Reporter—Not much. The man was a stranger, about my size. Shot himself with a 32-caliber revolver. Had on a dress suit at the time. The body has been taken to the morgue.

City Editor—'Bout your size. That's lucky. I want you to report a big society wedding in an hour. Rush around to the morgue and ask the keeper to lend you that dress suit.—N. Y. Weekly.

A Package from the East.

Fowle (originally from Boston)—Well, I'll be everlastingly punched.

Boylston (his partner)—News from home?

Fowle—I should say so. I wrote mother that we were going to attend a Piute wedding and she sent two plug hats and some lavender gloves, with an injunction to keep up our John-Hancock dignity or die.—Judge.

PUNISHMENT OF SOLDIERS.

How the Rank and File of the British Army Are Corrected.

Three Varieties of Tribunal—Penalties for Minor Offenses—Regimental, General and District Courts Martial—Military Prisons.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

Like every other mortal, Tommy Atkins has his failings, and, as a natural consequence, he has now and then to answer to the powers that be for some infringement of rules. When a soldier is brought before his superior officer—the captain of his company, or the commanding officer, according to the gravity of the offense—it nearly always happens that some punishment is meted out to him; and as military punishment is a feature of the service which is not paraded before the general public, a few facts there anent may be of interest. There are three distinct varieties of military tribunal, viz.: the company officer, the commanding officer and a court martial. Courts martial are of three degrees of importance, and the maximum sentence which a court martial may impose varies according as the court is a regimental, district or general one.

To begin with, what is known as "minor" offense, i. e., those which the captain of a company has power to dispose of summarily, we will suppose that No. 1,716 Private Thomas Atkins, has been guilty of remaining out of barracks for ten minutes after "last post," ten p. m., the previous evening, without being possessed of a "pass" enabling him to do so. Some time during the following day the orderly sergeant of his company brings him up—"wheels him up," as it is called—before his captain, states his offense and produces his "defaulter sheets," or record of his past misdemeanors. Should the sheets be clear or nearly so, considering the length of the man's service, the captain will probably admonish him; but should the unlucky wight have been in any scrape lately, or should he be an old offender, he will be sentenced to be confined to barracks for any number of days up to seven, that being the limit of power to punish of a company officer.

Let us suppose that our friend has been sentenced to three days confinement to the barracks. One might imagine this to be no great punishment. Before jumping to conclusions, however, let us see what "C. B." actually means. Besides being forbidden to leave barracks, the culprit must turn out in full marching order, i. e., with pack, helmet and full equipment on, at least four times a day, and oftener in many corps, and each time he undergoes an hour's "defaulters drill," which consists of a monotonous march up and down the barrack square under the eye of a non-commissioned officer, usually the sergeant of the regimental police.

Of course, this drill has to be performed over and above the usual day's drill of the regiment; nor is this all, for the victim has to keep his ear open when off drill to answer when the bugle sounds for "defaulters," as it does with extreme frequency, the unhappy transgressors against military law being always held eligible for whatever fatigue duty may be going.

"The unkindest cut of all," however, to the average private is the stern decree that defaulters may not go into the canteen during their days of durance; so that after the day's drill, etc., have been got through, there is no solacing beer allowed.

Then indeed doth Tommy vow never to offend again; but, sad to say, on the completion of his time and the regaining of his freedom, he is apt to indulge in a small spree which lands him in durance vile once more.

To come to the next grade of military punishment, let us suppose that Thomas has just got a drop too much, and finds himself high and dry in the guardroom, from which he is marched next morning, under an armed escort, into the dread presence of the "chief" himself.

Should this be his first, second, or even third appearance on such a charge, he will receive no further penalty than a fresh—and longer—term of days "C. B." Should he, however, have been up three times previously for indulging, he will be sentenced to a fine in addition to being confined to barracks. Fines range from two shillings and six pence (sixty-two cents) to ten shillings (two dollars and a half) according to the length of time which has elapsed since his last appearance, and they are kept off his pay, a system which has been found most effectual in lessening drunkenness in the service.

For a graver offense, such as impertinence to a superior, or refusing or neglecting to obey an order, a soldier is usually sentenced by his commanding officer to undergo a number—from twenty-four up to one hundred and sixty-eight—of hours imprisonment with hard labor. A man so sentenced is conveyed to the regimental cells, where he exchanges his uniform for a gray suit of unbecoming cut, and undergoes an operation at the hands of the prison barber, which is a disfigurement for weeks after he is liberated, viz: his hair is cropped as close as it can be all over his head.

This is done even if the man's sentence was twenty-four hours in cells, and is looked upon as the worst part of the punishment. While in cells a man has to pick oakum, which is a tarry abomination ruinous to the fingers, and to perform a certain number of hours of "shot drill." This is a monotonous process, consisting of taking up a fourteen or twenty pound shot in the two hands, walking with it for a few paces, laying it down and picking up another and carrying it a few yards, only to lay it down and exchange it for a third, and so on in a circle. This process sounds simple; let anyone try it for an hour and then pronounce as to its enjoyable simplicity!

The food given to a prisoner in cells is neither over palatable nor over plentiful: it consists chiefly of a sort of oatmeal gruel, known as "skilly," and not much of that.

Such work, combined with such fare, makes a few days "with hard work" by no means a treat; in fact, many old hands would far sooner undergo a month in the regular military prison than a week in the cells. Terms of confinement in a military prison can only be ordered by a court martial, and the several courts-martial before mentioned have different limits of power, viz.: A regiment court martial, which is composed of officers of one regiment; for the trial of a member of that regiment cannot order more than forty-two days imprisonment, while a district court martial, consisting of different corps for the trial of any soldier, may sentence up to eighty-four days. Greater still is the power of the highest military tribunal in times of peace, the general court martial, which has for its president a general officer, hence its name. This court may order a man to be imprisoned for any term up to five years, which is the longest term given in time of peace. Should a soldier commit—at home—a very serious crime, say murder, he is handed over to the civil authorities to be dealt with.

The usual sentence of a general court martial is "imprisonment with hard labor for five years, thereafter to be discharged from her majesty's service as an incorrigible and worthless character." Flogging, which used to be a common form of punishment, is now abolished, at least it is never employed save on rare occasions of disobedience or insubordination in the military prisons. In such cases the governor of the prison may order the delinquent to receive a number of lashes, not more than thirty-six, except that the governor has power to deal at his own discretion with lazy or insubordinate prisoners. This he generally does by ordering them to solitary confinement, which is a terrible form of punishment, the prisoner being kept in a cell with absolutely nothing to do and no one to see for a certain number of hours; moreover, twice in twenty-four hours a small piece of bread and a basin of water—his sole food while in solitary confinement—make their appearance at a small trap door in the wall of his cell; he does not even see the warden that feeds him.

A few hours of this generally suffices to bring a man to his senses; on active service of course punishments are more severe, as discipline has to be much more strongly enforced than at home, and if necessary a summary court martial, known as a "drum head" one, may sentence a man to be shot. This extreme course is only employed, however, in a case of desertion from the field, desertion during times of peace being visited—whether the deserter returns voluntarily, as nine out of ten do, or he is captured—by a longer or shorter term of imprisonment. Life in a military prison is almost identical with that of a civil one. Should he be proof against this treatment and remain insubordinate, the "cat" may be ordered, and it has never been known to fail in convincing a man of the error of resisting the authorities.

ERNEST P. NEVILLE.

Memory's Impressions on the Brain.

It is computed by leading physiologists that, since one-third of a second suffices to produce an impression on the brain, a man of 100 years of age must have collected on or in his brain matter 9,467,280,000 impressions. Or, again, take off one-third of the time for sleep, and we still find 6,311,520,000. This would give 3,155,760,000 separate waking impressions to the man who lives to the age of 50 years. Allowing an average weight of four pounds to the brain, deducting one-fourth for blood and vessels, and another fourth for external integument, it may be said that each grain of brain substance contains not less than 205,542 traces or impressions of ideas. Of course these figures and calculations will need to be applied according to the temperament of the individuals to whom they are fitted, but they all point to one fact: Divine handiwork is gradually shown in memory.

Why He Failed.

Teacher—I don't see what's got into you lately. You have always known your lessons perfectly, and now you do not seem able to comprehend a thing, no matter how much I explain it. Are you sick?

Boy—No, ma'am; but papa and mamma is away on a visit, and now there isn't anybody home to explain your explanations so I can understand 'em.—Good News.

Needed Finishing.

Caller—Your daughter is at home now, is she not? I heard she had graduated at the Artistic literary and scientific university?

Hostess—She is not at home. She has gone to a finishing school.

"Why, what for?"

"Oh, to learn how to enter a room, and sit down, and hold a fan, and blush, you know."—N. Y. Weekly.

The Condition.

Benedick—I'll give you the money for your shopping on one condition.

Mrs. Benedick—I know what that condition is. That I don't ask for too much.

Benedick—No; that you don't ask me to go with you.—Puck.

Worth Worship.

Chicago Belle—I fear you do not really and truly love me.

Ardent Suitor—I worship the very ground you walk on.

Chicago Belle—Of course. It's worth $900 a front foot.—N. Y. Weekly.

ON A RAINY NIGHT.

Sound from the steps—Zw-i-i-pp.

Voice from above—Tek off yo' rubbers 'fore yo' comes in, Ruby. I don' want dat hall ile-cloth all mussed up.—Judge.

Not Always.

Miss Ruby—Wasn't it sad about Mr. Larrabee?

Mr. Gimp (an old bachelor)—What was it?

"He was married on Tuesday and died on the following Friday."

"Yes, it's sad; but, then, marriage doesn't always prove fatal so soon."—Jury.

Futile Malevolence.

"There were more than three hundred people at Gibson's funeral," said Watts.

"I'm not surprised at hearing it," answered Potts, who had once bought a lot from the late Mr. Gibson. "They wanted to be sure they had seen the last of him."—Indianapolis Journal.

There Was More of It.

Little Mamie, whose parents are poor, is eating dinner with some rich relatives, one of whom says:

"Well, Mamie, how do you like your dinner—better than at home?"

"It doesn't taste much better, but I don't get through as soon as I do at home."—Texas Siftings.

Mr. Wall Suppressed.

Mr. Wall—We'll have to economize this year, Annie.

Mrs. Wall—Very well, dear; you can buy my bonnets and I'll select your ties and cigars.

And Mr. Wall hasn't said a word about economy since.—N. Y. Herald.

Hard-Hearted Thieves.

Sympathizing Friend—Your loss by that burglary was certainly very heavy—but you know what the poet says: "Into each life some rain must fall."

Mrs. De Luge (weeping)—Y-e-s—and the mis—miserable thieves even took my um-um-brella.—Puck.

The Country Still Lives.

A prominent politician, who has been in politics all his life, was bragging the other day that he was born on the very day that Thomas Jefferson died.

"And the country has survived both disasters? This is a wonderful country."—Texas Siftings.

The Best Position.

Mamma—Are you getting along nicely at school now, Johnny?

Johnny—Yes, indeed, mamma. I have the best position in my class.

Mamma—Yes? What is that?

Johnny—Near the stove.—Demorest's Magazine.

Another Way of Looking at It.

Bloobumper—What a pretty child Mrs. Jaysmith's baby is!

Mrs. Bloobumper—Yes; and it didn't get its beauty from its papa either.

Bloobumper—I don't know about that. Jaysmith hasn't any left.—Judge.

He Kept Still.

Mother—How did your face get that strained, agonized look in your photograph? Did the light hurt your eyes?

Small Son—No, ma'am. The man tole me to try to keep still, an' I did.—Good News.

Her Place Supplied.

Tomdik—I suppose you were very lonely the month your wife spent at her mother's.

Hojack—Oh, no. She left the parrot at home.—Judge.

No Barber Shop.

Boston Waiter (to outside barbarian, who tucks his napkin in his neck)—Pardon me, sir, but there is no shampoo goes with this dinner.—Brooklyn Life.

NO FEAR OF A WAR

The Controversy Will be Settled Without Blood.

MR. BLOUNT'S STATEMENT.

No Truth in the Reported Receipt of Another Dispatch.

The Reply of Chili to the Demands of the United States Now Under Consideration by the President and Mr. Blaine—The Apologetic Expressions Contained in It Are Said to be Very Pronounced—A Friendly Spirit Evinced—The Reply May be Sent to Congress.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Representative Blount, Chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, had an interview yesterday afternoon with Secretary Blaine, at which the full text of the reply of Chili to the ultimatum of the United States of the 21st inst. was read. Upon Mr. Blount's return to the capitol he spoke of the interview in a manner that indicated that he was of the opinion that the controversy with Chili will be settled without recourse to hostilities.

This expression, in its repetition from mouth to mouth, grew into a definite statement that Secretary Blaine had received a second message from Chili through Senor Montt, apologizing in a manner that was perfectly satisfactory to the United States, and that there would be no trouble.

No second dispatch has been received from Chili. The reply which was received Tuesday is the only communication from Santiago on the subject. The report that the second message came through the Chilian Legation here probably arose from the fact that Senor Montt has been advised by his government that a reply to the demands of the United States has been sent to Washington and giving the terms.

The reply of Chili to the demands contained in the letter of the 21st inst. is under consideration by the President and Secretary of State. That this is so is taken as an indication that the terms of the answer are not wholly satisfactory. A note to Minister Egan will doubtless be sent shortly, perhaps to-day, or the President may hold it until he can submit it to the Cabinet at its meeting Friday. In the meantime the President may conclude to send Chili's reply to Congress, but of this no official confirmation can be had.

As stated, the text of Chili's answer is quite lengthy and careful study is necessary for an exact understanding of its terms. An official familiar with the matter says that the apologetic expressions in the reply regarding the Baltimore incident were more pronounced than they had been in any previous communication; in fact, this was the first note from Chili which breathed a friendly spirit. The Matta note, it is said, will be disavowed in a manner that will meet the approval of the United States; in fact, this government may indicate or direct the method to be pursued.

This leaves the form and substance of the apology for the Baltimore incident the principal, if not the only, point of difference between the two countries, but this is of sufficient importance, all will agree, to delay an amicable adjustment for some time, if it should eventually come.

The expression that the trouble would be settled without active hostilities, attributed to Mr. Blaine, is one held by many prominent public men and has been frequently repeated in the press and otherwise. The difference of opinion is as to the time within which satisfaction will be secured from that country. Some persons believe that it will, so to speak, have to be dragged out of her.

Riggin's Brother to File a Claim.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—John I. Riggin of this city, brother of Charles W. Riggin, boatswain's mate of the cruiser Baltimore, whose murder by the Chilians in the streets of Valparaiso was placed before Congress by President Harrison's message, consulted Attorney W. W. Ker yesterday with regard to the indemnity that will be exacted from Chili for the taking of his relative's life. The result of the interview will be the early filing with the Secretary of State of claims for damages on behalf of the brother and the two sisters of the deceased, Mrs. Mary Zimmerman and Mrs. Ella Matthews, both of this country.

The Ohio's Men Discharged.

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—Captain Sargeant, of the Ohio, has been placed on waiting orders, and sixty men and the officers of that vessel, which had been fitting out at the Charleston Navy Yard in view of a possible war with Chili, have been discharged. The vessel will soon be placed in commission as a machine ship.

Says Montt's Position is Compromised.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The "Times" correspondent at Santiago de Chili cables that the position of Senor Pedro Montt at Washington is seriously compromised, he having advised his Government all along that Mr. Blaine constantly gave him pacific assurances.

THE GREAT PEARL CASE.

A New Feature Which May Result in Mrs. Osborne's Prosecution.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—A new and most unpleasant feature in the Osborn-Hargreaves stolen pearls case, has developed. As was announced, exclusively in these cable despatches, that Captain Osborne, the husband of the lady, who has, practically been convicted of stealing Mrs. Hargreaves' jewelry, had forwarded to the Treasury the sum of five hundred and fifty pounds, the amount paid by Messrs. Spink & Sons, the jewelers, who purchased the pearls from Mrs. Osborne.

This money was to be refunded to the jewelers who have already given up the pearls to Mrs. Hargreaves.

But the police authorities decline to give up possession of the endorsed bank-notes by which the identity of Mrs. Osborne as the person who sold the pearls to Messrs. Spink & Sons was established. These notes are the identical ones paid to Mrs. Osborne by the jewelers and as this can be proved, as they bear her signature, it is intended to use them as evidence against her. Thus a new trial may be looked for.

Captain Osborne is doing everything possible to protect his wife; but, in spite of this, the police are confident that they will soon have her in custody and it is intended to press the case against her to the full extent of the law.

INDIANS ANXIOUS TO DIE.

Think They Will Come Back as the "Messiah's" Body Guard.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Jan. 28.—Large numbers of the Pawnee, Otoe and Missouria Indians are dying daily of la grippe. Sixteen of the former tribe died in a single day from this disease, brought on by exposure at the ghost dances, which they still keep up. The Pawnee Indian who claims to be the prophet of the coming Messiah, has taken advantage of the large number dying, and now proclaims that those who die are the elect who are called away to meet the coming Savior, and will return with him as his body guard when he comes next May to destroy the whites and restore the buffalo and other game for the red men to hunt.

As a result, the Indians are fitting each dead man out with rations, guns, ammunition, etc., and every chief is buried with his horse. Consequently all the braves are anxious to die, and many abuse themselves and lie out doors exposed, hoping to be called with the elect.

National Senate Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Ex-Senator Blair's rejection as U. S. Minister to China by the Chinese Government was brought up in the Senate as an incident having some bearing upon the recent action of Chili in regard to Minister Egan. Mr. Morgan called for the correspondence with China, stating that he did so to ascertain what line of procedure had been adopted by the United States in the case. Mr. Hale secured the adoption of a resolution inquiring what progress had been made in the survey for submarine cable from San Francisco to points in the Pacific. The rest of the day was given to the La'Abra case, with the usual scanty attendance. Only a very short executive session was had.

Hawley Chapman is Sane.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Sanitary experts who have examined Hawley Chapman as to his sanity, declare him to be perfectly sane but mentally weak, owing to the constant use of opiates and drugs and the results of protracted spress. They do not find him a fit subject for an insane asylum, but for an inebriate's home, and will recommend his committment to such an institution when his case comes up to-day. Mrs. Chapman, who was shot by Frank Searvant, has not yet fully recovered from her injuries.

Peddler Saved by His Pack.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Jan 28.—A Jersey Central passenger train at White Haven struck and instantly killed an Israelite named Cohen, who was walking on the track. At Yatesville another Hebrew, named Wentville, a notions peddler, with a heavy pack upon his back, was struck. The huge pack acted like a buffer, and instead of killing him he was thrown violently upon his back alongside the track. All hands thought he had been killed, but before the crew could reach him he was up and collecting his scattered wares.

Damage and Wreck on the Coast.

PORT JEFFERSON, L. I., Jan. 28.—The heavy storm of the past two days has done much damage along the coast, and a number of vessels are disabled and ashore. The schooners Nelson, J. C. Havens and E. Brush, and the sloop Nellie were driven ashore in the morning. The sloop James Humphreys dragged her anchor and collided with the sloop Stella, which was damaged, breaking her bowsprit. One oysterboat was sunk by the wind and ice. The harbor is full of ice.

Mother and Child Burned.

CALLERY JUNCTION, Pa., Jan. 28.—An early hour in the morning the residence of Addison Hindman, the driller, was destroyed by fire, and Mrs. Hindman and her young child perished.

LIKE RAY HAMILTON

The Matrimonial Experience of Ezra Park Foot.

HE IS SEEKING A DIVORCE.

How He Was Forced to Marry Miss Blood, of Camden, N. J.

She Represented to Him that She Was Enciente, and Believing Her, Young Foot Made Her His Wife—He Has Since Discovered that the Story Was False, and He Now Asks to Have the Marriage Set Aside.

REDWING, Minn., Jan. 28.—A sensation which almost equals that of the Robert Ray Hamilton case in New York three years ago was caused here yesterday when Ezra Park Foot, the son of wealthy parents, brought suit against his wife, Florence Miami Blood, asking that their pretended marriage be declared null and void. Young Foot, who gives his age as 25 years, makes the remarkable allegation in his complaint that his wife forced him to marry her by deception.

Foot alleges that he was wedded to Miss Blood in the usual manner, she then being a girl of 22, on December 12, 1889, at Camden, N. J., and lived with her as her husband until July 28, 1891.

He says he first met Miss Blood at Philadelphia in the fall of 1887, and that they met often thereafter in Philadelphia and New York. He asserts that in August, 1889, she pretended that she was about to become a mother for the purpose of forcing him to marry her. At a later period she represented that the child had been born and that it was sick in New York. He says he was then living at Lancaster, Pa., and that Miss Blood visited him there several times, at each visit representing that the child was too sick to be brought to Lancaster.

Continuing, his complaint alleges that relying on her faith and statements he married Miss Blood at Camden, N. J., as stated. About December 20, 1890, Miss Mrs. Foot came to Minnesota with the child, and continued to live with young Foot at Redwing until July 28, 1891, at which time, she, with the child, returned to Philadelphia with the avowed intention of visiting her parents.

About August 15, 1891, Foot says he first learned that all representations and statements made to him by his wife were untrue: that the child was the child of one Mrs. Theresa Campbell; that he was born of said Mrs. Theresa Camsbell on May 10, 1889, in the city of New York, and that Mrs. Foot secured the child on or about December 5, 1890, for the purpose of deceiving him, knowing that all her statements in reference thereto were wholly false and untrue, and made to Foot for the fraudulent intent of inducing him to marry her.

Since discovering this Foot says he has never lived with his wife, and, as he alleges he was induced to marry her by reason of false claims, he asks that the pretended marriage be adjudged null and void.

Gone to Canada This Time.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Miss Mollie Whearty, who on December 16 last was discovered nearly $400 short in her accounts at the postoffice sub-station No. 2, New York city, and who, upon being released on her own recognizance, disappeared from that city, was discovered two days ago by Postoffice Inspectors Hartshorn and James at the house of George Clark, president of the Asbestos Specialty Manufacturing Company, in this city. Before steps could be taken for her arrest, however, she again disappeared. The inspectors say that Mr. Clark has connived at her escape and will likely be prosecuted for his action. Miss Whearty is supposed to have gone to Canada this time.

Murderer Trezza Must Die.

SING SING, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Warden Brown, of Sing Sing prison, has been notified by Governor Flower that unless further action be taken by the State Department at Washington in the case of Trezza, the murderer, he will be executed with McIlvaine during the week beginning Feb. 8. Some time ago the Italian government asked Secretary Blaine to stay the proceedings in Trezza's case until they could investigate the case.

Esher and Bowman Win.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—In the great Evangelical Church fight Judge Shepard in the Circuit Court has rendered a decision in favor of the Esher and Bowman faction, as against the Dubbs faction, holding that the Indianapolis conference, presided over by the former, was a lawful one, and that they committed no acts that tended toward taking their rights away. The decision involves church property valued at $1,000,000.

France and the Fair.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—The Chamber of Deputies will be asked to grant 3,000,000 francs in order to make the representation of France at the Chicago Fair worthy of the great European Republic.

SPRING GARDEN BANK

Rumor that Some of the Directors are to be Arrested.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—Rumors were in circulation last evening to the effect that an examination of the books of the suspended Spring Garden National Bank had resulted in a discovery which seriously compromised three of the bank's directors and that their arrests would follow at once.

It is ascertained to-day that no arrests have been made, and H. G. Fisher, the receiver of the bank since its suspension several months ago, volunteered the statement that no arrests were contemplated.

United States District-Attorney Reid when seen declined to talk about the case. He, however, when asked the direct question would not deny that arrests of some persons connected with the bank's affairs were very likely to occur in a day or two.

It is known that Mr. Reid was in private consultation yesterday afternoon with Expert Barrett, of the Secret Service of the Treasury Department, who has been examining the books and accounts of the bank for some time past, and there is a general belief that important disclosures will be make public within the next few days.

The Kennedy brothers, president and cashier of the bank at the time of its suspension, are now undergoing sentences of imprisonment for misappropriation of the bank's funds and making false statements of the bank's condition to the bank examiner.

SHOT BY HER LOVER.

Mary Brown's Rejection of Joseph Ryan Causes a Tragedy.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Jan. 28.—Miss Mary J. Brown, a domestic in the house of Dr. Shelton, of this city, was shot and fatally wounded by Joseph K. Ryan, of New York, yesterday afternoon. Miss Brown had rejected Ryan's offer of marriage, and crazed by jealousy and his determination to wed the girl, he entered the doctor's house in the afternoon, while the young lady was alone, and made a proposition that she marry him immediately.

As he accompanied this proposal by a threat, she was much frightened and attempted to leave the room, but he at once pulled a 38-calibre revolver and shot her in the breast, the ball entering her stomach. She was carried to the Mountain Side Hospital, but the physicians were not able to extract the bullet, and her death is momentarily expected.

After Ryan's capture, which occurred immediately after the deed, he was exultant, and sang after he was placed in a cell. He was only slightly under the influence of liquor at the time of the shooting. The girl's ante-mortem statement has been taken by Justice Milligan.

Arrested for Forgery.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 28.—Joseph G. Schierman, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., was arrested in the afternoon on a dispatch from Chief Myers, of Wilkesbarre, for forgery. The dispatch stated that Schierman had checked his trunks for this city early in the morning. They arrived at 1.30 p.m., and two officers watched the property. A few minutes before 6 o'clock a colored man presented checks for them and said they were for a man outside in a coupe. The officers found Schierman, accompanied by his wife and four children, in the vehicle and all were taken to police headquarters, where the man awaits resition papers, which were promised immediately.

Frozen to Death Watching a Grave.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 28.—William Benninger, hearing that the body of his sister was to be taken from Ashley Cemetery, kept vigil behind a tree in the graveyard for two days armed with a shot gun. Yesterday morning he became unconscious from the cold, the sexton of the graveyard rescuing him ere he was frozen to death. The grave, so faithfully watched, was subsequently found despoiled. It is not yet known whether the grave was robbed or not. An investigation will be made to-day.

Believed He Committed Suicide.

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—Col. Lyman P. French, aged 52, a well known lawyer of Boston, a member of the Loyal Legion, and yuring the war a Judge-Advocate, was found dead in his room in the Hotel Brunswick in the morning: He had been very despondent of late, owing to illness and the recent death of his wife. The indications point to suicide. The medical examiner will investigate. His estate is said to amount to $100,000.

Prayers to Stop the Grip.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—On the suggestion of Mr. Spurgeon, the London Tabernacle has issued a circular proposing that the churches set apart next Monday as a day for special prayer for the abatement of the scourge of influenza. Mr. Spurgeon's letter concluded with these words: "With the court and the nation in the deepest mourning, it is time to cry mightily unto the Lord."

Connecticut's Legislature.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 28.—Pursuant to adjournment of a week ago, the House of Representatives met at 1 o'clock. The Democratic side of the House was well filled, but only five Republicans were present. The roll call showed eighty-three members present, less than a quorum, and the Speaker, under the special House rule, declared an adjournment for a week.

New York Senate Rules.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 28.—After discussion and objection by Republicans in the Senate the rules as amended by the majority were passed, all the Republicans voting against them. The rules allow bills to be passed on the same day they are ordered to a third reading; allow the Senate to declare in contempt a member refusing to vote, and allow confirmation of nominations by a majority of those present.

GIVEN UP FOR LOST

No Tidings of the Men Blown Out to Sea.

HOPE OF RESCUE ABANDONED.

A Possibility that Four of the Men May Have Been Saved.

How the Eighteen Poor Laborers of the New York Street Cleaning Department Were Carried Out to Sea—Widespread Interest and Sympathy Awakened by the Disaster—Heroic Rescue of Fifty-two Italians on Four Scows in Gravesend Bay.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Only the vaguest news of the 18 men aboard the tug Webster and the four dumping scows which drifted out to sea in the terrible gale Tuesday morning has been received up to this morning.

Their fate is still in doubt, although it is possible that two of the scows have been rescued and will arrive in port to-day. This, however, would account for but four of the missing 18 men.

The steamship Stranton, Capt. Morrison, which arrived yesterday, brought the first news of the missing boats. The Stranton left West Hartlepool on Jan. 6, and arrived at the bar at 6 p. m. Tuesday. She remained outside, however, until yesterday.

Capt. Morrison reports that at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday, four miles south of Long Beach Hotel, he passed two patent dumping scows and three miles further south he saw a tugboat apparently anchored or unmanageable. He was unable to extend assistance on account of the storm.

At 5 p. m. yesterday a dispatch from Rockaway Beach stated that a large tug was visible off Rockaway, towing two of the missing scows. They were covered with ice, but apparently undamaged. It is the general belief that the two scows and tug are the ones seen by the Stranton on the previous afternoon.

On the other hand the Deassori, one of the tugs sent out in search of the missing boats, came back last night. Her captain reported that he had been off Rockaway during the afternoon and had seen nothing of the tug and scows. He was sure he would have seen them had they been there, and believed that the tug referred to in the Rockaway Beach dispatch was his own. That theory, however, would not account for the statement that the tug sighted had two scows in tow.

The most widespread interest and sympathy were awakened yesterday by the news of the disaster. People forgot the cutting wind as they walked to their places of business in thinking about the poor fellows either dead or freezing and starving on an angry sea.

The boats swept out to sea were the tugboat Webster and Dumping scows 3, 5, 16 and 17 of the Barney dumping Company. On these boats were eighteen men employed in towing and working the dumping scows in which the street cleaning department carries the city refuse to the open sea for dumping. Ten of the men were on the tugboat, and two were on each of the four scows.

The tug Webster has sufficient provision and water on board to last a week, but the men on the dumping boats had not more than a day's supplies on board.

The tugs Edwin Webster and the H. S. Nichols left the street-cleaning docks early Tuesday morning, each with two scows in tow. The Webster had boat No. 5, having on board two men.

The Nichols towed boat No. 3, two men, and boat No. 16, two men.

A quick run was made to the dumping ground beyond Rockaway, and the self-dumpers were quickly unloaded, but when the tugs started to return to this city, the gale was so strong that slow progress was made.

Off Rockaway, about 9 a. m., the Webster suddenly stopped, and in a moment lay rolling in the trough of the sea with the ensign hoisted Union down as a signal of distress.

The hawser had parted between the tug and the dumping-boats, and the tug's propeller had apparently become entangled with the hawser's end, which the waves washed under her stern.

The Nichols's captain put in as near the Rockaway Beach as possible, and, anchoring her scows inside the shoals, put out to the assistance of the Webster.

The high sea and wind, however, made it impossible for her to hold on to the hawser, which was gotten on board the Webster, and, getting short of water, the Nichols put back to the city.

Meantime the Webster and boats 5 and 17 had drifted out to sea.

The story of Captain Day, of the tug Runyan, which rescued the fifty-two Italians on the tugs of the Street Cleaning Department aground in Gravesend Bay, is as follows:

"When we got there we found the four scows aground, with all the Italians standing on dirt heaps watching us. They waved their arms when they saw us coming. We found we couldn't get near them on account of the high seas, so we put out to a schooner that had anchored further down and borrowed a yawl. Five men were put in the yawl and they rowed out to the scows. We made thirteen trips, taking four of them every time, and some of them were so stiff that we had to lift them onto the tug. Our men got pretty stiff after rowing for half an hour, and it was awful work. The whole job took us three hours. Some of the Italians said they had been out on the refuse all night long. They looked it. You ought to have seen the way they fell too when we passed around something to eat."

PREMEDITATED MURDER.

Two Colored Girls Who Heard Miss Mitchell Plot Her Friend's Death.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 28.—Two colored girls, Sarah Hulsey and Clara Miller, make some damaging statements in the Freda Ward murder case, which, if true, establish Miss Mitchell's premeditation of the crime more than 24 hours before its perpetration.

The two colored girls state that they heard Miss Mitchell say to a strange man: "I am going to cut Freda's throat from ear to ear. I am going to kill her." Thinking the threats to be of no significance, they passed on and thought no more of it until the following morning, when they related the fragment of conversation to Mrs. McEnros and Mrs. Watson.

Chile Accepts Full Responsibility for the Baltimore Outrage—Egan to be Recalled.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—In the message transmitting the additional correspondence on the Chilean affair to Congress, to-day, the President says:

"I am of the opinion that there is a good prospect that the differences growing out of that serious affair can now be adjusted.

"The terms will be satisfactory to the Government by the usual methods, and without special powers of Congress.

"This turn in the affair is very gratifying."

Chile expresses her willingness to have either Spain or Brazil act as mediator in her differences with the United States, but public opinion there is said to be in favor of submitting the questions to the arbitration of the Supreme Court of the United States. Residents of Santiago demand the recall of William B. McCreery, Consul of the United States at Valparaiso.

Reports from the United States received at Santiago, declare that President Harrison has decided to recall Mr. Egan, the American Minister.

TWO OF THE SCOWS FOUND.

They Were Fifty Miles from Sandy Hook—The Disabled Tug Drifting Far Out to Sea.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS]

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Two of the dumping-scows that drifted to sea early Tuesday, were towed, with their crews, to the Atlantic Dock in Brooklyn early this morning. The tug Webster and two scows, with fourteen men all told, are supposed to be drifting far to sea.

The rescue of the two scows, Nos. 3 and 16, was accomplished by the tug Edgar F. Luckenbach.

When sighted, the scows were 50 miles out to sea and steadily drifting from land. When the tug reached the scows the seas were running mountains high, and it was found impossible to transfer the men seen on the scows. There were two men on each scow. They were wholly without provisions, and at the prospect of rescue were half frantic with joy.

Great Scott!

As the Crescent League institutes a diversion for its members in the way of individual bowling, so also does Fanwood come to the front. Not at the club, not at bowling, but by a revival of the good old Scotch game, "seven-up".

As a result of a conversation at the residence of the "Silent Member", on Quality Hill, Sunday last, during which ancestry was discussed, all the gentlemen present were found to be direct descendants of Highlanders more or less prominent; and further, each conclusively proved the legitimacy of his title.

A 7-up Club was then and there organized, the members being a general, a colonel, a captain and a knight of the road. Much time was occupied in arranging details as to the number of points to be played each evening, resulting in the adoption of a rule that the total number should be 1,000, but 200 to be the limit at one sitting; the successful players to be provided with "bonnets" at the expense of the others.

According to precedent an official scorer was required, and after placing the names of ten other Fanwood men in a box, the captain by right of seniority drew one. Nervously glancing at the name he said "Great Scott", and was then totally prostrated by his excess of joy. Anxiety was depicted on the countenances of all present, but happily, for a moment only, as the captain immediately recovered and with a flush of victory upon his brow, in stentorian tones announced, "Ab—, pardon me gentlemen, Mr. ———, official scorer".

The first sitting was on Monday evening, resulting as declared by Mr. ———, in the captain and knight securing a lead of nine points over the general and colonel. No refreshments are allowed to be partaken of during a sitting, excepting, of course, the proverbial hot-Scotch, after sipping which and between regular puffs at his long pipe, the senior member was distinctly heard to murmur in a satisfied way, "Holy Moses".

"Alabama."

At Music Hall next Tuesday evening, Augustus Thomas's sweet toned romance of the South, "Alabama", will be seen as presented by A. M. Palmer's New York company.

The scene of the story in "Alabama" is laid in an isolated community called "Talladega". It is a story of the South. It is domestic in character and is said to be so true to nature that it seems as if the author had carved out a slice of Alabama and set it on the stage. It is a love story with some of the incidents dating back to the time of the Rebellion. Briefly told, the scheme of "Alabama" is:

Colonel Preston, an old planter, is the father of Harry Preston, a railroad projector who comes to the place under the name of Captain Davenport. He chose the side of the North during the war, and so became estranged from his father and is supposed to have been killed in battle. He returns to his old home to find that his wife who died in his early absence had left him a daughter who is now eighteen years old. Carey Preston falls in love with Mr. Armstrong, a Northerner, and Captain Davenport's assistant. The father, with the old war bitterness, still rankling in his breast, objects to the union of the two young people on sectional grounds. They plan to elope, but Captain Davenport interferes to prevent it. The old planter, however, is made to believe that his little granddaughter has run away with the young Northerner.

The scene is laid in those parts of the country around which there is an atmosphere of poetry, and the scenery of the play is said to harmonize with the spirit of the theme.

A Man Who Likes Cold Weather.

Charles Smith and James Laing had an argument on the weather yesterday. Laing said 'twas not cold, but exhilaratingly lovely. Smith suggested that since Laing liked the weather so much he would be willing to go about "in his shirt sleeves". Laing cheerfully remarked that such a garb would be a most agreeable one, and announced his readiness to ride to Scotch Plains and back with nothing but a shirt and vest about him. Smith said he daresnt do it; Laing said he dast. The challenge was backed by stakes of $5, and the sympathy of Joseph Cutter was enlisted. He furnished a fast horse and open wagon, and the natives all along East Front street were astonished at a vision of icy-looking shirt sleeves flash by, turn at the village, and fly back again. Laing pocketed the $5, and remarked that he had enjoyed the trip so well that he believed he'd wear nothing but shirt sleeves on his arms the rest of the year. But he put on a coat just the same.

Driven out—all impurities of the blood, no matter of what name or nature, or from what cause arising, by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Clear your skin with it. Every disfigurement, from a common blotch or eruption to the worst Scrofula, will disappear. It invigorates the liver, cleanses, purifies, and enriches the blood as nothing else can, and promotes all the bodily functions. For all the many and varied forms of Scrofula, and for the most stubborn Skin and Scalp Diseases, such as Salt-rheum, Tetter, Erysipelas, Eczema, Boils, Carbuncles, and kindred ailments, nothing can equal it as a remedy.

The sarsaparillas claim to do good in March, April, and May. The "Discovery" does more than that. At all seasons and in all cases, it's guaranteed to benefit or cure, or you have your money back.

Nothing else offered by the dealer, though it's probably better for him, can be "just as good" for you.

STOOD THE TEST.

ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS are unapproachable in curative properties, rapidity and safety of action, and are the only reliable plasters ever produced. They have successfully stood the test of over thirty years' use by the public; their virtues have never been equalled by the unscrupulous imitators who have sought to trade upon the reputation of ALLCOCK'S by making plasters with holes in them, and claiming them to be "just as good as ALLCOCK'S," and they stand to-day indorsed by not only the highest medical authorities, but by millions of grateful patients who have proved their efficacy as a household remedy.

Beware of imitations, and do not be deceived by misrepresentation. Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

THE RISE OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOL

Its System of Free Instruction Better Than Any Other, and Its Preparation of Boys and Girls for Scholarship and Life's Duties Infinitely Superior.

The public schools of Plainfield are often held up as a model for the State at large, and nowhere else is pride more manifest in the free institutions of learning that have done so noble a work in rearing up the youth of the land to become cultured and democratic citizens of the commonwealth. Plainfielders will therefore take an especial interest in all new evidences of the development and success of the public-school system, and will read with pleasure the following extracts from an editorial in the New York Times on this important subject:

The Yale Alumni Weekly publishes a list of the first twenty men, by rank in scholarship, in the junior class of the academical department, as shown by the junior appointments recently announced. Since students who excel in athletics are getting quite their share of such honor as comes from publication of their names and achievements in the press of the country, it is no more than justice that those whose triumphs are in the field of intellectual competition should have proper recognition.

Of the twenty students of high rank referred to, fourteen got their preparation for college in public high schools, four were fitted in private schools, and two were prepared by private instruction. Neither the Andover Academy, the Exeter Academy, nor St. Paul's School, the three endowed schools which make the largest contributions to Yale classes, is represented in the list. This is extraordinary and exceptional, but it is true that the public high schools, especially those of New England, are steadily coming to the front as the schools which give the most thorough and useful preparation for college. Three times within a few years the valedictory at Yale has been awarded to a student whose preparatory studies were in the New Haven High School.

The rise of the public high school as the crowning feature of the system of common-school education is a most interesting fact. In several of the New England States these schools have caused the decay of most of the old-time academies which were once flourishing institutions, or at all events their relative decay. Except a few which, by reason of their large endowments or of some especially favorable condition, have grown with the growth of population, they have fallen into comparative obscurity. They serve a much smaller proportional part of the population, and their fame, which once extended far and wide, is shrunken to local limits. In many cases we believe the old academies have become free schools by virtue of support by taxation. The country boy who now desires to prepare for college is as likely to be sent to some city high school, tuition being paid when required, as to a boarding school. Its advantages and opportunities are commonly superior. The Boston Latin School has for generations been noted as the best fitting school for Harvard College, and all through New England there are public schools which afford an excellent preparation for any college.

The proportion of the pupils of public high schools who go to college is of course small, but it inures to the great advantage of all the pupils that, in order to prepare a part of the pupils for college, the instruction in all departments must be of a very high quality. The hundreds who do not seek a higher education or enter the so-called learned professions go out into life with an equipment and a discipline vastly better than they could otherwise hope for, and for this reason they contribute not less than the more highly educated few to increase the average intelligence of the community. Their associations after school days may not be chiefly with scholars, but they have acquired enough of the spirit of scholarship and of its methods to appreciate intelligently its value in giving to their own lives a higher motive and greater usefulness in the perpetual social conflict between intellectual and materialistic forces. Thus the high school justifies its existence as a public institution. The sending of boys to college, important as this part of its duty may be, is really only an incidental feature of its work; but that it should be able to do it, and do it creditably, is essential as a test and guarantee of its general efficiency and completeness. When these schools give boys and girls a better preparation than they got elsewhere, the fact affords assurance that their whole scheme of instruction is superior.

A Jersey Central Ferryboat's Mishap.

The passengers on the ferryboat Central of the Jersey Central railroad, which left Jersey City at 9:52 o'clock yesterday morning, met with an experience which detained them for half an hour. As the Central was approaching the Liberty street slip, the pilot was unable to direct her course, owing to the heavy ice which skirted the shore, and the boat ran up against the Pennsylvania railroad pier. As she backed out she became imbedded in the ice. The engines were powerless to reverse the paddles, and the Central lay helpless within thirty feet of the slip.

The tugboat Delaware of the Pennsylvania Railroad company released a float she was towing and went to the assistance of the Central. A hawser was attached, and the Central finally pushed into her slip.

If you've got a pain or ache or a bruise, Salvation Oil will reach the case instantly. Price 25 cents.

THE BEST IN THE CITY.

Manager Rosenquest Has Winners at Each of His Theaters, and Francis Wilson is Presenting the Effort of His Life.

There is a play at Manager Rosenquest's Fourteenth street theater, New York city, which you have already seen and enjoyed at Music Hall, but which you should see again. It is "Blue Jeans." Actually dragged from the stage of the Fourteenth street playhouse by provincial managers who held contracts for its presentation in their respective cities, "Blue Jeans" returned to the scene of its initial triumph three weeks ago, where its broad dashes of human nature, grotesque village band, prize bull, and other novelties are arousing new enthusiasm and attracting fresh multitudes. There is scarcely a shade of emotion that "Blue Jeans" does not touch. It is a new story deftly told; a faithful reflex of Indiana rustic life, a masterly commingling of human heart beats that "Will Never Wear Out".

The 25th performance of Russell's comedians' "New City Directory", will be celebrated at manager Rosenquest's Bijou theater, February 8, a week from Monday. This funny comedy by this same company charmed and convulsed a Plainfield audience a few weeks ago, and all will be glad to see and hear it again. Overflowing with tuneful song, interspersed freely with graceful dance and tastefully adorned by fair, talented women, it possesses in its comedians the brightest flowers of comedy, every name of which is a surety of excellence and originality. Then, there is dainty Amelia Glover, America's most charming danseuse.

Francis Wilson played his "Merry Monarch" in New York until the novelty had worn off all the new things running at the opposition theaters and then he produced with great success his new comic opera, "The Lion Tamer". The newspapers are unanimous in crediting Mr. Wilson with having made his greatest hit in this opera, and the bright libretto by J. Cheever Goodwin and the magnificent way in which the piece is mounted have been praised with such emphasis that there can be no mistake about the genuineness of this success. The Broadway theater is consequently doing a rushing business and as Wilson will remain there until next May there will be abundant chances for him to reap the fruits of his hit. "The Lion Tamer" will not be seen outside of New York until next season.

TO DEFEND THE COAST.

Senator McPherson's Bill for an Ironclad Destroyer.

Senator McPherson of this State, by request has introduced at Washington a bill to increase the efficiency of the coast defences. By its terms the Secretary of the Navy is authorized to contract with the Berdan Manufacturing company of New York, for "one Berdan ironclad destroyer", with armament as follows: "A semi-submarine boat to be not less than 260 feet long by 40 feet beam, 15 feet draught, with a corresponding displacement of about 2,400 tons, to have a low armored deck of nickel steel for deflecting cannon shots.

"To be provided with a hydraulic buffer that will protect the bows of the boat, a conning tower and a bridge for machine guns. The vessel is to have not less than 7,500 horse-power, with twin screws, and a guaranteed speed of twenty knots an hour. The vessel is to be armed with one submarine gun at the bows (located under the hydraulic buffer) of 24-inch calibre, 28 feet long, and to throw a shell containing 450 pounds of musket powder into an ironclad below her armor plate and to be exploded by a time fuse that will burn any length of time desired."

The cost of the vessel, exclusive of allowances for extra speed, is not to exceed $1,100,000. The bill stipulates that the contract is to be made only on condition that the company arranges for the construction of the vessel with a shipbuilder who is in all respects satisfactory to the Secretary of the Navy. A bonus is to be allowed for all speed made over twenty knots an hour, with rebates for less speed. The sum of $1,250,000 is appropriated for the complete construction of the vessel. The bill was referred to the committee on coast defences.

Miss Grosscup's Narrow Escape.

The pretty and affable telegraph operator at Fanwood station, Miss Annie Grossecup, was overcome at 5:30 yesterday afternoon by the dense clouds of smoke that rolled into her office from the waiting room where a lot of men had crowded in out of the cold and were puffing vigorously away at a varied assortment of tobacco, hay, autumn leaves and rags.

A prominent resident of the place, after resuscitating Miss Grossecup, called the attention of Assemblyman Bishop Kyte to the casualty which is liable, from the construction of the interior of the station, to happen at any time to even the occupants of the women's waiting room. The many friends of the bright and obliging little operator will be glad to learn that she has entirely recovered.

After having expended one thousand dollars for various medicines and with doctors, and growing worse all the while, I considered my case incurable. I was induced to try Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. After their use for six weeks I can eat meat without distress, a thing that has not occurred before for years. I believe I am nearly cured, and yet it seems too good to be true. Have no doubt but that much of the sleeplessness people complain of is caused by indigestion.—J. W. DRAKE, Centre Market, Newark, N. J.

RICHARD M. NELSON.

The New President of the American Bankers' Association.

The seventeenth annual convention of the American Bankers' association, recently held in the city of New Orleans, was an occasion of more than ordinary interest. The association honored itself by electing as its president for the ensuing year Richard M. Nelson, president of the Commercial bank of Selma, Ala. Maj. John Jay Knox was elected vice president.

Mr. Nelson is a native of North Carolina, where he was born in 1843, and was a cadet at West Point for two years, withdrawing to enter the confederate service in the civil war in 1861. He subsequently studied law, and in 1866 located in Selma, where he became a member of a prominent and successful law firm, continuing with it until 1878, when he was chosen president of the Selma savings bank, the oldest incorporated bank in central Alabama, and the name of which was two years later changed to the Commercial bank of Selma. Under his management the institution has greatly prospered. He has been connected with other leading financial and business institutions in Alabama, and in 1873 was one of the commissioners of the state for the Centennial exposition, serving as a member of the finance committee. He has been prominent in the affairs of the Protestant Episcopal church and has represented his diocese in six general conventions. He has been an active member of the American Bankers' association for several years, having served as a member of the executive council since 1878.

In all the positions which he has filled in business, social and religious life he has displayed eminent ability and integrity, so that his name has become a synonym for fidelity in the performance of duty and uprightness in every official trust. There is no doubt that he will add to the honors he has already won in the position to which he has now been elevated.

Some Real Children's Sayings.

A woman's heart, even when most obdurate, may relent. Margaret was asserting in the nursery that she never, never meant to marry.

"Very well, you shall not," said her papa; and, going to the door, he called out to an imaginary suitor: "Go away, man! Margaret doesn't want you."

"Call him back," cried Margaret. "Let me see what he looks like!"—Kate Field's Washington.

Fitted to Become a Lawyer.

Eminent Q. C.—And so you really think, Bobby, of becoming a lawyer when you grow up?

Bobby—Yes, sir; my Uncle James thinks I ought to be a lawyer.

Q. C.—Does he indeed? And why does your Uncle James think so? Because you are so bright and smart?

Bobby—No, sir; because I ask so many foolish questions.—Demorest's Magazine.

It Seems He Did.

Grindstone—Kiljordan, did you follow my advice and advertise for that Angora cat you wanted?

Kiljordan (with blood in his eye)—Grindstone, you scoundrel, if you speak to me again inside of six months I'll break your head!—Texas Siftings.

Off and On.

Featherstone—I tell you, old man, you ought to be in with a girl like Miss Grosgrain. Her father travels a great deal, and while he is away we have a lovely time.

Ringway—What do you do when he comes home?

Featherstone—Then I travel.—Life.

Officer—Yes.

Chorus Girls Want Their Diamonds Protected.

Sad State of Affairs Existing in New York—Why Inspector Byrnes Contemplates Taking a Vacation—Trusty Guards.

The recent attacks of bold, bad highwaymen upon wealthy chorus girls have created a panic in the ranks of the young women, many of whom, says the New York Journal, have purchased burglar-proof safes.

The chorus girls are demanding more efficient police protection, and it is reported that a delegation composed of two ladies from each comic opera and pantomime company in the city will call on Chief Inspector Byrnes and urge him to double the detective force, if necessary, for their protection.

The girls say, with much truth, that if they refrain from spending their munificent weekly salaries on bonbons; hair dyes and gay costumes, and, instead, invest their savings in six-carat diamond earrings and brooches, the latter valuables ought to be guaranteed protection by the police.

If, after receiving their week's wages of $12 they cannot ride from Delmonico's, after a late supper, to their elegant mansions on Riverside drive without being pulled out of their private carriages and garroted and robbed by highwaymen they want to know it.

It is thought that Inspector Byrnes will take a week's vacation in time to escape the threatened visit of the frightened chorus girls. The unexpected revelation of so much wealth in the ranks of the coryphees has raised the hopes of innumerable boarding-house landladies, who are busily engaged in rewriting old board bills for presentation to some of the fortunate stars.

Dealers in rhinestones, which can be had for $2 a quart, report a great revival in their business. They are at a loss to account for it, except on the theory that some of the girls who were recently robbed are duplicating some of their former possessions.

News of fresh robberies are constantly coming in, and if protection is not provided soon the ladies of the stage will be forced to go around clad in suits of armor.

One of the most prominent attractions in the Bowery dime museum, the lady known as the Strongest Woman on Earth, reports a daring robbery. She is a powerful woman, who can lift a weight marked 1,000 pounds without an effort. With one blow of her fist she is able to knock down more than a street-car conductor.

The Strongest Woman on Earth says that while walking home at a late hour, after having eaten a pound of tenderloin at Beefsteak John's, she was attacked by a young boy bandit, apparently about ten years old.

He tied her hands behind her back, clapped a dime novel called "Reddy the Rover" between her teeth and coolly proceeded to rob her of all her valuable jewels. The boy bandit escaped by jumping down a sewer and the Strongest Woman on Earth made her way back to the dime museum and telephoned for eleven reporters to come up so that she could ask them to keep her adventure out of the newspapers.

The scare has extended to the variety actors, who are coming into town on top of and underneath every freight train.

the highwaymen who have been assaulting and despoiling the chorus girls will next turn their attention to them.

A well-known variety star, who makes his reputation by permitting a brick house to fall on him, has engaged two trusty followers to guard him on his travels.

He was seen in a saloon on the Rialto yesterday industriously engaged in spoiling a free lunch, while his hungry followers kept watch for highwaymen.

Famines in Russia.

Russia has been visited by eight national famines during the present century—in 1801, 1808, 1811, 1812, 1833, 1840, 1860 and 1891. In addition to these there have been several provincial famines as severe, if not as extensive, as those which affect the whole population.

THE NEW SPEAKER.

Charles Frederick Crisp was born in Sheffield, Eng., June 29, 1845, his parents being on a European tour at the time. They returned to America the year of his birth and went back to their old home in Georgia. He was educated in the common schools of Macon and Savannah, and in May, 1861, he entered the confederate army as lieutenant in Company K, Tenth Virginia infantry. He was taken prisoner of war May 12, 1864, and confined in Fort Delaware until June, 1865. Then he was released and went to live with his parents, who were residing at Ellaville, Schley county, Ga. Soon after he moved to Americus and studied law, being admitted to the bar there in 1866, and going back to Ellaville to practice. He continued in private practice then until 1872, when he was appointed solicitor general of the southwestern judicial circuit and was reappointed in 1873 for a term of four years. In the same year he moved to Americus again, and since then that town has been his home. June, 1877, Mr. Crisp was appointed judge of the superior court of the southwestern circuit and in 1878 elected to the same office by the general assembly. He was reelected judge in 1880 for a term of four years, but resigned in 1882 to accept the democratic nomination for congress in the Third district. He was also president of the democratic state convention of 1883. He was elected to the Forty-eighth congress and has been returned to that body continuously ever since.

THE SPEAKER'S WIFE.

According to Report, Mrs. Crisp Is a Perfect Home-Maker.

It is not likely that Mrs. Crisp will feel like assuming the social position and accompanying honors belonging to the speaker's wife. The death of her son a few weeks ago cast a gloom over the Crisp household, and the bereaved mother will have little heart for the pleasures of the Washington season. Mrs. Crisp was born in Ellaville, near her present home in Americus, Ga. Her father was a planter before the war. She was married to Mr. Crisp while quite young, and four children, two daughters and two sons, blessed the union. The elder daughter is married to a druggist in Americus, while the two younger children are still at school. Mrs. Crisp has always spent the winters in Washington with her husband since his first election to congress. She is thoroughly domestic, and cares most about being in her Georgia home, where she is accustomed to dispense real southern hospitality. She is about medium height, has dark eyes and hair slightly tinged with gray.

Story of a Vivandiere.

Mlle. Louise de Beaulieu has been permitted to sell matches in the streets of Paris because she lost an arm by a gunshot wound in 1870 and had been decorated with the military medal and eight other medals for saving life by her intrepidity and heroism. She is fifty years of age, and she has earned a living by calling marketmen up at early morning hours in the neighborhood where she dwelt. More than twenty years ago she joined a regiment as a vivandiere, and she was in eight battles. Once she was held as a spy at St. Denis and sentenced to be shot. She refused to have her eyes bandaged, and asked to be allowed to give the command to fire. An officer who admired her pluck saved her life. In one of the battles she attended to twenty-five wounded men, and she lost her arm at Champaigny while carrying a soldier to an ambulance. After her return from the battlefields she saved a child from the sixth story of a burning building in Paris.

Enriched the English Language.

There recently died in England the man to whom the English language is indebted for the verb "to burke." In the year 1827 this man, whose name was Burke, discovered a way to make a lazy and congenial livelihood by killing people and selling their bodies to physicians for dissection. The practice was kept up until stopped by the hand of law. Thereupon the word "burking" came into use to denote killing for mercenary motives and, metaphorically, all political assaults upon character. The word has had sufficient life to get into the dictionaries and Burke will be handed down to an unlovely but eternal fame.

A Yankee Argument.

It was in the little village of C——, in the White mountains. A party of summer boarders from the hotel, including two inquisitive spinsters, had strolled down to the old ford on the P—— to view the sunset.

On the way home, meeting Farmer S——, aged fourscore and ten—the veritable and venerable "oldest inhabitant"—one of the old maids opened fire.

"Good evening, Mr. S——," she said. "How dreadfully damp it is down here! Do you think C—— is a healthy place?"

"Waal," replied he of the ninety summers, "I've lived till neow!"—Harper's Bazar.

The Worst of All.

The Czarina—Alex, there's a plot against us, right here in our own household.

The Czar (carelessly)—Oh, I'm getting used to that sort of thing.

The Czarina—But this is the most dastardly plot yet.

The Czar—What is it?

The Czarina (in awful whisper)—The cook is going to leave.—Life.

He Ought to Know.

Preacher (in eastern Kentucky)—Do you take this woman to be your wedded wife?

Backwoods Bridegroom—Wal, that ar's a purty question. Course, I take her ter be my wedded wife. Don't want 'er ter be some uther feller's wedded wife, o' course!—Philadelphia Press.

Would Do His Share.

Old Mr. Dadkins—You've been calling on my daughter for six months without saying a word to me; now I want to know your intentions.

Young Mr. Rising—That's all right, I'm willing to do the square thing, if you are. What are your intentions?—Puck.

The Last of Him.

Author (after handing MS. to editor) —This, sir, is going to make a hit! You see my lover dies of apoplexy, my mistress inhales coal gas and her father swallows rat poison. As for myself, the hero, I commit suicide, and—

Editor (with alacrity)—I'll take it.—Brooklyn Life.

Sure Recipe.

He was warned against the woman—
She was warned against the man,
And, ef that won't make a weddin',

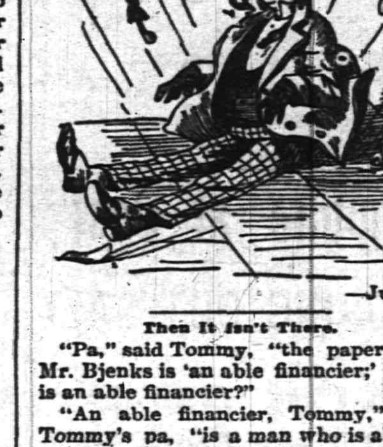
A LANDED GENTLEMAN.



—Jury.

Then It Isn't There.

"Pa," said Tommy, "the paper says Mr. Bjenks is 'an able financier;' what is an able financier?"

"An able financier, Tommy," said Tommy's pa, "is a man who is able to borrow two or three million dollars of other people's money without being expected to account for it until his estate comes to be settled up."—Somerville Journal.

The Same.

The hand that rocks the cradle,
As the years go speeding by,
Is the hand that spanks the baby;
And that makes the baby cry.
—Puck.

No Great Danger.

Adoring Youth—Hark! What's that!

Sweet Girl—That sounds like pa's footsteps.

Adoring Youth (moving uneasily)—Hadn't I better go?

Sweet Girl—No, stay. I don't think he'll try to borrow over five dollars of you the first time.—Good News.

A Lawyer's Fee.

"What's your fee for collecting this?"
He inquired with a nervous thrill;
And the lawyer calmly made reply:
"The whole amount of the bill."
—Puck.

Obeyed Literally.

Mrs. Naggsby (impatiently)—Nora, drop everything at once and come to me!

Nora—Yes, ma'am.

Mrs. Naggsby—Now, what's the baby crying for?

Nora—'Case I dropped him, mum.—Puck.

Pitiful.

It is hard for a singer to know
That no longer a voice she's got;
It is harder for hearers, though,
When she's lost it and knows it not.
—Brooklyn Life.

As to Natural History.

"There is one curious fact in natural history I never saw specially referred to."

"What is it?"

"That wherever you find the rooster you also find the crow."—Philadelphia Times.

Certainly Not.

Bingo (who lives next door to Wickstaff)—I have bought my little boy a drum and I hope he won't keep you awake.

Wickstaff—He won't keep me awake if he doesn't play on it.—Judge.

Proverbial Silence Broken.

"What is to be your place at dinner?" asked Bivalve, of his brother oyster.

"In a select circle, I hope," returned Half Shell; "I should be awfully cut up if I had to go in with everything in the common stuffing!"—Puck.

No Doubt of It.

"Yes," said Satan, as he complacently surveyed the scene, "I'm soul proprietor here."—Life.

WHITE-ROBED PEACE

The President's Message Dispels the War Clouds.

NO LONGER FEAR OF CONFLICT.

Chili's Answer to the Ultimatum Satisfactory to the United States.

Abstract of the Message and Correspondence—President Harrison Says That the Difficulty Can Now Be Settled By the Usual Methods Without the Granting of Additional Powers By Congress—Work at the Various Departments Assumes the Even Tenor of Its Way—Estimated Cost of the War Preparations $1,500,000, Very Little, if Any, of Which Will Be Lost.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The message of President Harrison announcing the satisfactory reply of Chili to the last peremptory note from Washington was read in both houses of Congress yesterday, and, with the correspondence accompanying it, was referred to the Foreign Affairs Committees.

As soon as delivered it was read in the Senate, but in the House it was delayed some time, until Benton McMillin had concluded a speech.

Mr. Sherman, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs, rising, said:

"I desire to say that I, and every member of the Senate, I believe, will heartily concur in the congratulations over the hopeful and honorable settlement to both parties in this unfriendly difficulty and unpleasant incident."

President Harrison, in his message, says, after some comment upon the correspondence, that "the treatment of the incident of the assault upon the sailors of the Baltimore is so conciliatory and friendly that I am of the opinion that there is a good prospect that the difference growing out of that serious affair can now be adjusted upon terms satisfactory to this Government by the usual methods and without special powers from Congress."

The correspondence accompanying the President's message is, in abstract, as follows:

The note of Minister Pedro Montt to Mr. Blaine, bearing the date of Jan. 23, is the first portion of the correspondence transmitted with the President's message to Congress. In this note Senor Montt acknowledges the receipt of a copy of the ultimatum forwarded to Mr. Egan. He also repeats the Chilian view of the case, and says that his government does not feel authorized to consider the occurrence at Valparaiso as due to any dislike of the United States uniform.

He reminds Mr. Blaine that a formal agreement had been reached that any differences between the two countries which might exist after the conclusion of the Chilian inquiry should be submitted to arbitration. He explains that the offensive note of Senor Matta had not been communicated to the United States Government, because it was a letter of instructions, of which our Government could properly have no cognizance. He says, however, that his government has expressed its willingness to strike out from that note any expressions which might be considered offensive.

He claims, on the other hand, that Commander Evan's dispatch was offensive to Chili, and was so recognized by Mr. Blaine. He reminds the Secretary of State of his admission that if Minister Egan was a persona non grata to Chili, that Government had the recourse of requesting his recall, and reiterates his statement of January 20, that Mr. Egan is now a persona non grata to Chili.

Mr. Blaine's reply is dated January 27. He reminds the Chilian Minister that while he recognized the legal proceedings at Valparaiso as necessary and proper, he frequently had occasion to complain of the delay in bringing them to a close.

The Secretary said that arbitration could only be proposed by some foreign power, not Chili.

In regard to the Matta note, Mr. Blaine said that a frank withdrawal was the only possible apology. He reminds Senor Montt that on several occasions he had complained of Mr. Egan unjustly, as he afterward admitted, and says that in his request for Mr. Egan's recall no reasons were assigned.

The third and last part of the correspondence consists of Minister Egan's dispatch inclosing the conciliatory answer of the Chilian Minister of Foreign Affairs, Louis Pereira, in which he acknowledges the receipt of the ultimatum; disclaims any hostility to Americans; admits that the quarrel at Valparaiso was of an unusually serious nature, and declares his willingness not to await the decision of the examining judge, and proposes to the United States Government that the case be submitted to the Supreme Court in Washington, to the end that the tribunal may determine, without appeal, whether their is any ground for reparation, and in what shape it should be made.

Minister Pereira says that he considers that Chili does not appreciate the gravity of the case, and hopes his expressions of unqualified regret will be satisfactory to the authorities at Washington. The offensive expressions in the Matta note, "employed through an error in judgment," are absolutely withdrawn by Chili. No steps will be taken in the matter of Mr. Egan's representation of the United States at Santiago without the accord of this country.

The white winged angel of peace hovers over the State, War and Navy Departments—quiet and calm, where but recently bustling activity was apparent everywhere, prevailed and pervaded even the corridors.

The hurrying to and fro of messengers and clerks, the constant stream of department officials going to Secretary Tracy's room for consultation, the secrecy with which the clerks handling the mysterious cipher dispatches were wrapt—all had disappeared and the several departments resumed the even tenor of its way.

Department officials, too, are thawed out, and it is now even possible to obtain the movements of United States men-of-war. It is officially stated this morning that Admiral Gherardi with the Philadelphia, Concord and Kearsarge, is now on his way to Montevideo there to join Admiral Walker's squadron, which has been ordered to await his coming. This information is in accordance with former statements.

If Admiral Gherardi stops at Bahia, as he will thence be recalled from his southern trip. It is not known at the Navy Department that he intended to stop at Bahia and the probability is that the first heard from him will be his arrival at Montevideo.

Some speculation is being indulged in as to the cost of war preparation. A conservative estimate places the expenses incurred by the Navy Department at $1,500,000.

The money expended, however, will not all be lost, in fact, but little of it will be. The extra provisions and coal purchased can hereafter be utilized.

A big item of expense has been the telegraph bills. The rate is $1.95 a word to and from Valparaiso and Washington and the Government has had to use the telegraph very freely in communicating with its officials. This bill alone will approximate $100,000.

Orders will be issued at once to stop the extra work at the navy yards and gun factories and bring the force of men at the several yards down to a peace basis.

Commodore Ramsay says that there is now afloat sufficient coal bound to the Pacific to last for a year or so.

There Was Powder in the Can.

NEWTON, N. J., Jan. 29.—George Hamler and Frank Grover, employed at Allen's granite quarry on the Waterloo Mountain, were heating some water in an old powder can yesterday, when it exploded with great force, throwing both men several feet away. Hamler was not seriously hurt, although a piece of flesh was cut out of his breast by a fragment of the can, the same penetrating his heavy overcoat and other clothing. Grover was more seriously injured, his left arm and side being badly bruised and his right eye rendered sightless.

Recommended to Mercy of the Court.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Jan. 29.—"Guilty, as indicted, but recommended to the mercy of the court," was the verdict returned by the jury in the case of Dr. H. H. Winans, charged with participating in the burglarizing of McCue's Hotel, at Rouseville, last August. The jury was out twenty-two hours. Mr. Winans has for many years been active in politics and church circles. He has nothing to say, and will be sentenced on Saturday.

Against Judge Woods.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—A delegation from Indianapolis will arrive in Washington to-day and appear before the Senate Committee on Judiciary to protest against favorable action on the nomination of Judge Woods to be Judge of the Fifth Judicial Circuit. If Senator Voorhees is well enough to leave his house, he will also appear and make his charges against Judge Woods.

Marie Decca Married.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Mary Sanders Johnston, known in this country and Europe as Marie Decca, the prima donna, was quietly married in this city yesterday to her manager, Frances Leon Chrisman, a young newspaper man. She was engaged to a wealthy citizen of Richmond, Va., but broke the engagement because he insisted upon her leaving the stage.

What Did the Mule Think?

MARSHALLTOWN, Ia., Jan. 29.—Burglars raided four business houses, including the postoffice, at Searsborough, during the night. Considerable jewelry, stamps, etc., but no money, was secured. The thieves took a mule from a barn and dragged the small safe belonging to A. M. Lause to the outer edge of the town and blew it open.

Killed His Wife.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 22.—Arthur Stocker, of No. 90 Sealinski street, shot his wife Kate in the head yesterday while walking on that street. She was taken home, where she died five minutes later. Stocker also shot his sister-in-law, seriously wounding her. The murderer was arrested.

Met Death Together.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 29.—A fire at Elton, a village seven miles southeast of this city, burned the residence of Samuel Kring and another building. Kring and his wife were burned up in their home. He was 79 years old and she 83. The fire originated from an overheated stove in the bedroom.

The Marriage Annulled.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jan. 29.—Judge Barnard has annulled the marriage of Dr. Charles A. Barnes to Mamie I. Barnes, giving the mother the custody of the child, which the court declared to be legitimate. Dr. Barnes is now under arrest at Saratoga Springs on a charge of larceny.

TRYING THE SLASHER

Dowd's Case Before the Court of General Sessions.

WANTED NO MEN WITH BEARDS.

So All the Jurors From No. 6 Have Mustaches Only.

The Prisoner Looks Sullen and Stares About Him Vacantly—He is on Trial for the Slashing of William Miller, but Another Indictment is to be Found Against Him for Cutting John Clark—The Testimony so Far.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Sullen looking, his eyes staring vacantly at the table in front of him, Henry G. Dowd, "Jack the Slasher," sat all day yesterday in the Court of General Sessions and listened to the recital of the way in which he was caught cutting the throat of William Miller, of No. 326 Cherry street, on Sunday morning, January 17.

Another indictment is to be found against Dowd for slashing John Clark, of Elizabeth, N. J., at midnight on January 9, while Clark was walking through Worth street. Clark escaped and identified Dowd as his assailant.

When jurors were being selected yesterday Dowd refused to have men with beards in the box, so from juryman No. 6 the faces of the jury are adorned with mustaches only.

Ex-Judge Gunning S. Bedford conducted the prosecution, while Maurice Meyer looked after Dowd's interests. The newly made roundsman, William H. Masterson, of the Oak street police station, who wears chevrons for the detection of Dowd while slashing Miller, was the first witness. He said he saw Dowd acting strangely before he attacked Miller and concluded to follow him. A few minutes later Dowd slashed Miller and Masterson gave chase. Masterson detailed the facts of the arrest.

Policeman James H. McCrarey corroborated Masterson. On the way to the station house he took the blood-stained razor from Dowd's pocket. In the station house Dowd said he did the cutting in self-defence, as Miller jostled against him. At Police Headquarters McCrarey said to Dowd: "It's strange you always cut Germans." Dowd replied that when he was a boy a German assaulted his mother, and since then the sight of a German made his blood boil. Dowd was asked how he knew Lawyer Carson, whose dead body was found on Christie street, was a German, he replied he looked at him twice.

Policeman McCrarey asked Dowd the same question about a man who had been slashed in Mulberry street and another in Oliver street. Policemen Kiernan, Busteed, Carter, and Barlow gave corroborative evidence as to the catching of Dowd and the prosecution closed.

Dr. Walter S. Fleming of the Insane Asylum at Flatbush, L. I., brought records to show that Henry G. Dowd was a patient in that institution twice. He was the first witness for the defense. The case will go on to-day.

The Celestials' New Year.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 29.—All over the United States the natives of the Celestial Empire have begun the celebration of the Chinese New Year, and the festivities will be continued for several days to come. In this city the celebration opened last night with a grand banquet given by Hip Lung, a wealthy Chinese merchant, and the guests at which included several bankers, together with the special inspectors of the Custom House and the special Treasury agents. He has imported for the occasion one million firecrackers of different kinds and colors, half a million squibs and candles, several cases of tea at $12 per pound, numerous cases of native Chinese wines, together with sharks' fins, dried ducks' legs and other delicacies.

Michigan's Only Pensioner Dead.

JACKSON, Mich., Jan. 29.—Edward Murphy, the only pensioner Michigan has ever had, has just died in this city. Murphy was sentenced to State prison here for life for a murder which was committed on shipboard while he was a sailor. He suffered patiently in solitary confinement until his mind gave way, and was then put to work on a contract. Years afterward the perpetrator of the murder confessed and Murphy was released, and as part repuration has since been receiving a pension from the State. A few days ago he was struck by a Michigan Central train and received injuries which caused his death.

Refused a Fifth Term.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—President H. R. W. Johnson, of Liberia, has just written to Mr. William E. Rothery, who represents that republic in this city, extending to him, as well as the diplomatic and consular corps of the republic throughout the world, his sincere thanks for the ability, integrity and sympathy with which they have served and promoted the interests of the republic. President Johnson declined a fifth nomination to his office which was tendered him.

ECONOMICALLY ADMINISTERED.

World's Fair Committee Satisfied With the Printing Expenses.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—The executive committee of the World's Columbian Exposition has approved by unanimous vote the report of the press and printing committee, as to whether or not the expenses of the department of publicity and promotion, with M. P. Handy as chief, could be reduced without detriment to the exposition, in view of the fact that other agencies have also been employed for promoting the same interests.

The committee finds that there has been an actual expenditure of about 64 per cent. less than the original estimate of the cost of the department, and about 40 per cent. less than that estimate as reduced by the finance committee.

The conclusions of the committee after a full review of the work of the department of publicity and promotion are that it "has been administered with an intelligent comprehension of the requirements of the exposition, on strictly business principles, and with due regard alike to economy and the highest efficiency. We believe that the expenses of the department cannot be materially reduced at the present time without detriment or injury to the exposition."

The committee also says "in view of the facts we cannot but express surprise at the perfection and thoroughness of the machinery thus organized."

PLANS FOR PRINCE GEORGE.

His Health and Movements Are Carefully Watched.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The health and movements of Prince George of Wales, now heir apparent to the throne, are carefully watched and daily reported to the papers. He is strongly attached to the navy, and the report that he intended to leave the service was premature.

It has been ascertained on good authority that the Prince desires to have a sole command, and that his wish will be complied with. He will shortly be appointed to the command of one of the finest cruisers in the service.

Before he takes his new command he will probably go on a tour of Egypt in the royal yacht Victoria and Albert until he has thoroughly recovered his health. The plan is that he is to cross the continent and embark at some port in the South of France.

The Admiral of the Mediterranean fleet will be instructed to accompany the Prince on the voyage

WANT INFORMATION.

The House Sub-Committee on Trusts Issues a Circular.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The following circular is self-explanatory:

"The Sub-Committee having in charge the preparation of a plan for the suppression of trusts, will be glad to have information from all quarters of the country giving the names of articles of general consumption, the manufacture, distribution, sale, or price of which is controlled by trusts, combinations, associations of any character. Information so furnished should be addressed to the Sub-Committee on Trusts, care of the Committee on Manufactures, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C."

Arrested for a Horrible Crime.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Jan. 29.—Emma Borley, a married woman, 53 years of age, has been brought here from Brooklyn by Chief of Police Hood. She is charged with commanding, procuring and abetting the rape of her daughter Flora, an attractive girl 13 years old, but well developed for her age. Edward J. Thomas, a traveling salesman and a married man, living in Chicago, is the other party implicated. He made frequent visits to this city, where the Borley family resided, until he learned that the authorities intended to punish them for the crime, when they fled before the warrant was issued, which was in last November, and sought refuge in Jersey City. Chief Hood, recently learning that they were in Brooklyn, followed them to that place and succeed in apprehending the woman.

Thieves Stole the Assets.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The failure of A. Peabody & Co., wholesale jewelers of 182 Broadway, which was announced yesterday, created a sensation on account of the cause to which it is attributed. The firm claims they were forced to suspend because thieves had robbed them of their assets. Their liabilities are placed at $75,000 and there is little left for the creditors. Five weeks ago, Mr. Peabody says, his son in St. Louis on a business trip, had a valise containing $25,000 worth of precious stones stolen. The thieves were arrested, but they had disposed of the gems and they were never recovered.

GAINING STRENGTH

Garza's Men Now Said to Number About 7,000.

WELL MOUNTED AND ARMED.

He Will Strike the First Blow Against Mexico About Feb. 1.

That Country on the Verge of the Most Desperate War it Has Ever Known—Garza Will Have at Least Two-thirds of the Mexican Population on His Side After the First Fight Takes Place—Bands of Recruits Daily Join the Revolutionists.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 29.—A dispatch has been received here from Del Rio, Tex., stating that Catarino Garza is now on the Mexican side of the river near that place and that he is at the head of an army of from 4,500 to 5,000 well-armed and mounted Mexican revolutionists.

Bands of from 25 to 100 are journeying there every day. It is further stated in the dispatch that Garza means fight and that the most desperate war Mexico has ever known will be opened about Feb. 1 by an attack by the Garza men on the town of Las Vegas, located just across the river from Del Rio.

Garza has another band in the Santa Rosa Mountain country of from 1,800 to 2,000 men, well-armed and mounted, under command of Gen. Francisco Salos, and it is a well-known fact among all the Mexicans who try to find out anything about the trouble that Garza will have at least two-thirds of the entire Mexican population on his side when the proper time comes to show up, which will be immediately after the first fight which will take place.

Yesterday 85 Mexicans in one band, well equipped for war, headed for the Rio Grande to join Garza, passed through Sonora, Sutton county, Texas.

There is great excitement all along the upper part of the boader, not only among the Mexicans but among the Americans as well.

Bands of the revolutionists meet at Sonora daily and organize. They are not molested by officers of the law and are permitted to proceed on their way to Mexican territory.

Porter, Minister to Italy, who, it is understood, will not return abroad, but will shortly send in his resignation.

Defrauded His Creditors.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 29.—J. E. Money, a Boyertown, Pa., tailor, who recently disappeared from that place, has been arrested here. Money is charged with defrauding his creditors, including a number of firms in this city, from whom he is alleged to have bought $3,000 worth of goods, which he sold in Trenton and Newark, N. J., for $900. He was arrested on the same charge several months ago.

Both Legs Amputated.

J., Jan. 29.—William Bennett, 25 years of age, was run over by the north bound freight train on the New Jersey Southern railroad here and had both of his legs so badly mangled that amputation was necessary. As the train approached Bennett's spirited horse became unmanageable and, despite Bennett's efforts to hold him, sprang over the gate and threw Bennett upon the track.

He will claim a pension under the General Disability act for rheumatism contracted in the service.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. M. E. Edgerton is still very ill.

Judson Overton, well known to a number of Plainfield people, is dead at his home, Patchogue, N. Y. The cause of his death was consumption. He leaves a wife who, when they were married, was the widow of David Demarest, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Demarest of this city.

A Pleasant Evening at the Crescent Avenue Chapel.

This evening at 8, in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church, the Young People's association will have a social gathering, and at 9 an informal reception in the parlors. There will be miscellaneous reading by Miss Adela Rankin, a gifted elocutionist, the power of whose talent is greatly heightened by her charm of manner and richness of voice. Miss Vinnie French will intersperse the programme by piano selections. All the congregation are invited to be present.

After having expended one thousand dollars for various medicines and with doctors, and growing worse all the while, I considered my case incurable. I was induced to try Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. After their use for six weeks I can eat meat without distress, a thing that has not occurred before for years. I believe I am nearly cured, and yet it seems too good to be true. Have no doubt but that much of the sleeplessness people complain of is caused by indigestion.—J. W. Drake, Centre Market, Newark, N. J.

The tug with the scow in tow reached Atlantic Dock, Brooklyn, at about 12:30 this morning. The tug Webster and scow No. 5 have not yet been heard from, and the belief gains ground that they both have gone to the bottom of the sea, with 12 men on board.

MABEL IS MARRIED NOW.

Her Parents Objected to the Match, So She Fled With Her Lover by Night.

To the friends of George R. Rockafellow, jr., son of the constable, it has been no secret, the past few days, that he intended to elope with Mabel, the fair young daughter of Montravelle S. Knight of 5 Arlington avenue. George did not hesitate to tell all the details of the proposed elopement, and the wonder is that so open a secret did not reach the ears of Mabel's parents.

Montravelle's business is that of sawing and planing. He has a comfortable home and an interesting family, and Mabel was the pride of his heart.

George is a printer by trade and a detective by profession. Mabel loved him, but her parents objected to the match.

Last evening Mabel went out, her parents supposing that she was going to spend the night with the family of Justice V. W. Nash. George met her by agreement, and the two left at about 8 o'clock, by train, for Westfield, where they were married.

They returned to Plainfield this morning, and announce that they will receive their friends at their home, 22 West Third street, this evening.

The marriage ceremony of last night was performed by the Rev. Wesley Martin, at the parsonage of the Westfield M. E church. Mr. and Mrs. Rockafellow's friends wish them many happy days.

Campanini Cheered.

A large and enthusiastic audience assembled last evening at the Casino, to hear the second concert of the course given by the New York Philharmonic club. The concert, as a whole, was as worthy of commendation as the former one, though there was, perhaps, not as much variety in the selections given by the club—there being less bright music and more in a minor strain. That this was felt by the audience was evinced by the, at times, almost exaggerated applause that followed a selection that was at all sparkling, while some more worthy of note were allowed to pass, with few plaudits. The programme was as follows:

Sextette.......................Theodore Gouvy
Pastorale.
Intermezzo.
Larghetto.
Rondo.
(Composed for and dedicated to the N. Y. Philharmonic Club.)
Aria—Salve dimora casta, "Faust".....Gounod
Signor Italo Campanini.
Violoncello Solo—
{a. Adagio.....................G. Golterman
{b. Vito.........................D. Popper
Mr. Ernst Mahr.
Quartette, XII, D. Minor.....................Mozart
Minuetto.
Allegro ma non troppo.
Two Violins, Viola and Violoncello.
Fantaisie—"Duo" for Two Flutes......Doppler
Miss May Lyle Smith, Mr. Eugene Weiner.
{a. "Traumeri"......................Schumann
{b. "Souvenir de Paris"...............E. Gillet
Romanze—"Carmen"..........................Bizet
Signor Italo Campanini.
"Danse des Bohemiens"....................Godard
N. Y. Philharmonic Club.

Miss May Lyle Smith possesses unusual talent. In her duet with Mr. Weiner, she took the leading position and held her own bravely. Throughout the selection, the tones from the two instruments were held together as one. The performers received a deserved encore.

Campanini could hardly have received a more enthusiastic reception, were these his palmiest days. It was indeed a pleasure to his friends to be assured that the report was true that he had regained somewhat what he had lost. He did indeed sing much better than upon his last appearance here a few years ago. He received an encore for both numbers on the programme, and was cheered at the last. His rendering of the operatic selections showed that he had not forgotten how. The 'cello solos of Mr. Mahr were both well rendered and very pleasing.

The concerted selections were, as always, beautifully played. The sextette by Gouvy was very fine and the quartette of Mozart was especially pleasing, while "Traumeri" is always good.

—Mrs. E. M. Wittemore, of the New York city "Door of Hope", will give a Bible reading in the parlors of the Park Avenue Baptist church Tuesday afternoon at 3, and at Reform Hall Tuesday evening at 8.

A MUSIN TREAT.

He Is Four Times on the Programme Amidst a Lot of Other Good Things.

The following programme has been selected for the second appearance of Ovide Musin and his company, at Music Hall, Saturday evening, February 6.

The make-up of this programme is in accordance with the suggestions of the management in this city—Mr. Musin consenting to four solos besides the obligato with his wife, and as many recalls as he may be favored with.

Mr. Dupuy will sing "The Palms" as only he can sing it. His appearance here before was his first in America, and he was not at home. He has since been one of the great successes of the company all over the United States.

Miss Parmater's solo will be Goring-Thomas's "Summer Night"; Mr. Senger will sing an air from "Magic Flute"; and Mr. Scharf will play Rubinstein's Tarantelle. But the programme can speak for itself:

The Wedding of Clarence Bowen.

As announced in The Press two weeks ago, the marriage of Miss Roxana A. Wentworth, daughter of the late John Wentworth of Chicago, to Clarence W. Bowen, brother Henry E. Bowen of this city, took place at the New England church, Chicago, at noon yesterday. The Rev. James G. Johnson, D. D., pastor of the church, performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Franklin W. Fisk, president of the Chicago Theological seminary. The wedding was a social event, and the beautifully decorated church was crowded with representatives of the best society.

Herbert W. Bowen, United States Consul at Barcelona, Spain, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Messrs. Lispenard Stewart, William E. D. Stokes, James Varnum of New York; Arthur Hatch, William Reid, Sibley Carhart, Franklin Bowen of Brooklyn; Henry H. Walker, Pierrepont Isham, and Edward Blatchford of Chicago.

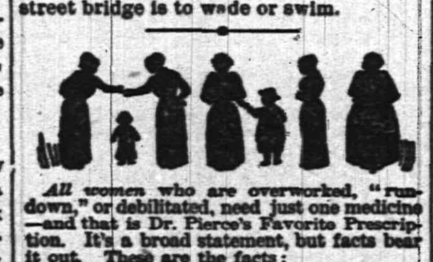
The bride and groom took a train for the South. The bride is one of the richest women in Chicago, having inherited a fortune of several millions from her father.

Out on the Fellow Who Jokes on Sacred Things.

He who is permitted to perpetrate "Editorials", through the Courier, upon a long-suffering public, has scrawled some pretty bad things in weeks past, but it would seem that he has at last reached the limit of execrable abomination. When one gets so depraved that he can jest in cold type about God, and print his mess of words as a smart and "cute" thing, he must be a hardened wretch, and it is time his "editorializing" was "called in". What do the Courier's readers think of such a blasphemous joke as that which describes a gambling den and tells how "none of the party held a hand that could match the hand of the Almighty"! And why does the editor of the Courier permit such depraving stuff to enter the columns of his "clean family paper"?

Only Good Swimmers Can Go That Way.

While the Plainfield councilmen are considering the Liberty street bridge nuisance, they might also look into the matter of remedying the nuisance at the Washington street bridge. During heavy rains the water covering the sidewalk under the bridge is knee-deep—and it's two feet deeper in the roadway. The trouble ought to be remedied, and the street made passable. People don't as a rule like to halt in the midst of a rainstorm and wait for the floods to subside before they can get home. Yet the only other alternative at the Washington street bridge is to wade or swim.



All women who are overworked, "run-down," or debilitated, need just one medicine—and that is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's a broad statement, but facts bear it out. These are the facts:

If you're a weak and delicate woman, then the "Favorite Prescription" builds you up; if you suffer from any of the painful disorders and derangements peculiar to your sex, it relieves and cures. It invigorates the system, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and strength. All the chronic weaknesses, irregularities, and disturbances known as "female complaints" are completely and permanently cured by it.

These are facts, and they're strong enough to warrant the makers in guaranteeing their remedy. If it fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. No other medicine for women is sold on such terms. That proves that nothing else can be "just as good."

GOOD-BYE, OLD GRIP!

I'm Goin' Out To-Morrow.

The gods let slip that fiendish grip
Upon me last week Sunday—
No fiercer storm than racked my form
E'er swept the Bay of Fundy;
But, now, good-bye
To drugs, say I—
Good-bye to gnawing sorrow;
I'm up to-day,
And, whoop, horay!
I'm going out to-morrow!

What aches and pain in bones and brain
I had, I need not mention;
It seemed to me such pangs must be
Old Satan's own invention;
Albeit I
Was sure I'd die.
The doctor reassured me—
And true enough,
With his vile stuff
He ultimately cured me.

As there I lay in bed all day,
How fair outside looked to me!
A smile so mild old Nature smiled
It seemed to warm clear through me.
In chastened mood
The scene I viewed,
Inventing, sadly solus,
Fantastic rhymes
Between the times
I had to take a bolus.

Of quinine slugs and other drugs
I guess I took a million—
Such drugs as serve to set each nerve
To dancing a cotillion;
The doctors say
The only way
To rout the grip instanter
Is to pour in
All kind of sin—
Similibus curantur!

'Twas hard; and yet I'll soon forget
Those ills and cures distressing;
One's future lies 'neath gorgeous skies
When one is convalescing!
So now, good-bye
To drugs, say I—
Good-bye, thou phantom Sorrow!
I'm up to-day,
And, whoop, hooray!
I'm going out to-morrow.

A Great Record Breaker.

All the fast runs of the world have been eclipsed by the great record-breaking train of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad. Its time is 436½ miles in 425¾ minutes. This "Empire State Express" is already famous as the fastest regular train in the world. Its unparalleled speed, beauty, and sumptuousness of appointments, have been made the subject of an interesting and artistic booklet, richly illustrated, which will be mailed, on receipt of stamp to pay postage, to any address. It gives the history of other great runs, valuable information for reaching the World's Fair, and other useful knowledge. The illustrations of train scenery, etc., are superb. The New York Central is the direct route to Niagara Falls and to the Columbian Exposition. Write to George H. Daniels, general passenger agent, Grand Central station, for information and pamphlets.

A Lawyer Interprets the Scriptures.

J. H. VanWinkle gave a lecture on the Bible, under the auspices of the literary committee of the Trinity church Christian Endeavor society, last evening, in the church parlors. He is a fine Bible scholar, and his lecture, which gave evidence of careful research, was highly interesting and instructive. Preceeding the lecture there was quartette singing by Miss Mills, Miss Gillem, Mr. Martin and Mr. Moore, with Miss Alice Smith as accompanist. Miss Mills also read Yatman's sketch on "How to Mark Your Bibles".

A sensible woman will not fail to keep a bottle of Salvation Oil on hand for men's cuts and bruises.

Practical, Ably Edited, and the Leading Authority.

The best weekly agricultural paper is undoubtedly The Cultivator and Country Gentleman, which has been established forty years, and which now contains more than a thousand pages in each annual volume, presenting a larger amount and variety of reading matter than ever before—involving, together with other improvements, constantly increasing expenditure by the publishers. Notwithstanding this, its subscription price remains the same as before, $2 50 a year, and the publishers continue largely-reduced club rates for 1892.

In wide range and practical value of contents, in extent and ability of correspondence, in quality of paper and style of publication, The Country Gentleman occupies the first rank. It devotes its chief space to farm crops and processes, horticulture and fruit growing, live stock and dairying, while it also includes all minor departments of rural interest, such as the poultry yard, entomology, bee keeping, greenhouse and grapery, veterinary replies, farm questions and answers, fireside reading, domestic economy, and a summary of the news of the week. Its market reports are unusually complete, and much attention is paid to the prospects of the crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—when to buy and when to sell. It is liberally illustrated, and is intended to supply, in a continually increasing degree, and in the best sense of the term, a live agricultural newspaper. Its editors, in addition to their own labors, are regularly assisted by an extensive corps of special correspondents, and regular contributors, among whom are included many leading agriculturists here and abroad, and by fully a thousand occasional and voluntary writers from among the best farmers of all parts of the country—eminently practical men, who discuss practical questions from the stand-point of actual experience; and it thus constantly reflects the actual condition of the husbandry of the United States and of the world at large. It has done as much as all other journals combined to introduce and disseminate improved live stock of every kind, and has contributed its full share in every other department of the country's remarkable agricultural progress. Luther Tucker and Son are the publishers at Albany, N. Y.

Victory for Mr. Gise.

The arbitrators chosen to settle the claim of Edward Schenck vs. Firman Gise have rendered their award. Mr. Schenck claimed $250 damages for loss of horse, wagon and harness, etc., which he claimed that he had sustained by reason of carelessness of Gise in leaving his stone wagon in the road over night, which Schenck collided with on the morning of Nov. 29, and which resulted in a general smash-up. The horse ran away and ran off the bridge near Evona, in Union county, and was killed. Immediately after the occurrence Mr. Gise offered as a matter of compromise to settle the damages on a reasonable basis, but Schenck refused to accept anything less than $250. This Gise declined to pay, but sought his counsel, Jackson & Codington, who consented that the matter be left to arbitrators to be mutually chosen and agreed upon. The case was hotly contested before the arbitrators, and resulted in an award of $29 against Gise. The defense was contributory negligence. W. A. Codington represented Schenck.

One of the Best and Handsomest.

The February Peterson's is one of the handsomest and best of the month's magazines. It opens with a showy fashion plate and fine full page engravings, one of which, "The Belated Valentine", illustrates a beautiful poem by Minna Irving. "Up and Down East Anglia", by Roslyn K. Brooke, is an interesting account of English Norfolk and Suffolk, with a series of excellent illustrations. "An Involuntary Elopement", by Carrie B. Morgan, is a dramatic story of western life, effectively illustrated. Another capitally illustrated paper is "The Children's Fancy Dress Party", which gives clear directions for making the costumes at a small cost. "His Mistake", by Kate Wallace Clements, is a charming story. "The Confusion of Philosophy" will add to Alice Maude Ewell's rapidly-growing reputation. "Folk Lore of Colored People", by Mrs. E. A. Matthews, is a very charming paper. The remainder of the contents are in keeping with the articles mentioned, and the whole get-up of the number would do credit to a periodical double the price. Terms, $2 a year. Address, Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Boroughites Opposed to Annexation.

(From The Somerville Unionist-Gazette.)

The Unionist-Gazette is in receipt of a communication from a prominent citizen of North Plainfield, in which he states that the best citizens and largest taxpayers of the borough are opposed to having the place set off into Union county. They think it means ultimate annexation to the city of Plainfield, with an increase of taxes. It would, undoubtedly, take from Somerset a very large revenue, which the county can ill-afford to lose. It is at least right that the people of the borough be consulted before such a thing is permitted by the Somerset representatives in the Legislature.

—Sealed proposals for furnishing the city with crushed stone, are advertised for in another column.

Physicians say that there is no remedy for consumption. In some cases this may be correct. We know, however, of many cures made by Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, and we will guarantee relief.

Abolish Sidewalk Precipices.

It may have been a necessary thing to cut away some of Plainfield's streets in conformity to the old grade maps, but complaints continue to come in from the excavated quarters. Just now considerable fault is being found with those who have to walk along the sidewalks at Church and Third streets. When one comes to a crossing he takes an unexpected drop of two or three feet, and is disagreeably jarred. The roadway has been scooped out like a railroad cut, and the sidewalks are so high above that there is danger of fractured limbs from the unlooked for precipitous plunge which pedestrians are subjected to by the existing conditions.

Took Up Their Wives' Quarrel.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 29.—Theodore Flesh was shot and killed by his brother-in-law, John L. Craig, here. Their wives had quarrelled, and Flesh attacked Craig with an axe, when the latter shot him in the neck and killed him.

The Vanderlyn Family Extinct.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Jan. 29.—Katherine Vanderlyn, niece of John Vanderlyn, the artist who painted Washington's portrait and the "Landing of Columbus," is dead, aged 67. She was the last surviving member of the family.

Consolidation of Coal Interests.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Negotiations are progressing in this city, it is said, for the consolidation of the coal interests of the Colorado Coal and Iron Company and the Colorado Fuel Company, the two wealthiest corporations engaged in mining coal in Colorado. The Colorado Coal and Iron Company has a capital of $10,000,000, and the Colorado Fuel Company $5,000,000. Six thousand men will be brought under one management.

Two Acquittals.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 29.—In the United States District Court the jury in the cases of John Donavan, of Oswego, charged with cashing a check intended for another man of the same name, and Chas. W. Hartung, arrested in Rochester for selling liquor without a license, returned a verdict of acquittal, after which court adjourned sine die.

May Die From His Burns.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 29.—Frederick Scharinghausen, aged 18, went to wash his hands with gasoline, holding a lighted candle in one hand, in Berlo's plumbing shop, on Mulberry street. An explosion followed and Scharinghausen was badly burned about the hands, face and body and all the hair burned from his head. He may die.

London Maritime Exchange.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Several meetings of shipping men have been held here recently at the Ship and Turtle, with the object of establishing a regular maritime exchange in London, similar to the American institution. Hitherto London shipping men have had no building of their own. All the big Atlantic companies have come into the scheme.

Support Springer's Bill.

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—The American Wool Consumers' Association has prepared a petition to Congress in support of the Springer bill. It is stated in the document that the act of 1890 "aggravates the worst features of former acts in relation to wool." It is also alleged that "the act has forced the use of cotton and other adulterants."

Palmer's High Masonic Degree.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—In the presence of a select gathering of high Masons the Thirty-third Degree was conferred last evening on Hon. Thomas Palmer of Michigan, president of the World's Fair, by Henry L. Palmer of Milwaukee, head of the Scottish Rite Masonic jurisdiction in the United States. A banquet followed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Commissioner of Pensions Raum appeared before the House Appropriation Committee yesterday and recommended that $146,956,000 be appropriated for pensions for the fiscal year of 1892.

Judge Remy in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Judge-Advocate-Genetal Remy of the Navy Department, who took the testimony of the Baltimore's sailors at San Francisco, has returned to Washington.

Queen Sophia-Louisa Has the Grip.

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—Queen Sophia-Louisa of Saxony is suffering from influenza. She is about 60 years of age.

Minister Reid Not to Resign.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—At the American Legation in Paris it is denied that Minister Reid intends to resign.

Some Monster Dams.

It is to be hoped that the gigantic dams which are being erected in the west for irrigating purposes are being constructed solidly enough to insure the safety of the people living in the valleys below them. Persons who have never seen an irrigating dam have but a slight conception of their immensity. The following are the dimensions of four of the largest that have been completed within the past year: 1. The Walnut Grove dam, near Prescott, A. T., 110 feet high, inclosing 750 acres, with a capacity of 4,000,000,000 gallons. 2. The Merced dam, Central California, 1 mile long, 60 feet high, 650 acres; capacity, 5,500,000,000 gallons. 3. Sweetwater River dam, near San Diego, Cal., 90 feet high, 725 acres; capacity, 6,000,000,000 gallons. 4. The Bear Valley dam, in San Bernardino county, Cal., is 60 feet high, inclosing 2,250 acres, and will hold 10,000,000,000 gallons of water.

Insuperable.

"What is your objection to Charles, papa?" asked Maud.

"He plays poker," said papa.

"But so do you. You played with him last night."

"I know it—but he won."—Puck.

What He Learned.

Quelton—I've been courting a Boston girl lately.

Swelly—Did you learn anything?

Quelton (sadly)—Oh, yes, I know beans when the bag's open.—Detroit [illegible]

THE COMING ARISTOCRACY.

Quiet Pete—What's the matter, Blinkey, business slack?

Blinkey—No; but I hates to git done up. Two famblies skipped last night from de corner flat, owin' me t'ree months' rent.—Puck.

Musical Item.

"What a pity it is that women do not wear feathers," remarked a New York society man to a friend.

"They do."

"But I mean feathers growing all over them, as in the case with canaries and parrots."

"Why do you entertain such a singular wish?"

"You know birds moult several times a year, don't you?"

"Yes."

"And while they are shedding their feathers they don't sing?"

"Just so."

"Well, I've got a sister who is training to join a church choir."—Texas Siftings.

A Hint to the Wise.

"So you are going to write to the girl's father to ask him for her, are you?"

"Yep."

"Why don't you go and see him in person?"

"The mail is better, I guess."

"I think not."

"But I do."

"Come off. Why is it?"

"Oh, well, the old gent won't choke the letter, or hit it in the neck, or kick it downstairs, or anything like that, don't you know?"

"Oh!"—Detroit Free Press.

A Cat Colloquy.

Mouser—See here, Maltie, you are playing a little too rough! You yanked out a bit of my coat that time.

Maltie—Excuse me. I only intended it for a joke.

Mouser—Yes; but it was rather fur fetched.—Yonkers Gazette.

A Reasonable Explanation.

"I don't understand," said the east side tragedian, "why the Jews never attend my performances."

"They never did," retorted the man who was leading the attack on the free lunch, "have much use for ham."—Brooklyn Life.

What On?

In Germany teachers are very poorly paid. At a teachers' festival somebody proposed the toast: "Long live our school-teachers!"

"What on?" asked a cadaverous-looking specimen, rising in his seat.—Texas Siftings.

The Point of View.

"What a world of change this is!" sighed Mr. Billus, looking over an old newspaper.

"And how little I get hold of!" sighed Mrs. Billus, looking over her old gown.—Chicago Tribune.

The St. Louis Girl.

"What would you do if you were in my shoes?" asked the perplexed Chicago girl of her St. Louis friend.

"Change them for a smaller pair," was the consoling reply.—Detroit Free Press.

No Time for Delay.

The Priest—This man is so tipsy he can hardly stand. I can't marry you to him unless he is in his normal state.

The Bride—Faith, thin, ye'll have to hurry, for its soberin' up he is this minnut.—Life.

She Did It.

Brine—I don't see how you manage to get along with that wife of yours.

Henpecke—I don't manage. She does.—Detroit Free Press.

The Economy of Health.

Pater (sternly)—Now, children, I don't want you to get sick any more until that last measles-account is settled with the doctor.—Judge.

The Kicked Might Kick.

Don't kick a man when he is down,
And in the mudhole slowly sticking,
Because he may get up again
And want himself to do some kicking!
—Philadelphia Press.

Not Guilty.

"There goes poor Jones—bankrupt ever since his trial."

"Did he break the law?"

"No; the law broke him?"—Puck.

And a good lamp must be simple; when it is not simple it is not good. Simple, Beautiful, Good—these words mean much, but to see "The Rochester" will impress the truth more forcibly. All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. Like Aladdin's of old, it is indeed a "wonderful lamp," for its marvelous light is purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light and more cheerful than either.
Look for this stamp—THE ROCHESTER. If the lamp dealer hasn't the genuine Rochester, and the style you want, send to us for our new illustrated catalogue, and we will send you a lamp safely by express—your choice of over 2,000 varieties from the Largest Lamp Store in the World.

THE MAN OF FASHION.

In the Bachelor Apartments of New York's Rich Young Men.

A View at the Tewksbury Rooms—Fifty Thousand Dollars in One Apartment—How to Choose—What to Buy.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

It is in New York the bachelor enjoys life to the utmost; New York, with its magnificently-arranged apartment and clubhouses, where every need of the single man may find its proper satisfaction. New York, with its choice of location, its vast variety for selection, seems to have reached almost perfection in the way of making a bachelor feel at home in this world. If you are a man of fashion, single, and want to live up to a big income you can do one of three things—live at the club, at your hotel or take a bachelor's suite in one of the swell apartment houses that are found in Fifth avenue, Broadway and some of the fashionable side streets. The best plan is the last-named, and you will find just what will please you without long search. Bachelor dining-rooms are out of style. In fact, in but two or three of the swell apartment houses is there such a thing as a dining-room for the bachelors, and in these cases it is invariably apart from the suite. What you want if your taste is luxurious are five rooms—a bed-chamber, a library, a drawing-room, a smoking-room and a bathroom. You will find about five swell apartment houses in New York that have arrangements for such extensive suites. All the rest are divided up into three-room apartments—four with the bathroom—but all large and roomy, with plenty of light and air. If a suite you have looked at is satisfactory, as far as space and arrangement are concerned, don't fail to investigate the two necessary adjuncts, the right kind of light and the right kind of ventilation. If possible have four windows in the suite, with south or east exposure. Like all rules this has its exceptions, and surroundings should always be taken into account. But proper ventilation is the very essence of needed repose and security. Don't forget to ask about it and to examine into it. With the modern appliances no swell apartment need be without a thorough system of ventilation. When you have settled these questions prepare to furnish your rooms. You can spend two hundred and fifty dollars or you can spend fifty thousand dollars. There are styles of both and at all prices between these extremes in New York city.

Lewis G. Tewksbury, the banker, has perhaps the richest bachelor suites in the city—perhaps the richest in the country. He lives in the "Wilbraham" on West Thirtieth street, and has filled his cosy rooms with the costliest bric-a-brac, the richest of rugs and with fine tapestries, statuary and paintings. As you open the door leading into a little vestibule the music-box on the other side welcomes you with an air from Stradella or Aida. You are in a perfumed bower of roses, and you enter entranced into the magnificently furnished reception room. A vast globe in the center of the room throws out vari-colored lights, giving a somber hue even to the Venus de Medici at the side, and a darker shade to the red Mephistopheles, whose hand reaches temptingly toward the white marble. Damask curtains hang from the windows and between the rooms. An oil painting by Edward Gay covers one side of the wall, and on the other side bronze armor, swords and pikes of ancient pattern give Mr. Tewksbury's reception-room a very warlike aspect. The chairs are upholstered in velvet. Luxury is given a humorous turn by the presence of a life-sized darky jockey sitting astride a big drum and holding a grinning skeleton toward you. By touching a spring in this curious object you are enabled to help yourself to a glass of chianti, a good cigar or a cigarette, as you may feel inclined, all these good things having awaited your preference in its skull. The bed-chamber is royal in its magnificence. A black fur rug covers the floor. At one end is a mirror reaching almost to the wall. A spring is touched and, presto, here is the bed in which Mr. Tewksbury rests his weary head. His toilet outfit, brushes, etc., are all silver backed. At the side is the tie rack, covered, of course, in which repose the ribbons of all hues and designs that at different times lack resplendent on the immaculate shirt-front of Mr. Tewksbury. Four bath robes adorn one wall of his toilet room. His drawing-room is as opulently furnished as the others. The walls are frescoed, and statuary and bric-a-brac of all kinds adorn every nook of the chamber. Mr. Tewksbury's smoking-room is fashioned after that of the famous Achmet, of Turkey. Divans are arranged about the room, a sky-blue canopy sheds a soft light, while palms and ferns are tastefully arranged in the center, and the bronze figure of a woman looks shyly at you from either side. From the ceiling hang weird shapes—a dragon, open-mouthed snakes, a boar's head with threatening tusks, and what not that go to make up a good case of delirium tremens. These are the rooms on which, including the cost of paintings, Mr. Tewksbury has spent something like fifty thousand dollars. If you have that much, or but ten thousand dollars to spend, take a look at what the young banker has done and you will be approaching perfection in the way of bachelor's apartments.

Up in the Croisic flats on Fifth avenue and Twenty-sixth street, where the old Berry Wall apartments are, you will find things arranged more modestly and with perhaps more genuine good taste. The Berry Wall apartments are now in the possession of Alfred Beadleson, the son of the brewer, and he has furnished them elegantly, but without profusion. In Jack Bloodgood's apartment at the Alpine there is a little more profusion, but exquisite taste. The beautiful chiffoniers, a long pier glass, four rugs, five velvet covered chairs, a canopied couch hung in blue satin, three or four oil paintings, a center card-table, a massive carved oak sideboard, and you have a reception and drawing room furnished with all that is needed for the comfort of its occupant. Ben Ali Hoggin occupies a double apartment at the Wilbraham. His six rooms are arranged without any great display of wealth, although the pictures which adorn the walls give one an insight into Mr. Hoggin's way of thinking. They are all excellent pictures of the great animals he owns. In the Holland house there is a bachelor's floor. The most elegant suite there is occupied by Messrs. Buckley and J. B. Campbell. Here the judgment of the hotel owners was allowed supremacy, and as a result a model bachelor's apartment is presented. There are two entrances to each suite, one at the bed-chamber side and the other into the parlor. Two bedrooms and a library or smoking-room complete the apartments. The ceilings are handsomely frescoed and a chiffonier, a pier glass, a couch, finely upholstered chairs, moquette rugs and damask curtains, relieved with a background of white lace, complete this model room. The billiard room on this floor leads off from all the bachelor apartments. In this respect the Holland house owners have added a feature which is sadly missed by the man of fashion in the regular bachelor apartment houses. C. P. Diefendorf, whose apartments are plainly but neatly furnished at the Wilbraham, has solved one problem for the man of fashion. His excellent taste is displayed in the adornment of a mantelpiece. The massive bronze clock is flanked by bronze statuettes, while the mirror in the background is rounded, reaching almost to the ceiling. The woodwork about it is carved and ornamented with exquisite taste. On either side hang silken curtains. It is understood that John W. Mackey, Jr., is to have the model bachelor apartments of the city at the Belgravia, corner of Fifth avenue and Forty-ninth street. He has taken three rooms and they are to be modeled after a famous Paris design, of which the details have not yet been given out.

ALBERT EDWARD TYRRELL.

A GOOD RULE.

There Are Times When Arguing a Case Doesn't Help It.

A rule for living happily with others is to avoid having stock subjects of disputation. It mostly happens, when people live much together, that they come to have set topics around which, from frequent dispute, there is such a growth of angry words, mortified vanity and the like that the original subject of difference becomes a standing subject for quarrel, and there is a tendency in all minor disputes to drift down to it. Again, if people wish to live well together, they must not hold too much to logic, and suppose that everything is to be settled by sufficient reason. Dr. Johnson saw this clearly with regard to married people when he said: "Wretched would be the pair above all names of wretchedness who should be doomed to adjust by reason, every morning, all the minute details of a domestic day." But the application should be much more general than he made it. There is no time for such reasonings, and nothing that is worth them. And when we recollect how two lawyers or two politicians can go on contending, and that there is no end of one-sided reasoning on any subject, we shall not be sure that such contention is the best mode for arriving at truth. But certainly it is not the way to arrive at good temper.—N. Y. Ledger.

THE NEW SECRETARY.

Stephen B. Elkins, Who Has Just Been Given the War Portfolio.

Stephen B. Elkins was born in Perry county, O., September 26, 1841. He removed to Missouri when very young; was graduated at Missouri university in 1860 and studied law. He served in 1862-3 as a captain in the Seventy-seventh Missouri regiment, and in the latter year went to New Mexico, where he was admitted to the bar in 1864. He also engaged in mining and stock-raising there and accumulated a fortune. He was a member of the territorial legislature in 1865-6, attorney general of the territory in 1868-9, and United States attorney in 1870-3. He was then elected a delegate to congress and served two terms, from 1873 to 1877.

Mr. Elkins was a member of the National republican committee from 1872 to 1884. He took an active part in the Chicago convention of 1884 that nominated James G. Blaine for the presidency, and earnestly supported him in the canvass. Since 1884 Mr. Elkins has devoted all his energies to the development of his extensive coal, railroad and timber interests in West Virginia, in which he has taken a deep interest. He spends a good portion of his time there, but makes frequent business trips to New York, where he also has business interests. Mr. Elkins is the president of the West Virginia railway. He is a son-in-law of ex-Senator Henry G. Davis, who represented West Virginia in the senate for several years.

S. B. ELKINS, SECRETARY OF WAR.

On the Continent.

Chicago Man (to stranger)—How are you? Nice day to-day. Where do you hail from?

Stranger (a German prince)—Sir, I do not hail; I reign.—Judge.

"FIRST OF ALL THE NEWS."

THE NEW YORK RECORDER FOR 1892.

Published every day in the year at No. 21 PARK ROW.

BY THE NEW YORK RECORDER COMPANY.

THE RECORDER begins the new year with more readers than any 2-cent Republican newspaper published in the United States. Within less than one year it has leaped to the front rank among the newspapers not only of America but of the World.

It has been first in originality, enterprise and news gathering. It is the most complete chronicler of the world's workings to be found.

THE RECORDER is wading straight into the future with the purpose not only of being the best Republican paper published, but the best paper of any sort on the top of the globe.

The women have devoted to themselves a page of women's news and women's fancies. It is the "only" Women's Page in several senses. It is written by women, or women, and it is tempered with wisdom and edited with knowledge.

There is no paper like a home newspaper. THE RECORDER is the Home Newspaper of the Metropolis. It has more subscribers who read it in their family circle than any other paper printed, and this list grows fast.

Every day somebody outside of the routine of news is blessed with attention. Able writers who can talk sense produce THE RECORDER'S "special daily features".

"Bowery's Column" is found only in THE RECORDER. That skilled observer never wrote more crisply or entertaining ly than in this column. It depicts "Gotham day by day" in vivid colors.

The fame of the witty Marquise de Fontenoy has gone around the world since THE RECORDER gave her letters on the frailties and foibles of European life to the public. The censors of foreign courts—those executioners of news in the monarchies—have expurgated the letters of the Marquise found in the continental mails, but in this free land the letters will continue to divert and delight everybody.

Cholly Knickerbocker's knowledge of the pleasures and woes of the Four Hundred is revealed daily in THE RECORDER. There is nothing like it or even approaching it in any other New York newspaper.

In the great Presidential campaign of 1892 THE RECORDER will "first of all get the news". Full and fair reports of political proceedings will characterize its columns. Its politics is Republican, its news non-partisan.

SALUTE OUR FLAG!

If Chili Does So All Will Be Well.

THE CABINET HAS SO DECIDED.

Instructions to Minister Egan in Regard to Senor Pereira's Note.

As the Replies of Chili Are Entirely Satisfactory This Government Will Leave the Matter of Reparation to the Sufferers of the Assault on the Sailors of the Baltimore to Chili's Sense of Justice and Right—An Unconfirmed Report That Minister Montt Intends to Resign—Captain Schley's Views on the Situation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The President and his Cabinet have decided that Minister Egan shall be instructed to say to Senor Pereira, Chilian Minister of Foreign Affairs, that his reply to the note of Secretary Blaine of Jan. 21 indicates a desire on the part of the Chilian Government to satisfy the United States of its feeling of regret over the assault upon the sailors of the Baltimore at Valparaiso.

The replies as to the Matta note of Dec. 11, and the request for the recall of Minister Egan, the latter will be directed to say, are entirely satisfactory.

Such being the case, the United States will leave the matter of reparation to the sufferers by the assault to Chili, to act according to her sense of justice and right. And with a salute of the United States flag, the incident will be considered closed by this Government.

Until Chili makes some offer of reparation, of course there will be nothing to arbitrate, as no points of difference exist. The offer may be so satisfactory that arbitration on that score will not be necessary.

At the Cabinet meeting the contents of a dispatch from Minister Egan were made known. It is said that Mr. Egan confirmed the story reported from Santiago, that members of the Chilian Government had stated that Senor Montt, the Chilian Minister at Washington, had misled his government, which had the effect of seriously compromising the government in its dealing with the controversy.

A report is current that Senor Montt has intimated his intention of leaving Washington, but it can not be confirmed. It is believed that if the Chilian Minister has not already given notice of this intention, he will soon do so.

In diplomatic circles the opinion is held that after the receipt of such a letter as that addressed by the Secretary of State to the Senor, the latter could hardly remain persona grata, and being aware of that fact, he would naturally sever relations with the country.

What Captain Schley Says.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Captain Schley, the commander of the Baltimore, in an interview with the President gave him the inside history of the assault on the sailors of the Baltimore in the streets of Baltimore. Capt. Schley is very free in saying that he fears trouble in the near future, and regards the present settlement merely as a truce.

Important Railroad Deal.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 30.—A report is current here that one of the most important railroad deals ever attempted in the West is now incubating. The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton is about to absorb the Indianapolis, Decatur & Western and Terre Haute & Peoria roads. The deal also includes, it is said, the Iowa Central. This will create a new line from Cincinnati to St. Louis and the Northwest via Metcalf on the Clover line, and will tap an immense section of the country. A preliminary trip for observation has been made by the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton officials, and the negotiations are now in progress.

Her Horrible Death.

FREEHOLD, N. J., Jan. 30.—Mrs. Geo. Hopping, wife of a wealthy farmer near Hopping Station, is slowly dying a horrible death. A few days ago she inhaled some smoke over a cook stove, filled with green and unseasoned wood. A day or two latter her head, face and breast began to swell until now she is unable to see, eat or talk. It is believed that the wood in the stove was covered with poison ivy or sumach.

Two-thirds of the Population Idle.

EGG HARBOR CITY, N. J., Jan. 30.—Most of the large clothing factories of this place have shut down business on account of dull times. The result is that fully two-thirds of the population are entirely idle. The clothing industry is the chief means of livelihood for the residents here and this shut down will entail great poverty in its track.

Frightened to Death.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 30.—Mrs. Emma Shaeffer, of this city, was frightened to death late at night by a tramp who entered her room unexpectedly, by forcing open the door. Her husband was lying sick in the same room. Before he could reach his wife, she had given a dying gasp. The tramp gazed, horror stricken, into the face of the dead woman a moment and then fled.

The Abandoned Tahita's Cargo Removed By an American Steamship.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Advices from Mexico say that for some time a small American steamship named Roseville has been acting mysteriously in the neighborhood of Manzanilla. Nothing could be learned about her, except that she went in and out of the bay very suspiciously. When asked what business he was engaged in, her captain stated that he was superintending the shipment of goods from Mexico intended for the World's Fair at Chicago. A few weeks ago the Roseville left the port of Manzanilla with a small sailing vessel in tow.

A few days after the sailing vessel returned and neither the officers nor the crew of the Roseville would give any explanation of their movements. The following night she again departed taking an American as a passenger.

These mysterious cruises excited the suspicion of the port official, and they learned that the Roseville was engaged in looting a big wreck. Revenue cutters were sent out to watch the Roseville, but on the way a storm arose and the government boats were obliged to return. On the next return of the Roseville some of her crew told the whole story.

It appears that some time ago the Roseville, on a voyage to Manzanilla, passed the American bark Tahita abandoned. The Roseville lay by her long enough to know that her hold was filled with valuable merchandis and hundreds of dead South Sea Islanders. There were about 287 passengers on board when the vessel was wrecked, and all hands were lost.

The Roseville subsequently found the Tahita floating bottom up, and after getting along side they bored a large hole in her bottom and removed the cargo. Fearful that they would be interrupted in their work before they had made a sufficient haul to repay them for their trouble and risk, they chartered the sailing vessel to assist in the transfer. The stuff taken from the Tahita is supposed to have been landed at Laguna de Cuyutulau and there secreted. The authorities are investigating the affair.

AGRICULTURAL LABORERS.

The Eastern Counties Congress in Session at Cambridge, Eng.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The Eastern Counties Agricultural Congress is at session at Ely, near Cambridge. A larger number of delegates from agricultural communities were present, the object of the meeting being to outline the legislation which will tend to improve the condition of the agricultural population.

At the opening of the proceedings the Rt. Hon. Henry Chaplin, president of the Board of Agriculture, declared that the Government recognized the fact that it was imperative to offer agricultural laborers inducements to remain upon the land instead of migrating to the cities and towns.

Mr. Chaplin then urged the laborers to improve their moral condition so far as possible, and to trust to the Government to do everything possible to otherwise ameliorate their condition.

The opinions expressed oy the agricultural delegates showed that they were in favor of a measure to provide agricultural laborers with small allotments of land at low rentals and for the creation of parish councils and pensions for old age.

Brazil's Appropriation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Bureau of American Republics is informed that one of the first acts of the Brazilian Congress when it reconvened after its dispersion by the late President Deodora was to make an appropriation equal to $329,000 to aid the representation of the United States of Brazil at the International Exposition at Chicago. The new President formally approved the bill and the money was placed to the credit of the Minister of Agriculture, who is to have general direction of the Brazilian exhibit.

Committed By Persons Unknown.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 30.—The coroner's jury which investigated John Caffrey's mysterious death has decided that he was murdered and places the crime on persons unknown. Coffrey's family gave very conflicting testimony and there is a general belief that they know more of the tragedy than they care to admit. County Detective Shea has the case in hand now and arrests are expected to-day.

THEIR DEADLY FEUD

Desperate Encounters Between an Outlaw and His Enemies.

THREE KILLED IN A WEEK.

The Neighborhood of Pineville, Ky., the Scene of the Tragedies.

Berry Turner, the Hunted Man, Has Killed More Men Than Any Other Who Has Ever Terrorized This Section, and is Supported by a Strong Gang—The Opposing Faction Claim to Have the Law on Their Side, but so Far They Have Been Getting the Hot End of the Fight.

PINEVILLE, Ky., Jan. 30.—A factional feud that promises to rival in blood-shedding the famous Hotfield-McCoy, or any of the other desperate factional wars which have made this section of Kentucky notorious, has broken out in the southern part of this county.

The scene is a wild, mountainous locality known as South America, and is about eighteen miles from the nearest railroad point. Owing to the inaccessibility of the place particulars of the fight are hard to obtain.

Three men have been killed since last Saturday. Their names are Manuel Parton, Lee Davis and Will Jones. The fight is between Berry Turner, a notorious outlaw and murderer, who has killed more men than any other man who has ever terrorized this section with a strong gang, and the Parton faction. The Parton side is a strong one, and claim to have the law on their side, but so far they have had the hot end of the fight. Parton was killed Saturday. He had essayed to capture Berry Turner, dead or alive, and posted himself at a convenient distance from the house in which Turner was fortified with a number of his gang. It was probably Parton's intention to shoot Turner at the first opportunity, but the latter had too much cunning. The outlaw discovered the whereabouts of his would-be slayer and at an unguarded moment succeeded in drawing a bead on the latter and sent a ball from his Winchester crashing through Parton's head. The body of Parton was allowed to lie in the woods for four days, his friends being afraid to attempt to rescue it. When it was finally taken away, the body had been partially devoured by hogs.

This murder only fired the Parton faction to more desperate warfare against the Turner side and on Wednesday they made a bold attempt to avenge the death of one of their men.

The act was disastrous to the Partons as two more of their number were killed.

The Partons had surrounded the Turner stronghold, but instead of taking the army, were themselves taken in. They were fired upon from the Turner house, and before they could realize that their presence had been discovered, Lee Davis and Bill Jones, two of the leading men of the Parton faction, had been pierced by bullets from the deadly Winchester.

More than a hundred shots were exchanged and some of the Turner faction are said to have been wounded. There is talk of organizing a posse of officers from this county, and from Clairbourne county, Tenn., to attempt the capture of Turner and a big fight will undoubtedly follow.

A GROWING TOWN.

The Discovery of Rich Silver Ore Increases the Population 1,500 in Two Weeks.

CREEDE, Col., Jan. 30.—Much excitement has been caused here by the finding in the Jack Pot claim of ore bearing 220 ounces of silver to the ton.

The population of Creede two weeks ago was 2,000. To-day it is 3,500, and two trains a day are greatly swelling that number.

There are few houses in the place, and 75 cents is the price charged to secure a place on the barroom floor, the lodgers to furnish their own blankets and other covering.

It is expected the population of the town will reach 15,000 by May 1.

Who Got the Money?

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30.—An audit of the books of the outgoing health officer, Joseph G. Patterson, has disclosed a deficiency of $1,779.57. In addition to this, on an examination of the books relative to the payment to the city of costs in the abatement of nuisances a loss of $10,234.99 has come to light. No suspicion, however, attaches to Mr. Patterson in connection with these deficiencies. Circumstances point rather to a former clerk in the health office, who is known to have been guilty of similar offences.

Butler County Bank Suspends.

CHICORA, Pa., Jan. 30.—The Butler County Bank, of this place, has closed its doors. Its owner, H. J. Hoyt, made an assignment for the benefit of creditors to Francis Murphy, of Campbell & Murphy, oil producers. It is believed that the assets will cover the liabilities.

CANADIAN EXPORTS.

An Increase of $8,896,839 Over the Previous Year.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 30.—A comparative statement of the exports from Canada from July 1, 1890, to Dec. 31, 1890, and from July 1, 1891, to Dec. 31, 1891, respectively, shows that the exports for the first six months of the last fiscal year exceeded those for the corresponding period of the previous fiscal year by the considerable sum of $8,896,839. In agricultural products alone Dominion exports for the six months ending Dec. 31, exceeded those for the corresponding period of 1890 by $9,029,671.

The exports of animals and their products also shows the gratifying increase of $1,194,547. There has been, in fact, a general advance all along the line of exports, with practically the single exception of lumber, which shows a decrease of $3,133,475, a condition largely contributed to by the labor troubles, which curtailed the output of the sawmills during the latter part of the season. The imports for the six months ended Dec. 31, 1891, amounted to $56,643,318 as against $57,475,923 during the first six months of the previous fiscal year, a decrease during 1891 of $832,605.

In making his budget speech in the House last session, the Minister of Finance calculated that the abolition of the sugar tax would entail a loss to the revenue of about $3,500,000. That this estimate is likely to be verified with approximate exactness is shown by the fact that the duties collected upon imports for the six months of the last fiscal year ended Dec. 31 show a decrease compared with the corresponding period of the fiscal year preceeding amounting to $2,488,984.

Saved from a Terrible Fate.

NEW ALBANY, Ind., Jan. 30.—Patrick McCarty, living at Hamburg, Clark county, had a narrow escape from being buried alive. He had been ill with the grip for several days and to all appearances died. The remains were prepared for burial and a coffin was ordered. While waiting for the undertaker to arrive, Mrs. McCarthy was startled by seeing the supposed dead man move. The other members of the family were summoned and by the use of restoratives the supposed dead husband and father showed the most positive signs of life. He had been greatly reduced in strength by the grip and animation became suddenly suspended.

Expects Favorable Action.

ROME, Jan. 30.—It is stated that the Italian Government has sent to Washington a list of the families that, according to the Italian claim, are entitled to compensation for the loss of relatives by lynching at New Orleans, and that Secretary Blaine has promised the Italian Government to submit the matter to Congress, with the expectation of favorable action. Most of the bereaved families are residents of Sicily, and it is stated that several were left destitute who were in the habit of receiving funds from their relatives who fell victims to the lynchers. The amount of compensation in each case is to be left to the American Government.

To Colonize Russian Hebrews.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 30.—The establishment of a colony of Russian Jews in Northern Wisconsin with money contributed out of the Baron Hirsch fund is being seriously considered. The plan proposed is to purchase a large tract of land and to allot part of it at once among the colonists, and at the same time furnish them with provisions sufficient to sustain them for a while and with the necessary implements of agriculture. The plan provides for the purchase of timbered lands suitable for farming purposes at not less than $4 an acre.

The Nebraska-Iowa Claim.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The controversy involving the title to land claimed by the States of Nebraska and Iowa, in which some testimony has heard by the Supreme Court, had its origin in the eccentric change in the course of the Missouri river at Omaha so that land on the Iowa side of the river was left on the opposite bank adjoining the City of Omaha. Both states claim the land. Its owners are assisting Iowa because they will be compelled to pay municipal taxes if it is decided that Nebraska is entitled to the strip in dispute.

Another Development.

COVINGTON, Ky., Jan. 30.—An interesting phase of the sensational Mitchell-Ward murder case of Memphis, Tenn., has developed here. It was learned that Miss Mitchell had written to the County Clerk about a week ago stating that she and another young lady wished to get married and she wanted to know whether there was any law in Kentucky against the marriage of persons of the same sex.

Home Webster's Accounts.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—It is stated that the Stock Exchange differences of Hume Webster, the horse breeder, who committed suicide a few days ago, amount to nearly £30,000 sterling. Discrepancies are still being revealed in his accounts. It is a mystery how he managed to have such heavy accounts. It is believed that he operated largely through outsiders.

Return of a Captured Flag.

BOSTON, Jan. 30.—By a vote of 50 to 12, the Common Council has authorized the return to the surviving members of Company C, Twelfth North Carolina troops, the flag captured from that company by the Ninth Massachusetts Regiment at the battle of Hanover Court House, Virginia, in 1862.

First Rain in Nearly a Year.

TEMPE, Ariz., Jan. 30.—Rain began falling throughout Central and Northern Arizona at an early hour on Tuesday and still continues in a steady downfall night and day. There is no prospect of a break. With the exception of a brief shower on New Year's day it is the first rain since Feb. 15, 1891. It is very timely and means the salvation of thousands of acres of grain in the Salt and Gila valleys.

HE WAS HER SENIOR

"I'm Tired of That Old Fellow," She Said.

A LIVELY NEW YORK EPISODE.

As He Has Invested $60,000 in Her He Wishes to Retain Possession.

The Queer Actions of "Mr. and Mrs. Algernon Douglass"—He Claims the Woman as His Wife, but This She Emphatically Denies, and Says He is Burroughs, the Philadelphia Speculator, and Already Married—Efforts to Effect a Reconciliation at Length Successful.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—One of the passengers on the afternoon express from Philadelphia was a plump blonde of 30, with ruddy cheeks and an abundance of soft reddish-brown hair. She wore many diamonds and a long sealskin cloak. Beside her sat a gray-bearded man of 51, who is a grain merchant in the Quaker City. The couple went to the residence of Mr. Franklin at 223 West Twelfth street, where the good-looking woman had friends. They passed as Mr. and Mrs. Algernon Douglass.

At 8 p. m. the woman was furnishing entertainment for a crowd at the corner of Sixth avenue and Thirty-eighth street by trying to jerk a satchel out of the grain merchant's hand. Her luxuriant hair had come down and she was crying. She and the merchant had been out to dinner together in Thirty-eight street and she had had a good deal of wine.

Policeman Reardon quieted the woman and she walked a block up town. The woman broke out in another tantrum at Thirty-ninth street, and again at Fortieth street. She wept more violently when Reardon came along a second time, and she insisted that he should make the merchant give her one of the satchels. She said it was her property.

"This woman is my wife," said the grain merchant, "and I want her to come home."

The woman waved her hands and denied emphatically that she was his wife.

Policeman Reardon concluded to have the dispute settled in the Thirtieth street station, and took both the woman and the merchant before Sergeant Cooper.

"This man is Burroughs, the Philadelphia grain speculator," the woman said to the policeman.

When he got before Sergeant Cooper the man said he was Algernon Douglass, and lived at 70 Pine street, Philadelphia. He handed the sergeant a number of letters written by the woman, in which he was addressed as husband.

She said that she was Miss Annie Douglass, and added, with a laugh, that she couldn't be married to the merchant because the latter had another wife.

"I want my satchel and I want to go out alone. I want to live in New York, too. I'm tired of Philadelphia. He's got a beautiful home there, though," she said.

"I've spent over $60,000 on her," he said, "and I want to know where she is going. She can go out alone if she wants to, but I've got a right to know where she intends to stop."

Sergeant Cooper and Policemen Reardon and Drew spent half an hour trying to patch up their differences and go home.

"No," said the young woman. "I'm tired of that old fellow, and that's all there is to it. I want him to mind his own business. I'll have him arrested if he follows me about."

Detective Murphy went and got Mrs. Franklin to act as peacemaker. The women laughed heartily when they met. They chatted together for ten minutes in a private room, and then the blonde in sealskin consented to go back to Twelfth street.

The woman had a long chat with Sergeant Cooper while waiting for Mrs. Franklin. She said this time that she was the daughter of an officer in the United States army, and that she had married the grain merchant on Governor's Island seven years ago. She added that she had tired of him because of the disparity in their years.

Big Suit Against Uncle Sam.

BOSTON, Jan. 30.—The trial of the suit of Wotten Brothers against the Government, which involves $7,000,000, has been begun in the United States Circuit Court before Judge Colt. This action arises out of the construction of the custom duty clause, "furs dressed on the skin, but not made into articles," under which some plucked coney skins were assessed 20 per cent. ad valorem.

WAS SHE MURDERED?

Mysterious Disappearance of Little Rosa Barowitch, of Detroit.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 30.—Rosa Barowith, a pretty 13-year-old girl, left home last Friday evening, dressed only in a light calico gown and with no hat. Since then her parents have seen nothing of her, and the vigorous search of the police has failed to reveal her whereabouts.

A young friend of the girl tells a strange story that adds much to the mystery surrounding the affair. She says that on the night Rosa left home she saw the missing girl enter a house near by with two young men. Later the same night the three were seen to take a carriage and drive toward the river.

In a search of the house, which had been rented and partly furnished by the two young men for two weeks, were found shreds of the girl's dress. On the floor were also found several clots of blood. The young men have not returned to their quarters since last Friday, and a search of the city fails to reveal their presence here.

It is believed that they decoyed the girl into their quarters, maltreated, murdered and then threw her body through the ice into the river. The police are bending every energy to unravel the mystery, but have met with small success thus far.

Discussing the Behring Sea Question.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 30.—A very important conference has taken place in the official quarters of the Governor-General in the East block. The persons present were Lord Stanley, of Preston, Governor-General of Canada; Hon. J. J. C. Abbott, Premier; Sir John Thompson, Minister of Justice, and Sir George Baden Powell and Sir Lawson, the British Behring Sea commissioners. The result of the conference could not be ascertained, but it is semi-officially stated that the British commissioners were discussing with Lord Stanley and the Ministers the line of conduct to be observed at the Washington Commission, and making preparations to attend it.

Both to Hang.

VIENNA, Jan. 3.—The sensational Schneider murder trial has ended. The jurors required only seventy minutes to find Schneider guilty of all the murders charged against him and a verdict of guilty against Frau Schneider for the murder of Vincenzia Zouffar. The Rev. Mr. Warnick of Plainfield Acts as Clerk of the Council and Preaches the Sermon.

At Montclair, Thursday, the Rev. F. G. Warnick, pastor of Mt. Olive Baptist church of this city, preached the ordination sermon upon the occasion of admitting William Perry into the work of the gospel ministry. Young of New Brunswick was chosen moderator and Bro Warnick, of this city, clerk. There were pastors and delegates present from Westfield, Cranford, Caldwell, Bloomfield, Orange, New Brunswick and Wilmington.

The Pastor Sustained.

The congregation of the Davis Memorial church in Harrison has been having a lively time of it. It was at the Davis Memorial church that pastor Gulteridge removed Sunday-school superintendent Kinsey, after a disagreement at a public entertainment, at which a Dunellen elocutionist, a young lady, had referred to colored people as "niggers". The annual meeting of the Sunday-school board was held last night. There were less than thirty persons in attendance, but they were nearly evenly divided between superintendent Kinsey and the pastor, and there were enough to make things lively. The pastor succeeded in electing his ticket by a narrow majority of one or two, and William S. Mather was chosen to succeed Mr. Kinsey.

A Meeting for Rescue Work.

Mrs. E. M. Whittemore has been in Plainfield on two different occasions, but many who were prevented the privilege of listening to this gifted woman will be glad to know that next Tuesday there will be two opportunities to hear her again in public.

As a leader in rescue work Mrs. Whittemore has had and is having remarkable success, and her quiet, charming manner carries the arrow of conviction to every heart in the audience. The women having the plan in charge are to be congratulated on securing Mrs. Whittemore's valuable time for these two meetings. All will be benefited who can attend—both the Bible reading and the evening lecture.

The Elkwood Sale Adjourned.

The remnants of the Elkwood saloon were to be sold by constable Mattox at auction to-day. The chattel mortgages covered everything left, upstairs and down, including 380 yards of carpet from Whitney's, a lot of bedroom linen, etc., from VanEmburgh and White's, furniture, bedding, table ware, liquors, cigars and glassware from sundry firms in this city and New York.

Joe Miller, the former proprietor, asked for an adjournment of the sale until Friday. He said he could get some money together by that time and settle. So the sale went over until Friday morning at 10.

The Secret of Business Success.

John Wanamaker, the Philadelphia merchant, says that during the ten days previous to Christmas his sales covered about $100,000 a day, so that the grand total for the ten days was only a few dollars under a million. He adds: "I spend $5,000 a week in advertising, and I pay a skilful man—a former editor, and a good one—$600 a month to do it for me. I make money by it. Advertising is the leverage with which this store has been raised up. I do not see how any large and successful business can be done without liberal advertising."

—Engine 385, of which Chas. A. Houston is engineer, continues to attract great attention. This morning on the run from Jersey City she reached here 2 minutes ahead of time, and while waiting a crowd of people congregated to praise her. The main trouble seems to be to keep her down to her time.

Removed—every vestige of Catarrh in the Head, no matter how bad the case, or of how long standing, by Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Not only Catarrh itself, but all the troubles that come from it—they're perfectly and permanently cured by its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties.

If you could only be sure of that, it's enough.

The proprietors of Dr. Sage's Remedy try to prove it to you. They are sure enough of it—a record of 25 years, with thousands of the most hopeless cases, has satisfied them—but how can they prove it to you? There's no better way than with money. So they say this, and they mean it: "if we can't cure your Catarrh, no matter what your case is, we'll pay you $500 in cash. There's a chance that you can't be cured, but it's so small that we're willing to take it."

What more can they say or do to convince you?

Isn't that enough?

Pouring Tons of Molten Metal by Machinery.

Andrew McCardell, the foreman of the Pond Works foundry, invited a PRESS reporter, Thursday afternoon, to witness the pouring of a large "table" for a 120-inch planer. Two immense ladles were filled with the molten iron and placed one at each end of the flask by the traveling cranes. After they had been properly skimmed by the helpers, who in the twilight looked a little like inhabitants of the "inferno", the ladles were made ready to pour. At a signal given by "Mc" with a bulls-eye lantern, the cranes commenced slowly to hoist the ladles under the skillful manipulations of expert men, then to turn and out came the metal in a fiery stream. "Light your shavings" was heard in a loud voice and all was made ready for the escaping gas. It was a grand sight to see 20 tons of iron melted to a white heat and slowly pouring into the runs made to receive it, and would well repay a visit.

HE WROTE "ALABAMA".

Short Sketch of a Dramatist's Varied and Busy Life, and a Scene From the Play.

Augustus Thomas, the author of "Alabama", is thirty years of age, a young man, compared with other successful dramatists of the day, but into these thirty years he has crowded an experience equal to any and more than valuable as material in his work. At the age of eleven he was a page in the United States House of Representatives at Washington. The body at that time contained such national characters as Blaine, Garfield, Butler, Logan, Banks, Ingersoll, Cox,

ACT II; ALABAMA.

Kelly, Schenck, and others who have left their work in history.

For nine years after that time Thomas worked in the mechanical and freight department of a western railroad. At the age of seventeen he won an appointment to West Point in a competitive examination in the district, but for personal reasons resigned after receiving his papers from the war department. Affiliations and sympathies formed on the railroad led him into the Knights of Labor. At the age of nineteen he was master workman of the Missouri assembly, No. 9, being the youngest master workman in the United States.

After railroading young Thomas spent two years in the study of law. He was never admitted to the bar, as the theater diverted his attention. For two years he was in the box-office of Pope's theater, St. Louis. His summers were spent in musical, comedy and opera companies of western origin and adventure. In 1883-84 he was a leading man in Dickson's "Sketch Club", a talented little organization that made an enviable reputation in western and southern cities. After leaving the stage Thomas became a newspaper reporter and worked on the St. Louis, Kansas City and Chicago papers. He was at one time the traveling correspondent of the New York World. He was also at different times the special artist of the St. Louis Republican and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. He has been through two campaigns as a political speaker, was unanimously nominated for the legislature by his party in the Third district of Missouri, and though defeated ran 200 votes ahead of his ticket. After newspaper work, Thomas tried his fortune as a theatrical business manager.

Incidentally to all these ventures and occupations, Mr. Thomas was writing plays. His first drama was a juvenile effort, produced when he was eighteen years of age, and was called "Alone". His successes besides "Alabama" have been "The Burglar", "Combustion", "A Man of the World", and "After Thoughts". As he is young in both years and as a dramatist, his greatest work is still before him.

"Alabama" will be given one presentation at Music Hall, by A. M. Palmer's New York company, and that on Tuesday evening, February 2. Seats are now on sale at the usual prices.

ON A SINGLE STRING.

Musin, the Incomparable, Will Play Paganini's Variations of Rossini's Prayer, That Way.

When Paganini, the violin virtuoso, first appeared in London, in 1831, the report preceded him that he had previously been imprisoned for a term of twenty years, and during this incarceration he was so poor that he could not even provide himself with a proper instrument, or strings for the same. He therefore made a violin out of a wooden shoe, on which he played almost constantly. At last he had but the "G" string left on his instrument. It was then that he composed the beautiful and very difficult variations on Rossini's Prayer of "Moses in Egypt." These reports resulted unfavorably to him socially, but his artistic engagements were very successful.

Mr. Musin will play this famous composition during the programme at Music Hall, Saturday evening of next week, on a violin having but one string, the "G". Mr. Musin is the only violin virtuoso who plays the original Paganini variations, having secured them from a relative of the famous Paginini, and possessing now the only copy in existence.

The variations are so very intricate and deceptive as to frequently call forth doubt from violinists in the audience as to their being played on one string, yet the violin upon which this great composition will be played is open to inspection from one and all. No virtuoso who has traveled through America has received such universal ovations from the public, and such unanimous high praise from the critics, as Mr. Musin. Since Musin's first appearance in America in 1885, at which time he had the greatest possible success, his popularity has steadily increased, and is still increasing at a very rapid rate.

After having expended one thousand dollars for various medicines and with doctors, and growing worse all the while, I considered my case incurable. I was induced to try Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. After their use for six weeks I can eat meat without distress, a thing that has not occurred before for years. I believe I am nearly cured, and yet it seems too good to be true. Have no doubt but that much of the sleeplessness people complain of is caused by indigestion.—J. W. DRAKE, Centre Market, Newark, N. J.

The Pond Tool Works Lose a Valuable Man.

James E. Greensmith, who has held the responsible position of mechanical engineer so acceptably with the Pond Machine Tool company since its formation, has accepted the office of general manager of the Portland company, of Portland, Maine, and will leave in a few days to assume control there. The Portland company is one of the largest builders of locomotives, marine engines, boilers, and paper maker's machinery in the country. It gives employment to 500 men.

It can truthfully be said that by the departure of Mr. Greensmith the works have lost a valuable man, while the Portland company have gained a most efficient general manager. The workmen in the shops are unanimous in expressing regret at his departure, as he has been easy of approach from the most humble, and had always a kind word for all. May success attend him at his new post, and may his successor be as pleasant and affable.

A Hint for Our Churches.

In view of any number of felicitous matrimonial alliances among Plainfield's enterprising young people in the near future, the following suggestion, from the Grace Church Messenger of Harlem, New York, might help to increase the revenue of the local churches, if properly exploited:

IT IS AN ACTUAL FACT

That the young and handsome Mr.——, of our parish, is engaged to the beautiful and accomplished Miss ——.

Senator Marsh's Bill and Fanwood.

(From The Westfield Standard.)

Senate bill No. 3, was introduced January 12, by Senator Marsh. It is an act making it unlawful for township committees of any township in this State to grant licenses for the sale of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors. It reads as follows: "Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, that from and after the passage of this act it shall be unlawful for any township committee of any township in this State to grant any license for the sale of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors within said township. And be it enacted, that all acts, whether general or special, inconsistent with the terms of this act, be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately". It is understood that this act applies only to Fanwood township, whose township committee grants licenses. It is said to be the only township committee in the State that does grant licenses. The passing of this act will simply place Fanwood in line with all other townships and her licenses will be granted by the courts.

ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS are unapproachable in curative properties, rapidity and safety of action, and are the only reliable plasters ever produced. They have successfully stood the test of over thirty years' use by the public; their virtues have never been equalled by the unscrupulous imitators who have sought to trade upon the reputation of ALLCOCK'S by making plasters with holes in them, and claiming them to be "just as good as ALLCOCK'S," and they stand to-day indorsed by not only the highest medical authorities, but by millions of grateful patients who have proved their efficacy as a household remedy.

WASHINGTON'S SCHOOLS.

They Are Good, But Overcrowded in Every Department.

Scores of People Who Pay No Taxes in the District of Columbia Take Advantage of Its Creditable Educational Institutions—In Franklin Park.

[Special Washington Letter.]

The annual report of the superintendent of the white schools of the District of Columbia, which is now in the hands of the district commissioners, is an exceptionally interesting public document.

The superintendent says that congress has provided liberally for the erection, extension and improvement of school buildings during the past few years and that most of the schools are taught on full time. Nevertheless, it is a fact that a number of schools above the second grade have been restricted to half-day time because of the fact that there is not sufficient room in the school buildings to accommodate all of the pupils. He says that there are over forty-five thousand children attending these schools, while there is only room to accommodate about thirty-one thousand of them, so that in order that all may attend one-third are given only half-day time. That is to say that pupils of the third grade can occupy a room from nine o'clock until twelve, while pupils of the fourth or fifth grade may occupy the same room from one o'clock until four in the afternoon. It is desirable, indeed necessary, that there should be an additional eight-room building in each of the school divisions of the city, while a number of schoolhouses are needed in the growing suburbs.

One thing that stands out most prominent in the report of the superintendent is the fact that so many non-residents of the District of Columbia claim and are accorded school privileges for their children. There are over four hundred members of the house and of the senate and fully six hundred employes of the capitol and its adjuncts, who pay no taxes whatever in the District of Columbia, yet demand the privilege of sending their children to the public schools. It is impossible for the school authorities to distinguish between the real and temporary citizens of the national capital, as we have no polling precincts, no voters, nor other means of ascertaining bona fide residents. Therefore it happens that any family residing in the city, whether temporarily or permanently, is assumed to have the right to send their children for instruction in the various grades of our public schools.

Quite a number of the children grow to young manhood and young womanhood under the tutelage of District instructors and are fitted for admission to the high school. The superintendent calls attention to the fact that the present high school building is not large enough to accommodate the constantly increasing number of pupils advanced to that grade, and he recommends the establishment of other coordinate high schools as very desirable adjuncts to the present educational machinery. The plant for coordinate high schools will be found to be exceedingly expensive, and it is not at all likely that the present congress, either senate or house, will be inclined to deal liberally with any matters whatever, not even for the educational advancement of the rising generation.

There is a spirit of economy in the air of the national capital; but it is a cheese-paring spirit, a sort of save-at-the-spigot-and-waste-at-the-bung-hole economy. Therefore it is not likely that the recommendations for the establishment of coordinate high schools will be favorably acted upon by congress. It is shown by this same report that congress has heretofore insisted upon limitations in the salaries of teachers, so as to make it utterly impossible for the superintendent to employ the number of experts required for a well-equipped high school. This may seem strange as a corollary of the fact that the children of our statesmen are being educated in these schools.

It will be interesting, especially to my younger readers, to know the curriculum adopted by the high schools of the District of Columbia. The first year's work is: In the academic branch—English, history, algebra, Latin, lectures on physiology and physical geography.

Scientific—German, lectures on physiology and physical geography.

Business branch—same as above, with bookkeeping, business arithmetic, lectures on physiology and physical geography by advanced instructors.

The attendance upon the schools during the past year has been exceptionally good because it has been uniformly regular. The increased attendance was peculiar in that it was confined almost wholly to the upper grades. This was not because of the crowded condition of the schools of the lower grade, nor was it because the lower grade schools received less care and attention than those of the upper grades. The superintendent in his report is unable to account for this peculiar fact.

The good people of Washington are suffering from the same affliction which bears so heavily upon the fathers of families in almost every considerable city in the United States. Every year, for some reason or other, and from some motive more occult than transparent, the teachers discover what seems to be a necessity for a change in the kind of text books in common use. For this reason second-hand books cannot be bought and the older children cannot transfer as precious legacies to their younger brothers and sisters the books which they have used and preserved most carefully. The annual expenditure for new books is one of the regular expenses which the head of a family must count upon. In some cities it is claimed that superintendents are corruptly influenced by book publishers to make these changes; but it would not be fair to even intimate such a thing concerning the immaculate officials who preside over the schools in the national capital.

In a majority of the towns, cities and counties of this country, since the new year dawned, the children have been going to and from their schools, either walking upon or wading through the snow; or rushing with flying feet through the bitter cold air which comes with biting strength from the far north land. In this city, however, where the climate is mollified and modified by the genial influence of the gulf stream, our children, young men and maidens traverse clean, smooth sidewalks and streets, some of them wearing neither overcoats nor heavy wraps, because of the mildness and balminess of the atmosphere.

One thing, however, is noticeable here, and it is so wherever public schools are open and flourishing, the children have too many books to study to ever master and absorb the contents of any of them. Little ones not more than ten or twelve years old are bearing on their backs the burden of at least a dozen books, but they will never bear these burdens upon their brains, because it is impossible for young or old to gain erudition by absorption. One thing at a time, and that done well, is an excellent motto which very few instructors ever learn. They push pupils through a curriculum and eventually give them certificates which inform the public that their possessors are educated, but, in nine cases out of ten, the high-school graduates cannot correctly spell vernacular English. It would be better for the little ones to spend the first two years in their spelling books, with no other study whatever, than to push them along through so many books that they do not know even the names of the authors of them. If two years were spent in the spelling book, one year in grammar, another year in arithmetic, and another year in penmanship, with a review of other studies, better scholarship would result.

In that manner, there would be laid a good, broad and deep foundation, and every little mind which is imbued with a natural desire for information could develop itself without extraneous aid. These are words of wisdom.

Down town, in the heart of the city, opposite Franklin park, stands the most desirable school in the city for children to attend. The grounds are large, the schoolrooms are large, the most beautiful park in the city is directly opposite, and during recess or at noon time there are more bright and happy faces to be seen in the vicinity of Franklin school than anywhere else in Washington. On every other side of the park are the homes of distinguished people. Their children are among the throngs of happy rompers who take possession of the place. There is nothing better and more elevating for the heart and soul of man, especially in this sin-ridden city, than to spend an occasional hour in the atmosphere of childhood, youth or young maidenhood. Such an hour I spent this morning in Franklin park, watching the children and indulging in speculations concerning their present and future. Thereafter I examined the superintendent's report with a great deal of interest, and concluded to transmit these facts and thoughts to my reading friends throughout the country.

SMITH D. FRY.

Feminine Hazing.

There is no doubt of the wonderful progress making in the "higher education" of women. In very few matters are the college girls behind the college boys, and at the present rate of progress they will soon be far ahead in many things until lately distinctly peculiar to male collegians. Wellesley girls had an exciting pillow rush last week, and now news comes from the Pacific coast of some highly interesting developments in the practice of hazing among the young lady students in a seminary near San Jose. Among other things the girl sophs tied a rope around the waist of a girl fresh and pulled her around playfully until she fainted, and she was afterwards quite ill. Investigation disclosed many similar evidences of advanced and advancing culture.

Bread from Moss.

Along the Columbia river a kind of bread is made from a moss that grows on the spruce-fir tree. This moss is prepared by placing it in heaps, sprinkling it with water, and permitting it to ferment. Then it is rolled into balls as big as a man's head and these are baked in pits.

She Was Imposed Upon.

Lady (engaging servant)—Why did you leave your last place?

Servant—I couldn't put up with the way one of the young mistresses used to copy me, mum.

Lady—What do you mean?

Servant—Why, I had a private soldier for a sweetheart, and what must she do but go and get a hofficer for herself.—London Tit-Bits.

THE WORLD FOR 1892.

"The most energetic, resolute and relentless journal in America when it sets out to accomplish any great object; I can testify to its ready humanity, comprehension and persistence."—GAIL HAMILTON.

We can tell our Republican readers a secret and our Democratic friends a piece of good news:

THE WORLD intends to and will elect another Democratic President this year, as it elected Grover Cleveland in 1884.

Whether the Democratic candidate shall be Grover Cleveland, representing the cause of Tariff Reform, or any one of a number of other Democratic leaders who can be elected, representing all the elements of opposition to Republicanism, THE WORLD will be foremost in his support. The next President must be a Democrat.

But while doing this THE WORLD will give to its Republican readers, as it did in the recent campaign, a fuller and better report of Republican meetings and speeches in the Presidential canvass than the organs of their own party print. THE WORLD never colors news; it photographs events.

THE WORLD is now printing an average of 330,000 copies a day. It has made a net average gain of 36,000 a day during the past year. It will circulate this year, on the basis of this increase only, at least 120,000,000 copies of the ablest, strongest and best Democratic newspaper ever printed.

THE WORLD is recognized as distinctively the Newspaper of the People. It believes that to be the highest journalism which is dedicated to the public service.

THE WORLD puts heart and conscience into its work as well as brains. It is the handmaid of Justice, the unraveller of mysteries, the detecter and the terror of Crime, the friend of the friendless, the help of the poor, the strength of the weak. Realizing that its power comes from the People, it gives back to them freely whatever service its influence and its resources enable it to render.

With a perfect equipment, a thorough organization, capable direction and a deep determination to move on and up to higher ideals and greater achievements, THE WORLD wishes its multitude of readers a successful year, and confidently bids them to expect from it during 1892 even more wonderful things than it has already accomplished.

THE NEW YORK RECORDER

FOR 1892.

Published every day in the year at No. 21 PARK ROW.

BY THE NEW YORK RECORDER COMPANY.

THE RECORDER begins the new year with more readers than any 2-cent Republican newspaper published in the United States. Within less than one year it has leaped to the front rank among the newspapers not only of America but of the World.

It has been first in originality, enterprise and news gathering. It is the most complete chronicler of the world's workings to be found.

THE RECORDER is wading straight into the future with the purpose not only of being the best Republican paper published, but the best paper of any sort on the top of the globe.

The women have devoted to themselves a page of women's news and women's fancies. It is the "only" Women's Page in several senses. It is written by women, for women, and it is tempered with wisdom and edited with knowledge.

There is no paper like a home newspaper. THE RECORDER is the Home Newspaper of the Metropolis. It has more subscribers who read it in their family circle than any other paper printed, and this list grows fast.

Every day somebody outside of the routine of news is blessed with attention. Able writers who can talk sense produce THE RECORDER'S "special daily features".

"Howard's Column" is found only in THE RECORDER. That skilled observer never wrote more crisply or entertainingly than in this column. It depicts "Gotham day by day" in vivid colors.

The fame of the witty Marquise de Fontenoy has gone around the world since THE RECORDER gave her letters on the frailties and foibles of European life to the public. The censors of foreign courts —those executioners of news in the old monarchies—have expurgated the letters of the Marquise found in the continental mails, but in this free land the letters will continue to divert and delight everybody.

Cholly Knickerbocker's knowledge of the pleasures and woes of the Four Hundred is revealed daily in THE RECORDER. There is nothing like it or even approaching it in any other New York newspaper.

In the great Presidential campaign of 1892 THE RECORDER will "first of all get the news". Full and fair reports of political proceedings will characterize its columns. Its politics is Republican, its news non-partisan.
